BUSINESS.

Bank clearings for September thus far, are much in excess of last year's, and double those of 1901. The consumptive demand for butter and eggs is much greater than ever before at this season, indicating a largely increased population.

The Chicago grain pit closed with prices higher for all options. Atchison was the leader in a dull market in New York, and scored a rise of 2½ points. A renewed suit against the Amalgamated Copper interest in Montana and a 3-point break in Consolidated Gas aroused misgivings as to the market attitude of the Standard Oil interests.

THE APOTHEOSIS OF PARKS.

About as disgusting a spectacle as could well be imagined is that of the labor-unionist "leaders" in New York worshiping at the shrine of Sam Parks, the convicted felon who has been brought back from Sing Sing penitentiary on a legal quibble and admitted to bail. If there were any doubt as to the guilt of Parks the case would be different. He might then pose as a martyr to some purpose. But there is no such doubt. The evidences upon which Parks was convicted was conclusive; and, indeed, Parks himself virtually admitted his guilt, prior to and immediately following his indictment, and insolently demanded of the authorities, "What are you going to do about it?" In due time he received his answer from the authorities, in the form of arrest, trial, conviction, and sentence to a term in the State prison. If ever a felon deserved the punishment meted out to him, Sam Parks deserves the punishment decreed in his case. If, by some miscarriage of justice, he succeeds in escaping a term in the penitentiary, it will be by reason of a legal technicality, dug up by smart but unscrupulous lawyers to defeat the ends of justice.

Parks's supporters know that he is guilty, if they are intelligent enough to know anything. The evidences of his guilt were so overwhelming as to leave no room for doubt in the mind of any person capable of the simplest processes of cerebration. Yet, with the full knowledge of his guilt, the members of the Housesmiths' and Bridgemen's Union (of which he was the walking delegate) have supported and are supporting him—literally as well as figuratively—almost to a man. Several times since his indictment they have given him a vote of confidence. When he was brought back from the prison they flocked to the station to meet him as though he were a conquering hero instead of a convicted felon. He was given a hilarious reception by "de gang," consisting principally of strikers whom he had thrown into idleness, and who have been "loafing" for several months. "In his greatest day of victory Parks was never the hero of such a demonstration as that which met him on his return from Sing Sing," says a New York dispatch. "Massed against the station gates and on the train platform were sympathizers to the number of two thousand. 'Hurrah for Parks!' they cried, and they pounced upon him with such vigor that twelve policemen were unable to hold them back."

As compared to this exhibition, the addle-pated women who lug flowers to convicted murderers are patterns of consistency and decency. The action of Parks's supporters is not alone a defiance of the law, but a defiance of public opinion, which is even greater than the law, since it makes and unmakes statutes and constitutions. By thus lionizing Parks, after the courts had decreed him to be a felon who should be incarcerated in prison for the good of society, his supporters virtually place themselves in the same moral attitude toward society and the law as that occupied by the felon himself. They declared themselves, in effect, not supporters of the law, but as being in favor of its violation.

No man, and no class of men, can afford to applaud or condone lawlessness. Members of labor unions are constantly doing this very thing. Is it any wonder that such practices are bringing them and their organizations into disrepute?

CRIME AND PUNISHMENT.

A local paper, which is running a campaign on the asserted negligence or incapacity of the Los Angeles police force in arresting criminals, has been publishing a series of opinions of citizens in regard to what might, should or could be done, to make "the punishment fit the crime." Among others the following information was vouchsafed by a well-known citizen of Los Angeles:

"Robbery should be made a capital punishment. A man isn't going to run so many chances if he knows capture will mean his death."

This policy would be ineffective. Moreover, if we may judge by the history of the past, such a course would not prove effective in lessening crime. Experience shows that unreasonably severe punishments do not tend to greatly lessen the crimes against which they are aimed. It is not more than about a century since the list of crimes punishable with death in England was half as long as your arm. People who are yet scarcely past middle age can remember how it was a common sight, on a Monday morning, to see several bodies of men, and not infrequently women, with black caps over their heads, swaying in the breeze in front of the gloomy portals of Newgate prison, in London. Toward the end of the eighteenth century the punishment for stealing anything worth more than five shillings, or $1.25, was death. There is a story of a poor wretch who was brought up for stealing a pair of suspenders worth about a dollar and a half. The jurymen, being somewhat soft-hearted, declared that it would be a shame to hang a man for stealing a pair of "braces," so they brought in a verdict of manslaughter, for which the punishment was only life imprisonment. How many American jurymen would convict a man of stealing a sack of potatoes if the punishment was death?

Again, in the Middle Ages, it often happened that ferocious punishments were ordained for comparatively trifling offenses. People had their noses and hands cut off, were torn to pieces by horses, were flayed alive, were boiled in oil, and put to other horrible tortures, but history shows that such punishments rarely achieved the results which they were intended to effect. History also shows that religious sects have flourished under cruel persecution—and to hang a man for theft would be persecution rather than punishment.

Again, take the case of the torturing of negroes in the Southern States, by burning at the stake, and otherwise, for the crime of rape. Have these punishments resulted in lessening the frequency of these crimes? Not at all, but rather the contrary. That is to say, the crimes have been more frequent, whether or not this has been in spite of or on account of the lynchings.

What is needed is not an increase in the severity of the punishments meted out by our courts to criminals, but rather a swift and inexorable application of the present laws, so that the criminal might be certain that punishment will follow crime as quickly and certainly as night follows day. The suggestion recently made by a United States judge that appeals in criminal cases should be abolished is certainly one that is worthy of consideration. At present, the "law's delays" have come near to transforming the sessions of our courts of justice into a succession of opera bouffe performances.

Then, if to this we add a reform in the education of our children, teaching them respect and obedience to their elders and superiors, and ceasing to make a hero of the American "bad boy," we shall have done about all that can successfully be done to reduce the volume of crime, which seems to be spreading like an epidemic throughout the country. It is certainly high time to start a reform of this kind, when we find, here in Los Angeles, within a few days, two boys, aged 13 and 10, arrested for highway robbery, and a boy of 11 arrested twice for theft within a week.

The professors of dancing are rising in revolt against the football hug on the ballroom floor. They declare that the young fellows with inordinate biceps and manes like lions are demoralising the business and causing curvature of the spine in our women folks. If any such business as this has been going on it is certainly high time that we were informed about it. We trust that the convention of dancing masters, now in session in New York, will not adjourn until this thing has been settled, and settled right. Who wants a girl who is all bent up?

Of course the unionist demands that he be permitted to do as he pleases. That's all that the other people are asking, and that right they purpose to have if they have to fight for it.

Hereafter razors and other paraphernalia used in barber (or tonsorial) boudoirs will have to be parboiled before being reused after once having gone over the faces of customers, in this goodly city of Los Angeles. Now if "freezem" can be kept out of our Hamburg steaks and formaldehyde out of our milk, we ought soon to become as healthy hereabouts as the climate purports to be.

San Diego, and thereabouts, is not so much interested in news of the yacht races as she is wondering how in the mischief she is going to stand off that gang of newspaper men who are about to break away from their reservations and descend upon that section like a besom of destruction and with a wild warwhoop.

Just as there was prospect of a nice job of asphalt paving being done the undertaking receives a kibosh at the hands of the Street Superintendent. It would be just the look of this town to have some such thing as that happen if we started to plant shade trees.

The spirit of the Molly Maguires is said to be rampant in Pennsylvania again. If this be a fact we would recommend to the State of Pennsylvania the sawed-off shotgun as one of the most efficient coolers of heated blood that we wot of.

The adulteration of Hamburg steak may be perfectly harmless, as is claimed, but the purchaser of chewed meat ought to be allowed to judge for himself as to that, and not have sulphite of soda rammed down his throat, whether or no.

The no-race for the America's cup is becoming positively painful to all concerned, and particularly so to our distinguished visitor, the gentleman who carries about the best assortment of carefully selected teas in the business.

The proper location for an international yacht race is at some place where the wind blows. If the contestants are going to stick to the Sandy Hook course, it may become necessary to equip the boats with oars or propellers.

The Weather Bureau warns us that the weather is likely to be hot again presently. But such warning is entirely superfluous, for it never fails to heat up in this part of the country when school is about to begin.

The Democrats of Pennsylvania have viewed with alarm. And it is entirely proper to admit that they have the view coming to them, considering the sort of politics the Republicans are giving the Keystone State.

New York has been boasting about its unusually cold summer. But has that town ever stopped to think that it might have been occasioned by the refrigerated feet that are so prevalent in Wall street?

Mr. Carnegie is going to sail for home from Liverpool next Friday. That is an unlucky day for a Los Angeles library. Some way or another Andy doesn't appear to think any too much of this town.

The green-corn season is waning, and even watermelons are becoming a trifle passé. It will soon be next winter. But think of the lovely tourist crop that we will shortly commence to harvest.

If Baldwin, L. I., can spare the deputy sheriff who succeeded in killing one burglar, wounding a second and capturing two others, we know a town that has a mighty fine opening for him.

It is all very lovely about our baseball team winning the pennant, but think how much lovelier it would be if the sturdy sluggers had some nice shade trees to rest under after the ball.

If we wait for those Colombian insurgents to settle it we might as well make up our minds that there isn't going to be any Panama canal in the future, same as previously.

It would be no more than fair to some of our winter visitors to put up guide posts along the road saying: "Seven miles to the Los Angeles rock pile," and such as that.

We have been wondering what was coming next, and now the secret is out. Hamburg steak full of dope, and a dickens of a row again about the public printing.

It mightn't be a bad idea to equip our suburban cars with safe deposit boxes for the protection of the passengers' jewels and other precious possessions.

SCHOLARSHIP CONTEST.

WHIRLWIND FINISH OF MEMORABLE RACE.

THE TIMES' scholarship contest of 1903 is ended, so far as the work of the contestants is concerned. The voting ceased at 12 o'clock last night, and all that remains to be done now is the counting of the ballots, the announcement of the result and the awarding of the prizes—and last, but not least important of the remaining events, the jubilation.

No such campaign as that closed last night has ever been waged anywhere. The amount of energy and enthusiasm that has been manifested breaks all records, as will also the scores of the leading candidates. Miss Winifred Beckingsale's high score of 151,942 made in last year's contest, will look small beside some of the scores made this year.

The closing day of the contest was the most exciting of the entire sixty-four that the contest lasted. All the contestants and their friends were working like beavers in the final round-up of "points." The votes were cast in blocks of thousands and tens of thousands, some of the contestants putting in as high as 25,000 or 50,000 points at one clatter. Of course these were not all secured yesterday, but were points that had been held in reserve. Nevertheless, much new business was done yesterday and The Times' subscription list is larger than ever this morning as the result of the hustling done by the scholarship candidates in the closing hours of the contest.

A regular land-office business was done at the subscription counter of The Times building, and a similar state of activity existed at the branch offices and suburban agencies of The Times throughout Southern California. People almost fought each other in their frantic endeavor to line up at the counter with their money to pay for subscriptions to help their favorite candidates. It was almost midnight before the crowd in the counting room of The Times office dissolved, and many of the eager contestants did not get home to bed until considerably past the witching hour of 12. The chances are they did not sleep then, for rest will be impossible until they know what the final score is.

The extra force of clerks employed yesterday and last night to count the votes could not begin to keep up with the work. Such a mass of coupons and subscription certificates as deluged the scholarship department is entirely unprecedented. However, the work of getting at the final result was in such a shape at the hour of going to press as to warrant the hope that the count will be completed in time to announce the final score Friday morning. Meantime, the contestants and their friends and sympathizers must possess their souls in patience. Don't ring up this morning to ask what the score is, for no one will be able to tell you.

At this writing, even the scholarship manager does not know who will win first prize. Miss Jeannette Bower's friends were so confident last night that she had won, that they were willing to risk all kinds of money that the victory was hers. Miss Bower, according to preliminary estimates, will have in the neighborhood of 225,000 votes. Miss Hibbard will land not far from the 200,000 mark, herself, and there is a possibility of her having beaten Miss Bower, but the probability is that the Pasadena girl has a safe majority.

Miss Bower and Miss Hibbard were both confident yesterday that they would be first and second in any event, but about half an hour before midnight a quiet, gray-eyed young lady walked into The Times office and deposited her last batch of votes for herself. She was not in the least excited, nor did she seem worried about the outcome of the contest.

"What is Miss Bower's estimated score?" she asked. On being informed that it would take at least 205,000 to beat it, she said demurely:

"Is that all? Then, perhaps, I have won that $250 after all. I hardly expected it."

The speaker was Miss Gertrude Pedelty of Santa Ana. She was confident last night that she had more than 200,000 votes, but whether this is correct is as yet impossible to say. The general belief of those who have watched the contest closely is that Miss Bower will be first, Miss Hibbard second and Miss Pedelty third.

Others who have probably passed the 150,000 mark are Pearl Ellis, Manuel Saenz, Florence Darch, Elizabeth Dehmlow and Porter Blackburn. These will all be among the "Upper Ten" and Winifred Beckingsale, Georgia Pitts, and Clare Templeton will probably be in the same class.

Yada Watson, the colored candidate, will not be far from "Upper tendom," as 17,000 points were voted for her in one lump, and there were several other bunches amounting to close to 10,000 voted in her favor. Ethel Bryan, Mabel Brown and several others will also be close to tenth place.

But speculation as to the final score is useless. In twenty-four hours the exact result will be known, and then there will be rejoicings as well as disappointments. However, nearly every one of the active contestants will be well rewarded for the hard work done during the campaign.

CORONADO BEACH.

EVENTS AMONG THE TENTS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

TENT CITY (Coronado) Sept. 2.—Yesterday's arrivals in camp: Miss Kate Isaacs, F. H. Grant and wife, J. A. Meredith, Los Angeles; W. B. Flanders and wife, Salina, Kan.; F. A. Briggs, Riverside; Frank Ash, William Rogers, Flossie Annable, San Bernardino; Harry Ainsworth and wife, Albuquerque; Eva A. Walton, Redland; Susie E. Howell, Redlands; J. H. Hartzell, Highland.

The second meeting of the visiting club women in camp was held yesterday. The speakers included Mrs. Campbell of Wichita; Mrs. Turner of the Pasadena Shakespeare Club; Mrs. Clark of the Children's Home, San Diego; Mrs. Fish, Miss Lyman and Miss Barton. Refreshments were served and and at the close of the meeting a few moments were passed at the library.

Hotel arrivals include T. F. Carvell and Miss Carvell, Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Locher and child, St. Louis; Mrs. H. Geimer, Miss Cora Geimer, Miss Adile Geimer, Miss Pearl Geimer, St. Louis; Charles Walters, Bellaire; Miss Eva Stavnow, Los Angeles; Mrs. Jessie Bennett, Caldwell, Kan.; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Quackenbush, Buffalo; Miss Edith Neman, El Paso; Miss Mura Newman, El Paso; Paul H. Schmidt, New York; R. W. Malhamau, Chloe; Tristam B. Brown, Rochester; L. A. Bamster, Mrs. Bamster, St. Louis; G. W. Thompson, Catalina; Dr. Henry Gibbons, Jr., San Francisco C. McCullogh, wife and child, Los Angeles; Claude E. Weel, Leeton, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest May and son, Crawford, returned to their home in Pasadena today.

C. White Mortimer, British Vice-Consul at Los Angeles, and his wife are at the hotel.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Mary Lang.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Mrs. Mary Lang, once wealthy, is dead from carbolic acid poisoning at a Brooklyn hospital. Several years ago her husband died, leaving her a fortune and a handsome home in Williamsburg. Soon she began to give help to all sorts of unfortunate families and as the appeals for aid multiplied her fortune disappeared. Her home was lost through the foreclosure of a mortgage and she was finally driven to seek assistance from the folks she had helped. Most of these persons are said to have turned her away, and as she was too old to procure employment, she committed suicide.

Rev. Dr. Corning.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The Rev. Dr. James Leonard Corning, the celebrated pulpit orator and historian and diplomat, is dead in Munich, according to a private dispatch just received here. Dr. Corning, who was 72 years old, had been active as a minister for the last twenty years, was one of the most celebrated art historians of the present age, and had lectured both here and abroad on his favorite subject.

He was at one time American Consul at Munich, an intimate friend of President Lincoln, Gen. U. S. Grant and Henry Ward Beecher.

Daniel Minthorn.

WATERTOWN (N. Y.) Sept. 2.—Daniel Minthorn, a well-known inventor and geologist, died here today, aged 90 years. He was the first in this State to grind iron ore into paint and also to grind talc. Although it is said that millions have been realized from his ideas, he died in poverty.

AGUINALDO'S GOOD ADVICE.

MANILA, Sept. 2.—Aguinaldo, the ex-revolutionary leader, but now a pronounced supporter of the policy maintained by the United States in the island dependency, has just addressed a letter of advice to his countrymen. In this he urges them to forsake their besetting sin—gambling—to improve their methods of agriculture, and to attend the public schools so generously provided to afford them educational facilities.

Miss Annie Peck of New York, who has achieved fame as a mountain climber, accompanied by Dr. Albe W. G. Tight, president of the University of New Mexico and two Swiss guides, has successfully ascended Mount Sorata, in Bolivia, the highest peak in the Andes. This is the first time the summit has been scaled.

HONESTY OF FARMERS DEFENDED AT VENTURA.

HOT DISCUSSION ENLIVENS THE UNIVERSITY INSTITUTE.

Instructive Papers and Interchange of Opinions on Opening Day—W.C.T.U. Women Resent Statement of Rev. Wade Hamilton Regarding President McKinley.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

VENTURA, Sept. 2.—The Farmers' Institute for Ventura county opened its session at the Methodist Church in this city today, under the most favorable auspices. The pretty edifice, which had been beautifully decorated for the occasion in bamboo and greenery, was well filled when Prof. A. J. Cook rapped for order. On the platform with Prof. Cook were Mayor J. B. Collins and the Rev. Mr. Morrison, who, after the rendering of the hymn, "Help .. On," gave his blessing to the deliberations. Mayor Collins then welcomed the farmers and others to the city with best wishes for the entire success of the convention.

In response, Prof. Cook said the meetings had been most successful everywhere and that the people were becoming intensely interested in the work taken up by the State University for the betterment of the farming industry. He said the coming year promised greater progress, as the last Legislature had appropriated $12,000 to help on the institutes for the coming two years. This county, he said, was the Mecca of the horticulturists all over Southern California, and as an evidence of none but has made his pilgrimage to Ventura county before getting very deep in the fruit business. The speaker especially urged the formation and the fostering of farmers' clubs everywhere and told of the work of the farmers' club of San Dimas, in this section, which never had less than 100 members present at a session.

Prof. Cook's talk was intensely interesting and he was applauded generously on closing. Then followed further welcome to the people present from Rev. Mr. Morrison. Mrs. Minnie Sherman of Fresno read an interesting paper on "Grapes," in which industry she has proved a successful expert. Her paper was listened to with attention, and at its conclusion discussion was called for on the subject of marketing, and other topics, by farm and orchard products generally. This brought out a pretty warm discussion upon the subject of getting the best to market in the best manner and with the intent to deceive the purchaser. Prof. Cook stated he said it was a difficult matter for the farmer to avoid putting the biggest ones on top, and confessed that he always managed to get the biggest potatoes and the smoothest cherries on top of the heap. John Cummings, Prof. Cook and others rallied to the defense of the honesty of farmers.

Prof. Cook wanted to take a vote on the proposition as to whether it was best to put the big ones on top, but was headed off by Mr. Channon, who explained that he did not defend the principle, but that it was a part of human nature to do so and it would be pretty hard to change mankind.

After the discussion Prof. Cook gave an illustrated talk on "Thrips." "Thrips" are minute insects which discolor the outsides of oranges and lemons by sucking the juices from the skins and they exist in millions everywhere. He gave no remedy to offset their ravages, which were not always to be feared, but his talk was decidedly interesting and lucid.

The session will continue.

W. C. T. U. VS. PREACHER.

The W.C.T.U. of Ventura county and town do not share in any way the sentiment of the Rev. Wade Hamilton of the Methodist Church, South, of this city. Hamilton, in a sermon delivered Sunday night last at a union meeting of the churches, said that the removal of President McKinley had been in direct answer to prayer; that the W.C.T.U. had prayed for the President's removal, the reason being that the President had not taken the stand on the canteen question desired by the temperance women and that a girdle of prayer about the earth had been established for his removal. Mr. Hamilton maintains in a conversation since that his position was right. He said the women had not prayed the President be removed by murder, but that they had prayed for his removal and that he was removed.

The temperance women of Ventura have no sympathy whatever with the peculiar views of Mr. Hamilton. They say they never heard of such a thing as united prayers for the President's removal, nor did they pray individually to any such end and that the minister's remarks, so far as Ventura women were concerned, were without warrant and most unwise, to say the least. Leading workers of the W.C.T.U., like Mrs. J. S. Collins, Mrs. J. H. Alvord, Mrs. W. L. Lewis, Mrs. Dr. Love and others, were outspoken in their condemnation of any such sentiment and they were free to say that so far as Ventura was concerned, Mr. Hamilton did not speak for the W.C.T.U.

FORESTRY AT ITS BEST HERE.

Chief Gifford Pinchot Talks of the Great Work.

Advocates State School to Teach Important Science.

Consolidation of Government Forestry Departments—Official Guest at Banquet.

Gifford Pinchot, chief forester of the United States Bureau of Forestry, who arrived in Los Angeles form the north yesterday evening, was the guest of honor at a select dinner given last night at the California Club by Dr. Walter Lindley. The other invited guests were Ralph Hosmer and Mark Winchester of Washington, D. C., members of the forestry bureau; Dr. F. T. Bicknell, Ferd K. Rule, Dr. Carl Kurtz, Dr. W. W. Hitchcock, Hon. P. M. Daniels of Riverside; Dr. H. Bert Ellis, Dr. E. R. Smith, Hon. James McLachlan, Harry Brook, Dr. C. F. Taggart, S. T. Clover, Rev. George Thomas Dowling, D.D., Dr. Norman Bridge, Dr. W. W. Beckett, Hon. J. D. Bicknell, Prof. T. P. Lukens and T. E. Newlin. Rev. Robert J. Burdette joined the banqueters late in the evening.

Mr. Pinchot, one of the most important men in the government service to Southern California in general, briefly reviewed the purpose of the work of which he is the head, and dwelt upon its application to this region in particular.

"In Southern California," said he, "I always feel that I am among friends; here, in my work, I am surrounded by a more sympathetic populace than anywhere else in the United States.

"It is almost impossible to estimate the vast importance of forestry to every industry of this region. Thanks to the generosity of this State in appropriating $15,000 toward cooperation with the government bureau in its labors, a thorough investigation of forestry conditions is now being made in California.

"One of the important works we have undertaken here is a scientific investigation of the value of planted eucalyptus groves for timber. Another still more important undertaking is forestry extension, on the denuded slopes. Ralph Hosmer, who has charge of the forestry extension work in this region, is studying how the native trees extend themselves over the chaparral regions, so that we may learn to aid nature in this extension. There are thousands of square miles in the West now bare that are fitted for forestation, and once the good work is started on scientific lines, the extension will take care of itself, to the incalculable benefit of the great tributary agricultural regions.

"Mr. Lukens, so well known among you, is studying the introduction of forests where they will not naturally extend.

"The seriousness of this forestation question here should be insisted on with the greatest emphasis. The protection of the chaparral growths already on the watersheds is of the utmost importance, and the greatest enemy we have to fight in this connection is fire."

The speaker then dwelt upon the favorable change in public sentiment that has taken place recently toward the preservation of timber, and paid special tribute to the citizens of Southern California for their firm stand against every selfish private interest that might stand in the way of the Forestry Bureau's work toward the protection and preservation of the vital watersheds. He deplored the scattering way in which the forestry work is administered, being divided among so many departments of government, and expressed hope that it might soon be placed solely under the administration of the Bureau of Forestry to be governed by men who were peculiarly well acquainted with the separate reserves in their individual needs.

"A vital thing that is needed," he said, "is for the State to educate men in the science of forestry. The time when trained men are most needed in a cause is not after the pioneer work has been done and everything is moving smoothly, but at the start, to lay the tracks in the right place, and obviate mistakes that may never be overcome. I hope to see the Legislature of California enact a measure for the establishment of a school of forestry to educate men for the particular problems in forestry that are to be met on the Pacific Coast. Only by an increase in the forest area of the State can an increased water supply of importance be obtained."

Mr. Pinchot closed with a tribute to Prof. T. P. Lukens for the great value, as considered from the standpoint of the forestry department, of his work in this region.

Hon. James McLachlan spoke briefly, upholding the chief forester in his contention for the centering of the administration of the Forestry Bureau under one head.

Among the others who made remarks were Rev. Robert J. Burdette and Hon. P. M. Daniels.

Mr. Pinchot will speak today at 11 o'clock in the assembly room of the Chamber of Commerce on forestry and the work of his bureau in Southern California.

BODY OF UNKNOWN MAN.

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 2.—The body of an unknown man was found in the Kern River, 45 miles from Bakersfield, yesterday. Coroner Mullins left for the scene last night.

HALF A MILLION SHORT.

BALTIMORE (Md.) Sept. 2.—William C. Tucker, co-trustee with his brother of the estate of his father, the late Wesley Tucker, is said to have disappeared from his home in this city. It is stated that upon the return from Europe recently of his mother, whence she had been summoned by relatives, a shortage amounting to upward of a half a million dollars was found in young Tucker's accounts. He is said to be in Central America, at present. Tucker, who is about 25 years of age, is a member of several leading clubs of this city. He is said to have been dealing in stocks for several months.

COINS FOR MANILA.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—Under escort of a strong guard, $1,625,000 silver coins, aggregating $625,000, were shipped today from the United States mint to New York, where they will be placed on board a steamship and taken to Manila.

JAP SEIZED DOLLAR.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—The Tien-Tsin correspondent of the Standard telegraphs the report that the steamer Stanley Dollar has been seized by a Japanese man-of-war because it did not have the permission of Korea to trade in lumber.

NEGRO HANGED AT RICHMOND.

RICHMOND (Va.) Sept. 2.—Anderson Finch, colored, was hanged today for an attempted assault on Mrs. C. A. Meehegan of Chase City.

IRISH PRIEST'S BODY TO RECEIVE SEPULTURE.

REV. EUGENE O'GROWNEY REVIVED GAELIC LANGUAGE.

Died in Los Angeles, After Brilliant Career as Priest, Patriot and Scholar. Funeral Services Across the Continent. Delegation Goes to Ireland.

Final sepulture is to be given to the remains of the late Rev. Eugene O'Growney, priest, patriot and scholar, in the burial ground of his own beloved College of Maynooth, Ireland.

Yesterday the remains of Father O'Growney were disinterred at Calvary Cemetery in this city, and they now lie at the undertaking parlors of Cunningham & O'Connor. Plans have been made for paying the last honors to the noted Irish scholar, which will virtually amount to a series of funeral services reaching across the continent, and then taken up in the native land of the lamented priest.

Father O'Growney, who was for many years a professor in the College of Maynooth, was mainly responsible for the revival of the Gaelic language. This had been one of the main features of his life-work, and he had devoted much time to instilling into the Irish heart a love for the old language. In it he saw a hope of the founding of an Irish republic.

His reputation as an Irish scholar was far-reaching, and in the interests of the revival of the language he published papers, books and pamphlets, besides ably filling the chair of Gaelic language in the Maynooth College.

In the summer of 1894, under the strain of his fourfold duties of professor, editor, writer and active worker in the popular movement, his health gave way, and he came to America, hoping to recover. At New York he was given a great reception by the Irish societies, and a similar demonstration was made in his honor at San Francisco.

He spent several years in Arizona for the benefit of his health, and meanwhile he carried on the work of organizing Gaelic leagues in all parts of the country.

Finally he was forced to come to Los Angeles for medical treatment, and after a sojourn of a few months at the Sisters' Hospital, he submitted to a surgical operation, from the effects of which he could not rally. His death occurred on October 19, 1896. Funeral services were held at St. Vibiana's Cathedral and the funeral sermon was delivered by Rev. Joseph Barron, now pastor of St. Mary's Church of this city, who had been an attendant at the Maynooth College. The body was laid to rest in Calvary Cemetery.

For some time past there has been a movement on foot among the Gaelic leagues and the many admirers of Father O'Growney, to have his remains removed to his native country, and placed in the burial grounds of the college where he labored so earnestly. This at last is to be accomplished.

A solemn high mass will be held at St. Vibiana's Cathedral tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. Bishop Conaty will be present, and besides local priests, there will be in attendance Fathers Cleary, Nugent and Yorke of San Francisco. The Father O'Growney Gaelic League of Los Angeles will be in attendance in a body, and the Irish societies of the city will have delegations present.

Tomorrow evening the president of the local Gaelic League, Laurence T. Brannick, who, by the way, was a former student under Father O'Growney at Maynooth College, will accompany the remains to San Francisco. There they will lay in state in St. Mary's Cathedral for two days. On Monday morning a solemn high mass will be celebrated there, and an address will be given by Rev. F. C. Yorke.

Mr. Brannick, accompanied by Rev. Michael Clifford of San Francisco, and probably others, will then proceed with the remains to Chicago, where the Irish societies of that city will attend a solemn high mass, and an address will be made by Rev. Father Fielding, national chaplain of the Gaelic leagues, who will also accompany Mr. Brannick on his journey to Ireland.

At New York another service will be held, in which the Irish societies will participate, and the delegation will be joined by the national president, Md. P. C. B. O'Donovan of Philadelphia.

The party will sail from New York September 19, and will land at Queenstown, going from thence to Cork. There special services will be held, with an oration on the life and work of the deceased by Archbishop Walsh. The funeral cortège will then proceed to Maynooth, where 700 students will meet it, and a solemn procession will escort the remains of the beloved priest to their last resting place in the burial grounds of the colleges.

CHINK SMUGGLERS CAUGHT.

Near the county line at Oceanside this morning the three nights' vigil of Constable Ben Hubbert was rewarded by the capture of ten Chinamen and two Mexicans, Pedro Lopez and Ysidore Ocampos, making their way to Los Angeles. Hubbert came across the wagon at midnight, the celestials packed like sardines and covered with straw and old blankets. Hubbert secured the help of City Marshal Trotter, rounded up the outfit and returned it to this city. The sons of the Flowery Kingdom crossed the line on the Otay Mesa. The Mexicans are said to have contracted to deliver the men to the Los Angeles agent at Santa Ana for $30. The Mexicans will be charged with aiding and abetting Chinamen to get into the country illegally.

CASE OF DR. COWELL.

The hearing to determine as to the sanity of Dr. G. E. Cowell was continued until tomorrow to give the doctor time to secure witnesses in his behalf. Cowell escaped from his caretaker last night and led the police a long chase. His wife seeks to be appointed guardian of the estate, which is said to consist of Colorado property worth $12,000, and holdings at Joliet, Ill., worth $10,000.

PERSONAL.

Harry Siegel, the Spring-street merchant, has returned from a three months' vacation at Idyllwild and vicinity, with health improved and a record of two deer killed to his credit.

The Motoring Woman's Face.

Many women are discovering that "living on a motor car" is most destructive of beauty. Moderate motoring, by improving health and the capacity for sleep, enhances a woman's charm, but the hardened tourist type of 150 miles a day tans and coarsens her skin, and gets crow's feet around her eyes, her face loses its soft, womanly contour and gains hardness and determination.—[The Tattler.

A NEW ROUTE

The Road to Wellville.

It is by change of diet that one can get fairly on the road to health after years of sickness, for most ill health comes from improper feeding.

What a boon it is to shake off coffee sickness and nervous headaches as some can if determined upon.

One woman accomplished it in this way: "A few years ago I suffered terribly from sick and nervous headaches being frequently confined to my bed two or three days at a time attacks coming on from one to four times in every month. I tried medicines of all kinds but could get no relief until my parents finally persuaded me to quit the use of coffee altogether and try Postum Food Coffee. It had come to a point where I was so utterly miserable that I was willing to make any reasonable trial.

A person couldn't believe what followed but the results speak for themselves: that was two and a half years ago and I have never tasted coffee since. I use Postum not only for its delicious flavor but more for the good it has done me. All of my troubles disappeared as if by magic and I have for the past two years been doing all the work for my family of six. I seldom have even a slight headache and I would not give up my Postum and go back to coffee now unless I deliberately intended to commit suicide.

"All of my neighbors it seems to me now use Postum in place of coffee and some of them have been doing so for several years with splendid results from the health point of view." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Look in each package for a copy of the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 66 deg. and 74 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 89 per cent.; 5 p.m., 49 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., west, velocity 2 miles; 5 p.m., west, velocity 9 miles. Maximum temperature 82 deg.; minimum temperature, 58 deg. Barometer reduced to sea level.

Weather Conditions.—Cloudy mornings continue on the southern coast, elsewhere on the Pacific Slope clear weather prevails with high temperatures in the great valleys. Showery conditions in Arizona. New Mexico and Southern Utah, and Phoenix, Ariz., reports thunderstorms. Cool weather is reported from the Northern States.

Forecasts.—Local forecast for Los Angeles and vicinity: Clouding during night, becoming fair by Thursday noon.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—Weather conditions and general forecast: The pressure has fallen slowly along the coast from San Francisco to the Columbia River. Warmer weather prevails generally over California. In the great valley, afternoon temperatures range from 102 to 108 deg. A small disturbance is developing over the valley of the Colorado and will probably move northwestward over the Mojave Desert and cause thunderstorms in the Sierras and possibly in the foothills. Thunderstorms are reported at Independence and Modena. Fore. cast:

Northern California: Fair Thursday, except showers in the Sierras; continued warm weather; light northerly winds inland; fresh westerly winds on the coast.

Southern California: Cloudy Thursday; probably thunderstorms in the mountains; light westerly winds.

Nevada: Fair Thursday in northern portion; showers in southern portion.

San Francisco and vicinity: Fair Thursday; not so warm; light southerly winds, changing to brisk westerly, with fog at night.

Sacramento and vicinity: Fair Thursday, continued warm; light north winds.

Arizona: Fair in south, showers in north portion Thursday; Friday fair.

WANTED—ONE GOOD WIND.

Shamrock and Reliance Fail to Get a Move on.

Sir Thomas Replies to Criticism of Capt. Wringe.

Third Day of Tennis Tournament at San Rafael—Holbein's Swim—Baseball.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The wind at Sandy Hook at midnight is north, three miles; weather partly cloudy; sea smooth.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The wind failed the Reliance and Shamrock III again today when they were towed to the starting line. All the morning there had been nothing more than light air with a strength of about two miles an hour to it. A heavy fog hung over the course. At 12:30 o'clock, the committee boat put out the "no race" signal. Another attempt will be made to sail the race tomorrow.

Yachtsmen at the Hook opened their eyes this morning upon a day which was very similar to yesterday, save that there was not so much sea going. There was only a little sigh of air, not enough to disturb the equanimity of a puffball, and a mist-draped coast.

The crews of the two cup yachts were about somewhat later than usual this morning, and they did not seem to put much snap into their work. Headsails were set up in stops, and then the crews busied themselves with the interesting pastime of staring out into the mist which the sun was trying hard to break up by 8:15 o'clock, but it was slow work for old Sol.

The prospect of another day of fluks was peculiarly exasperating, in that every one, including Sir Thomas himself, conceding that the Shamrock has not the ghost of a show to win the race, barring an accident or a slip. At 11 o'clock the committee decided to postpone the race until the wind rose. The yachts were at the line, but had not dropped their tows. They had until 1 o'clock to make the start. Half an hour before that, however, the race was called off.

Persistent rumors were abroad today that Sir Thomas Lipton had made two important assertions:

First—That if there was any chance for the Shamrock III to win, he would depose Capt. Wringe and put the yacht under control of Mate Bevis.

Second—That the Shamrock was found too long after her speed trials, and in bringing her up to the proper measurement, she had been stripped so much as to lose her speed.

Sir Thomas was told of these rumors this morning, and he said with unmistakable emphasis: "I am going to reiterate most strongly what I have said repeatedly. I have no criticism to make of Capt. Wringe. He has done his best for me. If I should build another boat and come over here again, the captain of it would be Mr. Wringe, and let that be his commendation. These stories come from people who visit me on the Erin and make their own criticism. If I don't dissent, they go away and say that I practically assent to the view they themselves have asserted.

"Now, as to the second rumor, I will not deny it. It is not worth denying. The Shamrock was built for me in good faith, fully as much so as was the Reliance for Mr. Iselin. Up to the time of the first race I thought, and others thought with me, including many experts, that I had a fine boat. The Reliance is better. I could not know that before the race, or else why race? I have perfect faith in my designer, my captain and my crew, and we have all done and are still doing our best.

"I hope this may settle this vexatious controversy. Of course, I cannot stop criticism, but I do wish that adverse criticism of my fellow-workers and my boats made by outsiders, would not be credited to me, because I stand by and do not make vociferous dissent."

Soon after the start homeward the wind for the first time since the middle of last week shifted from easterly to south and began to breeze up, an indication that the long easterly fog "mull" was breaking, and that tomorrow might give the yachts the long-deferred opportunity of going through the formality of sailing the third and probably conclusive race.

AMERICAN LEAGUE GAMES.

CHICAGO PLAYERS IN LUCK.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—The scores which enabled the locals to defeat St. Louis today were the result of home runs made by Green and Tannehill. Four hits were all that the visitors could gather off Patterson's delivery. Attendance 300. Score:

Chicago, 2; hits, 7; errors, 1.
St. Louis, 1; hits, 4; errors, 0.
Batteries—Anderson and Slattery; Powell and Snyder.

DETROIT-CLEVELAND.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

DETROIT, Sept. 2.—The locals won today's game by team hitting in the fourth inning. Donovan pitched great ball, striking out ten. Attendance 2000. Score:

Detroit, 4; hits, 7; errors, 0.
Cleveland, 2; hits, 4; errors, 2.
Batteries—Donovan and Buelow; Donahue and Abbott.

NEW YORK-WASHINGTON.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—New York took kindly to both of Washington's pitchers, and won today's game without apparent effort. Attendance 1200. Score:

Washington, 3; hits, 7; errors, 0.
New York, 11; hits, 19; errors, 1.
Batteries—Lee, Townsend and Drill; Chesbro and McCauley.

NATIONAL LEAGUE GAMES.

REIDY HOLDS DOWN GOTHAM.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Brooklyn defeated New York today. Reidy pitched a clever game for the visitors, holding the home team safely until the ninth inning. Attendance 4500. Score:

Brooklyn, 4; hits, 6; errors, 1.
New York, 1; hits, 6; errors, 2.
Batteries — Reidy and Jacklitsch; Thomson and Warner.

CHICAGO-ST. LOUIS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—Except for a wild pitch in the ninth inning that saved St. Louis from a shut-out, the play of the locals outclassed that of the visitors in all departments of the game. Attendance, 4500. Score:

Chicago, 5; hits, 10; errors, 0.
St. Louis, 1; hits, 5; errors, 2.
Batteries—Weimer and Kling; McFarland and O'Neill.

PITTSBURGH-CINCINNATI.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 2.—Pittsburgh won the game in the first inning with five hits. Attendance 2300. Score:

SACRAMENTO-SAN FRANCISCO.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 2.—The San Francisco team had the game well in hand from the start today, and the Sacramento team was never in it. Herr started off in the pitching, but his arm was so sore that he could not get the ball over the plate, and after he had walked two men, he retired in favor of Carter, who pitched a great game up to the ninth inning, when the Senators batted his offerings all over the field. He was accorded wretched support at critical points, but won anyhow. Score:

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2.—Portland took the lead in the game today in the fourth inning, and had very easy going thereafter. Butler was touched up in a lively way at certain stages, but the locals were usually ineffective in the face of good fielding. The field work of Oakland was loose. Score:

SERIES OF SURPRISES.

TWO GOLF CHAMPIONS DOWNED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

GLEN COVE (L. I.) Sept. 2.—Golfers were treated to a series of surprises today in the National Amateur Golf Championship on the links of the Nassau Country Club. Most notable were the dropping out of the tournament in the first play round of Louis N. James, the present title-holder, and Findley S. Douglas, a former national champion. Both were defeated with unexpected ease, and while the Westerners were chagrined at the early collapse of the champion, they were compensated for it by the fact that a Chicagoan, Bruce D. Smith, of the Onwentsia Club, defeated Douglas, while both Walter Egan and E. Chandler Egan won their rounds.

James, although a Princeton sophomore, is entered from the Glenview Club near Chicago. His game lacked snap from the start, and he was beaten by Archibald Graham, the former New Jersey champion by 4 up and 2 to play. No less severe was Douglas's defeat, for Bruce Smith, who is a Yale student, beat him by 5 up and 4 to play.

In the afternoon, Smith beat F. Jennings of Garden City by 2 up and 3 to play.

The Bostonians received a hard knock in the defeat of their strongest golfer, A. G. Lockwood, by L. L. Kellogg, Jr., of the Fox Hills Club, Staten Island. The latter won by 3 up and 1 to play.

Walter Travis, who now looms up stronger than ever as a possible championship winner for the third time, had two easy matches. He first beat William Riste of Pittsburgh by 8 up and 7 to play, and then disposed of Josiah Macy of Morristown, N. J., by 6 up and 4 to play.

HUNT, WISCONSIN'S CHAMPION.

EASILY DEFEATS M'MYNN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MILWAUKEE (Wis.) Sept. 2.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Reuben G. Hunt of Alameda, Cal., is tennis champion of Wisconsin, having defeated Robert N. McMynn of Milwaukee, champion of 1902, in three straight sets, the last day of the State tournament at the Town Club.

With the defeat of McMynn, the only Badger championship held in the State went to outsiders. Hunt is also the champion of California.

AMERICAN TRAINER TOO MUCH FOR RUSSIANS.

SUSPENDED BECAUSE HIS STABLE WON MOST OF THE RACES.

Foam Collected from Mouths of Horses Cared for by Him and Chemist Claimed that He Found in it Some Traces of Morphine.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Saturday, Aug. 22.—[A. P. Correspondence. Wired from Chicago, Sept. 2.] John Oliver Keene of Lexington, Ky., trainer for the racing stable of M. I. Lazarrev, who has been suspended for a year, dating from August 20, for the alleged use of some unknown drug, has won seventy-nine races with his stable and over $100,000 during the last four or five months. Keene and his friends say that is the only reason for the ruling against him.

Keene was trainer last year for Henry de Bloch, the millionaire of Warsaw, and won $54,000 with a single horse named Sirdar. He has already exceeded this, though the season is not yet over, with M. Lazarrv's Irish Lad, a horse which has won $56,500, and now holds all the three-year-old records for Russia.

The success of the stables handled by Keene has been the sensation of Russian sporting circles for a year or more, and he has been accused of ruining horse racing in this country, since everybody bet on his entries. When the present season opened Keene selected Irish Lad, a three-year-old sired by Galteemor, an English horse procured at a great expense by the imperial stud, for the great racing events, and Irish Lad won the Moscow and the Warsaw Derbies, besides other valuable prizes.

Keene's success was attributed by the leading sporting journal of St. Petersburg to wise training and good riding. The rival stables, however, were unwilling to acknowledge that Keene had won by superior training alone, and had for months been trying to prove a case of "doping" against him, and eventually procured Keene's suspension for a year.

A detective one day attached the Lazarrv horses for eight hours at Warsaw. On the day referred to they won four out of five races in which they were entered, and the fifth race was only lost by a head.

At Moscow an order was issued requiring all entries to stand in the paddock four hours before every race. The Lazarrv horses, notwithstanding this, still won and the order was eventually abandoned because all the owners protested against it as being cruelty to animals.

When the St. Petersburg season opened the technical committee of the racing club began collecting foam from the Lazarrv horses' mouths at the end of every race. They gathered it on cotton and put it in bottles. It was afterward examined by a chemist named Perl, who claimed to find traces in it of some form of morphine. Keene was then summoned before the Board of Stewards, and he swore that he had employed no chemicals. The stable boys claimed they had seen Keene give some medicine to one or two horses, and M. De Bloch wrote a letter stating that he had discharged Keene for "doping." Keene did not deny that he had doctored the horses when they were sick, and demanded that he be confronted with M. De Bloch, but the Board of Stewards denied this request.

It is claimed for Keene that, admitting the honesty of the tests, a trace of morphine might be due to the use of a certain leg wash composed of a small amount of laudanum, spirit extract of arnica, salt peter and sugar of lead, dissolved in a large body of alcohol. It is asserted that quantities of this mixture are frequently employed with a quart of water, and that no objection had been made to this leg wash by the racing authorities.

Keene will appeal to the Grand Duke Dimitrit Constantinovich, who is protector of Russian racing.

Other Americans engaged in racing here also have been in trouble. J. C. Mitchell, M. Lazarrv's rider, has been fined $400 for an alleged foul, which all the Americans deny, and has been forbidden to ride for anybody except M. Lazarrv.

Trainer Frank Starr was ruled off for having a bottle of "Speed Elixir" in a valise, but the penalty was afterward reduced to nine months' suspension. He claimed he employed it only after a race to help his entries cool off properly.

William Gaywood, a rider, has been dismissed by his employer with the offer of $2000 instead of $3550 due him on his contract. The employer said he did not like Gaywood's riding. Another American named Slattery had previously been dismissed by the owner of the same stable, his contract being canceled and his earnings withheld.

TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS.

MOSTLY FOR STAR HAL.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

PROVIDENCE (R. I.) Sept. 2.—Fifteen thousand people attracted by the principal contest of the Grand Circuit meeting here, the $10,000 stake for 2:06-class pacers, gathered today at Narragansett Park, and saw Star Hal, a brown horse owned by W. L. Snow of Hornellsville, N. Y., capture the race in straight heats.

Seven horses faced the starter, King Direct being the favorite, with Elastic Pointer second choice. Before the horses had reached the first quarter, Star Hal took the pole and led to the head of the stretch, where he was overhauled by Miss Willamont and King Direct, the latter driven by Geers. The finish saw the three so nearly abreast that the judges' decision was necessary to convince the crowd that Star Hal was the winner.

King Direct fought for supremacy through the second heat, but he was obliged to take second place to Star Hal, who won by a narrow margin in 2:06 3-4, the fastest time made during the day. Summary:

Trot, 2:25, 3 in 5, purse $2000: Caspian won in straight heats; best time 2:11 3-4.

Pace, 2:11 class, Park Brew Stake, $10,000, 3 in 5: Star Hal won in three straight heats; time 2:07¼, 2:06 3-4, 2:06.

Trot, 2:10 class, purse $1500, 3 in 5: Hawthorne won in straight heats; best time 2:08 3-4.

Pace, 2:13 class, purse $1000, 2 in 3: Johnny Wiseman won the second and third heats; best time 2:09¼. Thereon Bowers won the first heat in 2:10.

Trot, 2:19 class purse $2000 (unfinished from yesterday:) Navidad won first, second and seventh heats. Cole Direct won the fifth and sixth heats. Kamares won the third heat. Guy Fortune won the fourth heat; best time 2:11¾, by Navidad.

HOLBEIN'S LONG SWIM.

TIDE PREVENTS SUCCESS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

DOVER (Eng.) Sept. 2.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Montague Holbein, the English swimmer, who left the South Foreland yesterday evening in an attempt to swim the channel, has failed again. He left the water eight miles from Calais, France, after swimming 15 hrs. 20 min.

Holbein was within four miles of the French coast at 8 o'clock this morning, when the tide turned and gradually swept the swimmer toward Dover, hence the abandonment of his attempt.

SHOOTING AT SEAGIRT.

MOST ELABORATE CONTEST.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SEAGIRT (N. J.) Sept. 2.—The most elaborate shooting tournament, employing the rifle, revolver, carbine and pistol, this country ever known, opened here today. All the big States are well represented, as the army, navy and the Marine Corps. Shooting in all the individual competitions, with the exception of the Wimbledon cup and the President's match, was in order. As in these competitions a few entries are allowable, the results will not be known until the close of the meet.

The conditions for shooting are by no means favorable because of a haze that partly obscures the targets.

Great Valley Stakes.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—August Belmont's Beldame, with Bullman in the saddle, won the rich Great Filly stakes, $16,000, at Sheepshead Bay today. Beldame was quoted at 15 to 1 in the betting and ran the six furlongs over the Futurity course in 1:12 4-5. McCarren's Oceantide was second, with Mineola, from the W. C. Whitney stable, third.

Fifteen high-class fillies faced the starter with the Whitney entry, Mineola and Mimosa, and Audience from the Brown stable, equal choices at 4 to 1, with Oceantide next in demand at 5 to 1. The start was good, and Coburn at once sent Oceantide to the front, closely followed by Mineola and Beldame. The two ran this way to the bend, where Bullman sent Beldame to the front, and won in a driving finish by a head. Results:

Seven furlongs: Rocky won, Mollie Peyton second, Balkat third; time 1:28 2-5.

Mile and three-sixteenths, handicap: Setermise won, Peter Raine second, Lord Barge third; time 2:00 4-5.

The Great Filly stakes, six furlongs: Beldame won, Oceantide second, Mineola third; time 1:12 4-5.

LOOLOOS WIN FIERCE GAME.

Carrick's Terrific Clouting by Looloo Swatsmen.

Travesty on Baseball Seen at Chutes Park Yesterday.

Dillon, Corbett, Toman, Wheeler Distinguish Themselves With the Bat.

Looloos, 12; Siwashes, 6.

A comedy of errors and promiscuous batting, riotous, free and easy session of some two and a half hours; a travesty on the game of baseball; in short, a diamond nightmare—such was yesterday's affair at Chutes Park. The Looloos were returned the winners because they slugged Big Leaguer Carrick for twenty hits after a contest which reflected little glory individually and less in the aggregate. The misplays of themselves were bad enough—most of them did not get into the official score, but few missed the actual one. Whatever they lacked to make the show tiresome, a series of kicks by Spies, which culminated in his being put off the grounds, and the phenomenal slowness of Pitcher Drinkwater more than made up. As an exhibition of how the national game ought not to be played, yesterday's contest was a brass and morocco bound "beaut." If there was anything left undone which ought not to be done, the fans did not see it.

Terrific right-field hitting by the Los Angeles boys was the sole redeeming feature. What the Looloos did to Mr. Carrick's offerings it is a shame to tell. Carrick seemed to be pitching much better ball than the score would indicate. His control was not perfect, but his curves, and he threw plenty of them, seemed to look puzzling enough. The Morleyites got him on the run at the start and never let him off the anxious bench. Dillon came back to his own again by piling up four dandy singles in five times at bat, and Joe Corbett, who was one of the few to retire from the game with any credit, made the grand record of three hits per game for three successive games. This gentlemanly and brainy ball player need never fear retirement from the game should his pitching arm give out. The sterling worth of his batting, the snappy accuracy of his fielding, his long experience and thorough knowledge of the old Baltimore tricks that Hanlon made famous, assure him a good berth in the infield of any club with which he may desire to play. Joe Corbett is an honor to a ballplayer as his big brother is a boxer. Jimmy Toman also got three swats for his, and big Ed Hurlburt, who replaced Spies, came through with a couple, one a double. George Wheeler poked a three-in-one shot to the right field fair corner, and Hoy soaked another double just short of the same place. One of Corbett's three hit left field fence about half way up, and Toman's double duplicated on the other side. Carrick very nearly took away Chimmie Whalen's honors for receiving the most cannonading ever accorded a pitcher at Chutes Park. Many pitchers expect to have a bad inning, Carrick had three of them and yielded hits in all but the fifth.

If some kind fate would blot out the fourth inning, Drinkwater could be given credit for pitching a good game. As it was, his work won without difficulty, but his extreme slowness had the palmy days of Frank McPartlin beat as far as Ascot Park. This same slowness would help the thin twirler considerably, for batters after gazing at his spare form for five minutes or so would become anxious and take a good wallop at whatever came over, and at the same time Drinkwater was getting a much-needed rest.

Before proceeding with the harrowing details it would be well to graze a moment upon certain doings which featured the second inning in which round of play Heine Spies and Umpire McDonald repeated that charming and pathetic little selection, entitled, "Oh, was it foul or was it fair?" before a large and vociferous audience who failed to appreciate the humor of it. Spies, with Toman on first, drove a dandy shot over first base which brought up the white chalk dust from the foul line, but the umpire sent both men back. A spectacular, explosive roar denoted Heine's Dutch was up, and he advanced to the center of the diamond, lambent lightnings darting from his eyes, spicy and caustic comments regarding the ancestry of the judge of play pouring from his mouth.

Order was temporarily restored and Spies went to bat again. Result, a drive to center field, which Lumley, after a long run, could not hold. Spies, feeling doubtless that he was cheated out of a two-bagger before, continued to Dolanville and nearly killed the proprietor thereof for digging the ball into the Dutch ribs. McDonald nearly precipitated a riot by declaring Spies out, which he unquestionably was. Heine again advanced for trouble. In pitifully earnest tones he besought McDonald to venture outside with him so they could talk it over, but McDonald refused. The conversation took a caustic and personal character again, and Spies was haled to the bench. After much baby work he obeyed, but the running fire of remarks upon McDonald's qualifications for the position of umpire, et al., was too much for that worthy's long-suffering patience, and he stopped the game until Spies retired from the field. McDonald's first decision may, or may not have been wrong; the second certainly looked fair from the stand; but in any event Spies made a colossal ass of himself and would do well to cut out the baby act in the future. Umpire McDonald probably has nothing personal against him, though Heine seems to think he was.

Drinkwater wriggled out of a vicelike hole in the first by dint of good pitching and better luck. He walked Lumley. Mohler clouted a liner into left, which bounded and hit Ross in the chest. Brashear hit one a mile a minute squarely into Drink's hands, and Spies camped on the plate for Lumley's scalp. Carl Smith swiped another of about 2000 feet per second muzzle velocity, which Wheeler hurried home ahead of Mohler, and the inning was closed.

Installment No. 1 of Carrick's troubles came at the start, when with two gone, Corbett and Dillon singled, only to be left on Cravath's pop to Byers. With one away in the second, Toman beat a fluke bounder beside the box, and then the Spies incident intervened. The third round Carrick will remember to his dying day. Hoy led off with a fly to Zinssar, but Wheeler tore off a dandy three-bagger to deep right, and Corbett scored him with a swipe that rattled left field fence. Dillon bounded a shot off Brashear and Mohler threw it past the plate, Corbett scoring. Cravath retired on a fine play by Dolan, but Ross ripped one through Brashearville, and Toman doubled to the Chutes gate, bringing in Dillon. Ed Hurlburt, who replaced Spies, tapped one through Short, scoring two, and was thrown out at second by the Zinssar, Byers and Mohler route. Five runs.

Drinkwater's single, Hoy's double and Wheeler's hit, all into right, got two more in the fourth, but the grand transformation scene was reserved for the seventh. Then, with one out, Toman hit to right, Hurlburt doubled deep into the same territory, Drinkwater doubled over first base, and Hoy placed a hard one back of first, which Brashear went after and fanned well, but Carrick threw himself down by dropping. By this time the Siwashes were tolerably well balled up, and Wheeler got on by a fielder's choice. Corbett hit another to the pitcher with hair on it, but Carrick was there this time and it remained for Dillon's fourth swat to do the work. Five more runs came in.

The first two of the visitors came in in the fourth when Smith singled to center, Zinssar doubled into left and Andrews hit over second base. A scratch slow hit by Mohler and some weird work by Toman, later atoned for by a pretty double play, got another in the next. A hit, a pass and some infield outs yielded two for the Siwashes in the seventh, and the efforts of certain looloo infielders to throw balls before they got to them gave another in the ninth. At a quarter to six the fans, or the remnant of the faithful that stayed to the finish, filed homeward, and the announcement came forth from headquarters that games next week will be called at 2:30.

Three-base hits—W

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

NEWS AND BUSINESS.

New Business Block.

Gerhard Eshman has let to the Alta Planing Mill Company the contract for erecting a two-story brick business building at Nos. 217-219 West Sixth street. The plans are from the office of Architects Morgan & Walls and the building complete will cost $3500.

On Temple Street.

Gen. A. S. Kimball has sold to Mrs. J. A. Keil, through S. K. Lindley & Co., the west twenty feet of the lot, 76x90 feet, on the north side of Temple street, seventy-five feet west of New High street; consideration named, $8000. A two-story brick business building covers the entire lot.

Salvation Army Wedding.

Salvation Army headquarters at No. 438 South Spring street were crowded to their utmost last night to witness a marriage ceremony. The contracting parties were Capt. Olive Potter and Capt. William Myron, the ceremony being performed by Maj. H. Connett. Capt. and Mrs. Myron go to Pasadena to take charge of the work of the army at that place.

Sea Lions for Chutes.

The pretty yacht Daisy, in command of Capt. T. H. Merry, arrived at San Pedro yesterday from Santa Cruz Island, with three monster sea lions, each weighing half a ton, on board. They were caught to order for the Los Angeles Chutes management, and will be placed on exhibition at once. The lions were trapped and taken uninjured, but the undertaking is said to have been a perilous one, requiring much skill and courage on the part of those engaged in the work.

To Return Borrower Reed.

F. Howard Reed, the unscrupulous New York youth who spent his honeymoon here in luxury on borrowed money and then fled from his girl-bride, will be returned to Los Angeles to stand trial for a penitentiary offense. Reed was arrested at Beaumont, Tex., last Monday on a charge of embezzlement preferred by E. M. Durant of this city, and yesterday Gov. Pardee issued a requisition upon the Governor of Texas for the prisoner's return here. A deputy sheriff started for Beaumont yesterday to get Reed.

Y.M.C.A. Beach Day.

Next Monday, September 7, the local Y.M.C.A. will have an outing at Long Beach. The excursion will be by the Salt Lake road, special cars leaving at 9 a.m. A baseball game between the "Whales" and the "Sea Lions" will take place at 3 p.m. Beginning at 10 a.m. the following sportive programme will be rendered: 100-yard dash, running broad-jumping contest, 50-yard dash, three-legged race, one-mile relay race, tug-of-war, high-jumping contest, watermelon-eating contest.

Bankrupt Vehicle Dealer.

N. A. Carmean of this city, a dealer in vehicles, caused to be filed yesterday in the United States District Court a petition in bankruptcy, in which he acknowledges the large liabilities of $50,135.25, with no unexempt assets. The petition sets forth that he was formerly president of the Rhoades-Carmean Buggy Company of Marshalltown, Iowa, a corporation recently declared bankrupt, for whom he previously indorsed an accommodation paper to the amount of $49,500. He holds 115 shares of capital stock in the concern, at a par value of $57,500, but now valueless as an asset.

Two Small Fires.

The half-finished product of one of the stills of the Southern Oil Refining Company on Elmyra street ignited spontaneously yesterday morning and caused a lively fire for a time. The flames were extinguished by one of the chemical engines of the fire department, the loss to the refining company not exceeding $300. Shortly after noon yesterday a fire was discovered in the rear of the residence of Father Maloney, West Adams street near Vermont. A number of small sheds and a section of fence were burned, but the loss was not serious. The cause of the fire is not known.

Rule's Promotion.

At a meeting of the directors of the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railroad Company yesterday morning, Ford K. Rule was promoted from the position of auditor of the company to that of treasurer. The promotion is a popular one and merited by ten years of earnest service. H. I. Bettis, who has been assistant to Mr. Rule, was appointed to the position of auditor, and W. H. Leete, who has been acting treasurer, was appointed paymaster of the system, a position which was created at this meeting. The statement was made that in all probability work on this end of the missing link of the Salt Lake line will be begun within ten days.

Conservatives' Dinner.

The Conservative Life Insurance Company entertained several specially-invited guests, its officers and field agents at a sumptuous dinner at the California Club last evening. About forty-five guests sat at the banquet board, the special guests outside of the company being Gen. H. G. Otis, W. C. Patterson, T. E. Gibbon and H. W. Frank. The officers of the company present were: W. S. Tupper, first vice-president; G. I. Cochran, second vice-president; A. W. Morgan, secretary; T. B. Inch, treasurer; Col. J. E. Brady, inspector of agencies. Informal addresses by the officers, guests and several of the agents followed the dinner.

EVENTS IN SOCIETY.

Marriage joy and the warmth of hospitality radiated from the brilliantly-lighted residence of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Haas at No. 902 East Fourteenth street last night in honor of the marriage of their daughter, Josephine, to Harry H. Dunn. Rev. John Hughes united them under a beautiful canopy of white asters and asparagus ferns in the bay window of the front parlor. A sister of the bride, Miss Lena Haas, acted as maid of honor and was assisted by Miss Lillian Gail, as bridesmaid. Little Mildred Haas was a picture of grace as flower girl, and Charles E. Haas stood with the groom.

Miss Haas was a striking bride in a handsome gown of white novelty crepe with chiffon yoke and applique trimmings, full train and veil. She carried a cluster of Bride's roses. Her maid of honor was in white organdie with pink chiffon trimmings, in sweet contrast to the bridesmaid who wore blue. The little flower girl was a bunch of sweetness in pink.

The house was charmingly decorated throughout and the front lawn was inclosed in canvas, and was the scene of the wedding supper, served at a long table placed under the lantern-hung trees. About sixty guests attended and witnessed the departure of the bridal pair with the usual demonstration of rice and good wishes. Mr. and Mrs. Dunn are to live at No. 231 South Hill street.

Welsh-Beeson.

A quiet wedding took place Tuesday noon at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. C. O. McDowell, No. 248 North Belmont avenue. The lover's knot was tied by Rev. W. A. Knighten and the holders of the ends were, Mrs. L. I. Beeson and M. Welsh. Mrs. Beeson was for many years a popular singer in this city, in both concert and church work. She was very becomingly gowned for the occasion in going-away attire of dark navy blue changeable taffeta with hat to match, trimmed with coque plumes.

Mr. Welsh was connected for several years with the Southern California Packing Company, and is a well-known young business man of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Walsh will be at home after September 15 at No. 748 Garland avenue. No cards.

Levering-Boyle.

Thomas J. Levering and Edith J. Boyles were married yesterday morning at 11:30 at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Boyle, No. 115 Dryden street. Mr. Levering is in business in Winfield, Kan., and after a short honeymoon spent on this coast the happy couple will go to Winfield to live. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. J. Inwood, after which the wedding party repaired to Levy's, where a dainty little wedding luncheon was served. Among the party were Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson and Mrs. Carter Wilson of Pomona; Mrs. Mattie Lowery of Kingsburg and Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Fellows of Los Angeles.

Sommers-Sommers.

Miss Agnes Sommers and William D. Sommers, both of this city, were quietly married yesterday by Rev. R. Boag, former pastor of the bride, at the residence of the minister, No. 259 North Frémont avenue.

Schoder-Cornwell.

St. Paul's Episcopal Church was the scene of a quiet wedding yesterday afternoon, invitations having been extended to only the relatives and a few intimate friends. Margaret Cornwell and J. Howard Schoder were united in marriage by Rev. J. J. Wilkins. The bride was gowned entirely in white and carried a bouquet of white roses. After a trip to San Francisco Mr. and Mrs. Schoder will return to Los Angeles and reside at No. 1424 West Twenty-fourth street.

Country Club Luncheon.

William Thayer entertained at luncheon at the Country Club yesterday afternoon, his guests being Misses Lelia Simonds, Maybelle Rendall and Pearl Seeley and Messrs. Stratton of New York and Jack Quinn of Pasadena. The afternoon was delightfully spent on the broad verandas of the clubhouse.

Notes and Personals.

Mrs. Manuel of Thirty-second and Grand avenue, her daughter, Miss Ida, and son, Rob, accompanied by Miss Eula Smith of West Thirty-first street, have gone to Shasta Springs on a month's outing.

Mrs. E. M. Golding of 821 Golden avenue left yesterday for Grass Valley, Cal., for a three months' visit with her son, T. W. Golding, and family.

Mrs. C. E. Pendell and son Harry of 1844 West Eleventh street returned Tuesday from a three weeks' visit to San Francisco.

Mrs. M. G. Henera and family, Mrs. J. Pascholy and sister and Miss Hayes have returned from Santa Barbara, where they have been spending the past two months.

Mr. and Mrs. Josef Rubo have returned from an extended trip through the northern part of California.

F. E. Green has returned to this city after an absence of two years in Arizona.

FIRST NEGRO TO PRACTICE.

He Bursts Upon Court and Makes Sensation.

Gets Poor Coon Off Scot Free in Crap-shooting Case.

District Attorney Didn't Know the Game, but Squire Blair Had it Pat.

Coon crap shooters of this town have found a triumphant Moses. He is a little Baltimore negro as black as a crow. Has come here to practice law.

The name of this latest addition to the bar is Isador D. Blair, Esq. He made his first appearance in the Los Angeles courts yesterday, defending a couple of crap shooters. He is the first thoroughbred negro to practice at this bar.

To say that he won the case is not to express the idea. He simply had the District Attorney shamrocked. On a straight proposition of law the State might have stood a chance; but when it came to law and craps against a Baltimore negro who knew both, Mr. Beebe had to back in under his shell.

Mr. Blair's debut was made in a sensational manner; he burst upon them, so to speak.

ATTORNEY BLAIR, THE FIRST BLACK LAWYER TO PRACTICE IN LOS ANGELES COURTS.

There were three forlorn coons huddled together in the dock listening to the testimony of some policemen who had arrested them for shooting craps in a basement on New High street. Just as Deputy District Attorney Beebe was asking a question, there came a complaining voice from the rear: "Mistah Prosecutor, Ah wish yo wouldn't lead thet witness; yo are suggestin' th' answhs."

Beebe turned and his jaw dropped in blank amazement.

Mr. Blair, attorney-at-law, had occurred.

As the case went on, the courtroom full of darkies sat listening, hypnotized with stunned admiration. They stared at Squire Blair the way a little dog sits down in the middle of the road and stares at a big Newfoundland.

Mr. Blair speedily had the policeman witness backed off on the defensive.

"Mistah Officeh," he said, "what did yo heah when you came into de room?"

"I heard that big yellow buck say, 'Shoot 'em agin,'" said the policeman.

"Which one had de bones?"

"The big yellow chap," said the cop.

"Did you see any money?"

"Yes, the little black fellow had 15 cents."

Blair turned on the witness pityingly. "Mistah Officeh," he said, "do you mean to tell this Co't thet the man wid de bones yells out to de other man, 'Shoot 'em agin'?"

And from that moment the State's case began to fade away.

A big yellow darky, named Taylor Williams, was called to testify for the prosecution. When Mr. Blair began to cross-examine him, Beebe had to protest that he was doing it in a foreign language.

Mr. Blair said impressively, "What was said to yo when yo came in, Mistah Williams?"

"Wal," said Williams, scared half to death, "dey said would I like to spo't some."

"What did you say?".

"I said I made my money too hard."

"Who had de bones?"

"This yellow gentleman."

"What did he say?"

"He banters me to shake him."

"Yes, seh, and did yo fade him?" asked Blair severely.

"Hold on, hold on there," protested Beebe, running his hands through his hair. "What do you mean by all this? I don't understand 'fade.' What does fade mean?"

The crap shooters all turned and looked at him pityingly.

The end of it was that Beebe got up and dismissed the charge against Blair's two clients.

Their triumphant exit was watched wistfully by a little sawed-off coon in a last winter's overcoat with his head ducked down between his shoulders. His big, chalky eyes watched Blair with awe and wonder. He had no lawyer himself. He had nothing but hard luck.

He was taken in a raid on the notorious joint of Lew Simpson. And listen if fate ever gave such a jolt to any one before. He told the court about it with tears in his voice.

"Yo' honah," he said, "Ah was jus lookin' for mah brother and I come to this hyah house an' they tol me fo to go in this hyah room and mah brother would be there.

"Jus as I got in, a lot uv policemans dey all begin riotin in and upsetting tables and cheers and knockin everything around. Ah didn't know what dey was doin.

"De fus thing Ah knowd dey was a gineral vanishin' outer do's and winders, an' I was standin' in dere alone in de middle room and about fo police gentlemens all jumped onto ter me at onst and brung me to jail. An please Judge Yo Honah, I don know what's all about."

Lew Simpson gave bail for his appearance in court today.

Maybe he will get Blair to get him out.

Blair is a graduate of Ann Arbor Law College, and has practiced for nine years in Indianapolis before coming here. He began studying at his old home in Baltimore. He has high recommendations from judges and prominent officials, including the Mayor of Indianapolis.

HEAD CRUSHED BY POLE.

Employee of Pacific Light and Power Company Instantly Killed While at Work on Downey Avenue.

Claus Henry Koch, an employé of the Pacific Light and Power Company, No. 254 South Los Angeles street, was instantly killed near the corner of Gates street and Downey avenue, East Los Angeles, yesterday afternoon. With the other members of the construction gang of that corporation, Koch was assisting in the work of erecting poles on which are to be supported the power wires of the company. He was handling one of the long spike-poles which are used to steady the electric masts while they are being raised into position, each of several workmen using one of these spikes.

Koch was under the electric mast when the hold of the spike-pole slipped and the forty-foot pole fell, striking him on the head, knocking him down, crushing his skull like an eggshell and causing instant death.

As quickly as possible the other workmen removed the heavy pole off the body, but he was beyond all human assistance. The Coroner was notified and by his order the body was removed to Pierce Bros.' morgue, where an inquest will be held today. There is no doubt that the man's death was purely accidental.

The deceased had resided in Los Angeles for many years. His home was at No. 155 North Meyers street. His age was 50 years. He leaves a widow and sixteen children, most of them grown, or nearly so.

PAY BIG BONUS TO CATHOLICS.

West Adams Street People Change Church Site.

Object to Location of Edifice at Budlong Avenue.

Raise Forty-five Hundred Dollars to Effect a Removal—New Lot Bought.

Forty-five hundred dollars is the neat sum paid by the residents of the neighborhood of West Adams street and Budlong avenue for the privilege of keeping out of that territory a $40,000 church building.

The location of the new Church of St. Agnes, the edifice for the parish recently formed by Bishop Conaty to include the southwestern part of the city, has not been accomplished without difficulties; but the matter is finally settled satisfactorily to all parties concerned.

Some weeks ago Bishop Conaty acquired for the church location the property at the corner of Budlong avenue and West Adams street. Rev. Clement Molony was appointed pastor of the new parish, and plans were made to proceed at once with the erection of a temporary structure for the holding of services while the church edifice was in course of construction.

Matters were supposed to be going along in fine shape until it developed that there was strong opposition among the residents of that exclusive neighborhood to the locating of any church within its precincts.

There was a consultation of those interested, and finally several propositions were made, looking to a change of the site. Bishop Conaty believed that in justice to the work of the new parish the church should be located on West Adams street, and after numerous consultations of the property owners of the first-named location, they finally offered to purchase the southwest corner of Adams and Vermont avenue for the Church of St. Agnes, and to give that church a bonus of $2000 besides.

The property at the Budlong corner had cost $3500, and the price of the Adams and Vermont corner was $11,000, so that with the bonus agreed upon the West Adams people have put up $4500 for the privilege of being exclusive.

The property finally selected has been held in trust by James C. Kays for a syndicate of local men, and the formal papers closing the deal will be passed within a few days. Work on the plans for the new church will proceed at once. The tract of land secured has a frontage of 175 feet on Adams street and 155 feet on Vermont avenue. There is ample room for a large church and a parochial residence.

Work will proceed at once on the temporary house, which is to be used for services for a few months. It will be a plain board structure to seat about 250 people, and will be erected on the southwest corner of the lot. Mr. Hedges has the contract, and it is expected it will be ready for services the first Sunday in October.

The next step will be the building of a parochial residence, so that the priest may be right in the midst of the work of his parish; and after that will be taken up the erection of the church building itself.

This is to be an ornament to that section of the city, and will cost fully $40,000. It is to be of the Gothic style of architecture, with two towers. Further than this the details have not been decided upon. Altogether the church's investments in this new parish will mount up to near $75,000. This is considered one of the most important territories in the city, and the improvements to be made are all to be first-class in their character.

HOWARD HUNTINGTON SUCCEEDS DONNATIN.

BECOMES ELECTRICAL SUPERINTENDENT OF TROLLEY LINES.

Son of His Father Making Rapid Progress in the Railroad World—Extension of System Coming to a Halt. Men Being Discharged.

Through the resignation of Charles E. Donnatin, superintendent of the mechanical department of the Pacific Electric Railroad Company, which took effect the first of this month, Howard E. Huntington has been formally placed at the head of that department and will be known as "superintendent of electrical construction." It is in this department that the major portion of his work has been done and his position as assistant general manager will probably remain vacant.

"The end of the past month marks a decided reduction in our construction forces, as the most of our interurban lines planned for the present have been completed," said the junior Huntington. "About sixty men were let out day before yesterday and the working force will be cut down from time to time. The line to Whittier is all completed except the laying of the rails, which are late in arriving. The poles are up, the trolley wire is strung and the road-bed is ready for the steel. It is a pretty line and will prove a popular short excursion trip."

Huntington stated that arrangements have been made for taking Gen. John C. Black, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, to Mt. Lowe in a special car on the 10th of this month. He is to remain in Los Angeles longer than was expected, and will arrive here on the morning of the 9th and leave on the evening of the 12th. Gen. Black will also make a visit to the Soldiers' Home, and if possible attend the Southern California encampment at Long Beach.

George Coggler, a smelter employé of Pueblo, Colo., who has shown signs of insanity, beat his wife on the head with a revolver yesterday and then cut his own throat. He is at the point of death. The woman may recover.

THE SCHOOL HOUSE NOW GOES ABROAD.

WHEN The Times' photographer happened over at the dismantled schoolhouse at Eighth street and Grand avenue, one of the detached sections was just about to receive its running-gear, upon which it will be transported to Twentieth street and Central avenue. Meanwhile a crew of carpenters is at work on the east side of the old structure, erecting one of the "shacks" adopted as the only means of relieving the situation.

The delay in getting the improvements under way will undoubtedly occasion much inconvenience, and there is a disposition to criticise the Board of Education. While the situation is unfortunate, nobody is to blame, for it all owing to delay in making sale of the bonds, and until that was accomplished the board could not take the slightest step in the direction of any expenditure. The work is now being pushed with considerable vigor and by the first of the year many of the improvements will be completed.

The talked-of difficulty with the street-car companies, owing to a reported excessive charge for cutting the wires, in order to let the dismantled Eighth-street building pass through, has been obviated by removing all the upper part of the building to a level with the ceiling. It was a one-story structure with a very high roof, but with its top-knot shaved off it can probably be moved under the wires with little difficulty, and with none of the foreshadowed delay on that account.

It might be advisable for the Board of Education to build a number of small houses and place them on wheels, after the style of the early-day homesteader, and during the next year or two move them from place to place wherever the demand seems greatest. They would be admirably suited to the kindergarten work and one of the city's spanking big wagon teams could be attached to the schoolhouse, each evening, and the children distributed to their homes. This is in line with the plan talked of for the country schools, a couple of years ago, when it was proposed to have a central location and transport the pupils back and forth.

POOR DEVIL'S GRIP PILLOW OF DEATH.

IN A clump of eucalyptus trees a short distance from Rosemeade station on the Southern Pacific Railroad near San Gabriel, the body of a man, as yet unidentified, was found yesterday afternoon by a party of Mexican laborers. He had shot himself in the right ear with a 38-caliber revolver which was found lying beside the body. The deed was committed Tuesday evening between 5 and 6 o'clock, for at that time several persons in the vicinity heard a pistol shot and thinking it was fired by some hunter paid no attention to it.

The unknown had coolly and deliberately planned the suicide. Near the body was an open telescope valise, the lid of which had been taken off and used as a pillow. On the dead man's breast was a small hand mirror on which were spots of blood. It was evident that the man had placed his head on the lid of the valise and holding the mirror in his left hand, fired the fatal shot into his right ear with the other hand.

A search of the effects of the deceased resulted in only slender clews to his identity. On a notebook in his pocket the name of Charles H. Blake had been written in several places and a letter containing printed matter addressed to Charles H. Blake was also found. This letter had been mailed to Cucamonga. On a carefully-wrapped slip of paper was the name "Luella Helene West, Covington, Ky." The body is that of a man about six feet two inches in height, weighing about 180 pounds. He appears to have been about 30 years of age. His clothing indicated that he was a laborer, but his hands shows no evidences of having performed laborer's work. The valise contained nothing except clothing.

By order of Coroner Trout the body was brought to Los Angeles by Bresee Bros., where the inquest will be held this afternoon. The remains will be kept at Bresee Bros.' morgue as long as possible in the hope that they may be fully identified.

COUNTY ROCK PILE IS WANTED NEXT.

SUPERVISORS WILL HEAR FROM CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Active Measures to be Taken for the Encouragement of the Use of Beet Sugar in This Part of the Country. To Entertain Gen. Black.

At the meeting of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday it was suggested that the County Supervisors establish a "county rock pile" for hobos, similar to the "city rock pile," for which the City Council has made an appropriation, at the suggestion of the chamber. The secretary was instructed to confer with the District Attorney upon the matter.

Another suggestion that met the favor of the meeting was that active measures be taken to encourage the consumption of beet sugar in this community, for the benefit of local growers. The Committee on Manufactures was given authority to act.

The report of C. B. Boothe, one of the chamber's delegates to the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress held in Seattle August 15, was read. The report stated that Southern California had been well represented at the sessions, and that an effort had been made to have the next convention held in Los Angeles. The meeting tendered Mr. Boothe and fellow-delegates a vote of thanks for their services.

The following committee was appointed to arrange for the entertainment of Gen. John C. Black, Commander-in-Chief of the G.A.R., who is expected here within a few days: John H. Norton, Maj. E. F. C. Klokke, Gen. H. G. Otis, Col. W. H. Holabird, C. C. Allen, J. D. Fredericks, Col. J. E. Brady. The committee is to hold a meeting at the chamber at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon.

A resolution was passed requesting that a Southern California man be appointed a member of the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

The special attention of the meeting was called to the talk to be given at the chamber this morning at 11 o'clock by Gifford Pinchot, Chief of the Government Forestry Bureau.

The following-named were elected to membership: Fife & Griffith, R. H. Whitton Company, T. Newman.

BLOOMER WILL RESIGN.

Assistant Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association Will go to Sacramento.

F. R. M. Bloomer, who has been First Assistant Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association in this city for several years, will tender his resignation on Saturday evening.

Mr. Bloomer has been a most efficient and pleasant attaché of the office of the association, and has had marked success in his work among boys and as a teacher of several of the educational classes. His reason for leaving at this time, is in pursuance of a laudable ambition to step up higher in his chosen work. He is most fortunate in having been called to Sacramento to organize the educational work of the association in that city, where they have just raised a fund of $30,000 for the improvement of their boys' work. In Mr. Bloomer they have secured a conscientious and hard-working young man, to whom those who come in contact with him are sure to become greatly attached.

FROM THE DEVIL HIMSELF.

Boycotting Gospel Denounced by Woman Who Knows Hamburgers, in Reply to Biddle-Hay Gang's Circular.

"That kind of gospel is not from God, but from 'Old Diabolus' himself" is the stinging rebuke administered to the hypocritical union gang which is parading under the cloak of humanitarian motives in its vicious campaign against Hamburgers' Store, by Mrs. J. P. Klarquist of No. 1841 Shatto street. Mrs. Klarquist was the recipient of one of the insulting circular letters, which have caused the womanhood of Los Angeles to rise up in their indignation, and send them back as boomerangs upon the heads of the boycotters. The lies and hypocrisy of the boycotting circular are well known, through publication in The Times. Mrs. Klarquist's rather spicy reply, addressed to the signer of the circular, L. D. Biddle, secretary of the Los Angeles County Council of Labor, reads as follows:

"Your letter of August 28 at hand. In regard to your requesting me to not trade at the Hamburger Store, will inform you that I have bought goods at the Hamburger Store for the last nine years, and always found them satisfactory, and I propose to continue as long as I please. You claim to have 10,000 men and women in this county that feel that I should not trade at Hamburgers', but there may be 150,000 that have no objection. You also refer to treatment of children by the Hamburgers. I will inform you that we have two boys that worked for the Hamburgers for about two years, and I never heard of any complaint, but they always said that they were well treated.

"Regarding your inclosed card giving an extract from Rev. George Thomas Dowling's sermon on Sunday, May 3, 1903, in which he says that you have a right to boycott, I will inform you and Rev. Mr. Dowling that that kind of gospel is not from God, but from Old Diabolus himself.

"I do not wish to hear any more from you."

THE PUBLIC SERVICE.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

Street Superintendent Werdin yesterday refused to sign the contract with the Barber Asphalt Company for paving Hill street. He says that under the specifications two intersections will have to be torn up and repaved, thus necessitating a double assessment.

There is some talk among city legislators favoring a stockade to care for the overflow of the City Jail.

Frederick Haskins was examined for insanity yesterday, the evidence showing that he sleeps with a hen and a dog.

William Campbell, a laborite, was charged in the Police Court yesterday with disturbing the peace by abusing a man working at a non-union shop.

The District Attorney is intent on vigorously prosecuting the violators of the pure-milk ordinance.

AT THE CITY HALL.

REFUSED TO SIGN HILL STREET CONTRACT.

BIDS WILL BE READVERTISED FOR PAVING WORK.

Street Superintendent Found Intersectional Paving Would Have to be Torn up and Repaved, Thus Entailing Double Assessment—Stockade to Relieve Jail of Prisoners.

After winning the contract on the Hill-street paving work, in which the Fairchild-Gilmore-Wilton Paving and Asphalt Company was beaten on a $53,000 bid by the narrow margin of $67, the Barber Asphalt Paving Company, which is the local organization of the asphalt trust, has lost the contract on a technicality.

Street Superintendent Werdin yesterday refused to sign the contract, and it is probable that the work will have to be readvertised for bids.

The reason assigned was that the ordinance of intentions and the specifications provide for the rearing up, grading and paving of Hill street from the south line of Second street to the north line of Pico street, and that the contract would make it obligatory on the paving company to tear up two intersections which have been paved in the last year and a half.

These intersections are at Seventh street and Fifth street. Both have been paved so recently that they are in excellent condition.

It would manifestly be an injustice to the property owners who have already paid the assessments for the intersectional work to do so again, and they would be put to such expense if the contract were carried out under the ordinance of intentions, so the City Attorney advised Mr. Werdin to withhold his signature.

The course pursued by the Street Superintendent did not surprise the attorneys for the Barber Asphalt people, as they had been forewarned of the action. Attorney Crutchner of Dunn & Crutchner, the legal representatives of the paving company, said yesterday that he was not able as yet to state what course would be taken, if any. He was of the opinion, however, that the bids would have to be readvertised.

The Hill-street paving work is to be done under the Vrooman act, and by the terms of that law the ordinance of intentions must be strictly complied with. If the work were carried out under the specifications prepared by the City Engineer and the ordinance, it is probable that any property owner along the street affected by the improvement might legally refuse to pay his assessment.

The Barber company, in preparing for the work of paving the street, had a quarry rented and was ready to go ahead with the job. If there is a readvertisement for bids the local branch of the trust will be in the race again, is the assurance from headquarters.

TO BUILD STOCKADE. LEAVE JAIL AS IT IS.

It has been suggested that the city build a stockade for the Weary Willies, the same to be established in Griffith Park or some other place equally suitable.

There is a crying need for a new City Jail, but impression among city legislators is that it can not be afforded now. But build the stockade and you have an addition at small cost to the present accommodations for prisoners.

Councilman Davenport is in favor of this plan and Police Commissioner Lang has spoken approvingly of it. The idea is to have a place where prisoners could be kept during their terms of sentence. A building within a stockade could be put up for their accommodation at small cost. The prisoners would bunk in this building and stay within the enclosure while they were not out improving the park by building roads and doing other useful things.

Griffith Park is thought to be the most suitable place for such an institution, as improvements, especially roads, are greatly needed there, and it will be a long time before the city can afford to have the broad acres improved should an appropriation of money be required.

But the appropriation of the city's criminal element, it is urged, would be just the thing. When a visitor to the town has a bad eye just run him off to the stockade and let him shed honest sweat for about a month. The petty offenders in for periods ranging from a month upward would also come in handy for the stockade.

By this means the jails would deliver up about half its denizens and there would be room enough for all.

It is asserted that the guarding of the prisoners would not be a great difficulty. Make the stockade of logs and have one or two openings. Then place armed guards around at convenient intervals. It is argued that a man serving time for a petty offense would not care to risk having his head blown off by trying to break through the cordon.

Surely.

Dear Sir: I claim that every man who rides on a street car is an end-seat hog. Thus: One man gets on. He sits at the end of the seat. He moves up to make room for a second man, thus making an end-seat hog of him. The second man makes an end-seat hog of the third passenger in the same way, and the third makes a hog of the fourth, and so on. Am I not right?—[End Seater in Chicago Tribune.

Prof. Pfiunger of the University of Bonn maintains that one-third of all the deaths registered in Munich are due to heart disease brought on by the immoderate use of beer, and that tobacco also claims a large percentage of the victims.

AT THE COURT HOUSE.

FELLOW SLEPT WITH HEN AND LAZY DOG.

QUEER SPECIMEN OF HUMANITY EXAMINED FOR INSANITY.

The District Attorney Vows to Make a Vigorous Campaign Against the Men Who Violate Pure-Milk Ordinance. New Complaints.

A man who has for bed-fellows a setting hen and a lazy dog, was tried for insanity yesterday.

His name is Frederick Haskins. He was found in a hut out in the hills where Second street runs into First. The shack was so dirty that the officers almost struck at the job of unearthing him from the filth.

When the Deputy Sheriff went to take something off the bed, he was surprised to see a hen get up out of the covers with a great clucking and scolding. Looking closer he saw that she was sitting on a nestful of eggs on the bed. Somewhere from among the covers, a mangy dog also rose.

Except from being dirty, Haskins turned out to be a rather harmless individual and will not be sent to the asylum.

CORN BEEF RIOT. THAT JAIL BREAK.

Too much corn beef or corn beef of too ancient a vintage, or something too corn beefy, is now alleged to have been the real cause of the attempted jail break Sunday night.

Yesterday, one of the jail birds told his lawyer that the prisoners did not intend to make a break for liberty in case the turnkey was overpowered. He claims that the prisoners knew that the turnkey's keys would not fit the outside door.

He says the prisoners had a grievance against some corn beef that has been served and were planning to rush downstairs into the jail kitchen and wreck the room, to the inevitable destruction of the hated corn beef.

AFTER MILK MEN.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY'S CAMPAIGN

The District Attorney is in the pure-milk crusade, tooth and nail.

Two more complaints were issued yesterday by Acting District Attorney James. Both were against Ocean Park milk men. One is H. B. Peabody, the complainant against him being Maj. Furrey. The other milkman is named Carter.

Carter was arraigned yesterday before Justice Pierce and demanded a jury trial which was set down for the 18th.

The office is desirous of completely stopping all adulteration of milk. In cases where impurities in the milk are suspected, chemical examinations will be made free of charge.

RICH YOUTH. AGAIN IN TROUBLE.

W. H. Potter, the rich young Alhambra man who was recently examined for insanity, is again in trouble.

He was brought to the County Jail yesterday to serve ten days for trying to cut a woman with a knife.

Only a week or so ago his insanity examination was held.

On that occasion he told the judge that he had never had to work a day in his life. The advice of the court was for him to go out and find a job somewhere.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

PUBLIC MONEY. The monthly count of the cash in the hands of the Los Angeles Treasurer yesterday showed the amount to be $948,986.67.

BLIND PIG. H. N. Lehndorff, who runs the hotel at El Monte, was arrested yesterday for selling liquor without a license.

FAKERS INSISTENT.

Secretary Zeehandelaar, of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association Besieged by Applicants.

With characteristic effrontery a small army of advertising fakirs yesterday invaded the rooms of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, all anxious and confidently expecting to receive Secretary Zeehandelaar's indorsement.

This invasion was the result of the notice, given Tuesday, that merchants would demand such indorsement of all solicitors for "ads" and alms.

And the way Secretary Zeehandelaar turned down roseate schemes was a caution, and the occasion of consequent grief. Incidentally, the action taken by the association has brought to the surface an astounding number and variety of schemes, some of them so barefaced as to put to blush anyone except a fake promoter.

One insistent seeker for official indorsement had evolved a plan by which householders were to purchase a little pass-book for $1 each, its possession securing to each purchaser a discount at all establishments listed in the book. Working the scheme at both ends the promoter had planned to devote a portion of the book to advertising, for which merchants would be charged a liberal rate.

Just how the possession of this little book would guarantee a perpetual discount privilege, or to what degree it bound the merchants listed, could not be satisfactorily explained by the applicant, consequently Secretary Zeehandelaar turned it down hard.

But this was only one of many of more or less merit—or of no merit at all—and throughout the day applicants turned from the association's doors muttering imprecations upon "meddling secretaries" and newspapers that "won't permit a fellow to make an honest living."

THE OUTLAW.

Oh, let my lord laugh in his halls
When he the tale shall tell!
But woe to Jariwell and its walls
When I shall laugh as well!
And he that laughs the last, lads,
Laughs well, laughs well.

He's lord of many a burg and farm
And mickle thralls and gold.
And I am but my own right arm,
My dwelling place the wold.
But when we twain meet face to face
He will not laugh so bold.

The shame he chuckles as he shows
This time he need not tell;
I'll give his body to the crows,
And his black soul to Hell.
For he that laughs last, lads,
Laughs well, laughs well!

THE INFERIOR COURTS.

LABOR UNION BULLY IS UNDER ARREST.

CURSED INOFFENSIVE FRENCHMAN WHO WORKED FOR BREAD.

One of the American Foundry Workmen Who Left Because the Proprietor Hired a Boy—The Quitter Was Not Only Ugly, but Drunk.

A drunken bully, who gives the name of William Campbell, is in trouble in the Police Court for abusing a man who persisted in working for a living against the threats of the union.

Campbell is one of the men who quit a good job at the American Foundry on Mateo street because the proprietor had the temerity to hire a boy when the union didn't choose to have him.

WILLIAM CAMPBELL, Labor Union Bully.

Campbell is also one of the men who have been hanging around the foundry threatening and abusing the men who work there, following them home and even calling on them at their homes to bullyrag them.

Campbell varied the monotony this time by getting soggy drunk and swearing to a lie about it.

He was brought before Justice Chambers yesterday on two charges of disturbing the peace and drunkenness.

The complaining witness against him is a Frenchman who works at the foundry, Alcide Dumeniil.

Night before last he was riding home from work on the Mateo-street car when Campbell boarded the car, drunk and ugly.

He singled the Frenchman out and begaf abusing him, although he had not been addressed in any way.

"You're a damn scab and a dirty——," he said, "and if we don't get you in the daytime we will get you at night."

That by the way of a graceful preliminary to what he really had to say. He said it at great length and with great eloquence.

He was frightened when brought up in the Police Court yesterday. He tried to tell Justice Chambers a cock-and-bull story about appearing to be drunk because he had taken an overdose of quinine. Finally, however, he said thickly: "Well, Your Honor, I plead guilty to the drunk."

He gave bail for his appearance on the other charge. He will demand a jury trial.

STOLE BOOT BLACK'S RING. GOT LONG TERM.

John Gates, a bootblack at Cookser's barber shop, was sentenced to $125 or 125 days, by Justice Chambers yesterday for stealing a ring belonging to Garrett Woods, a colored man working in the shop. Gates said that he understood that Woods was going away, and, having found the ring, he thought he would just keep it in a pawn shop for him until he sent for it.

Boy Punished.

Frank Barber, the boy who robbed the safe of the Bireley Printing House, where he was employed, was fined $75 in Justice Chambers's court yesterday. He paid the fine.

It Puzzled Him.

The other day a little red-faced Irishman approached a postoffice which had three letter boxes outside. One was labeled "City," another "Domestic" and the third "Foreign." He looked at the three in turn and then, as a puzzled expression crossed his face, scratched his head.

"Faith," he was heard to mutter, "I don't know in whoch wan to put th' letter. Sure, Katie's a domestic, an' she lives in the city all right, an' she's a furriner, too; but, begobs, how can th' thing go in both of th' three holes at wance?"—[Columbia Jester.

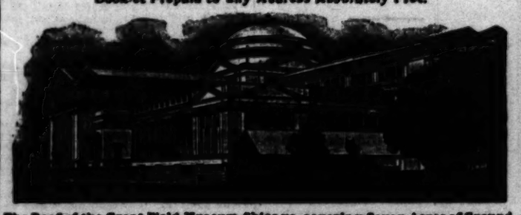
How to Paint A House Cheap

And Have it Guaranteed to Look Better, Wear Longer, and Cost Less Than the Best White Lead Paints.

Never Fades, Cracks, Chalks, Peels and is not Affected by Gases, Fogs, Sea Air or Any Climate Conditions—Fifty Sample Colors and Illustrated Booklet Prepaid to any Address Absolutely Free.



The Roof of the Great Field Museum, Chicago, covering Seven Acres of Ground, is Painted with Carrara Paint—This was Done after the Most Rigid Two Years' Test in which it was Found Carrara Paint was More than Twice as Good in Lasting Quality as Any Other Paint Produced.

The cost of painting the house and barn, outbuildings and fences is a heavy burden. Cheap paints soon fade, peel or scale off and white lead and oil costs so much and has to be replaced so often that it is a constant expense to keep the bright, clean appearance so desirable in the cosy cottage home or the elegant mansion. The following are a few of the large users of Carrara paint.

The Waldorf Astoria, New York City, one of the most magnificent hotels in the world, has used tons and tons of the world-famous Carrara paint. Pennsylvania R.R. Co.; Pullman Palace Car Co.; Chicago Telephone Co.; Central Union Telephone Co.; Field Museum, Chicago, covering over seven acres of ground, is painted with Carrara paint; Kenwood Club, Chicago; Cincinnati Southern; C. & E. I. R.R. Co.; Denver & Rio Grande R.R.; Wellington Hotel, Chicago.

From railroad box car to elegantly furnished general offices of the great railways; from race track fences and stables to fancy clubhouses; from plain brick walls and stone fences to tin roofs and interior finish of stately hotels; from country barn or hay shed or cheap outbuilding to farm residence, suburban home or luxurious city residence. Carrara is used because it lasts longer, never fades, never cracks, never blisters, never peels, covers more surface than the highest-priced paints and costs less than the cheap mixed paints that injure instead of protect. There is but one Carrara. It is made by the Carrara Paint Agency, Cincinnati, O., and anyone having a house to paint should send to our Pacific Coast distributors, Johnson-Locke Mercantile Co., 128 California St., San Francisco, or the O. C. Zahn Paint Co., 231 W. First St., Los Angeles, Cal., for 50 sample colors and illustrated booklet free of this great paint that has stood the most rigid tests, and bear in mind that it is the only paint ever manufactured that gives perfect satisfaction in every case. Write today and save half your paint bills in the future.

Money for Use

PIN MONEY.

MRS. HERRICK TELLS WHY THE HUSBAND SHOULD PAY REGULAR ALLOWANCE, NOR WAIT TO BE ASKED—HOW SOME BENEDICTS DO IT—WOMEN'S WAYS OF GETTING FUNDS SURREPTITIOUSLY.

BY CHRISTINE TERHUNE HERRICK.

THE woman who had an allowance was once almost an unknown quantity. That is, if she were a married woman. The young girl used to have a certain sum bestowed upon her, perhaps, on which she must try to dress. But the married woman who received from her husband an allowance for housekeeping expenses, or for dress, or both, was a rare bird.

Even now she is rather the exception than the rule. Still it is too much the custom for the bills to be settled by the man of the house, who first audits them, as a matter of course.

It is not altogether easy to decide why this plan is so generally followed. Is it that the man does not believe the woman capable of making a wise use of funds committed to her care? Does he think that she would plunge into mad extravagance and then fall back on him to make up the deficit? Or is the cause of his reluctance to trust her with money due to the fact that he relishes the conviction that as he earned the money therefore he should have the absolute direction of its expenditure? Possibly his feeling is compounded of all these reasons—although he would not be likely to acknowledge the last unless he were exceptionally frank. Before he could be induced to change his opinion on this score there would have to be brought an unusually strong array of arguments against him.

THE WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT.

The woman does not have to be convinced to the view of her having a right to certain money that shall lie within her control. She would tell you, with a man might not be able to comprehend, that it is a martyrdom to her to have to ask her husband for money, and she always feels as though it were time spent for her own personal delectation even when it is to go to feed and clothe the members of the family. It is bad enough, she will assure the hearer, when it is for regular household expenses, but when it is for her own dress or diversion, it is infinitely worse. Be it understood, I am not speaking now of the extravagant, thoughtless wife, whose one aim in life seems to be to get all she can out of it in the way of pleasure and gratification for herself, who looks upon her husband simply as the purveyor of her pleasures. There are plenty of such women, more's the pity. But there are many of the other sort—a big majority—who do their conscientious best to spend wisely the money intrusted to them, and strive with their strongest energy to make every penny go as far as it will, even when this has to be done at the cost of their own brains and bodies.

When women were brought up more helpless like plants in a cellar—and that was not a long while ago—it might have been thought that they lacked the practicality which would enable them to spend their allowances prudently. Even it might have been urged that the man, having more knowledge of money-getting and disbursing, was in a better position to regulate the output of what he earned. But this plea can hardly be urged in this day. Now that there is a great body of women who grow up with the intention of supporting themselves—and who, moreover, do it well—it cannot be said that women do not know how to handle money wisely. They have proved the contrary.

ASKING FOR FUNDS.

The girl who has supported herself ever since she left the high school, who got in the habit of going to her father or brother for money with which to pay her current expenses, must undergo a rather peculiar sensation when, after marriage, she applies to her husband for the price of a new hat or for money to pay car fare. At first it is within the bounds of possibility—though not of probability—that she may enjoy the experience. It has at least the charm of novelty. But this novelty is apt of an enduring character, and the request for funds soon assumes the character of a bugbear.

I am not blaming the man for this. He is only a man, after all—which is his fault—and hereditary training is still so strong in him that in nine cases out of ten he fails to see why his wife should object to asking him for money when she wants it. Inquire of him how he would relish the experience if the case were reversed and he were told you with dignity that that is a very different thing. As it is, it takes all the difference in the world to one whose bull or ox is gored or does the goring.

Men are practical creatures—with few exceptions—and the majority of them have given up woman as a conundrum at a very early stage in their experience. There are so many things about a woman that they feel they will never understand that it is saying an unreasonable burden upon them to add one more item to the list. Since they cannot comprehend why she should object to the position of a beloved object of charity, man's generosity will probably be equal to yielding a privilege where he does not grasp the reason for it. Put matters to him in the right way and he will seldom refuse to grant the woman her allowance.

THE ALLOWANCE PLAN.

She can give him plenty of reasons sufficient to her, why she wants it. She may say that it makes her more comfortable if she knows just what she can depend upon and the sum that she may not exceed. If she must bring her household expenses within a certain limit she will study out the necessary economies with a new zest. Must she live on a fixed sum, she understands that she can allow herself this or that little luxury and when she must turn may her eyes from beholding vanity and pass by on the other side. More than all, the possession of a stipend which she can spend according to her judgment gives her the sensation of being a reasonable being instead of a child who has not yet attained her full mental growth. Some women may revel in being looked upon and treated as children, but the chief part of them prefer the status of reasonable beings. So let the man grant the allowance, and it makes him feel better to feel that he is conferring a privilege instead of according a right—it does her no harm and is probably a solid comfort to him.

There is no man—or woman either, for that matter—who does not get a bit over the thought of being a benefactor. It is one of the signs of the benevolent tendency of human nature.

The exact amount of an allowance, or even its proportion to the income of the husband cannot be stated in fixed terms. Circumstances must decide all that. The wealthy man may feel that he may allow a larger ratio for his ta-

They have proved the contrary.

ASKING FOR FUNDS.

The girl who has supported herself ever since she left the high school, who is not in the habit of going to her father or brother for money with which to pay her current expenses, must undergo a rather peculiar sensation when, after marriage, she applies to her husband for the price of a new hat or for money to pay car fare. At first it is within the bounds of possibility—though not of probability—that she may enjoy the experience. It has at least the charm of novelty. But this novelty is not of an enduring character, and the request for funds soon assumes the character of a bugbear.

I am not blaming the man for this. He is only a man, after all—which is not his fault—and hereditary training is still so strong in him that in nine cases out of ten he fails to see why his wife should object to asking him for money when she wants it. Inquire of him how he would relish the experience if the cases were reversed and he will tell you with dignity that that is a very different thing. As it is, it makes all the difference in the world to whose bull or ox is gored or does the goring.

Men are practical creatures—with rare exceptions—and the majority of them have given up woman as a conundrum at a very early stage in their experience. There are so many things about a woman that they feel they can never understand that it is laying no unreasonable burden upon them to add one more item to the list. Since they cannot comprehend why she should object to the position of a beloved object of charity, man's generosity will probably be equal to yielding a privilege where he does not grasp any reason for it. Put matters to him in the right way and he will seldom refuse to grant the woman her allowance.

THE ALLOWANCE PLAN.

She can give him plenty of reasons, sufficient to her, why she wants it. She will say that it makes her more comfortable if she knows just what she can depend upon and the sum that she may not exceed. If she must bring her household expenses within a certain limit she will study the necessary economies with a new zest. Must she run on a fixed sum, she understands then she can allow herself this or that little luxury and when she must turn away her eyes from beholding vanity and pass by on the other side. More than all, the possession of a stipend which she can spend according to her judgment gives her the sensation of being a reasonable being instead of a child who has not yet attained her full mental growth. Some women may revel to being looked upon and treated as children, but the chief part of them prefer the status of reasonable beings. So let the man grant the allowance, if it makes him feel better to feel that he is conferring a privilege instead of according a right—it does her no harm and is probably a solid comfort to him. There is no man—or woman either, for that matter—who does not get a bit over the thought of being a benefactor. It is one of the signs of the benevolent tendency of human nature.

The exact amount of an allowance or even its proportion to the income of the husband cannot be stated in fixed terms. Circumstances must decide all that. The wealthy man may feel that he may allow a larger ratio for his table and service than is within the power of the man of more moderate means. Again, some families have outside expenses or investments that make a demand upon them, and all these must be considered in the apportionment of the sum that is to cover domestic expenses.

If the man and his wife are both reasonable beings—which can by no means be invariably taken as a matter of course—they will do much better at deciding the allowance proposition after a sensible, business talk. The man may tell his wife what he can afford to give her, and she may make up her mind on what sum she can carry on the establishment. All this cannot be done offhand. The woman can hardly settle a question of this sort until she has some knowledge of what it will cost to run the house, and her figures will require a good deal of revision before they can be depended upon. Then she and the husband should consult as to the various common expenses which will make a drain upon them, and so settle a modus vivendi.

MAKING THE PAYMENTS.

This being done, the allowance remains to be paid. That seems a simple enough affair, but it is often the crux of the whole business. The woman—being a woman and therefore incomprehensible—does not always like to go to her husband for her weekly or monthly stipend. He cannot understand this. Perhaps he will tell you that he would not mind going to his employer every month or every quarter and demanding his salary—or he may again dispose of that question by saying it is not at all the same thing. Once more he has an opportunity afforded him to be magnanimous and make a concession to feminine weakness. He will give himself a very high place in her mind as well as in her heart if he never obliges her to ask him for the sum he has decided shall be committed to her.

One husband that I know of always puts the money for family expenses into a certain drawer in his wife's desk. This he does once a week, and during a long—and I may add, perhaps unnecessarily—happy married life he has never once had to be reminded of it.

Another man makes out his check for his wife's allowance at the same time that he draws up those for the salaries of the men in his employ. Those he could not overlook, and his wife shares in the remembrance of his other business obligations.

When the husband has once paid the allowance it is well for him to bear in mind that he has no further concern with it—that is, if he has enough confidence in his wife to trust her with money at all. He should not demand her books and audit her accounts. I have known of some fortunately married people between whom existed such a degree of confidence and unity that they went over expenses together as a matter of course, with no hard feeling or criticism on either side. But these are the exceptions. Yet, when a man commits to his wife a sum of money to expend for certain purposes, why should he seek to know the items for which it has gone? Does he submit his private expense account to her? He will tell you that his wife should have confidence in him. Or he may say, more sensibly, that he does not think it worth while to bother her with the record of his cigars, "shines" and car fares. And neither should he waste his time upon her petty purchases.

THE NIGGARDLY HUSBAND.

There will arise some exceptional men and some fortunate women who will despise all this counsel as absurd. They will assert that men who are men and not old women do not question their wives about details. It is good to think there are such men and such women. But there are others. There may be a trifling exaggeration in the story of the man who asked his wife on Saturday how she had spent the nickel he gave her on Monday, but one knows instances little less absurd.

There was one man who started off on a journey, leaving his wife, whom he seldom trusted with ready money, in possession of a whole $5 bill, with which she was to run the establishment during the week of his absence. Stimulated by the stewardship of such wealth, the wife stopped on her way home from market at a confectioner's and gave herself the treat of a box of peanut brittle. Her consternation may be imagined when her lord and master appeared that afternoon with the information that the trip was postponed and required the account of her expenditures. Had she been less scrupulous she would have hypothecated her accounts and added another item to her butcher's or grocer's bill. But she was of a truthful turn and owned up to the peanut brittle.

"And yet you wonder that I never trust you with money?" commented the head of the house. "As soon as you get it you rush out to spend it on something foolish!"

I beg to state that this story is literally true.

FEMININE EXPEDIENTS.

Many are the expedients to which the woman is driven who has no money she can call her own. Sometimes she alters her accounts, as I above suggested, and pockets the balance. At other times she rifles her husband's pocket for small change. Supremely fortunate is she if she has even diminutive private means of her own, by the aid of which she can once in a while buy a gift or make a donation or allow herself a trifling treat without having to account for it to the keeper of the purse.

He, by the way, is not of necessity stingy. I have known men who were generous providers and paid dry goods and dressmakers' bills with only a normal amount of grumbling, who would hold back ready money from the women of the household. One such woman I knew who rode in her own carriage, but was never able to subscribe a dollar in cash for benevolent objects at church or charitable meetings.

"Let me make my contribution in some other form," she would say. "If towels or sheets or provisions are needed (for the institution or the missionary box, as the case might be,) I will give those." And aside to her friends she would murmur, "It will all go in the bill and Mr. J. will think it is for the house!"

This sort of tutelage is a relic of the old position which women held for generations. Since that is changed, it is as well for the stronger sex to accommodate themselves to circumstances. It costs them but a little compromise to yield the masculine prerogative so far as to make their wives an allowance. Rarely, very rarely, do the husbands have cause to regret it. When they do, they will probably have so many other things to regret at the same time that the money question will sink into comparative insignificance.

Would Your Estate

Provide an annual income sufficient for your family's needs? Or does it consist of an active business from which the return would be uncertain in case of your death? Widows are proverbially the victims of investment sharks.

Your wife can be provided with an annual income for life, at a low rate, under a form of contract devised and introduced by The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York.

August 7, 1899, a young business man of New York took out Policy No. 1,006,742 in favor of his wife. He paid three premiums of $698.40, and in September, 1902, he died. The Company at once paid his widow $1000, and will continue to pay her that sum annually as long as she lives.

In writing for terms, state the amount of income you would like to provide your wife, the amount of cash you would like returned if you survive the period of limited payments, and give the ages of both.

I HAVE been treated by Dr. Schiffman for years. I have tried all his different methods and can say unhesitatingly no dentist or physician has ever operated with such success or skill. In extracting my teeth he did it without any pain to me. It is a great pleasure to me to recommend him and his method of treatment. MILO M. POTTER,
Prop. Van Nuys Hotel and Hotel Potter, Santa Barbara.

Ten years ago a reputable D. D. S. of Va. told me that a certain molar tooth could not be satisfactorily saved and that it would probably not be of service for one year. It has not only served me for ten years, as Dr. Schiffman saved and crowned it, and comparatively speaking without pain. I sing his praise.
L. M. ANDREWS, Pastor M. E. Church, South, Cor. 6th and Mateo Streets.

On account of some unfortunate experiences I had in the extraction of my teeth I became a great coward in this respect. Today Dr. Schiffman extracted one of my very refractory teeth without causing me one particle of pain. D. K. TRASK, Judge Superior Court, Los Angeles.

Dr. Schiffman extracted a tooth for me absolutely without pain. His advertising phrase, "Didn't Hurt a Bit," is literally true.

EVERAL years ago Dr. Schiffman did some crown and bridge work for me which has proved entirely satisfactory. The work was done painlessly and with great skill. It gives me great pleasure to recommend him.
IRVING R. SMITH, L. A. Times.

Dr. Schiffman has put in almost an entire upper bridge for me. The bridge is perfect in every respect, and I can use it as well as my natural teeth. The work was principally and painlessly done.
J. F. WILL, 331 West Seventh.

Dr. Schiffman pulled two of my wisdom teeth, and it didn't hurt a bit; on the contrary, the sensation was pleasant. GUY L. HARDISON, Vice-Pres. Merrill Pub. Co.

It is with pleasure that I state that I have had several teeth filled by Dr. Schiffman, and that he filled and extracted the nerve and filled the root of one of my teeth and put on a porcelain crown, which cannot be distinguished from a natural tooth, all of which was done without pain. JUDSON B. RUSH,
Of Davis & Rush, Attorneys, 8 Rogers Bldg.

I have had porcelain crown work and some filling done, also had ten teeth and roots extracted by Dr. Schiffman, and take great pleasure in recommending his method to anyone wishing dental work done without pain. MRS. C. T. W. BOHRARDT,
Mother of Paloma Schramm, Cor. Aurelia and Wilhelmina.

Dr. Schiffman has put in a very satisfactory piece of bridge work for me and I cheerfully recommend him to anyone in need of dentistry. F. FLORENTINE,
1080 North Main St. County and City Criminal Photographer.

About a year ago I had a solid gold bridge put in by Dr. Schiffman. The work was absolutely painless, and has proved entirely satisfactory, and I cannot say too much in praise of the doctor. GUS BASLER, 313 W. First St.

Dr. Schiffman extracted my tooth and replaced same by bridge work. He also removed and filled two teeth, which I thought were too far gone to save. The above work was well done painlessly and is perfectly satisfactory. E. A. POLLARD, 727 Central Ave.

This is to certify that Dr. Schiffman did some crown work for me seven years ago and the work is as good today as it was when he finished the job.
S. J. McKINNEY, Police Officer, 1402 Rimes St.

I have had fourteen teeth extracted painlessly without pain by Dr. Schiffman.

Talks With Parents

By MARION HARLAND

MY HUSBAND and I live happily together with our little daughter of three summers.

While we try to be companions to her we have not the gift of acting like a child or, rather, feeling like one. The little girl is lovingness itself and nearly always docile, but she is restless and discontented. Playthings amuse little, dolls not at all, as she does not seem to know how to "make believe." We live simply, regularly, and I believe in a refined manner. The children about are coarse and noisy, so we do not allow the little girl with them. Pets are of no avail. Do you think it would be a wise step for me to care for a child under 6 years of age next fall for a small remuneration? If I could afford it I would do it cheerfully without it, but as I would try to be a mother as well to the stranger, I could not attend so well to my home. I thought if I could charge enough to have my washing done out and for the slight amount consumed at the table it would be sufficient. My husband leaves the question to me, and I to you. I am connected with one of the finest old families in the city. I do not mean this as an advertisement, but I should like to obtain a child that comes of gentle parents. MRS. R.

Your little one would, no doubt, be far happier if she had a playfellow near her own age, and by the arrangement you outline, the care of another child would not entail much additional labor upon you. The objections to your plan are these: First, by your own showing, you are lacking in the power of adaptation to the needs and moods of your own child. If you cannot sympathise with her, entering into her feelings and fancies so as to make her contented and happy, will you be more successful with an older and a strange child?

Second, a child 6 years old is usually pretty well trained, or badly spoiled. You may have much to undo that, if not checked, would be a positive injury to your baby. It is hardly likely that the "child of gentle parents" would be boarded with an utter stranger—farmed out, as it were—unless in very exceptional circumstances, and these presuppose deplorable neglect of the desolate little creature.

Would it not be better to accommodate yourself to the position in which you have been placed by nature and Providence, and to become really acquainted with your own child, instead of courting new responsibilities? Except for the advantage to her of having a companion of her own age, there is little in your scheme to commend it to an impartial judge of the case.

Nevertheless, should a friendless baby be thrown in your way, I am sure that it will have a safe asylum in your well-ordered home, and kind care from you.

I WISH TO SAY for children that have an attack of loose bowels brought on by a cold, or by hot weather: Give them to drink rice water that has boiled thirty minutes, and also to eat the rice boiled thirty minutes longer, with additional water and a little salt. Serve warm, with a little sugar and ground cinnamon.

If castor oil be required, squeeze the juice of half an orange in a cup, then the required amount of oil, then the juice of the other half orange on top. The child will taste orange juice alone. H. F.

Again an editorial demur—this time feeble and tentative. Rice water contains so much of the best substance of the grains that nothing is gained by boiling the rice longer. Indeed, thirty minutes more in additional water will extract all the nourishment and reduce the rice to a pasty mass that will clog the alimentary canal and the mucous lining of the stomach. There is but one right way of cooking rice for adult eaters and for the nursery table.

Wash and pick it over well; soak for half an hour in cold water. Have ready over the fire a saucepan containing two quarts of boiling water slightly salted for each cupful of rice. Drop the rice into this by the loose handful, and boil hard for twenty minutes. Never stir it, but shake up the saucepan several times. At the end of twenty minutes take out a grain and bite it to make sure it is tender. If clear and soft, strain off the water through a colander, and set in the colander over a pot or pan at the side of the stove, or in an open oven, to "dry off." Each grain should be tender, plump and separate from the rest.

WILL YOU KINDLY tell me where I can get a book for boys explaining how to make electrical and mechanical toys, etc.? I have wanted such a book for several years. J. W. R.

The address of the writer (a Virginian) is in my notebook. Any one who knows where the work he asks for can be obtained may communicate with him through me.

WILL YOU PLEASE tell me whether or not turpentine is injurious to give to children as a worm medicine? I have been told to give it to my little girl, but I am afraid to try it. Will you kindly advise me? AGNES.

Without consultation with the resident physician who is one of our able medical staff, I plead, "Don't!" Turpentine as a cleansing agent is valuable. It removes paint from garments, brightens window panes and burnishes brasses. The baby's stomach and bowels are of different stuff from any of these. As a general rule, the milder the medicine given to babies the better—provided always that it does its work. Avoid drastic drugs in nursery practice. They cure one disorder by substituting another. There are gentle vermifuges which remove worms without excoriating the intestines.

I HAVE A SON almost 19 years old who has a coarse and low voice. Can you please tell me whether or not it can be improved, and by what? He also wears tight collars, which is one cause for it. AN ANXIOUS MOTHER.

Put him under the care of a really good teacher of elocution, and also have him practise vocal music. Either of these systems would do much toward improving the quality of his voice and teaching him how to use it. Voice culture in speech is a matter too often neglected even by intelligent parents who can afford the best educational methods for their children. The tight collar is bad for throat and lungs.

DO YOU THINK it is proper for me to call my mother-in-law "mother," when my parents are both living? I am the only daughter-in-law, and she is quite pleasant to me and always asks me why I don't call her "mother" instead of "Mrs. L." K. J. L.

It would be kind and gracious to her and to your husband for you to please her in this respect. The shrinking from calling her "mother" while your very own mother is alive is a sentimental scruple. If you cannot train your tongue to the misapplied title, why not say "mamma" to the relative-in-law? "Mrs. L." may be fashionable, but it is formal, and evidently unpleasant to her. Don't make a useless stand upon trifles! There are enough shards in the path of a daughter-in-law without dragging pebbles and tiny flintstones into it.

Recipes for Seasonable Dainties

Cake Icing Made With Milk.

Two cups of sugar, three-quarters of a cup of milk, piece of butter size of a walnut. Boil fifteen minutes slowly or ten minutes fast. Then take off and stir until creamy. Add vanilla or any desired flavoring. Do not let it get too hot before putting it on the cake. F. G.

Nasturtium Vinegar.

Gather the flowers when full blown and pack rather loosely in wide-mouthed jars. Add as much vinegar as the jar will hold, having mixed in a tablespoonful of strained onion juice to every pint of vinegar. Fit on a top and set in a cool place for six weeks. Strain, add a little salt and a dash of paprika, and bottle, corking well.

Dried Pumpkin for Pies.

Cut pumpkin into small pieces, add about a cup of water, just sufficient to prevent burning. Cook until it is as dry as you can get it without burning; then, with a large spoon, rub it through an old-fashioned flour sieve. Spread on plates and dry in open oven. Store in glass fruit jars. To use, soak in a little fresh milk on back of stove early in the morning. Pumpkin pies can be made in winter from dried pumpkin, and taste exactly like fresh. F.

Talks With Housewives

By MARION HARLAND

THE RECIPE for cooked cabbage given by "Fidelia" interested me greatly. My mother, being a German, taught me the method of many German and Austrian dishes. I would like to give you one of "our" ways of cooking cabbage. It is as follows:

Cut fine one head of cabbage. Salt down over night. In the morning squeeze with the hands and put into a pot (preferably one of earthenware) into which you have previously put a generous tablespoonful of lard, a few cloves, a sliced onion, pepper to taste, and vinegar (also to taste, as some like it more acid than others). Vinegar may be added during cooking if not enough is put in at first. Cover and cook slowly at back of range until tender, stirring occasionally with a wooden or enameled spoon. Sometimes I do not salt down the cabbage. In such case put it on in the morning and cook all day. Red cabbage also is delicious cooked in this way and is worth trying.

Before I close I wish to endorse "Mrs. A. W.'s" method of "straightening" clothing to take off the "shine." I have used it for years with great success. MRS. T. B.

It is a positive delight to find two of our practical members agreeing that there is a way of taking the "shine" from silk and from woolen cloths. Costly fabrics contract it almost as soon as cheap. Dressmakers shake their heads and declare the evil to be irremediable. I have recommended fine emery [illegible] alcohol and ammonia [illegible] palliatives, add[illegible] each suggestion: "[illegible] be a temporary [illegible] The shine will soon return." Damp-rubbing is a homely but expressive word—has the great advantage of not injuring the nap by friction.

I KNOW A MAN who is not afraid to help solve his wife's household problems. They tried borax, and borax and red pepper, for cockroaches, but the critters merely cracked their heels together, sneezed a few times, and then grew numerous and fat. Mr. Man did as someone told him, and boiled the borax; then powdered it fine and scattered about the "runways." The roaches were banished in a night.

To boil borax put a quantity of it in an old pan—a fire-shovel still better—and hold it over hot coals until it ceases to fume and froth. This leaves a dirty white friable mass, which can be reduced easily to coarse powder. The evaporation of all the water in the borax makes it caustic, and the roaches get "hot foot" and scamper. W. A. T.

The avalanche of letters which followed the offer of one canny housewife to put others in the way of getting rid of roaches as she had succeeded in doing is an awful revelation to me of the prevalence and severity of the plague. Without courting for our strenuous brother a visitation of correspondents, I publish one more "certain and sure" way of clearing house and land of the marauders.

ALLOW ME TO THANK you for the excellent directions for keeping rid of moths. I have kept woolens and furs for years by simply wrapping them carefully in newspapers, and tying, not pinning, the bundles. A MEMBER IN GOOD AND REGULAR STANDING.

READING THE LETTER OF "A. F. S." made me do a good deal of thinking. If we find ourselves in certain circumstances which have brought ourselves there because we did not understand what we should enlarge our sphere. Neither one is to blame, and there should be no fault-finding. The remedy is to be found within yourself, and as you begin to think of "John" as being generous with you, it will be better. I know that with an effort in the right direction the right strings could be loosened. We are all acting and reacting on each other, so let us call out the best in those with whom we live. We cannot always see the way, but with patience and perseverance we can accomplish wonders.

Try mentally to awaken "John" to your needs. Do not think he is "stingy" with you. You outgrew your old home life and did not know it. You would not have been happy in the one way for long. Awaken yourself. I speak from experience. N. B., Metropolis.

PLEASE ADVISE ME what will take wine stains from a white Persian lawn gown which has never been washed.

2. Also what will remove banana stains from a pair of white gloves? Your constant reader, G. B. S.

1. The wine is acid. Therefore sponge with household ammonia. Wipe dry, and should a trace remain, sponge with ether. Finish with Javelle water.

2. Try ammonia and afterward wash the gloves in the usual way.

AND STILL THE INTEREST in the vital "allowance" question holds at high tide and the waters are never still. Hear another "wave":

I take great pleasure in reading this particular "corner," and therefore take the liberty to write to "A. F. S." who seems somewhat perplexed. Soon after I was married, which was five years ago, my husband, prompted by my suggestion, gave me an allowance, saying a third of his salary. This is mine, rightfully, and every woman is entitled to a share, for she works to maintain the home equally as much as the "model man." With this allowance all household bills are paid, groceries, meat, ice, laundry, clothing for our boy, my husband and self, including an allowance for the mother.

I am economical in every particular, so can study music part of the time, both instrumental and vocal; take three magazines, and always have a surplus to put in the bank or building and loan. My husband takes delight in my money matters, and I assure you I endeavor to make my margins as large as possible.

If "A. F. S." would have a good serious talk with the "model" husband, insisting to a degree upon the rights of every wife, and then ask for at least to give her a trial?

Let me add that out of the two-thirds which my husband gives me he has only to pay rent, buy coal in winter and buy his own clothes. B. T.

One reads between the lines of this well-written letter that the wife of this woman's husband doth safely trust in her. There are thousands of others as trustworthy whose legal lords have never given them the opportunity of finding out the treasures unawares in their keeping holds.

"A little nonsense now and then
Is relished by the gravest men,"— and women are not backward in appreciating clear, innocent fun. I yield to the temptation to relieve the serious cast of this week's "Talks in the "Exchange," by sharing with readers a bit of doggerel from the pen of our Court Astrologer, than whom nobody watches our Corner more closely and with a more kindly eye.

Apropos of the "cold canning process," he drops into poetry in the light of a friend after this fashion:

In the summer the housewife's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of canning
By the steamless process that keeps things so fresh and nice—
They are washed and wiped and brushed, and subjected to a flame—
And turned upside down and laid away upon a chunk of ice.

Then when the months have flitted, and the rash and freaky blizzard
Is blowing like the—mischief! across our glorious land,
We turn those jars upside up again, and fresh as any gizzard
Is found last summer's fruit, with a flavor "simply grand!"

The only trouble with the process that has ever been discovered,
Is that it always succeeds at least seven States away;
Like the medicine, with praise of which the rural fence is covered,
The people who live a long way off are the only ones who ever get it pay.

(With apologies for the final line to Mr Alfred Austin.)

COINAGE IN THE ORIENT. [illegible] qualified indorsement is given by [illegible] French Commission to the propos[illegible] of the Monetary Exchange Com[illegible] sioners at present traveling throu[illegible] Europe. The French Commission[illegible] vors a coinage ratio for the Ori[illegible] with the face value of silver [illegible] slightly above its bullion value, sim[illegible] lar to the American system in t[illegible] Philippines. It makes some reser[illegible] tions in reference to the feature of t[illegible] plan which contemplates the regul[illegible] purchase of silver, on the ground th[illegible] it is impossible to foresee the ou[illegible] try's needs for subsidiary and colo[illegible] coinage. The French report indor[illegible] the idea of a gold standard for Chi[illegible] and other silver-using countries, [illegible] agrees that the plan is possi[illegible] only with a judicious control of t[illegible] coinage by the government and [illegible] creation of an adequate gold reser[illegible] It is intimated that the commissi[illegible] appointed by the Russian governme[illegible] to consider the proposals has reach[illegible] conclusions similar to those of t[illegible] French Commission. Both commi[illegible] sions, it is understood, regard it [illegible] preferable to establish a uniform sy[illegible] tem for China by beginning on a s[illegible] ver basis and afterward raising it [illegible] a fixed gold value, rather than by [illegible] ginning on a gold basis immediate[illegible] It is of interest to note in connecti[illegible] with this subject that silver, the pri[illegible] of which has been steadily advanci[illegible] for some time, reached this week [illegible] highest point attained since Nove[illegible] ber, 1901. In part this rise is attri[illegible] uted to a heavy demand from Ind[illegible] where the metal is being distribut[illegible] in large quantities to the retail tra[illegible] and in part to purchases by Ge[illegible] Britain and France for their coin[illegible] requirements, and by the United Sta[illegible] for its Philippine coinage. The adop[illegible] tion, even if only partial, of the pla[illegible] suggested by the American Monetar[illegible] Commission would undoubtedly a[illegible] in sending up the price of white me[illegible] al still further.—[Bradstreet's.

WESTERN CORN CROP. A promi[illegible] nent western capitalist who is a lar[illegible] stockholder in several of the most im[illegible] portant grain companies in the cou[illegible] try, and is largely interested in [illegible] grenger railroads, makes the followin[illegible] observations to the Wall Street Jou[illegible] nal:

"I have been studying the records [illegible] the Weather Bureau during the corn [illegible] growing season for a number of [illegible] back," he said, "and they are full [illegible] encouragement for the present crop. [illegible] consider the best corn crop this coun[illegible] try ever saw was in 1889. Last ye[illegible] was a larger yield, but much of t[illegible] corn was soft and unmarketable. Tak[illegible] ing into consideration the quality, yie[illegible] and all, I think the crop of 1899 wa[illegible] the best. I find that the weather fro[illegible] the end of March to July 4 was almos[illegible] exactly the same in 1899 as this year. That convinced me that the slow star[illegible] the corn crop got this year was rathe[illegible] in its favor than against it.

"I have been out through the west[illegible] ern part of Illinois and part of Iowa [illegible] in the last week, and the outlook has [illegible] me feel good. Everywhere I went I [illegible] asked just one question: 'Has the cor[illegible] crop improved as much as you looke[illegible] for since July 4?' and every farmer I [illegible] asked said 'More.'

"The crop is really doing splendidly. [illegible] This talk of cold weather hurting th[illegible] growth shows ignorance, in my opinion. [illegible] It is all the better if the stalks ar[illegible] short, in a late season. What is need[illegible] ed now is the maturing of the cor[illegible] and the bright sun is doing that mag[illegible] nificently.

"I forgot to add that in the year fol[illegible] lowing the big crop of 1889 there was [illegible] an almost total failure of the corn [illegible] crop. If the weather parallel holds [illegible] there may be disaster to the corn cro[illegible] next year, but no one need worry [illegible] about the crop this season."

WHEAT EXPORT SITUATION. Ex[illegible] perters continue to express disap[illegible] pointment as to the foreign demand fo[illegible] wheat. Some of them are revising their [illegible] figures as to the foreign necessities. [illegible] Great Britain has been having unfa[illegible] vorable weather for some weeks, but [illegible] the continent has been having favora[illegible] ble conditions as a rule since spring. [illegible] The very severe decline at Paris in the [illegible] last two months has reflected the fine [illegible] weather in France. India this season [illegible] has had about 30,000,000 bushels more [illegible] wheat to spare than in recent years. [illegible] Argentina so far has shipped almost [illegible] 40,000,000 bushels more than last year. [illegible] Russia has had a large crop. The for[illegible] eigners have been under the spell of [illegible] the huge crop estimates with which the [illegible] American authorities started. But the [illegible] exporters, whose business it is to get [illegible] the situation abroad, are assuming [illegible] there will be a demand later on. The [illegible] wet harvest abroad, last year, made [illegible] the demand on America early and ur[illegible] gent. There has not existed that sit[illegible] uation this season.—[Chicago Record-Herald.

WEST PROSPEROUS. Thomas H. Carter of Montana, while on a recent visit to the East, said of western conditions:

"The people of our western country are more prosperous than ever before. They have abundant crops and money in plenty; in fact, for the first time in the commercial history of this country, the West is loaning money to the East. I know it to be a fact that Butte banks are discounting Philadelphia and New York paper. I think there will be an abundance of money in the West to move the crops, and that our people will not find it necessary to seek a dollar in the East. Naturally, under these circumstances, they are not thinking much about financial legislation. The belief is general in the West that the financial stringency in New York particularly is due to disorder of trade or of speculation, largely local in its nature."

COINAGE IN THE ORIENT. A qualified indorsement is given by the French Commission to the proposals of the Monetary Exchange Commissioners at present traveling through Europe. The French Commission favors a coinage ratio for the Orient with the face value of silver fixed slightly above its bullion value, similar to the American system in the Philippines. It makes some reservations in reference to the feature of the plan which contemplates the regular purchase of silver, on the ground that it is impossible to foresee the country's needs for subsidiary and colonial coinage. The French report indorses the idea of a gold standard for China and other silver-using countries, but suggests that the plan is possible only with a judicious control of the coinage by the government and the creation of an adequate gold reserve. It is intimated that the commission appointed by the Russian government to consider the proposals has reached conclusions similar to those of the French Commission. Both commissions, it is understood, regard it as preferable to establish a uniform system for China by beginning on a silver basis and afterward raising it to a fixed gold value, rather than by beginning on a gold basis immediately. It is of interest to note in connection with this subject that silver, the price of which has been steadily advancing for some time, reached this week the highest point attained since November, 1901. In part this rise is attributed to a heavy demand from India, where the metal is being distributed in large quantities to the retail trade, and in part to purchases by Great Britain and France for their eastern possessions, and by the United States for its Philippine coinage. The adoption, even if only partial, of the plans suggested by the American Monetary Commission would undoubtedly aid in sending up the price of white metal still further.—[Bradstreet's.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

SHARES AND MONEY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—There was no news to account for any change in the complexion of today's market and the early part of the session was given over to a dullness more profound and a sluggishness more inert than at any time during the present neglected condition of the market. Later, there was some revival of activity which expanded the volume of transactions considerably over those of yesterday, and lifted the average level of prices above last night. Atchison was the leader with an extreme rise of 2¾, and four or four other leaders responded to the extent of a point. Prices eased off before the close, which was unsteady. The afternoon demonstration seemed to be directed against the short interest in Atchison, especially in the ordinary shares, incidentally. The operations on the advance were conducted by several well-known speculative operators, whose return to the street from vacation absences was thus signalized. The uncertainty over the corn crop has been the motive for selling of considerable short lines in the grangers, and this has been reflected for some time by the strength of the borrowing demand for Atchison in the loan crowd. This seems to have constituted the cue for the preferential operators opposed to big prices on the shorts and a considerable demand to cover was the consequence. This rise in these stocks has simultaneous with the strength in the corn and wheat markets, which seemed to leave no room for the inference that the buying was based on the more favorable immediate outlook for the crop. During the early depression, Metropolitan Street Railway was weak on account of current impression that the dividend in the stock guaranteed by the security company is not being fully earned. There was also a report of a $10,000,000 decrease in the net earnings for August of United States Steel. A renewed suit against the Amalgamated Copper Interest in Montana, and a 5-point break in Consolidated Gas aroused misgivings amongst the professionals as to the market attitude of the Standard Oil interests. The unsettled labor situation in Colorado was reflected in the Colorado Fuel and American Smelting stocks. Both these influences, as well as the puidest at Oyster Bay were disregarded in the late covering movement. There was some breadth in the bond market, but the price movement was irregular. Total sales, par value, $1,150,000. The rise in quotations for government bonds is attributed to the demand from banks for use in securities against the expected increase in government deposits. United States 2s, 3s and old and new 4s advanced half per cent. The 5s declined ¼ per cent. on the last call.

THE OIL INDUSTRY

ARIZONA OPERATORS WANT LIQUID FUEL.

OFFER A REWARD OF THOUSAND DOLLARS AND MARKET.

Many California Oil Men Being Attracted to Territory by Flattering Indications of Petroleum Wealth—Santa Fe Receives New Oil Burners.

Besides a thousand-dollar reward to the first company that succeeds in bringing in a real live oil well on Arizona soil, there is a growing demand for the liquid fuel in the Territory.

The flattering indications of petroleum deposits have attracted several prominent California oil men to the Territory, and it is anticipated that within the next few months important developments will be forthcoming.

O. H. Jones, for many years identified with the oil industry of this State, recently made an investigation of the indications in Yavapai county, where he found oil-bearing formations that were extensive and indicate enormous deposits of petroleum of excellent quality.

One belt he reports he traced for ten to fifteen miles, to an outcrop, where sand rock was found saturated with oil. Between the Colorado River and Ash Fork there are said to be three belts extending across the Territory, and in northwesterly and southeasterly direction, in which the oil formation consists of shale and sand rock similar to that found in Ventura county, in this State.

According to a report from Yuma, oil was found recently in a well being drilled for water at Choyas, an old placer camp, six miles from Quartzsite. Whether there is any quantity of the oil or not has not been determined as yet, but the showing is said to be very attractive.

A new company has been organized in Arizona to prospect for oil. It is known as the Yavapai Oil and Development Company, and its object is to exploit the Del Rio oil fields of Yavapai county.

NEW OIL BURNERS.

The new engines ordered by the Santa Fé for mountain climbing are arriving. They are big fellows, and are equipped for oil burning. Several will be consigned to the division between Seligman and Winslow. It is expected that by January 1 there will be forty-five of these engines in commission.

ARGENTINE THE LATEST.

The Argentine Oil Company is one of the latest arrivals in the Kern River field. It has a capital stock of $500,000, all of which has been subscribed. The company recently acquired property in this field that is regarded as good prospect land.

There was nothing doing on the Stock Exchange yesterday.

MINES AND MINING.

CAPITAL WARMING UP TO GOOD GOLD MINES.

READY RELIEF IN THE BANNER DISTRICT SOLD.

Ex-Senator Dorsey Bonds Promising Prospects in Arizona—Work Started on Plant to Supply the City of Mexico With Power.

Local capital is interested in two mining deals closed in this city during the past few days. Likely the most important is the sale of the Ready Relief property, situated in the Banner district, San Diego county, to a syndicate composed principally of Boston capitalists.

The Ready Relief mine is one of the oldest gold properties in this end of the State. Work was first begun there by the Bailey brothers about thirty years ago. It is equipped with a ten-stamp mill and other machinery, all operated by water power. For several years very little work has been done at the mine, although when in operation the property was a paying investment.

This transfer was effected through the agency of A. F. Judson, a mining expert of this city. The consideration named is $300,000, of which a substantial payment has been made.

Two promising properties in the Union Pass district, Mohave county, Ariz., have been bonded by ex-Senator S. W. Dorsey of this city. They are known as the White Spar and Tyro, and are situated some thirty miles from Kingman.

Though little work is shown on the property, surface indications are so flattering that several thousand dollars will be expended by Dorsey in prospecting. It is stated that the ledge cropping varies from fifteen to thirty feet, between walls, and the ore carries high values.

Dan McFarland, who negotiated the deal, left yesterday for Kingman to start development. It is the intention to put in a cross-cut tunnel that will tap the ledge at a depth of 125 feet. If the values hold out with depth more important operations will be started at once.

Mr. McFarland recently bonded the O'Dae & Dempsy property in the River Range of mountains, eighteen miles northeast of Kingman, for the Marquette Exploration Company, a Chicago corporation. This property is but eight miles from Chloride, and is said to be on the same strike as the Gold Road property, now being opened by the Gold Road Exploration Company of this city.

There are three shafts in ore that give remarkably fine returns. Twenty men have been started at work, and this force will be increased after the warm weather, when it will be less difficult to secure good miners.

In view of the fact that Los Angeles is the natural supply center for these camps, increased activity in the section is of special interest here.

GREAT POWER PLANT STARTED.

Work has been started on the plant of the Mexican Light and Power Company, limited, recently formed by Canadian capital for the purpose of supplying the City of Mexico with power. The great power plant of this concern will be located at Necaxa, Puebla. It will have a capacity of 80,000 horsepower, and besides supplying the City of Mexico it will also enter the great mining camps of El Oro and Talpujahua.

Although work was started only very recently, construction work is progressing very satisfactorily, and it is hoped that before the end of the year it will be doing business. The construction of three tunnels necessary for the first installation of 40,000 horsepower is the first work undertaken. A difficult feature of the great work is the excavation for the water pipe line, which is to follow a perpendicular cliff for 12,000 feet.

A traction and wagon road, thirty miles long, is to be completed within a month. A telephone system connecting the various offices on the ground with the main office in the City of Mexico is also under way. Altogether, the project is one of the most important launched in Mexico in many years.

LOCAL CAPITAL IN MEXICO.

D. W. Shanks of Los Angeles has been in Parral, Chihuahua, for some time. He is interested in the development of a property in the Cerro Almoloya section, near the Cigarero mine. This section has every indication of being a good one, and the great success of the Cigarero has attracted considerable attention to the district.

Mining men who are well acquainted with the milling and mining operations at the Ocampo say that the panamalgamo in vogue there saves 60 to 70 per cent. of the values, both gold and silver, and the tailings are run off and are lost entirely. This would appear to be a considerable waste, as the tailings are said to be capable of treatment by cyanide.

NEW SMELTER PROJECT.

From all accounts, the plans are about perfected for the erection of a 250-ton smelter at Pachuca, Mexico, says the El Paso Herald. The stock has been subscribed, ground for the site purchased, and everything is in readiness to push the construction work rapidly. This smelter project is a great necessity to the Pachuca region of Zacatecas, and it is the plan of the promoters to add to the plant as business justifies it. Fluxing ores will be obtained from the neighboring districts, principally from Zamapan, and will be of great benefit to them also.

LAUNCHING NEW VENTURES.

W. W. Clark and W. R. Lane and other owners of the Metallic mine in the Bacoachi district in Mexico, not far from the Cananea copper mines of Sonora, will organize a company at an early date to take over that property and to operate the same. The company will be organized in Mexico first and then in the United States. The latter company will have a capitalization of $1,000,000.

JEROME GOLD STRIKE.

A very interesting strike and one that has caused a good-sized ripple of excitement in Jerome mining circles, has been made on the property of the Eureka Gold and Copper Company. The Eureka camp has long been considered one of the promising sections, and the news of the recent find does not come as a surprise to those familiar with the camp.

GREAT REPUBLIC IN IT.

A rich strike on the Great Republic at Kingsbury camp, near Clifton, Ariz., is causing a stir in mining circles. An expert representing parties who have leased and bonded this property arrived on the ground, and it is reported a very rich streak, one side of the vein carrying 4 to 8 inches, sample of which runs over 2200 ounces silver and 113 ounces gold, while the vein, four feet wide, averages about $40. This is in the new shaft on which work has been going on for about two months.

FIND AT CERBOT.

A private telegram received yesterday stated that a rich gold strike had been made at Cerbot, and that there was considerable excitement at that place. Cerbot is one of the oldest mining camps in Mohave county, Ariz. It is situated eighteen miles from Kingman, and is only a few miles from Chloride.

MINING NOTES.

Leonard D. Singer, a geologist of this city, has been examining into the alleged find at Kingman, Ariz.

The Costello Copper Company, with a capitalization of $2,500,000, is one of the latest organizations formed in Tombstone.

FATHER TAKES BABY OFF FOR THE EAST.

RIVERSIDE MOTHER TELLS POLICE A STRANGE STORY.

Accidental Blast in Great Salt Lake Cut at Pachappa Hill Seriously Injures Three Workmen—Los Angeles Boy's Hand Sawed.

RIVERSIDE, Sept. 2.—Mrs. J. W. Cord told the police a strange story today to the effect that her husband yesterday morning snatched her three-year-old daughter from her arms, boarded the Santa Fé overland and took the little one east. She says her husband came west with her and the child some months ago, and demanded that she support the family. This she refused to do, and Cord returned east, leaving her to support the little one. After a few months he came here with the alleged intention of stealing the girl. The mother watched it constantly for several weeks, until he left to take a position at Brookings Mills, on the mountains. After remaining there a month he suddenly appeared here Monday morning, and, going to the place where his wife and child were staying, he secured the little girl before her mother knew of his presence. The woman, although she admits having separated from her husband, never secured a divorce, so that in the eyes of the law he is the legal guardian of the child.

TERRIBLY HURT BY BLAST.

As the result of an accidental blast at the big Salt Lake railroad cut at Pachappa Hill this morning three workmen were seriously injured. They are John Schreiner, foreman of the excavating crew; C. H. Loper and a Mexican named Garcia. They were putting a charge of powder into a deep hole, the two laborers tamping down the sticks of explosive with an iron rod. Foreman Schreiner was standing by directing the work. It is supposed that the rod struck a spark from the rock, which ignited the six sticks of powder already placed in the hole. The blast blew powder and fine dirt into the faces of Schreiner and Garcia, while Loper's hands were severely torn and burned. The injured men, all suffering intensely, were conveyed to the offices of Drs. Kendall and Parker. There is a good chance of saving Schreiner's eyesight, but his face is terribly torn, and he will be disfigured for life. The other men will recover. Loper has worked with powder for thirty years. This is his first accident. Schreiner is superintendent of the job, working for Grant Bros., the contractors. He has a wife and two children residing here.

FINGERS SAWED.

Stanley Wimperis of Los Angeles, a fifteen-year-old nephew of Charles Wimperis of this city, who came here to work about ten days ago, met with a painful accident at the planing mill yesterday afternoon. While endeavoring to remove dust from beneath the fan of a machine at which he was working, his hand was caught, and before he could extricate it two fingers had been almost severed by the saw. It was feared that amputation would be necessary, but the surgeon succeeded in binding up the wounds so that the fingers will be saved.

BRIEFLY TOLD.

The first shoot of the newly-organized gun club, made up of the crack shots of Riverside, San Bernardino and Redlands, will be held here September 18, at the Magnolia Gun Club traps at Arlington. The officers of the new organization are Boyd Keith, Riverside, president; Mr. Gish, San Bernardino, vice-president; Mr. Doogan, Redlands, secretary and treasurer. Executive Committee, Owen Council, Riverside; Mr. Bryson, San Bernardino.

The Riverside Artesia Water Company, representing the consolidation of all the water interests on the east side, has authorized a bond issue of $100,000, to provide for carrying out a number of contemplated improvements.

A four-horse team attached to a heavy wagon belonging to Matthew Gage made a wild runaway on Fourteenth street last evening. One of the animals fell and broke a leg, and had to be shot to end its misery.

Since "A crust is better than no bread," a small advertisement in The Times brings in more business than no advertisement at all. Telephone your wants to Red 661 and our Riverside Agency will take your ad. and send it to the main office.

SAN JACINTO.

GREAT CATTLE INDUSTRY.

SAN JACINTO, Sept. 2.—Francisco Pico, owner of the large Casa Loma Rancho in this valley, purchased this week from a New Mexico cattle corporation a herd of 1000 young stock cattle. This great herd will arrive in San Jacinto tomorrow and will make up a train of thirty cars. Of recent years Pico has devoted his attention largely to grain growing, and has every year been successful to a certain degree, this year receiving a net profit of about $25,000. "It is because of the uncertainty of a grain crop every year," says Pico, "that I have decided to turn my attention largely to raising cattle for the market, it being a safe business." The Casa Loma Rancho and tracts attached thereto comprise about 6000 acres of valuable dam land, on which is every year a prolific growth of grasses. This rancho will carry about 3000 cattle. Hundreds of poor stock cattle have been driven into the San Jacinto Valley recently and pastured upon the lowlands until now it is estimated over 5000 cattle are being fattened. Beside, these lowlands are supporting three creameries. There is feed for fully 10,000 head of cattle for the next two months on the large stubble fields, as much of the grain fell from its weight before the harvester could pick it up, and is now lying on the ground as the result, and would be readily picked up by stock cattle.

HELP PROBLEM UNSOLVED.

Father Hahn of the St. Bonifacio Indian School, Banning, is in the valley gathering up the Indian students for the opening of that school next week, the result of which will cripple the dryers and packers of deciduous fruits, as many of these Indians are employed by them. The fruit men will also suffer by the opening of the Sherman Institute in Riverside, as they largely depend upon the young men and women who attend this school to assist in curing the fruit. Unless workers from neighboring towns rush in to supply the places made vacant by the Indians the fruit men will sustain large losses for want of the necessary help. The problem of help in the fruit yard prior to this time had attained a very serious attitude, and now that the Indians have been called away, the fruit men will become almost helpless. There is a move on foot to persuade the Trustees of the city schools and neighboring school districts to not open the fall term of school before September 21.

NEWS BRIEFS.

H. Arthur Wright, a young Los Angeles attorney, is in town.

W. G. Rice of Winchester purchased the old Dan Miller ranch, south of here, and comprising 200 acres of choice land and ranch improvements. Consideration named, $2000.

Constatine and Domengoni of Winchester have purchased of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company 640 acres of fine farming and pasture land.

Calisthenics

Are a benefit to healthy women. But to women who are suffering from diseases peculiar to their sex they are an injury. When there is weak back or bearing-down pains, sideache or other indications of womanly weakness, exercise can only aggravate the condition. The womanly health must be first restored before strength can be developed by exercise.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It does this by healing the womanly diseases which undermine the general health. It stops the drains that weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"When I first commenced using Doctor Pierce's medicines," writes Mrs. George Al. Strong, of Gansevoort, Saratoga Co., N. Y., "I was suffering from female weakness, a disagreeable drain, hurting-down pains, weak and tired feeling all the time. I dragged around in that way for two years, and I began taking your medicine. After taking first bottle I began to feel better. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' one vial of 'Pleasant Pellets,' also used one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Now I feel like a new person. I can't thank you enough for your kind advice and the good your medicine has done me.

"I have a sister who is taking your medicine and it is helping her."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets promote regularity of the bowels, and assist the action of "Favorite Prescription." No other laxative should be used with Dr. Pierce's Medicines.

[NEWS REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.]

PASADENA PLANS TO WELCOME GEN. BLACK.

COMMANDER OF GRAND ARMY TO VISIT CROWN OF VALLEY.

September Tenth is the Date Set. Large Attendance at Capt. Drake's Funeral—La Canada Bidding for Government Garden—Society Doings.

PASADENA, Office of The Times, No. 67 South Raymond avenue, Sept. 3.—Gen. John C. Black of the G.A.R. is expected to visit this city on the afternoon of Thursday, September 10, and the boys in blue are dusting their uniforms in order to receive their commander-in-chief in proper style. He will be accompanied by his wife and daughter. An arrangement has been made with the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, which has charge of the General's movements while in Southern California. It may be that the programme will have to be changed.

It is expected that Gen. Black and family will be met by carriages immediately after they finish visiting the Soldiers' Home in the morning of Thursday. Representatives of the Board of Trade and G.A.R. will be in charge of the drive. Mayor Vedder will have the honor of riding with the General. Mrs. Black and Miss Black will be entertained by the ladies of the W.R.C. There will likely be a reception at G.A.R. Hall in the evening, when Gen. Black will deliver an address. The distinguished guest may visit Mt. Lowe while here, but this is a detail that has not yet been fully settled.

FUNERAL OF CAPT. DRAKE.

The funeral of the late Capt. A. C. Drake was held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Universalist Church under the auspices of the G.A.R., and was very largely attended, the big edifice being more than half-filled for the occasion. Rev. S. G. Dunham, the pastor, who has been on his vacation, was summoned and was present. He was assisted by Rev. Dr. E. L. Conger. The church quartette sang. The floral offerings were very fine. Many friends followed the body to the cemetery. Following is a list of the pall bearers: A. K. Nash, E. Greenough, Benjamin Jarvis, C. M. Simpson, C. C. Brown, George Downing. All are former comrades of the dead man in the G.A.R.

LA CANADA WANTS IT.

La Canada is one of the suburbs that is waking up just now. It is making a strong plea for the government experimental garden which Pasadena and other places also want. The recently-organized improvement association is working on the scheme and has some sites to propose. Secretary Alpha Knight says that he thinks La Canada can offer the best sites to be found. He points out that a place is desired where several different kinds of soil may be found. The diversity of soil is one of La Canada's strong points. Several different kinds may be found within a few acres. The association hopes soon to have a big storage reservoir that will provide plenty of water for the whole neighborhood.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Many of the society folk of Pasadena have postponed their annual flitting this season far beyond the usual time for seaside and mountain visiting, and with the departures of yesterday and today of a number of the young married set, who expect to be absent during the entire month, it will be as difficult to arrange for social functions during September as it has been at any time during July and August.

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Wetherby, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Halsted, Mr. and Mrs. C. Waring Ladingwell, Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Klamroth, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Jed are among those who have left within two days, having taken cottages at Ocean Park, where they will remain, with their respective families, through September. Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Hogeboom, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Pyle, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Bell are among other Pasadenans there remaining through the month. Miss Edith Rowland also is a guest for the month at Ocean Park. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamilton and daughters are at Catalina; Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus Lowe at Alamitos, at their summer cottage. Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Morehous and daughter, Miss Vera Morehous, are at Bolsa Chica Gun Club preserves. Miss Angie Holmes was their guest, but has returned. Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Hull and son, Roy Hull, who have also been staying at Bolsa Chica, have returned.

Miss Theresa Cloud is at Newport Beach. Dr. and Mrs. Harry J. Macomber are still at Catalina and Miss Miriam Gardner is their guest.

Mrs. J. W. Scoville of North Orange Grove avenue returned from a four weeks' stay at Redondo, yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Grattan returned yesterday from a month's stay at the Potter, Santa Barbara. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burton Scoville and children who went to Ocean Park Saturday in their automobile returned yesterday.

J. H. Holmes, who went east some time ago to buy furniture for Greater Hotel Green is now at Asbury Park and expects to reach home September 25.

Mrs. H. R. Hertel and children, who have been spending the summer at Sulphur Mountain Springs, returned yesterday.

R. H. Shoemaker, Jr., who with his wife has been a guest of his father, Dr. R. H. Shoemaker, has returned to Cleveland. Mrs. Shoemaker is visiting old friends at Miramar, and both expect to return to Pasadena for the winter.

C. B. Scoville leaves tomorrow for Chicago on a business trip, to be absent only a short time.

Invitations have been received in Pasadena by the old friends of Miss Helen Kingsbury for her wedding, which occurs Wednesday evening, September 16, at New York, Presbyterian Church, New York. The groom is Charles Frederick Humphrey, Jr., Lieutenant Third U.S. Infantry. Lieut. and Mrs. Humphrey will be at home at Columbus barracks, Columbus, O., after October 25.

NEWS REMNANTS.

George Brenner, with H. C. Hotaling & Co., was informed yesterday that his brother, Arthur, was the victim of an accident while at Idyllwild. Brenner telephoned to the camp, but could get no particulars other than that his brother had started for home. It is not believed that he was seriously hurt.

An East Colorado-street car ran into D. Raab's milk wagon yesterday evening and took a wheel off. The trouble occurred near Lake avenue.

Building Inspector Buchanan says we are building more rapidly than is Los Angeles, in proportion to the sizes of the two cities. He expects that the contracts for the year will exceed a million dollars within the next two months.

President Gilbert W. Pratt of the Pasadena National Bank, who has been quite ill at his home on Euclid avenue with stomach trouble, was yesterday reported to be somewhat better, but his friends do not regard him as out of danger.

Mayor Vedder has revoked the permission to the Salvation Army to parade the streets as they choose. The army camped in front of Grimes's billiard and cigar store on South Fair Oaks avenue, thinking that neighborhood in need of reform. Grimes objected and the Mayor decided that the army disturbed the billiardists and smokers and spitters at their innocent play.

W. S. Melick of the State Board of Examiners arrived yesterday evening for a brief visit. He will investigate the trouble at the State Asylum while here.

The City Engineer and City Treasurer yesterday moved into their quarters in the new City Hall. The other departments will follow suit from time to time now. The police department has been advised by the City Attorney that it cannot hold court or jail prisoners in the new home until after Tuesday next, when the Council's ordinance of acceptance shall have been passed.

Attorney Hahn of the Anti-Saloon League is still threatening the nickel-in-the-slot machines. Chief Freeman says he is awaiting a legal opinion on the question before he acts.

Directors Staats and Wright of the Mt. Wilson Toll Road, who have returned from the peak, think favorably of establishing that talked-of new camp on Mt. Alta.

VETERANS HAPPY ON NEW CAMP GROUNDS.

EXCURSION TO SOLDIERS' HOME TO BE MADE TODAY.

Long Beach Advance Guard Exceeds in Numbers All Expectations—Entertainment by Relief Corps—Wall Tumbles Into Restaurant—Gambling Den Found.

LONG BEACH, Sept. 2.—Today has been devoted by the veterans attending the encampment to arranging their belongings, getting acquainted with the new camp grounds, and hunting up old comrades in the crowd. So far is the attendance already in advance of what was expected that the officers have been busy arranging for their entertainment. Twenty-five tents, in addition to those first ordered, were put up on the ground this morning and everything was made ready for placing all there should be any demand for, so far as programme is concerned there was nothing during the day, but the regulation events of camp life.

Guard mount in the morning and dress parade in the afternoon recalled old times to the boys and made them feel as if it really was a camp. During the day the Sons of Veterans Battery gave a drill, which was followed with the closest interest by a crowd of visitors and their remarks gave evidence that the battery boys had lost none of their old-time skill. All of the different headquarters were crowded during the day and here many of the boys found their chief delight in the meeting of comrades long separated and in recounting experiences shared nearly half a century ago.

Tonight the Los Angeles Relief Corps ladies gave an interesting entertainment in the big tent. Mrs. C. H. Spencer presided and an excellent literary and musical programme was presented. Among the features were several selections by the drum corps, a vocal solo by Mr. Valk, reading by Mrs. Brown and song by Miss Juanita Clark. It proved a delightful opening to this branch of the session's work, and was thoroughly enjoyed by a large audience.

Tomorrow's interest centers about the regular excursion to the Soldiers' Home. Orders have been issued for all who wish to take the trip to meet at the Pacific Electric depot at 9:30 in the morning. By making an early start they will have all the time they want at the home, and need not travel in the heat of the day. Commander Brady expects that several hundred will take the trip.

BUILDING COLLAPSES.

The south wall to Billy Martin's lunch counter, on Pine avenue, near Second, fell in last night and several men narrowly escaped being caught by the falling brick. It is thought the accident was caused by the props placed against the wall when the excavating for the Lowe building next on the south, was made. Cook Hanrahan and Joe Boyden were behind the counters, and several men were eating when the wall cracked, but all escaped with nothing worse than slight scratches. The building was wrecked and the fixtures badly damaged, entailing a total loss of about $400.

BEACH BREATHS.

Officers Lynn and Mallett have been watching one of the alley shanties in the business part of town for some time, thinking it was being used as a gambling den. Finding it had been deserted they broke in yesterday and captured quite a quantity of dice, poker chips, etc.

An opening attendance of 135 at the High School this week shows how this school district is growing. Last year the figure was just about 100, placing the increase close to 33 per cent. This is about the way the school census has been climbing for five years.

Dr. Byrd Scudder and family, and his brother, Dr. Ford Scudder, leading physicians of Cincinnati, O., have taken the Nichols cottage on Alamitos avenue for September.

Miss Grace Chandler of Santa Paula is spending a few days with relatives here before going to Redlands to commence a year of school work.

Miss Delia Browne took about fifty of her High School friends in the steamer J. C. Elliott for an excursion about the bay this morning. They visited the breakwater and other points of interest, and finally landed at Terminal Island for lunch.

Capt. A. L. Withrop of Tacoma, Wash., is visiting old army friends and taking in the encampment.

W. S. McCartney has gone to San Luis Obispo to spend his vacation.

BRIGHTON BEACH.

IN COTTAGE AND HOTEL.

BRIGHTON BEACH, Sept. 2.—Herr Werner, a Los Angeles violinist, gave a concert at the Brighton Beach Hotel last evening, which was largely attended. He was assisted by his wife, who accompanied him on the piano.

F. H. Post of Pasadena is spending a few days at the beach.

R. E. Wells, superintendent of the Salt Lake road, accompanied by his family, came down from Los Angeles today on their special parlor car for the day.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Van Doran and Mrs. Nat Myrick of Los Angeles were guests of Maj. and Mrs. J. M. Neston at dinner Sunday.

A party of Los Angeles folk that registered at the Brighton Beach Sunday as "the quiet bunch" was composed of Mr. and Mrs. H. Booth, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Pettigrew, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Chick, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Seeley, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Noyes and Mr. and Mrs W. J. Rouse.

Walter S. Dickey and wife of Kansas City, Mo., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Gibbon this week.

Mrs. Louron French of Pittsburgh, Miss Lina Skeeve of Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hubert and son of Los Angeles, were luncheon guests at the hotel Sunday.

Joseph T. Pugh had at dinner Sunday R. H. Gaylord and Dr. H. J. Macomber of Pasadena.

Miss Grace Eleanor Mathes came over today and will be the guest of Miss Maude Elizabeth Richards for a few days.

W. A. White of Denver, who has spent the entire summer here, left for Los Angeles today.

MONROVIA.

METERS OR NO WATER.

MONROVIA, Sept. 2.—J. H. Spurgin and thirty-five other citizens, who did not wish to comply with the city ordinance making it compulsory to place meters on their water pipes, sent a communication to the trustees asking that the city install the meters without expense to them. They also incidentally remarked that the flat rate of $2 a month, where meter is not used, is too much. The committee to which the matter was referred reported last evening that the city is not in a position to buy meters for these citizens, or in other words, that it will not do it. At the same meeting the City Marshal was instructed to cut off the water from all persons who would not put on meters, and it is now up to these men to put in meters at their own expense or do without domestic water, a thing impossible of accomplishment in a temperance town like Monrovia.

NEWS NOTES.

John D. McFadyen, who for some time past has been connected with a shoe store, was yesterday married to Miss Abbie F. Harvey, daughter of the late Dr. Harvey of Watford, Canada. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Steward of Los Angeles at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Foster, at 10:30 a. m., a large number of guests being present. After the wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. McFadyen left for a short trip to Avalon.

Fred Fulton, Southern Pacific agent, has gone to San Francisco on a two weeks' vacation.

Miss M. Ella Wadsworth, who has been visiting the family of her brother, Rev. A. L. Wadsworth, has returned to her home in Pawtucket, R. I.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. J. Kendall Stickney will be conducted at her late residence, Acacia Lodge, at 4 p. m. Thursday, after which Rev. A. L. Wadsworth will accompany the remains to Washington, D. C., for interment.

SANTA MONICA.

LIBRARY-SITE DISCUSSION.

SANTA MONICA, Sept. 2.—The announcement by The Times this morning that an effort may be made to substitute Linda Vista Park for the northeast corner of Fifth street and Oregon avenue, as the site for the new Carnegie library, has excited general discussion as to the propriety and advisability of such a change. President W. I. Hull of the board of library trustees said:

"The selected site could not be changed with justice to the donors of the $3700 subscription gift, which money was donated for the purchase of the Fifth-and-Oregon site with the distinct understanding that the library building was to be erected there and not elsewhere. I do not know that, in case it was desired to sell this ground and return the money to the donors, that they would consent to take back their contributions; and the land might not command, if placed on the market, the price paid for it. As to Linda Vista Park affording a more desirable site, I am not prepared to give an opinion."

Robert Jones, president of the Bank of Santa Monica, said: "I do not think anything will come of this agitation. I expect to see the library building erected at Fifth and Oregon. The money for that site was raised by private subscription, and I do not think anything more remains to be said as to the place of location. Supposing that a change of site were desired, Linda Vista Park at the foot of Oregon avenue would not be a safe place to erect such a building, unless a stone retaining wall were built into the face of the bluff; and then the face of the bluff should be terraced."

There are many people in Santa Monica who would support any legitimate measure that would lead to the terracing of the bluff, whose ragged, unsafe and unsightly condition has long detracted from the beauty of the city. Few seaside cities possess such a splendid natural advantage as the high bluff from which Santa Monica's "North Side" looks out over the harbor and the sea, and few cities have remained so indifferent to the value of such an opportunity.

OUT OF BUSINESS.

The Dudley Investment Company, engaged for a long time in the general real estate, insurance and loan business, has dissolved, and will be succeeded by J. B. Proctor, who will add notary public work and conveyancing to the list of operations. Dearth of business is the reason ascribed for the retirement of the Dudley Investment Company, of which T. H. Dudley was president. Mr. Dudley will devote his time to his other business interests. He is president of the Ocean Park Bank and is heavily interested in a new banking house about to be established on the North Side.

ITEMS GATHERED.

City Marshal Barretto has been granted a two weeks' vacation. During his absence his office will be in charge of A. J. Meyers, driver of Santa Monica's famous team of balky fire horses. Meyers has been sworn in as Deputy Marshal.

The Hoosgo Flags will play ball with the Allen Printing Company's team at Southern Pacific Park Sunday and Monday next. The "Flags" are said to be the most radiantly-costumed amateur ball team in the State. The matches will be for $100 a side.

Twenty-five new books have been added to the shelves of the public library. They are: "Life and Destiny," "The Tower of London," "Adventures of Harry Revel," "The Souls of Black Folk," "Wanted—A Chaperon," "The Substitute," "The Adventure of the Lady Ursula," "Literature and Life," "The Call of the Wild," "If I Were King," "The Voice in the Desert," "Lux Christie—Outline Study of India," "The Conquering of Kate," "Rejected of Men," "Mrs. Tree," "The Blazed Trail," "A Rose of Normandy," "Encyclopedia Biblica," volumes III and IV; "Digging for Gold," "Luck and Pluck," "Sink and Swim," "Strong and Steady," "Little Mistress Good Hope."

Mrs. Arthur Jackson and children, who have been spending two months in San Francisco and Mrs. Jackson's mother, Mrs. Lawrence, have returned to their Santa Monica home.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Gillis and Mrs. Gillis's mother, Mrs. Mary Lindsay, of Los Angeles, have taken a cottage at Sunset Beach for one month.

Among the guests registered at the Hotel Arcadia are Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Wilcox, Peoria, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. George M. Wilcox, child and maid, Edward Coleman, Miss Janet Coleman, San Francisco; Mrs. A. W. Lowe, Miss Gertrude E. Lester, Pasadena; R. S. Jayer, W. H. Smith, Los Angeles; Richard Garvey, Garvalia.

OCEAN PARK.

SECESSION POPULAR.

OCEAN PARK, Sept. 2.—As the time for the presentation to the Board of City Trustees of the petition for the municipal division of Santa Monica and Ocean Park approaches the general sentiment in favor of secession—a correct but somewhat reviled term—becomes more openly manifest. The petition will go to the Trustees more numerously signed than the law requires, and the calling of a special election will be obligatory, distasteful as the measure may be to a majority of the board.

The fact is being generally commented upon that in the local newspaper discussion pro and con the anti-divisionists have dealt almost wholly in wide generalities—such as comparing the proposed secession of Ocean Park with the disastrous secession half a century ago of the Southern States from the Union. Much amusement has arisen from this argumentative procedure.

The statement recently made in this column that a very considerable vote in favor of division will be polled in Santa Monica (I. e., the North Side,) has aroused bitter contradiction on the part of the City Hall clientele. Subsequent inquiry develops, however, a decided increase rather than an appreciable decrease in pro-division ranks on the North Side. The official proposal to create separate municipal governments for Ocean Park and Santa Monica has brought to a fair and general discussion the condition of non-harmony and absence of common interests which appertains between the two distinct and geographically separated sections of the city, and at the present time the burden of public opinion seems to be that while "united we stand, divided we fall" is a worthy sentiment, the more pertinent observation is that "a house divided against itself cannot stand."

In a word, Ocean Park is ultra-progressive, and Santa Monica is ultra-conservative; what is meat for one is not food for the other; if one Board of City Trustees is to give general satisfaction it must serve two masters to the exclusive benefit of each—and that is a task that has stumped and defeated more pay wiser than the present city dads of Santa Monica.

Of current interest in connection with the divisoin agitation is the news that Trustee E. S. Vawter has placed on the market his comfortable Ocean Park home, and is about to make his permanent residence on the North Side. As Mr. Vawter owns a dwelling in each end of the city this will impose upon him no such domestic harrassment as house hunting, and the change of residence will enable him to hold his seat in the Board of City Trustees in case division carries at the polls.

Attention is called to the fact that the State law empowers municipal corporations to anticipate the expenses of the first year of their incorporation. This disposes of the statement by anti-divisionists that if Ocean Park becomes a separate municipality it will be fundless throughout its first year. Further, the statement is made by South Side capitalists that in case division carries they will stand by and see that the infant city suffers nothing through dearth of financial nourishment; that Ocean Park is not only prepared to pay its contracted share of Santa Monica tax obligations, but also to defray its current municipal expenses; and that by way of additional revenue "there may be Ocean Park franchises for sale."

BIG BOWLING PLANS.

H. W. Allen and E. W. Mitchell have leased from the Ocean Park Improvement Company, for three years, the Ocean Park bowling alleys, and are arranging for large doings locally in the arena of the pins. Two crack teams are being organized to compete in the Southern California and the Interurban tournaments, respectively, the following players having been already secured:

Southern California team: E. A. Fraser, "Tommy" Tompkins, Forrest Gillman, A. McGee and one other. Interurban team: Harry Heard, Elmer Mitchell, Stallsmith, Robert Howard and H. W. Allen. The two teams plan to tour the southern part of the State, and Gillman has just returned from San Francisco, where in the San Francisco open tournament for individual championships he made the very high average score of 196.

Garrett and Allen are arranging for a pool tournament to be played here, beginning two weeks hence. Twenty players have been entered thus far. Valuable merchandise prizes will be hung up.

EL MONTE.

DOUTT-RAGER.

EL MONTE, Sept. 2.—Esta Rager of El Monte and Miss Elsie Doutt of Lordsburg were married at noon today at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Doutt, in Lordsburg. The home was appropriately decorated. Rev. Martin Shively of the Brethren Church performed the ceremony in the presence of a few relatives. A wedding dinner was served. Mr. and Mrs. Rager came to their future home in El Monte. The bride is one of the popular young women of Lordsburg, and the groom is a promising young man in the employ of the East Whittier Land and Water Company. They will reside in the Mountain View neighborhood, in a house near the company's pumping plant.

Last night the Order of the Eastern Star held a special meeting at the Masonic Hall. After the meeting a banquet was given at the home of E. J. Dodson.

Wiggins & Cleminson will build a brick block 75x80 feet, which will be completed in about six weeks. The building is to be supplied with gas for lighting. The building will join Kaufman & Sons' store and be used by that firm as a department store. R. Steele's drug store and the postoffice will occupy apartments in the block.

CLAREMONT.

COLLEGE TOWN NEWSLETS.

CLAREMONT, Sept. 2.—Roy E. Thomas, '03 Pomona College, has gone to his home in Phoenix, Ariz., after a final visit with friends in the valley before going East to enter upon a medical course.

Miss Grace McPheron, '03 Pomona College, returned to Los Angeles last night after seeing relatives in this valley. Miss McPheron will resume her teaching this month in the Los Angeles public schools.

C. Clifford Condit, of the central office of the Southern California Fruit Agency, is visiting a week at his home on West Fifth street.

Miss Mabel Caille of the Pomona College business office is enjoying three weeks' vacation at her home in Pasadena.

Prof. Foster Jones, son of Rev. H. W. Jones of this place, and for years head of the English department of Tabor College, Iowa, is touring New Mexico and Arizona after visiting with his father on College avenue.

Walter Maeck of Shelbourne, Vt., is making a two months' stay with relatives in this place.

POMONA.

HALF-MILLION FOR ORANGES.

POMONA, Sept. 2.—Drs. I. N. Hughey, E. Henderson, T. J. Wilson, H. B. Miller and F. W. Balfour, were appointed on the Board of Health yesterday.

At the meeting of directors of the San Antonio Fruit Exchange held yesterday, Manager P. J. Dreher presented his annual report, which showed that the organization has shipped 357,698 boxes of oranges and 41,971 boxes of lemons, the net returns from which amounted to over $500,000. The report states that the crop handled was the poorest in quality and composed of the most undesirable sizes ever sent from California.

The recently-formed local painters' union has given the painting contractors notice that November 1 the members will demand an increase in daily wages from $2.50 to $3 a day. The contract prices for painting are so low that the employers state the increase is not justified.

The loud explosion of an empty distillate tank, in which gas had been generated by the heat, caused a lively time and collected a big crowd at F. H. Osler's plumbing shop yesterday afternoon.

Willie Talbutt, one of the gang of very young local thieves, not yet in their teens, stole $20 from a bag at John Weber's ice house yesterday, and was caught enjoying the money with two young pals. The boys confessed to what they had done with the money. Some was hid in an old can, and some had gone to purchase clothing which had been secreted, and upon which the money was refunded, when the goods were returned to the stores. In all about $15 was recovered. No arrests were made on account of the youth of the lads. This is not the first time the boys, who are seen too much on the streets, have been in trouble, their parents usually coming to their rescue in making restitution for stolen wares. Young Talbutt is the son of a hard-working widow, who says she can do little with him.

WHITTIER.

JURORS CAN'T AGREE.

WHITTIER, Sept. 2.—Yesterday afternoon and evening the interest of many Whittier people was centered in Recorder W. R. Bunting's court, where the case of M. R. Hadley, a grocer, charged with violating the city occupation-tax ordinance was heard. The case, which was prosecuted by City Attorney Woodruff and defended by Attorney Everett Cooper, was given to the jury about 6 o'clock. After several hours of wrestling with the problem, the jurymen reported an inability to agree, and were discharged. They were B. J. Charles, foreman; T. H. Jessup, A. W. Matthews, Nels Davis, M. H. King, D. J. Wood, W. J. Colt, Oscar Mendenhall, David Landreth, E. N. Hollingsworth, W. S. George, William Williams. This is the second case of the same sort to be tried here, the former, in which F. A. Jackson, liveryman, was defendant, also resulting in a disagreement.

The public schools will open the 21st inst.

Victo Linares, whose quick work kept the attempted Los Angeles County jailbreak from being successful, is well known here, having spent his entire life near Los Nietos. He is known as the most powerful Mexican in this entire section, and understands better than many of his countrymen do how to handle his immense strength.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Methodist Episcopal Church held a missionary tea at the home of T. H. Buchmaster in East Whittier yesterday. This was the last meeting of the year, and in addition to the tea and a fine programme, reports were read and the mite boxes issued to the members a year ago were opened.

The Whittier Brick Company has completed the largest kiln of brick ever burned by it. In spite of largely increasing its facilities and installing new machinery, the company has been unable to keep up with its orders.

SAN PEDRO.

YACHT CLUB RUMOR.

SAN PEDRO, Sept. 2.—It is rumored that the Pacific Electric Railway Company is after the wharf franchise recently granted by the San Pedro City Trustees to the South Coast Yacht Club in the outer harbor. The scheme is said to have originated before the visit of the yachtsmen to Alamitos Beach last week. It appears to be a move whereby the Huntington interests would reap all the benefits, and the yacht club get off at the tail end of the bargain.

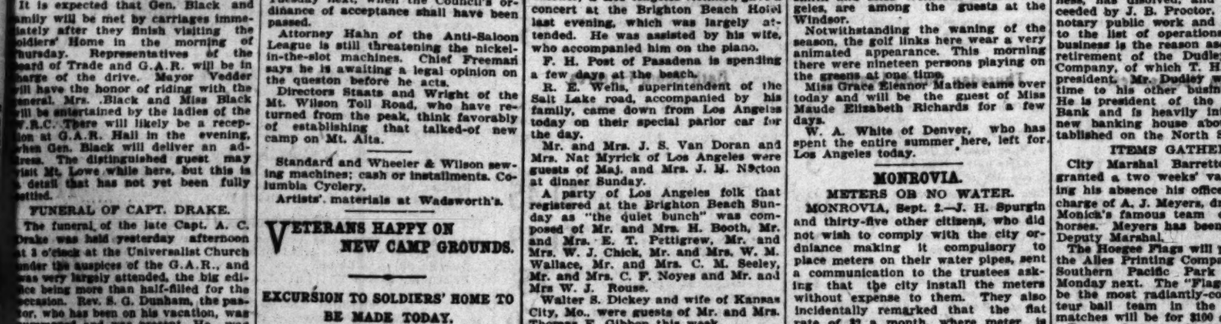
As reported, the proposition of the Pacific Electric is to build a handsome clubhouse at Alamitos and otherwise improve the place for anchorage purposes and in consideration for this gift to the South Coast Yacht Club the company is to be deeded the wharf privilege, together with the two lots owned by the club in this city. The expense of erecting a clubhouse at Alamitos and fitting it up for the yachtsmen will probably amount to several thousand dollars, but in no wise will the property be as valuable as that which they will receive for their trouble.

While many of the club members are said to be in favor of going to Alamitos on account of the attractions offered in that neighborhood, there are but few of them who would sanction the permanent abandonment of the Harbor City. The former place is regarded as an ideal spot during the summer months, but it can afford no degree of safety in the winter, when the weather at sea is stormy and disagreeable. For this reason, if no other, it would be considered foolish on the part of yachtsmen to surrender their possessions in this city, which are very valuable.

It is understood that the Salt Lake road is figuring on making the South Coast Club a proposition. It is believed to be the company's intention to offer to build a clubhouse near the place where the present quarters of the club are located in the inner harbor.

AUGUST PORT TRAFFIC.

The report of the local customhouse for the month of August shows that there were 105 vessels to enter this port during that period of time, which were divided as follows: United States training ships, 2; steamers, 61; schooners, 39; barks, 1; barkentines, 1. The net tonnage of these vessels was 59,760. Imports were as follows: Lumber, 21,527,000 feet; shingles, 9,000,000; ties, 127,330; piles, 1202; posts, 9685; tons of merchandise, 1139; passengers, 17,169. Exports (were) Barrels of oil, 20,000; tons of merchandise, 1190; passengers, 14,774.



SCENES IN CAMP ROOSEVELT.

A prominent club woman, Mrs. Danforth, of St. Joseph, Mich., tells how she was cured of falling of the womb and its accompanying pains.

"Life looks dark indeed when a woman feels that her strength is slipping away and she has no hope of ever being restored. Such was my feeling a few months ago when I was advised that my poor health was caused by prolapsus or falling of the womb. The words sounded like a knell to me, I felt that my sun had set, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound came to me as an elixir of life; it restored the lost forces and built me up until my good health returned to me. For four months I took the medicine daily and each dose added health and strength. I am so thankful for the help I obtained through its use."—Mrs. FLORENCE DANFORTH, 1007 Miles Ave., St. Joseph, Mich.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

The record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cannot be equalled by any other medicine in the world.

Cowards Who Skulk Under Linens.

The "Sub" liar who is so "fraid" that he creeps under Women's U. L. and peeps out and says "Can't catch me" get up a liar's courage and says—"While conducting the Maze, a department store in San Francisco, the Hamburgers refused to close their store at the hour agreed upon by other merchants, and as a result thousands of people refused to patronize the Hamburgers; and the Maze went out of business and Hamburgers left San Francisco." Now let us investigate that lie; while the Maze was at San Francisco there were only two department stores—viz: The Emporium and The Maze, both closed every night at 6 o'clock and both were open every Saturday night. Affidavit of D. C. McIver.

I, D. C. McIver, worked at The Maze, San Francisco, it was my duty to close the store every night for years. I testify the store was closed every night at 6 o'clock. Saturdays and Christmas week excluded. [SIGNED,] D. C. McIver

NEW VENEZUELAN LOAN.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The Brussels correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says an agreement concerning the Venezuelan debt was signed yesterday (Thursday) between a syndicate of Paris banks and Señor Velutini, the Venezuelan representative. A new loan of $60,000,000, guaranteed by the customs receipts, will be issued. The agreement requires the approval of the Venezuelan Parliament.

AMERICA'S CUP SAFE IN AMERICAN HANDS.

Reliance Leaves the Shamrock III Almost Out of Sight at the Finish.

Defender Wins All the Way, With the Wind and Against the Wind—Honors of the Start Belong to Capt. Wringe—With Torn Spinnaker the Home Boat Makes a Wonderful Run to the Finish Line.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.]—The start: Reliance 1:01:56 o'clock, Shamrock III 1:02 o'clock. The Shamrock's actual starting time was 1:02:03, but as she crossed the line after the handicap gun her time was taken as 1:02. Outer mark: Reliance 3:41:35 o'clock, Shamrock 3:51:45 o'clock.

The Reliance covered the 15-mile beat to windward in 2 hrs. 39 mins. 59 secs., Shamrock 2 hrs. 49 mins. 45 secs. The Reliance thus beat the Shamrock to the outer mark 10 mins. 6 secs., or, deducting 1 min. 57 secs. time allowance, 8 mins. 9 secs.

The finish: Reliance 5:30:15 o'clock, Shamrock (estimated) 5:45:25 o'clock. The Shamrock did not finish, on account of the dense fog which set in. As nearly as could be estimated, she would have crossed the line 15 mins. 10 secs. behind the Reliance.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Reliance won again today, crossing the finish line with the Shamrock so far in the rear that only her topsails were discernable through the mist. The defender won all the way, against the wind and with the wind, reaching the outer mark 11 mins. ahead of the challenger and increasing the lead on home run, despite the fact that a flaw developed in her spinnacker, allowing a serious split.

It was a long chance to start the yachts at all, but it proved a lucky chance, for the breeze freshened steadily, going to ten knots in the last hour. Everybody was heartily glad when the contest was finished. Sir Thomas included, for it was a foregone conclusion that the Shamrock had no show. The honors of the start were with Capt. Wringe. He not only took the windward berth, but he gauged the time to a nicety and crossed the line exactly at the expiration of the 2 mins. allowed before the handicap gun.

Immediately after crossing the line, the Britisher exercised good judgment and split tacks from port to starboard, and before five minutes of the race had been sailed, he was in the lead, as well as to windward. After sailing about twenty-five minutes, the Reliance took in her baby jib topsail and set a smaller one. The change was made to enable her to point higher, and yachtsmen pronounced it a smart piece of sail-handling.

The yachts had not sailed many minutes before the wind began to strengthen. The Reliance continued to gain, eating out to windward of the Shamrock, although the latter seemed to foot almost as fast. The yachts made fine, smart sailing in a fresher wind, traveling well and looking higher to the windward. The port tack, which was taken soon after the yachts started, was held until they had reached a point northeast of Long Branch and about the same distance off shore. The Reliance had outsailed her adversary on this board, so that when the Shamrock went about on the starboard tack at 2:08, a move which the Reliance duplicated five seconds later, the latter was more than half a mile in the lead and was almost as far to windward.

The Shamrock held this starboard tack for just 23 mins., when she went about on the port tack, a maneuver which the Reliance followed 35 secs. later. During this tack in stronger air, the Shamrock had the American boat better than she had at any previous time in the race, but still she was not capable of holding her absolutely, for the Reliance continued slowly to better her lead and her windward position.

At 2:45 o'clock, the Shamrock changed her baby jib topsail, setting a smaller one, but in so doing she lost considerably, and the Reliance at 2:55 o'clock, was leading by nearly a mile. At 3:02 o'clock, the Reliance made a short hitch, going over to the starboard tack for 3 mins. only, when she returned to port. The Shamrock, meanwhile, had continued on the port tack, which both of the yachts held until 3:14 o'clock, when they went again on the starboard tack.

Both sloops tacked to starboard at 3:15 o'clock, standing out to sea. They held to this hitch for only a few minutes, when they again went to port and made for the mark. They rounded the turn as follows: Reliance, 3:41:35 o'clock; the Shamrock, 3:51:45 o'clock. As they rounded the mark, the sheets were eased off to starboard and spinnakers set to port. Balloon jibs were broken out, and wing and wing, the yachts started for the home mark at a terrific clip of speed. In breaking out the Reliance's spinnaker, the sail caught on the stay and was torn for about three feet. Fortunately, the tear did not spread, and the defender showed a longer and longer wake to the Shamrock. She fairly bounded over the water on the run home and left the Shamrock far in her wake.

RELIEF AT GLASGOW, BUT REGRET FOR LIPTON.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

GLASGOW, Sept. 3.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The announcement of the Reliance's victory was received here with a feeling akin to relief that the long-drawn contest was ended. Uniform regret is expressed at Sir Thomas Lipton's failure, after making such a persistent effort to secure the America's cup.

LET CANADA TRY.

BRITAIN READY TO QUIT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 3.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The final defeat of Sir Thomas Lipton's cup challenger, Shamrock III, was received in London with absolute listlessness. The consensus of opinion is that Sir Thomas Lipton has done everything that time and money could accomplish, and widespread sympathy for him is shown. The chief hope expressed on the streets is that Canada will enter the lists next year and possibly succeed when the mother country has failed. It seems improbable that, in view of the failure of Shamrock III, another challenger will soon be dispatched from England.

SUMMARY OF THE CONTEST.

ENGLAND NEEDS A GENIUS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The Reliance, the American cup defender, today won the third and final race and the series for that famous sea trophy, the America's cup. In a dense fog which prevented vision beyond 200 yards, she finished the race at 5:30:02 o'clock, amid the acclamations of the assembled fleet. The Shamrock III, after running for more than an hour in the fog, missed the finish line, passed by it, and returned to it from the opposite direction. As the Reliance was then being towed through the fleet the yacht's ensign fluttered from her truck and spreaders in celebration of her victory. The Shamrock III did not cross the finish. As is often said of the historic race when the America won the cup, there was no second.

This successful result was achieved only after four futile attempts to sail off the final race, and after the outcome had been admitted by even Sir Thomas Lipton to be a foregone conclusion. Today's was the eighth attempt to sail a race. After one fluke, the Reliance won the two following races, one by 7 min. 3 sec., and the other by 1 min. 19 sec. A week ago today, the first attempt to sail the third race failed, and attempts have been made every day this week. On these occasions the Reliance led the Shamrock to the finish line by two miles, but failed to reach it before the expiration of the time limit of 5½ hours.

Today's victory means that the cup is destined to remain in America until England is able to produce a genius equal to Herreshoff in yacht designing.

Rarely, if ever, has there been a more spectacular finish than the Reliance's today. After racing for more than an hour at terrific speed through a blinding fog, the Reliance burst through the wall of mist upon the vision of the spectators on the fleet assembled at the finish line, and, reeling under a great bellying balloon jib topsail, with her lee rail awash, flew across the finish line almost before the spectators could determine for certain that it was she. Once more the Yankee boat had added to the long string of victories in contests for the honored old silver trophy that carried with it the blue ribbon of the sea.

A fleet of less than thirty vessels went down to the familiar waters of the international course to witness this fifth effort of the Reliance to cover the course of thirty miles within the time limit. It had become a race of the American boat against time instead of a contest of two well-matched craft. When they reached the lightship, a gentle southwest wind of five knots that barely wrinkled the surface of the sea gave but faint promise that this was to be the final day, but a shift of the wind to the south shortly after noon revived the despairing hopes of the yachtsmen, for it blew away the misty haze which had been hanging over the course since the easterly storm of last week. The Regatta Committee wanted until the last moment to send the boats away, at 1 o'clock, after which hour it had been agreed that no race should be started. Signals were displayed to indicate a windward and leeward course of thirty miles and back.

The duel between the skippers began at the sound of the preparatory gun, and continued through a series of brilliant maneuvers, in which Capt. Barr again proved his splendid seamanship by outgeneraling Capt. Wringe, until the boats went across the line. During the fifteen minutes before the starting gun, Capt. Barr held the British boat under his lee, and for most of the time blanketed her. He never relinquished the windward position, which the Reliance held when the preparatory gun was fired. Ten minutes later, when both boats were heading away from the line, the Shamrock luffed and forced the Reliance about, whereupon both headed for the line. On the way to it the Reliance held the challenger under her lee, partially blanketed. Alternately luffing and keeping away, Capt. Barr prevented the Shamrock from getting away from him and across the line, but two minutes after the starting gun, and at the sound of the gun indicating the expiration of the handicap, Capt. Wringe luffed the Shamrock across the stern of the Reliance, and the two boats went across the line together. The official starting time was: Reliance, 1:01:56 o'clock; Shamrock, 1:02:00 o'clock.

The Shamrock actually crossed the line at 1:02:03 o'clock, and suffered a handicap of 2 secs.

Both were heading seaward, but as the Reliance, from the lee bow of the Shamrock, was back-winding her head sails, the Shamrock III promptly whirled about and headed down the Jersey coast. The Reliance held on for a minute, and then followed. The contrivance placed the Reliance to windward, but astern of the challenger. They went off at a swift pace, in a freshening breeze. Capt. Wringe attempted to outfoot the defender by giving his boat a good pull and letting her romp away at a fast clip, while Capt. Barr pinched the Reliance close to the wind and cleverly nursed her toward the turning mark. The Shamrock at first footed faster, but the Reliance more than made it good by outpointing her.

For more than an hour they sailed on that tack down past the shore of Sandy Hook and the Highlands of Navesink to Seabright, and during all that time the Reliance steadily worked up to windward of the beaten challenger, outpointing and outfooting her at the same time, and passed to windward of her. When they tacked off Seabright, heading seaward, the American boat had gained a quarter of a mile straight to windward of the British craft. On this new tack, Capt. Wringe again gave his boat a good full, and she cut through the Reliance's gain at an alarming gait, but all to no purpose. She pinched into the wind, and with a rapful the Shamrock was hopelessly outclassed. After an hour's turn offshore, they sailed toward Long Branch for half an hour.

Capt. Barr attempted to make a hitch off shore, but the Shamrock would not follow, and he took the Reliance around again to keep her company. In the meanwhile, the Reliance had steadily gained, and when at 3:15 o'clock, both boats headed off to the mark six miles away, the Reliance was a good mile ahead and gaining. Heeling to a freshening wind and jumping into a rising sea, which at times threw their long bows high out of water, to come down with a splash that sent miniature clouds of foam flying from under their powerful shoulders, the boats were making a pretty spectacle of it. The boats were gaining in speed with every mile, and the Shamrock III was a long mile astern when the Reliance whizzed about the mark and towering stretches of canvas broke and bellied out from her spinnaker pole and over her lee bow. The homeward stretch had begun. The boats were timed at the turn as follows: Reliance, 3:40:35 o'clock; Shamrock, 3:51:41 o'clock.

The Reliance had gained 11 mins. 1 secs., in the thresh to windward and barring accidents, the victory was hers.

As the boats started to run homeward under spinnakers and balloon jib topsails, a split about three feet long appeared in the foot of the Reliance's spinnaker, but as it drew well, Capt. Barr continued to carry it. For three-quarters of an hour, the only variation was a slow gain by the leading boat.

The sky was clear and the slanting rays of the yellow western sun were painting a beautiful marina picture, with the two yachts as center figures, when at 4:20 o'clock, with almost half the course yet to be sailed, a thick bank of fog came rolling in before a southeast wind and enveloped the Shamrock in a grey mist that shut her out of sight of the fleet.

The Reliance ran along for five minutes longer with the sun glinting upon her sails until the fog bank reached her, and she, too, disappeared from sight. As it caught her, she felt also a heavier wind from the southeast, smothering her spinnaker and making her lean to the wind through the mist. The two racers in that dangerous fashion at to speed for an hour. Meantime, the Navigator, carrying the Regatta Committee hunted for the lightship to establish the finish line.

It was 5:20 o'clock before she found

BOUNDARY BUSINESS.

First Assemblage of the Commission.

Lord Chief Justice Alverstone is Chosen Chairman and Ex-Attache Tower Secretary.

Meetings to be Held Five Days in a Week Beginning on Fifteenth of September.

Injunction of Secrecy Removed from the Documents—Americans' Evidence.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 3.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Alaskan Boundary Commissioners held their first meeting today in the conference room of the Foreign Office. Prior to the formal assemblage, the commissioners met in their private conference room and selected Reginald Tower, of the British diplomatic service, formerly attaché to the legation at Washington and recently Minister to Siam, to be secretary of the commission. J. R. Carter, second secretary of the United States embassy, and Mr. Hope, a representative of the Canadian government, were appointed assistant secretaries. Lord Chief Justice Alverstone was subsequently chosen chairman of the commission.

It was announced that oral arguments would commence September 15, and Lord Alverstone expressed the hope that they would be finished by October 5.

The conference room of the Foreign Office, where the commissioners meet, is the choicest apartment in the British public buildings. It is a magnificent salon with Gothic ceiling and panelled walls, and has been the scene of many notable gatherings. It was generally used by the late Lady Salisbury to receive the guests after the late Lord Salisbury's dinners to the Diplomatic Corps. At the end of the room a platform had been constructed, and on it was a long desk with a chair behind it. Behind this desk were six comfortable chairs, which were occupied by the commissioners, whose international reputations emphasized the importance of the occasion. Elihu Root and Lord Alverstone sat in the center. Separate tables were provided for counsel. The Canadian counsel were the first to arrive in the chamber. They were followed by John W. Foster, late Secretary of State, and his assistants, who were accompanied by Ambassador Choate.

The commissioners came in a few minutes latter, and immediately began a private conference which resulted in the selection of the officers, and at which they exchanged credentials and took the oath required by the treaty.

A few minutes after 11 o'clock the commissioners took their seats, Senator Turner on the extreme right, then Prof. Sir Louis Jettee, formerly of the Superior Court of Quebec, Lieutenant-Governor of the province of Quebec and professor of civil law; Mr. Root, Lord Alverstone, Senator Lodge, A. B. Aylesworth, who succeeded the late Justice Armour of Canada, on the commission; Mr. Foster and Clifford Sifton, Canadian Minister of the Interior. The agents of the respective governments sat at desks on the extreme right and left of the commission, while counsel and the stenographers occupied desks facing the commissioners.

Lord Alverstone, after formally announcing that the commission was in session, stating that he had been selected as president as honor which he highly appreciated, asked counsel when they desired to begin oral arguments. Sir Robert B. Finlay, the Attorney-General, in behalf of their counsel, suggested that at least two weeks would be required for preparation, to which Judge John M. Dickinson, representing the American counsel, assented, though he said the American counsel would be ready in a week. Lord Alverstone asked when the oral arguments would be finished, and Atty.-Gen. Finlay suggested October 15, but his lordship remarked that he thought a shorter period was advisable and October 9 was fixed upon.

The commission decided to sit five days per week, commencing September 15, and excluding Saturdays, and to be in session from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily, and granted permission for a limited number of representatives of the press to attend the sittings.

In order that the presentation of the cases may be exhaustive, it has been arranged that three of counsel for each government shall make arguments, the British opening and being followed alternately by Americans and British, the former securing the advantage of delivering the closing arguments.

The commission then removed the injunction of secrecy on all documents hitherto exchanged, and the sitting was adjourned, the commissioners, agents and counsel proceeding to the quadrangle, where they were photographed.

DOCUMENTS IN CASE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The documents covering the American presentation of the Alaskan boundary case are comprised in three volumes, making a total of about 1100 pages. In addition there are also two volumes of maps. The largest of the volumes of text contains the original statement by the American commissioners, while one of the small volumes presents the American counter-case in rejoinder to the British case, and the other arguments of the American commissioners. In the first volume the question at issue, namely, what is intended to be the point of commencement of the line of demarkation between the United States and Canada, what is the Portland channel; what course the line should take to the entrance of that channel; to what point of the fifty-sixth parallel the line should be drawn from the head of Portland Canal, and other familiar questions are discussed. There also is extensive discussion of the extent of the strip of territory along the coast on the mainland that Russia conveyed to the United States by the treaty of 1867. It appears from the document that Great Britain conceded that the line begins at Cape Muzon.

The United States contends that it was the intention of the powers which signed the treaty of 1825 to confirm in full sovereignty to Russia a continuous strip or lisiere along the continental shores of the northwest coast of America, extending from Portland channel to the one hundred and forty-first meridian of longitude west of Greenwich, and that such strip was to be ten marine leagues measured from the heads of all gulfs and other arms of the sea, unless there was within that distance a range of mountains. This contention is further made that there is no such mountain range. It also is urged that the United States has occupied this strip of territory ever since its acquisition from Russia, and that Russia had controlled it since the treaty of 1839 until ceded to the United States in 1867.

ADDITIONAL EVIDENCE.

In its counter-statement, the American commission makes rejoinder to points covered in the presentation of the British side of the case, which it appears contains twenty or more documents which heretofore have not been given to the public.

The additional evidence referred to bears upon negotiations which took place between Great Britain and Russia during the years from 1823 to 1825, and it is contended that this new evidence in no way alters any material contention made in the original allegation, but that on the contrary, "it confirms and strengthens the position of the United States."

These documents consist largely of statements made and letters written by Mr. Polly, who was at that time deputy governor of the Hudson Bay Company, and it is contended that his letters fully sustain the assertion that in fixing a line of demarkation, the British government acted solely in the interests of that company.

The commissioners discuss at some length the claim made by their opponents that many protests have been filed by British officials against the American claims in reference to the boundary line. They admit that from time to time there have been informal representations, but these they assert were in the main without sufficient data to justify serious consideration. Indeed, they say that never until after the Klondike gold discoveries were made in 1896 did the British government take up the question seriously. They admit that in 1898 Lord Pauncefote was called to the claim of the British government that the league strip extended only from the main waters of the ocean, but they say that this contention was not made absolutely clear, until the British case was delivered to the present tribunal on the 2d of May last.

LONG IN POSSESSION.

In support of the American contention that the strip should measure from tidewater, and from the heads of bays and inlets, a number of depositions are produced in connection with the counter-case, going to show the occupation of this strip by settlers from the United States since 1856. Especial effort is directed toward showing the control of the country about the head of Lynn Canal included the sites of the towns of Dyea, Skagway, White Pass and Lake Bennett. It also is stated that numerous documents have been preserved which had been given to Indian chiefs and others by officials of the United States, showing the presence in the Lynn Canal inlets of naval and other authorities of the United States annually for twenty years after the United States acquired the territory. It is contended that this occupation was generally known to the Canadian government and its people.

Discussing the boundaries proposed by Great Britain the claim makes references to the instability of the Canadian contention on this point, and concludes that "the United States has from the time of cession of Alaska to the present day maintained but one interpretation of the treaty of 1825. Its position has been open and known to the world. It is the same which was presented to the tribunal in its case, and which it now reiterates in this counter-case."

The argument in the case is a careful study of maps, treaties and other documents bearing upon the boundary contention, and it is intended to drive home the facts presented in the statements to which reference has been made. Considerable space is devoted to the part played by the Klondike gold discoveries in arousing Great Britain's interest in the controversy, and in this connection notice is taken of an assertion made by the British commissioners that the towns of Dyea and Skagway owed their existence to the migration to the Klondike. They assert, on the contrary, that Dyea was founded in 1886 and Skagway in 1888. They contradict flatly the contention made by the British commissioners to the effect "that Canada's claim to the territory at the head of the Lynn Canal was at the time well known to the United States government."

This, they say, "is a gratuitous assertion. There is no proof to sustain it. Canada never put forward any such claim to the United States. The claim was as made in 1898 by Great Britain before the Great Joint High Commission. It is said that if the Canadian government had instructed British vessels to disregard these regulations there would have been grave danger of a serious collision." There undoubtedly would have been a collision, just as certainly as if they had been instructed to disregard the regulations of the port of New York."

Strong exception also is taken to the contention that there was a reservation on the part of the British government when the United States volunteered to create a port of entry at Dyea. The argument asserts that whatever reservation there was was made by a commissioner of customs, and that he had no authority in the premises.

COMMISSIONERS' MOVEMENTS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 3.—Mr. Root and Senator Lodge left London tonight for Lord Roberts' country home in Surrey. Senator Lodge will go tomorrow to Paris, where he will join his wife. He will remain there until September 14.

After a week's visit to Lord Alverstone, Mr. Root will go to Ladyard Carter's place in Scotland. Senator Turner remains in London.

Messrs. Root and Lodge hope to sail for home October 2.

TALKING FOR PUBLICATION.

Sultan Says Detestable Deeds Are Instigated Abroad.

Remarkable Reception to the Ecumenical Patriarchs.

Turks Kill Two Hundred of the Khissura Insurgents. Ferdinand's Council.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 3.—[By Atlantic Cable.] On the anniversary of his accession Tuesday, the Sultan received in audience at the palace, the heads of the religious communities, and the ecumenical patriarchs made a speech of congratulation. In reply thereto, after thanking the patriarchs and others present for their good wishes, the Sultan, contrary to precedent, spoke at some length, as follows: "All my desire is for the welfare of the population, without distinction of race or religion. As to the detestable and regretable deeds to which the patriarch alluded, I am convinced that the movement does not proceed spontaneously from the population, but is instigated from abroad. I hope the measures taken will insure tranquility. I call God to witness the sincerity of my declaration and that all my aspirations and work are for the welfare and prosperity of all my subjects."

Turning then to the Bulgarian patriarch, the Sultan bade him communicate his words to his flock.

Next addressing the Greek patriarch, that the Greek population had also suffered from the recent troubles, and declared he would be pleased to contribute to the subscriptions being raised in the patriarchate on behalf of the sufferers. The Sultan further remarked that he was very sorry that some of the soldiers had been guilty of acts contrary to his orders and directions.

The Sultan personally assured Mgr. Ormanian, the Armenian patriarch, that his words applied to the Armenians, as well as to the people of other nationalities. The Porte's note of warning to the embassies and legations, informing them, that, according to police information, the Bulgarian agitators were projecting outrages against the embassies, legations, and public buildings in Constantinople, saying the Ottoman government had taken precautions, and requesting the heads of foreign missions to do likewise, was issued in consequence of the receipt at the Russian embassy of an anonymous letter threatening outrages at the winter residence of the Russian Ambassador and Consul-General.

SAFEGUARDING TROOP TRAIN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SOFIA, Sept. 3.—The Sultan has ordered the Vali of Salonica to see that all troop trains are preceded by pilot engines. The Turkish railroad officials are said to have notified the Heads of the roads will not convey soldiers without prepayment of the cost of their transportation.

EXTORTED UNDER MENACES.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BUCHAREST, Sept. 2.—[By Atlantic Cable.] M. Svetkoff, agent here of the Macedonian Committee, has been arrested for extorting, by menaces of death, subscriptions to the funds of the revolutionists. The police discovered receipts signed by Boris Sarahoff, the revolutionary leader, for sums aggregating $6000.

The Roumanian government has ordered the frontier officials to register all the Bulgarians leaving Roumania and to prevent their return to this country.

KILLED TWO HUNDRED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 3.—Official reports say that the Turks, on occupying Kliseura, Albania, killed 200 insurgents. It is also stated that the inhabitants of the coast villages are returning to their homes.

GREECE URGES PUNISHMENT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

ATHENS, Sept. 3.—Premier Ralli has requested the diplomatic representatives here to urge their governments to insist upon the Porte punishing Bakhtiar Pasha, the Governor of Krushevo, for the excesses committed by Turkish troops on the population of that city when they recaptured it from the insurgents.

TRIED TO PENETRATE CORDON.

CORRESPONDENT'S DISCOVERIES

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 4.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Daily Mail's correspondent, in a dispatch from Monastir dated August 31, tells of an ineffectual attempt he made to penetrate the Albanian cordon and reach Armensko. He was threatened with death and compelled to return under guard. He gives numerous instances of Turkish brutality and treachery. The villagers of Armensko were massacred before a single insurgent visited the place. The inhabitants of the village of Nevoikas, near Florina, were butchered while on their way to Florina, under guard, after having surrendered on a guarantee of immunity.

At Florina, continues the correspondent, the Christians are in a state of abject fear, and are handicapped by a bigoted Greek metropolitan, who ordered them to stay in the village and not to flee, with the result that the savage soldiers murder them by scores. The European residents of Monastir, including the consuls, are in a state of great anxiety. Many, including the Italian, have recently been insulted by soldiers. Operations commenced last Thursday on an organized scale against the insurgents, and bodies of troops are operating in all directions, but no details have yet arrived.

PRINCE FERDINAND'S COUNCIL.

MORE FIGHTING REPORTED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SOFIA, Sept. 3.—[By Atlantic Cable.] A council presided over by Prince Ferdinand and attended by the Premier and the Ministers of Interior, War and Justice, was held at the palace of Euxinograd, near Varna, today. The announcement of the result of the deliberations is anxiously awaited here.

No definite news was received today regarding the operations of the insurgents across the frontier. Bands varying in strength are daily passing over the border.

The insurgent general staff has issued a proclamation throughout Macedonia, asking for the support of the whole population and pointing out that the revolutionary forces are not fighting for a neighboring power, but for human rights.

More fighting is reported from the district of Debra. The Turks attacked the revolutionaries at the village of Damoehi, and both sides suffered heavily. A company of Albanian troops passing through the Valley of Kitschero was slaughtered by revolutionaries. The Turkish troops recently made an attempt to take a pass occupied by insurgents through the valley of the Sateska River, but were defeated with great loss.

A special dispatch from Rila, near the Turkish frontier, says a courier has arrived there with a copy of the proclamation of a general insurrection, which has been daily awaited. The document is addressed to "Our Brethren in Macedonia and Adrianople," and begins by congratulating them upon the heroic fight they have already waged. The proclamation continues:

"Armed with only your own strength against a mighty empire, with pitiless foes, with the power of your right hand and the might of your spirit you have shaken the hateful Ottoman dominion. A hundred thousand of the Sultan's soldiers and an innumerable infidel mob were unable to resist the advance. You have sacrificed everything before the altar of liberty. Your villages were burned, your homes pillaged, your children massacred and your sisters, wive sand mothers violated."

"A succession of valiant champions has persisted in the struggle and dyed the Fatherland with their dear blood, but with greater zeal you have embraced the fight. Your smoking hearths have strengthened your manliness; the cries of the children and the moans of the women exasperated your souls. From the breasts of the Fatherland came new champions, replacing those who perished. The holy flag of liberty waves more proudly over the dear Fatherland. Your enemies are rendered speechless before your heroism. The force of tyranny is exhausted. Now days have come. One more heroic stroke, and the centuries of tyranny will fall to the ground in the convulsions of death.

"The dawn of liberty peeps already above the Macedonian horizon and awaits this stroke to shine with its full brilliancy on the Macedonian land. Prepare yourselves, then, for the last stroke. Be at your posts. The hour for the battle strikes. The cry of 'Liberty or death' will break the chains of slavery and bring the triumph of justice."

The proclamation is signed "From the Supreme Central Government."

SAYS HE COULD SAVE CALEB POWERS.

ROACH DECLARES THAT TAYLOR IS GUILTY MAN.

While Intoxicated the Husband of One of State's Witnesses Asserts that He Has Documents to Establish Innocence of Condemned Man.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL PASO (Tex.) Sept. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] T. G. Roach, an attorney of this city and husband of one of the witnesses who testified against Caleb Powers at the recent trial, made the statement in a Juarez saloon, while partly intoxicated, that he is possessed of evidence that would clear Powers and hang ex-Gov. Taylor.

Roach was interrogated by a reporter and two El Paso policemen. He became suspicious of the policemen and threatened to shoot them. To the reporter he said that he and Powers courted the same girl in Kentucky, and that he could easily save Powers if he cared to do so. His wife, he said, had been offered $5000 not to testify, and declared that Taylor's friends would give $100,000 for the papers in his possession.

The officers tried to induce the man to enter a carriage to come to this side of the border, but he resisted strenuously, and being in Mexico they could not use force and were compelled to leave him. Today, according to report, he left for the interior of Mexico.

Roach recently returned from Kentucky, and owing to his wife's connection with the Powers case, his statement created a sensation, although many regard it merely in the light of a drunkard's ravings.

PROBLEM OF THE RACES.

John Temple Graves of Georgia Says the Only Solution is to Expatriate the Negro.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—John Temple Graves of Georgia delivered an address on "The Problem of the Races" this morning before the forty-eighth convocation of the University of Chicago. He said in part:

"The prejudice of a race is a pointing of Providence, and the antagonism of peoples is the fixed policy by which God peoples the different portions of the universe, and establishes the individuality of nations. The act that brought these people together on this continent was a sin of the fathers, a sin of greed, an iniquity of trade, and the sorrow and suffering of the present is for the sin of the past—a sin against nature and a sin against God. The curse can be lifted only when nature is vindicated and God is obeyed. The problem will be solved only when the negro is restored to the bounds of his habitation.'

"It is neither improbable nor impracticable. This is not a day of impossibilities. The hand of the Almighty is steadily opening the way.

"It may be that the islands of the sea were placed by Providence in our keeping to furnish an answer to the problem of the time.

"The negro is an accident, an unwilling, a blameless, but an unwholesome, blameless, unwelcome, helpless, unassimilable element in our civilization. He is not made for our times. He is not made to share in the duty and the destiny which he perplexes and beclouds. Let us put him kindly and humanely out of the way. Let us give him a better chance than he has ever had in history, and let us have done with him. Let us solve his problem, frankly, earnestly, nobly and speedily. Let us put it behind us. Let us purify our politics of the perplexity. Let us liberate the South to vote and to think like free men upon the mighty issues of the times."

GRAND CAYMAN'S SAD PLIGHT.

MOBILE (Ala.) Sept. 3.—Letters from Georgetown, Grand Cayman, dated August 17 and 18, report the damage by the hurricane of August 11 much worse than at first reported. One writer says: "If the islands are not afforded relief every one will starve in a week. Show this letter to the newspapers, that they may let the world know of the condition of the island and the people."

WASHINGTON.

UNCLE SAM'S POSITION ON CANAL REAFFIRMED.

MINISTER BEAUPRE IS SUSTAINED BY THE GOVERNMENT.

Dr. Herran Will be Asked as to the Truth of His Reported Criticism of the American Representative—Date of the Close of the Spanish War Fixed.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Additional instructions have been cabled Mr. Beaupré, the American Minister at Bogota, reiterating the position of this government regarding the canal treaty. The State Department assumes entire responsibility for every representation of Mr. Beaupré to the Colombian government regarding the treaty, and his activity in this direction is heartily indorsed by the President and Secretary Hay. Beaupré's latest instructions advise him that the President will not enter into any engagement with the Colombian government which will hamper his scope of action under the canal law. This government will not indicate what its course of action will be in the event the treaty is rejected.

Dr. Herran, the Colombian chargé, will be asked as to the truth of his reported criticism of Minister Beaupré's activity at Bogota. The alleged criticism by Herran was not well received at the State Department.

HERRAN HOPEFUL.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Dr. Herran, the Acting Minister of Colombia to the United States, is momentarily expecting advices from Bogota announcing action by the Senate committee to which was intrusted the question of proposing amendments to the treaty which it was hoped would prove successful and lead to ratification. He believes that sufficient time has now elapsed for a full consideration of the subject, and that a report has already or soon will be made. He has not yet made any application for an extension of time from September 22, the limit of ratification provided by the treaty.

END OF SPANISH WAR.

NAVY FIXES NEW DATE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Acting Secretary of the Navy Darling has decided that for purposes affecting deserters from the United States Navy, the Spanish War ended December 10, 1898, the date of the signing of the treaty of peace.

This conclusion disagrees with a ruling of the War Department, to the effect that the war was not closed for administrative purposes in that department until April 11, 1899, the date of the exchange of ratifications of the treaty.

NO ADVICES FROM TURKEY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—For two days the State Department has been without advices from Turkey. The position of the Washington government continues unchanged in relation to the Turkish question. It is expected that the Brooklyn and San Francisco will arrive off Beirut tomorrow and the Machias off Port Said.

POSTOFFICE CASES.

PAYNE WILL SOON CLOSE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Postmaster-General Payne said today that when the Federal grand jury in this city disposes of the postoffice cases now before it, the investigation in Washington will be practically concluded, leaving matters in New York still to be closed. He said that he hoped to have the entire postoffice investigation ended and Mr. Bristow's report in by the first of October.

The grand jury was in session a short while today, and adjourned until tomorrow, after examining several witnesses.

NEW MILITARY DEPARTMENTS.

MEANS NEW BRIGADIERS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It is probable that a new military department will be created in the Middle West, to be known as the Department of Kansas, with headquarters at Kansas City, probably, or St. Louis. Another new department may be created, which might be called the Department of the Atlantic. More than sixty posts now report to Governor's Island for headquarters. This is considered altogether too many for good administration. If Gen. Schofield's time, a new division was made and called the Department of West Point, with West Point as the only garrison. This was abolished, however, after two years. There are nine departments in the United States, and the plan will result undoubtedly in the creation of three or four new ones.

Secretary Root has long favored the division of the Department of the East. The creation of new departments is regarded with great favor by the army, as places are made for brigadier-generals, each with a complete staff.

Chief Justice Orders Jury to Find Verdict of Not Guilty in North Jersey Manslaughter Case.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEWARK (N. J.) Sept. 3.—Chief Justice Gummers, in the Essex County Court today announced that he had decided to grant the motion for the dismissal of the indictment for manslaughter against the directors and officials of the North Jersey Street Railway Company, who were accused of having, by alleged neglect of their duties, caused the death of Erestine Miller, Miss Miller, who was a high-school pupil, was killed, with eight others, in the Clifton-avenue crossing accident on February 16.

The motion to dismiss the indictment was made at the trial yesterday by Richard V. Lindabarry of counsel for the defense.

In instructing the jury to find a verdict of not guilty, the Chief Justice said that in order to hold the defendants criminally responsible, it must be shown that they had failed to perform some specific acts. This, the State had failed to do, he said.

The Chief Justice declared that the rules of the street railway company as laid down to its employes would have been sufficient safeguards, if they had been carried out.

Federal Authorities in Hawaii Discover Existence of an Organization of Keepers of Japanese Brothels.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

HONOLULU, Sept. 2.—[By Pacific Cable.] The Federal authorities who have been working for many months to break up the trade in Japanese women, who are brought here for immoral purposes, have been rewarded by the discovery of an organization of extraordinary scope, which has existed among brothel keepers in these islands for a long time.

The Federal officers, by careful watching, managed to locate the headquarters of the society, and seized among other things, a complete set of books, showing the status of the association in all its phases. Among the books is one giving a complete list of the members of the society. Another book shows that the society has a fund of large proportions devoted to the defense of members arrested for conducting the illicit trade, and giving in some detail the receipts and expenditures of the organization.

SHAW HAS MILLIONS READY FOR EMERGENCY.

SECRETARY LOOKING FORWARD TO CROP-MOVING TIME.

Shrewd Plan Whereby He Has Set Aside Forty Million Dollars to be Put in Circulation in Case of Any Financial Stringency.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Secretary of the Treasury Shaw today officially announced that he has $40,000,000 of public money available for the relief of any financial stringency that may arise this fall, as a result of the demand for cash for the movement of crops. This money has not been deposited, but the Secretary makes it plain that it is ready for deposit whenever he considers the time has arrived that demands such action.

Financiers have wondered how Mr. Shaw managed to accumulate and set aside the $40,000,000, which he is holding at the disposition of the money market, and how this money is to be put in circulation. It seems that Mr. Shaw had no idea of informing the public of his plan, neither did he communicate his intentions to the national banks. Somehow, however, his project percolated to monetary circles, and while the Secretary confirms the report now generally known, he declines to go into details. In a general way, however, he intimated today that he had accumulated approximately $40,000,000 of internal revenue receipts in the course of the last few months, and this amount will be made available in case of necessity.

He began the accumulation some time ago, putting aside the revenue receipts, which averaged $500,000 a day. These amounts he set aside in a separate account in the Treasury Department so that while technically the sums received were in the custody of the treasury, and so appeared in the tables of the department's receipts and expenditures, yet, for practical purposes, the money was not in the treasury, and therefore not subject to the usual requirements regarding Federal funds.

MRS. MOLINEUX BACK.

Neither She Nor Any Other of the Interested Parties Will Discuss Her Divorce Proceedings.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Mrs. Roland B. Molineux, who went to Sioux Falls, S. D., nine months ago, shortly after the acquittal of her husband on the charge of causing the death by poison of Mrs. Adams, has returned to this city.

It was said that after she went to South Dakota it was her intention to sue for divorce. It is rumored that the case was heard before a referee in Hamlin county, and that the evidence was submitted to a Judge sitting at Deamet, S. D., but those interested in the matter absolutely refuse to make a statement or even admit that testimony has been submitted in the South Dakota courts.

THE first of a series of stories by John Kendrick Bangs will appear in The Times Magazine the coming Sunday.

This council is composed of a governor, secretary, treasurer, engineer, attorney and superintendent of schools. The province will now be within the jurisdiction of the Philippine courts and constabulary, the Moro laws will be recognized when not in direct conflict with American laws. Gen. Leonard Wood, now resident at Zamboanga, who has just completed the organization of the governing council, reports a feeling of security among the inhabitants of Moro province, and upon his request an additional battery has been dispatched from Manila to strengthen the forces now under his command.

BUSINESS LIKE MARRIAGE.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—Something new in the wedding ceremony formula has been evolved at the marriage of Katherine Fisher of this city and E. S. Ross of Brooklyn. The word "obey" was omitted by the magistrate, and after the certificate had been properly filled out and signed, Mrs. Ross produced a document which proved to be a bill of rights in which Ross clearly defined what he concedes to be the personal and inalienable rights of his wife, and in which the latter sets forth the admitted prerogatives and privileges claimed by her husband. The couple and fourteen witnesses signed the document.

BIG POSSE AFTER CURRY.

Railroad Train Converted Into a Fort.

Precautions Taken Against Attack by Bold Outlaws.

Officers Start for the Hills in Pursuit of the Notorious "Kid" and His Band.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BUTTE (Mont.) Sept. 2.—A Missoula dispatch to the Inter-Mountain says that a special train, loaded with Pinkerton detectives and railroad detectives, preceded No. 1, the North Coast Limited, over the Northern Pacific tracks from Livingston to Missoula last night. The special is literally a traveling army, as in a box car at the rear are forty horses, saddled and bridled, and a Gatling gun.

Northern Pacific officials had a tip that this train, the crack express of the road, was to have been held up last night, somewhere between here and Livingston. Believing it best to take no chances, the detectives assembled somewhere east of Livingston by scores. Every man had a rifle and revolver, and the windows of the special were barricaded. This train ran a mile ahead of the North Coast all the way, and will see it safely to Spokane.

The plot unearthed by the Great Northern officials to hold up an express near Malta, has set the railway men in Montana on their mett'e all along the line. The North Coast is said to have carried an unusually heavy load of valuables on this trip.

Northern Pacific officials here refuse to discuss the situation. The special ran through the city and waited for the express in the yards. It is said that "Kid" Curry is abroad in Montana with another gang, and that the railway officials will adopt extraordinary precautions until he is in custody again.

AFTER THE "KID."

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

BUTTE (Mont.) Sept. 3.—A Big Timber (Mont.) special to the Inter-Mountain says that Sheriff Potter of Carson county, Sheriff Fallong of Valley county, a Pinkerton detective named Gunters and a force of deputies heavily armed, and with their horses in a box car, boarded a west-bound freight here this morning. It is whispered that "Kid" Curry is in the hills near here, and that it was here that he meant to hold up the Northern Pacific express which went through because it was heavily guarded.

YACHT RACE.

it, and the fleet began to gather about her. All was a wall of fog.

Ten minutes the secretary waited. Then the Reliance, heeling before the wind her sails bellying hard and her lee rails dragging up the spindrift, burst through the fog upon the vision of the expectant watcher on the little excursion fleet. Hardly had they recognized the familiar features of the American craft when her great balloon jib topsail fluttering into the arms of the nimble members of her crew out on her bowsprit, she fled across the line down through a lane of yachts to victory. The whistles of every craft in the fleet opened wide in recognition of her achievement.

The Reliance had crossed the line at 5:30:03 o'clock, and it was after 6 o'clock when the fog lifted a bit and disclosed the challenger hove to, north of the line. Capt. Wringe had missed it in the fog and passed by to the east of it. The Shamrock did not attempt to cross the line, but after a feeble salute from the fleet was taken in tow to the Hook. The fleet started for home, and the series of races in defense of the America's cup for 1903, were ended and American genius, brains and seamanship were once more triumphant.

NEXT YACHT RACE.

SAN FRANCISCO WANTS IT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—The California Promotion Committee has sent the following telegram to the president of the New York Yacht Club, inviting the club to select San Fraqcisco Harbor as the next course for the defense of the America's cup:

To C. Oliver Iselin, President New York Yacht Club, New York City—Dear Sir: On behalf of the State of California, and the city of San Francisco, the California Promotion Committee respectfully suggests to the New York Yacht Club that the next international race for the challenge cup be held in the waters of San Francisco Bay. The assurance of brisk winds, average velocity June 13, July 13 and August 13, twelve miles per hour, deep and safe waters, on the largest landlocked harbor in the world, 400 square miles of surface insures a safe and exciting contest which could be viewed from beginning to end by spectators upon the land. The open ocean course outside the harbor offers similar advantages. The fact that there is no rain during the summer months is an additional feature.

If the competing yachts should be brought through the Suez Canal, the long trip would arouse the greatest interest in this international event. With the contest on the Pacific Coast, other nations would undoubtedly be led to compete for America's Cup.

This committee believes that in view of the facts presented the course in San Francisco Harbor is worthy of your earnest consideration, and we will be glad to meet you in any steps to reach the end desired. This invitation is indorsed by the San Francisco Yacht Club.

[Signed] RUFUS P. JENNINGS, Executive officer, The California Promotion Committee.

A similar telegram was sent to Sir Thomas Lipton.

When asked regarding his opinion as to the merits of San Francisco Harbor as a course for an international yacht race, Hon. James D. Phelan, former Mayor of San Francisco, who is a close friend of Sir Thomas Lipton, stated that in his opinion such a course could not be surpassed. "There will be no difficulty in providing funds for a special trophy," said Mr. Phelan. "I understand that Sir Thomas Lipton is coming to the Coast very shortly."

EDITOR KIRBY'S COMMENT.

"PRETTY" BOATS DON'T WIN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] W. G. Kirby of the Yachting World, London, said tonight:

"The third and final attempt, as far as completed matches are concerned, of the Shamrock III to lift the cup finished in a fog. This is one little kindness which has been dealt out to us Britishers by the clerk of the weather, or whoever it is has charge of the weather outside Sandy Hook.

"Never before has a challenger left our shores with higher hopes of success and never before has she been so hopelessly outclassed. Excuses for her defeat are not to be found. Reasons there may be, and these will form a staple subject for discussion in yachting circles for many months to come.

"There is one lesson that the recent contest has taught. That is, to win or even approach the winning of America's cup, any return to the type of boat ordinarily associated with British waters, a vessel with round, full body and sweeping lines, is impracticable. The Shamrock II was an ugly boat, and yet she came as near winning the cup as any vessel that has yet crossed the Atlantic. The Shamrock III is a pretty boat, and she is left standing still by the Reliance. Herreshoff has taken all the good points of Shamrock III, left out her bad ones, and has produced a witch."

COMPLIMENTARY EDITORIALS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 4.—This morning's papers publish editorials congratulating the United States upon again retaining the America's cup and complimenting Sir Thomas Lipton on his gallant fight. All the journals agree that the contests were won by a better boat, and the cleverer skipper and crew, and admit that there seems to be no reason why the United States should not retain the cup for many years to come, since it seems that Great Britain has something to learn from America in the matter of yacht-building.

The Daily Telegraph expresses the general feeling, when paying a tribute to the fairness with which the contests were conducted, it says: "It is an entirely honorable chapter added to the history of the America's cup."

POLICY OF "JOEY."

Preferential Tariffs for Great Britain Would Mean Practical Destruction of the Exporting of American Grain and Beef to England.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "If the policy of preferential tariffs proposed by Joseph Chamberlain, Colonial Minister, is adopted by Great Britain, it will mean the practical destruction of the exporting of American grain and beef to England, and the farmer of the United States will be the heaviest loser."

The foregoing is the opinion of Dr. Carlaw Martin, editor of the Dundee (Scotland) Advertiser, who is in the United States to study trade conditions.

"I'm opposed to Mr. Chamberlain's policy," continued Dr. Martin, "but I want to obtain first-hand knowledge as to the effect of a British tariff upon American corn and beef, both in the United States and the old country. It is of great importance to the United States, as it will mean the shifting of the channels of trade from this country to Canada. That being true, the American producer will be compelled to take a less price for his product and the transportation companies reduce their rates to hold the British markets.

"The United States has a surplus of products, which it must dispose of. Four-fifths of the grain consumed by the people of Great Britain comes from the United States and one-fourth from Canada. Under the proposed tariff, production of foodstuffs will be encouraged in the colonies and America will finally lose its greatest market."

HIGH RAISIN PRICES DAZE EASTERN BUYERS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Something of a sensation was created today in jobbing circles by the announcement from the Coast of opening prices on the 1903 crop of California loose muscatel raisins, in control of the California Raisin Growers' Association. The chief cause of astonishment was the very high basis fixed. The opening prices on seeded raisins last year were 6¼ cents for fancy, and 6¾ cents for choice in one-pound cartons f.o.b. Coast. Some outside interests shaded this figure. The association basis was advanced later on to 7¼ cents for fancy, and 6¾ cents for choice, and the last price wired here from the Coast on association seeded raisins was 7¼ cents for fancy, and 7¼ cents for choice. At this moment it is not known whether these prices are still ruling.

Orders today are being taken by some of the largest interests here with association connections, for fresh seeded old crop for prompt shipment from the Coast at guaranteed prices, against the opening prices on the 1903 pack of seeded. Some interests are advising the purchase of the old crop with a view of guarding buyers against the possibility of delay in shipments of new fruit. Last year the delay was serious and interfered materially with early deliverits in the market. Up to the close of last month no prices had been fixed on new seeded, and the impression was that a basis would not be named until about the middle of the month.

Late advices give crop prospects as favorable for an output of 4500 carloads. This year's crop is estimated at considerably larger than that of last year.

Opening prices last year were named on September 30.

Referring to the high basis fixed by the association a prominent dealer here said today: "At the prices named we do not think buyers will take hold. The feeling is that all buyers will refuse to purchase more than is absolutely needed to fill their wants from time to time, and this policy will naturally cause Coast interests to carry over considerable stocks. As to the policy that induced the naming of very high prices, we know nothing.

"It seems to us that it is another case of a trust trying to squeeze consumers. We have heard talk regarding the object of the association in connection with freezing out eastern and outside seeders, but we have no authority for assuming that the Coast seeders are trying to cut out local interests."

CHICAGO HOLD-UP TRACED TO GORDON.

[BY DIRECT WIRETO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Working on clews furnished by Warden Wilkinson of Folsom penitentiary, Chief of Police O'Neill has found strong evidence that Richard M. Gordon, one of the escaped convicts from the Pacific Coast prison, with three companions, made his way direct to Chicago, and that he was the leader of the gang that made the raid on the Chicago City Railway car barns early last Sunday morning, shot in cold blood two employés and wounded two others and looted the safe of $3000.

Warden Wilkinson yesterday advised Chief O'Neill that Gordon frequently corresponded with relatives in Chicago while he was confined behind prison walls, and the address to which the missives were sent most often was given as in the neighborhood of Sixty-ninth street and Stoney Island avenue. With several detectives, Chief O'Neill scoured the location today, and at the Santa Maria Hotel learned that a man whose general description tallied exactly with that of Gordon, had been living at the place for several days, but he had paid his bill and departed Wednesday.

When he first went to the place he seemed in straitened circumstances. Monday, however, he paid two weeks in advance, and seemed well supplied with money. When he took his departure he told the woman proprietor to keep the amount she offered to refund to him.

The man, the police have learned, was absent from his room all of Saturday night, and when he returned Sunday morning he was laboring under excitement. The police now believe that Gordon and the trio who are believed to have accompanied him east were responsible for the most daring hold-up pulled off in Chicago in years, and are bending every effort to trace him.

Confusion Reigns in Colombian Senate. Politics Party Responsible for Canal Treaty Hold-up.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

PANAMA, Sept. 3.—[By South American Cable.] One of the Senators now in Bogota, writing to a friend here, compares the Senate to the Tower of Babel. Confusion, he says, reigns among the government supporters, while the opposition is unfted and is systematically blocking all governmental measures. The nationalists, expecting to be victorious at the next election, want themselves to make a canal treaty, believing that if President Marroquin is able to sign one it will be difficult to overthrow him.

DROWNED WHILE FISHING.

WOODLAND, Sept. 3.—Joe Bentley was drowned in the Sacramento River near Elkhorn today. He was fishing in a boat which capsised.

SIR THOMAS SAYS HE'S ALMOST GLAD.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

HIGHLANDS OF NAVESINK (N. J.) Sept. 3.—When the Erin had discharged her passengers tonight and the echo of their cheers had died away, Sir Thomas Lipton said: "Two weeks ago I was hopeful; last week I knew I was doomed to defeat and was disappointed, but today I am almost glad in my own defeat, since America has been such a thoroughly generous victor. I want to thank the American people for their generosity to me in my defeat."

Asked what his plans were, Sir Thomas said: "My crew is to return to England Tuesday next, and I really ought to go back by that time myself. I will post out my engagements in a day or two, and then determine just what I shall do. I shall attend a dinner in New York tomorrow night, and have half promised to be Mr. Woodruff's guest in Brooklyn and go to the New York State Fair, but that is not absolutely certain. It is possible I may have to start for home next week."

Asked what he would do with the three Shamrocks, he said: "I am to meet some people tomorrow who desire to buy at least one of the boats. After I have seen them I will determine what to do."

Regarding the defeat of the Shamrock III, he simply said: "I don't care to discuss it any more. The American boat was the better; that is all."

Capt. Wringe, while agreeable, still would not talk any further than to say:

"We did the best we could, but the other boat was the better."

TALKS WITH OTHERS.

Designer Fife refused to talk.

Capt. Barr of the Reliance said after the race: "The Reliance is a beautiful boat, had all kinds of weather, and won in it. Our adversaries did the best they could with the material at their command."

J. P. Morgan's yacht, the Corsair, stopped in at the hook and took C. Oliver Iselin aboard. Iselin was all smiles as he replied to an inquiry as to the result: "Of course I am proud of the result. A splendid boat, a splendid crew, and captain. All helped to the result. Sir Thomas made a brave fight, and deserved better luck, but every American should be glad the cup is to stay here."

Sir Thomas and Mr. Iselin exchanged visits tonight and Sir Thomas extended congratulations.

SANTA FE TERMINUS ON HUMBOLDT BAY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EUREKA, Sept. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A transfer of realty just recorded evidences intentions of the Santa Fé to establish a terminus on Humboldt Bay, three-fourths of what is known as the Allen tract has been secured by the Santa Fé, and a suit in condemnation for the balance of the property is pending. The price paid is reported to have been $75,000. This tract, which adjoins the Santa Fé's depot here, with the terminal site of the old Eel River and Eureka road on the north and that of the California and Northwestern Railroad Company on the south of it, both sites now being owned by the Santa Fé by the purchase of the two roads, will give them one of the finest terminals on Humboldt Bay, taking in as it does nearly all of the western bay shore of the city.

It has been authoritatively stated that the water frontage will be improved in the near future by the building of wharves. The machine shops of the Eel River & Eureka line will be brought from Field's Landing, a place on the south bay shore, and permanently established here. It is expected the work of extension will be begun this fall.

COLONIST RATES.

EFFECTIVE IN FEW DAYS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—The Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and connecting roads have taken independent action in the matter of colonist rates to California this fall, and announce that they will put them into effect on September 15 and daily until November 30. It is expected that this action will result in very heavy travel to California during this period.

DANISH STEAMER LOST.

Crew Forced by Fire to Take to Boats, While Storm Was Raging—Six Men Missing.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 3.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The captain and a portion of the crew of the Danish steamer Klampenborg, from Blythe for Kronstadt, have been landed at South Shields. They report that the Klampenborg was abandoned, on fire. The third engineer was killed and six of the crew are missing.

The survivors had a thrilling experience. Fire, which had broken out on board, had reached the petroleum tanks on Sunday, and caused a terrific explosion, killing the engineer. The crew took to the boats during a violent storm. One boat with six occupants drifted away and was not seen afterward. It is supposed that she was swamped in the high seas.

The weather continued so bad that the survivors in the other boats took refuge again on the Klampenborg on Monday evening. On Tuesday they had to take to the boats again, and they were at the point of exhaustion when they were rescued.

TUCKER ROBBED HIS MOTHER.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 3.—Judge Dennis of the Circuit Court signed an order today removing William T. Tucker, as executor of the estate of his father, the late Wesley Tucker, a leading shoe merchant. Tucker is accused by his mother of converting to his own use $500,000. Tucker has disappeared, and is said to be in Central America. Mrs. Tucker announces that she will take no further legal steps against her son.

STEVEDORE FOR SENATE.

May Succeed to Seat Now Held by Foster.

Began His Life's Work as a Day Laborer on the Docks.

More Assessors Explain to State Board—New Astronomical Equipment.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA (Wash.) Sept. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It is almost settled that State Senator Edward S. Hamilton will be Tacoma's candidate for United States Senator to succeed Senator Foster of this city, when the next Legislature meets. Hamilton is now serving his second term in the State Senate, and has proved the most aggressive leader Pierce county has ever had in State politics. He was one of the leaders of the campaign five years ago which resulted in Senator Foster's election, and has continued a staunch supporter of Foster. It seems now uncertain whether Foster will be a candidate for reelection by the time the Legislature meets, inasmuch as some elements in local Republican politics do not cordially support him.

Within the last two weeks a number of prominent Republicans have held a consultation, resulting in a determination to push Hamilton in the belief that he will make a more aggressive campaign, which it is conceded will be necessary to beat Sam Piles, the corporation lawyer of Seattle, who has announced his candidacy.

Hamilton began life as a stevedore. Then he became a boss stevedore, and is now a member of the firm of McCabe & Hamilton, which does the major part of stevedoring on the Puget Sound.

PRIZES OFFERED.

IRRIGATION CONGRESS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—The Southern Pacific Company received a communication, from the officials of the National Irrigation Congress, which will be held at Ogden September 15 to 19. It is announced that four special prizes will be offered as follows:

By Senator W. A. Clark of Montana, for the best exhibit of fresh fruits.

By President H. C. Havemeyer of the American Sugar Refinery, for the best exhibit of sugar beets.

By the Pabst Brewing Company of Milwaukee, for the best brewing barley.

By the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Company, for the best hops.

In each case a prize of a silver loving cup valued at $500 each is offered. These will be given, in addition to the regular gold and silver medals. The Southern Pacific and Wells, Fargo & Co., announce that they will carry all exhibits free to Ogden. The Southern Pacific today sent out notices to all county boards of trade in the State in regard to its offer of free transportation of exhibits.

STORY OF JONES.

PAINTED TOWN WITH GORDON.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN JOSE, Sept. 3.—James E. Jones, watchman for the Western Granite and Marble Company, claims that he parted with "Red Shirt" Gordon, one of the Folsom escapes, at the San Fernando-street depot at 3 o'clock this morning. He says he had been in the company of Gordon, not knowing the man, from 9 o'clock last night. They visited many saloons and parted at the depot, after Gordon had exhibited two revolvers and told him up for it. The train was a freight, going north, but Gordon, so says Jones, said he was going south, and in the recklessness born of inebriety, asserted he was the convict so much wanted by the San Francisco police. Jones has seen Gordon's picture and says that it fits perfectly the man he caroused with last night.

LIFE OF A HERMIT.

MANY YEARS IN WOODS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) Sept. 3.—According to Robert A. Hulbert, an attorney of Everett, Rufus Le Barr, the hermit, living in the Olympia foothills, left his home in New York fourteen years ago, after domestic troubles. Le Barr is now about 68 years old. In his story told to Attorney Hurlbert, Le Barr said he wandered into the mountains after coming West, thinking to find gold. There he nearly starved to death, but finally found game in abundance.

"Le Barr told me he immediately made up his mind that he had reached paradise, and straightway built a cabin, hewing the logs and riveting the planks with his own hands.

"The hermit's next step was to take up a claim of 160 acres. This valuable timber land is now in the very heart of a government reservation. The United States recognizes Le Barr's ownership.

"The cabin is composed of a single room 20x40 feet. Trophies of his skill with the rifle hang on the rough-hewn walls.

"He has learned taxidermy and has many fine heads of deer, bear, elk and smaller denizens of the forest scattered about in decorative disorder.

"An incongruity striking my attention was the presence of many late books and magazines carefully placed in rough book cases. Frequently Hermit Le Barr walks sixteen miles to replenish his library. He is well read and remarkably well posted on current events.

"When winter makes its appearance the hermit lays in a great supply of wood and goes on long hunting expeditions to stock his larder. And then the snows, sometimes ten feet deep, frequently thirty-five feet, cover his cabin and he, his books and dogs are shut in."

COVERED WITH BURNING OIL.

EARL M'KIM'S HORRIBLE FATE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

VISALIA, Sept. 3.—A peculiar accident happened at Sharman ranch, near this city, this morning. Earl McKim, 16 years old, was placed in charge of a crude engine and tankhouse. An hour after he took charge there was an explosion, which set fire to the house. McKim was deluged with burning oil. He ran about 300 yards to a water trough, in which he rolled and put the fire out. He had been so badly burned that the doctor says he will die.

In running from the tankhouse to the water trough, dripping burning oil from the boy's clothes set fire to the field.

EXCITING TENNIS PLAY.

ALONZO BELL WINS MATCH.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN RAFAEL, Sept. 3.—The fourth day's play in the series of tennis matches for the championship of the Pacific Coast developed some exciting contests and clever playing. The match between Alonzo Bell of Southern California against Drummond McGavin of San Francisco was the most interesting match of the gentlemen's singles. Bell played in the back court, and his steady work won for him the match. McGavin made strong drives to the side line, and punted often. Bell, however, very seldom failed to return them effectively. Score was 6-2, 6-4, 5-7 and 6-3.

Murdock played Way. Way played a strong game during the first set, but subsequently could not keep up the pace. The score resulted in Murdock's favor, 2-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Grant Smith beat William Collier handily with a score of 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

Bell and Rolfe played the semi-finals this afternoon. Rolfe in the first set by effective service and strong net play, gained four games, love, on Bell. Bell pulled out, however, 6-4. The other two sets resulted in Bell's favor, 6-3, 6-4.

RENOMINATES SCHMITZ.

UNION LABOR PARTY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—The Union Labor Party tonight nominated Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz for a second term in the office he now holds. The platform committee presented its report, and after it was adopted the convention adjourned to await the action of the local conventions of the other political parties.

REV. NICKELSEN WITHDRAWS.

THUS ENDS A SCANDAL.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Sept. 3.—A special to the Oregonian from Spokane, Wash., says Rev. C. D. Nickelsen, deposed pastor of the Methodist Church at Colfax, after a consultation with Bishop Hamilton, has withdrawn from the ministry and ended by his own action the brewing scandal which threatened to disrupt the annual conference now in session here.

Nickelsen was tried last winter on a charge of conduct unbecoming a minister, namely, asking Mrs. Dunbar of Goldendale to come to Spokane and commit suicide with him. Nickelsen pleaded guilty instantly, but was duly ousted, and his appeal was to be tried at this conference.

LOSE MUCH INTEREST.

DUPONT STREET BONDS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—The celebrated Dupont-street bondholder case, which has been pending in the local courts for many years, was practically settled today by a decision returned by Judge Beatty of the United States Circuit Court. He found for the plaintiff in the case of Alex. J. Swift against the city and county of San Francisco, in substance he held that the bondholders were entitled to the face value of the bonds, $1000, and to interest on the last two coupons, dating from January 1, 1897. All previous coupons were barred by the statute of limitations. This in effect means that the bondholders will lose nineteen years interest.

On March 22, 1876, the Legislature passed an act authorizing the widening of Dupont street from Market to Bush streets, making it the broadest street which is now known as Grant avenue. For this purpose a board of Dupont-street commissioners was appointed and authorized to issue bonds to the amount of $813,683, of a value of $1000 each. In January, 1877, this was done, but it is alleged that the board issued $1,000,000 worth of bonds instead of the sum first stated.

SLOPE BRIEFS.

Defaulting Official Caught.

VICTORIA (B. C.) Sept. 3.—H. C. Miller, alias Alfred E. Lyford, was arrested here last night on a telegram from Rock Island, Ill., police identifying him as ex-Deputy County Treasurer of Rock Island county, who absconded July 5, 1902, with $13,000 county funds. Miller made a complete confession and will waive extradition.

New Astronomical Equipment.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Sept. 3.—New astronomical instruments, purchased through the generosity of a number of benefactors, have recently been added to the equipment of the University of California. An six new and extremely valuable instruments have been installed on Observatory Hill. With the photographing instruments and the aid of a new engine for measuring star plates coming from Germany, the department intends to take the positions of the Watson asteroids, whose perturbations are now being calculated at the University at the expense of the National Academy of Sciences.

Rustling Fresno Merchants.

FRESNO, Sept. 3.—The new home of the Chamber of Commerce, which has been under construction in Depot Park, is not yet finished, but the chamber is moving in, and within a short time will be ready to meet friends old and new.

The Fresno Chamber of Commerce will probably have agents in Chicago and Los Angeles during the coming winter. An energetic campaign to secure a share of eastern home-seekers will be secured. The membership of the chamber is now 305.

Weis Held for Murder.

WOODLAND, Sept. 3.—Lorin A. Weis, who shot and killed Charles Hodge at Knight's Landing August 23, was today held to answer the charge of murder, without bail. No testimony was offered by the defendant, his attorneys merely cross-examining the witnesses for the prosecution.

Scenic Mountain Trail.

FRESNO, Sept. 3.—The new trail by way of the Tehipite Dome to Kings River Cañon is being made rapidly, and when completed will become one of the best routes into that famous scenic region. Some alterations may be made before the work is completed in the general trail, as for instance, altering the location of part of it, but everything that is being done, is being carefully considered beforehand, and the work is intended by the United States government authorities, who have it in their charge, to be one of the best specimens of trail building that the Sierras can show.

New San Pedro Bank.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—The Citizens' Savings Bank of San Pedro has been issued a license by the Board of Bank Commissioners and will begin business shortly. The capital stock is $60,000, of which one-half has been subscribed. The officers are George H. Peck, president; John S. Peck, vice-president and manager, and Henry Daly, secretary. The directors include these officers and J. A. Welat and E. D. Seward.

Ag. Woman Takes Gas.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—Mrs. L. Petsch, a native of Germany, aged 70, committed suicide in her room, No. 721 Folsom street, early this morning by inhaling illuminating gas. It is thought that old age and despondency led her to take her life.

Sayre Appointed Judge.

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 3.—Gov. Pardee today commissioned Morton S. Sayre as judge of the Superior Court of Lake county to fill the unexpired term of R. W. Crump, deceased. Sayre, who is a Republican, was Crump's opponent. Crump was a Democrat. Sayre was formerly District Attorney of Lake county.

Section Hand Run Over.

SAN JOSE, Sept. 3.—Dan Hogan, a section hand, in building the double track between San Francisco and San José, was run over by a work train near Santa Clara this forenoon and had his right arm cut off, besides receiving other injuries, including a terrible cut on the forehead. His recovery is doubtful.

End of Miller Libel Case.

SAN JOSE, Sept. 3.—The case of criminal libel against Henry Miller, the Normal student, who, after much sensational litigation, was lately graduated from the school, was today dismissed by Judge Lieb on motion of the District Attorney.

Dangerous Forest Fire.

NEVADA CITY, Sept. 3.—A forest fire half a mile above Camptonville created some alarm in that section. For hours it looked as though the town was doomed. People of Camptonville turned out in force and were joined by other settlers throughout that section. They fought the flames for hours, building backfires, and success finally rewarded their efforts. Before the danger was past some 100 acres of the Yore and Mackey ranches had been burned over.

Head of Botanical Expedition.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Sept. 3.—President David Starr Jordan is in receipt of a communication from members of the Philippine Commission, appointing Dr. E. B. Copeland, a Stanford instructor, as head of the botanical expedition that will soon make a thorough scientific survey of the Philippines. A. D. Elmer, assistant in the department of botany, is also appointed to accompany Dr. Copeland.

Young Thief Comes to Grief.

SAN JOSE, Sept. 3.—Patrick Delehanty, aged about 15 years, who says his home is in San Francisco, stole a coat, valuable gold watch and chain and $42 in coin from the office of Campiglia & Spinelli tonight. He had been given permission to go to the rear to wash. He was arrested with the stolen property while about to board a train for San Francisco.

Berkeley Student Drowns.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—Valentine Law, a Berkeley student, 20 years old, was drowned while swimming in the ocean today below the Cliff House.

Train Kills Unknown Man.

REDWOOD CITY, Sept. 3.—The southbound Los Angeles train ran over and killed an unknown man near Colma tonight. The man was evidently about 50 years old. In his pocket a passbook of a San Francisco Savings and Loan Society was found, showing that the amount of $587 had been deposited in the name of Lunke Nasser and Maria Leisner.

Cullom in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—United States Senator Shelby M. Cullom of Illinois, has arrived here from Chicago. He has come West to visit his brother, who is recovering from a recent accident, and to enjoy a little recreation. The Senator is accompanied by Mrs. Cullom and a party of friends.

Wants Farm for Ostriches.

SAN JOSE, Sept. 3.—Joseph Roberts, connected with the ostrich farm in Pasadena, is here for the purpose of finding a location for an ostrich farm near San José. An application to rent Agricultural Park was refused.

Mrs. Cahn Ends Her Life.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—In a moment of mental aberration, Mrs. Nathan Cahn, wife of a capitalist, committed suicide this morning by shooting herself through the head. Her relatives can assign no cause for her rash act. Mrs. Cahn was 42 years of age.

New Training Ship.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—The former transport Lawton is to supplant the Pensacola as the Naval training ship at Goat Island. The Lawton is at present at Mare Island, and it is the intention of the navy officials to convert the steamer into a training ship for the accommodation of the marines and sailors stationed at Goat Island. The Pensacola is not large enough to accommodate the men. The Lawton will be fitted to shelter several hundred blue jackets.

Suicide With Laudanum.

OROVILLE, Sept. 3.—George W. Schiagel committed suicide today by taking a large dose of laudanum. He died just as a physician was coming to his room.

SAN DIEGO.

RICH PHYSICIAN A MANIAC.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 3.—Dr. G. E. Cowell, formerly a prominent physician in the Middle West, was adjudged insane by a commission of physicians in the Superior Court this forenoon, and ordered committed to the insane hospital. During the examination the unfortunate man made rhymes and sang them, cursed the judge and then complimented him. He was allowed twenty minutes in which to plead his case, which he did in a sing-song fashion. Once, when an attempt was made to restrain him, he struck the deputy sheriff in the face and had to be handcuffed. He has a mania for writing and drawing, employing most of his time that way. Dr. Cowell has property in Colorado and Illinois estimated to be worth $22,000.

DOCTOR TOO FAR AWAY.

Sepero Preciado, aged 16, who was brought here from Lower California a few days ago to be treated for blood poisoning, died today. Preciado was hunting 100 miles below the line and while playing with his pet dog the gun was hit and discharged. The charge of buckshot struck and fearfully lacerated the young man's left thigh. The nearest physician was at San Diego, and before the wounded man could get here blood poisoning set in.

RAMONA TENT VILLAGE.

MOBES TO NEW RESORT.

RAMONA, Sept. 3.—"Ramona Tent Village," a resort established this year in the hills beyond this place, will soon be connected by an automobile line with San Diego. Capt. Converse, proprietor of the enterprise, has just let the contract to an eastern company for the construction of a large automobile stage, which will carry twenty persons and make the run in four hours. This will be a great convenience to the guests, and will save the tiresome trip up the long grade.

The tenters were entertained last night with a concert by Prof. Hargrove's orchestra, which is at present sojourning at the village. The orchestra will give concerts on Wednesday and Friday evenings, playing for a dance every Saturday night.

W. E. Hadley, manager of the village, has just purchased some goats for the children and has installed a new piano in the music hall.

Among the late arrivals at tent village are: William French, Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. Bonalye, Sierra Madre; Joseph Craig, G. Anderson and family, Rev. S. J. Shaw, Mrs. Maud Hall, San Diego; Mrs. R. E. Clarkson, Otay; Mrs. A. C. Clarkson and sons, El Cajon; Fred A. Steel, Los Angeles; Misses Sira and Ida Caldwell, T. R. Grimth and wife, George H. Crippen, San Diego; Mrs. Margaret Stowe, New York; George A. Knight, San Francisco.

SANTA BARBARA.

ESPEE TO STRAIGHTEN LINE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SANTA BARBARA, Sept. 3.—The Southern Pacific Company tonight filed with the City Council an application for a franchise to cross the city streets for a distance of a mile and a half, the desire of the company being to straighten its tracks through the city limits, thereby avoiding several bad curves, which have been the cause of much annoyance and delay, and one disastrous accident.

The proposed new route will follow a direct line from the extreme eastern limits to Rancheria street, from which point the road runs on a straigh line to the main depot. Right of way through nearly all of the private property has been acquired by purchase. It is reported the company proposes to build a new depot a short distance from the Potter Hotel in the heart of the city, abandoning the other two stations. The applications will probably be granted at the next meeting, with modifications, one principal of which will be the abandonment of the present line on Haley street.

EARL ROGERS IS THERE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The Fraternal Order of Eagles today heard reports of the Worthy Secretary and Treasurer and that of the Trustees, but deferred action on matters suggested in the reports until afternoon. The afternoon session was taken up with the report of the Credentials' Committee. No other business was transacted. Tonight a dinner was given at the Waldorf-Astoria. Senator Thomas F. Grady acted as toastmaster, and among the speakers were Grand Worthy President Delcarey Smith and Past Bosses of Los Angeles.

NORTHERN COUNTIES GOING AHEAD SLOWLY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 3.—Assessor C. E. McQuaid and other officials of Sutter county were examined by the State Board of Equalization this morning. McQuaid said that the land values in his county have greatly decreased, the principal cause being, he said, the evil results of hydraulic mining. The Assessor declared that Sutter county is the natural dumping ground for the débris from Yuba, Bear, Feather and Sacramento rivers, and that nearly a million and a half dollars had been expended in the county in litigation resulting from the effects of hydraulic mining. Property owners are paying a levee tax of $2 on the $100 in addition to State and county taxes. The assessed valuation of Sutter county in 1902 was $5,847,029. This year it is $6,026,189. The population of Sutter county in 1890 was 5469; in 1900 it was 5586.

A. E. Morton, Assessor, and other officials represented Butte county. The total assessed valuation of the county in 1902 was $13,056,117. The valuation for 1903 was fixed at $13,596,945. Twenty-two or twenty-three dredgers were assessed from $15,000 to $18,000 each.

There was practically no wheat in the county in the year ending on the first Monday in March in 1903, it having been shipped out of the county prior to that date. The best orange land is assessed at about $40 an acre.

Farmers in the back lands in the last five years have not been able to pay the interest on their mortgages. Fruit growers in certain sections of the county are barely able to get from their land the cost of its cultivation. In 1893, 1894 and 1895 labor could be had for $20 a month. Now the pay for labor is not less than $30 a month.

M. A. Brittan, District Attorney of Yuba county, appeared as the representative of the county in the absence of its Assessor. According to the Auditor's figures the county's valuation is fixed for this year at $5,891,020. The assessed valuation was $5,091,575. Brittan said the principal industries in the county are mining and agriculture. There has been no change in property conditions that would enhance values. Many of the mines have closed down. During the last ten years the population of Yuba county has fallen off nearly 1000, and some of the school districts have lapsed.

County Assessor T. H. Barkey, Deputy Assessor E. J. Kay and Supervisor Ed. Meister appeared on behalf of Sacramento county. According to the figures submitted by County Auditor R. T. Cohn, the assessed valuation of the county in 1902 was as follows: Real estate, $10,622,320; town lots, $8,-356,170; improvements on real estate, $1,633,740; improvements on town lots, $7,594,380; unknown owners, $33,650; personal property, $4,642,140; money, etc., $534,760. Total, $33,448,960. This year's valuation was fixed at $34,656,125.

Assessor Barkey said there had been no booms in Sacramento county. In the last ten years the Legislature has released from taxation all the reclamation districts, churches and municipal bonds. There are more diversified interests in Sacramento county at the present time than there were some years ago. Grain land is assessed from $12.50 to $50 an acre; fruit land, $40 to $225; fruit trees, $15 to $75 per acre, according to the character of the trees; vine land is assessed at from $15 to $40 an acre; hop land from $40 to $200 an acre; orange land, $80, and the trees at $60 an acre. The highest assessment on city property was about $400 a front foot.

PITH OF NEWS FROM THE MIDDLE WEST.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Clear skies were reported everywhere in the Middle West today, except in the northwest lake region, where there were a few light showers. In Chicago, the temperature gained a few degrees, the maximum being 84 at 4 o'clock p.m., and the minimum 64 at 7 o'clock a.m. A cool wave prevails in the Dakotas, where the temperature is 20 deg. lower than it was yesterday morning, and there is danger of frost. North winds and cooler weather are forecasted for Chicago tomorrow evening. Temperatures at 7 a.m.: New York, 62; Washington, 66; Chicago, 64; Minneapolis, 60; Cincinnati, 64; St. Louis, 68; Boston, 65.

ENGINE BLOCKS ALL NORTHERN TRAFFIC.

ALL traffic on the Southern Pacific main line between this city and the North was blocked last night for hours by the derailment of a light engine at Newhall, just beyond the tunnel north of Fernando. The engine was one of those used to help heavy freight trains up the steep grade of the tunnel through Newhall, and to Saugus. It was returning southward last night, when it left the track and lay in such a position as to completely blockade the tracks.

Under ordinary circumstances the simple derailment of an engine does not cause serious delay to traffic, but this accident was such that it was found a very difficult matter to replace the engine on the tracks. No one was injured.

The wreck occurred before the southbound Coast Line Limited had passed Newhall and that train, which was due in Los Angeles at 10:45 o'clock last night, had not arrived when The Times went to press. The train was run back to Saugus, where the passengers spent the night in the day coaches, because the train carries no sleeping cars. The early-morning northbound freight trains had to be held up here, awaiting the removal of the obstruction.

FLASHES FROM THE WIRES.

A threatened strike of glass workers through the country for a uniform rate of wages, decided on by the Glass Workers' International Union, to go into effect September 10, has been called off for the present.

Mrs. Theo Kruse, wife of a bookbinder, was shot and killed yesterday at her home by Mrs. Kate Mesner, Denver, Colo. The murderess was arrested. She declined to make any statement. The cause of the shooting is supposed to be jealousy.

The residence of Abraham Showalter, who has been prominently connected with the anti-saloon movement there, was entirely demolished by early yesterday morning by dynamite. The family of five persons escaped with their lives. All were slightly injured by being covered by the ruins.

A Missouri, Kansas and Texas stock train and a freight train met in a head-end collision at McBain on the St. Louis division, as the result of which three persons were injured. They are H. A. Waller and J. A. Davis, stockmen of Wichita Falls, Tex., and Edward Turbeyville, fireman.

The Peruvian government has granted to Alfred McCune, an American, a concession to build a railroad from a port in the province of Chancay to join the line between Oroyo and Cerropasco. Herbert Sellers, another American, has received a concession for a railway from Port Huacho to Picuncha coal fields.

The plans for the big camp at Fort Riley, Kan., during the maneuvers show that the camp will be one of the most spectacular ever planned. The 14,000 troops that are to participate will be encamped on the Republican River flats, just north of Junction City, in the form of a gigantic fan, which will have its apex near the bluffs, a half mile farther north of the town.

LATEST THEORY OUT.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—The theory that germs of an appetite for liquor are imparted to Chicago babies through the medium of milk from cows that eat the refuse from Peoria distilleries, has suggested itself to Assistant State Food Inspector R. M. Patterson. Mr. Patterson has just returned from Peoria, where he found 180 distillery-fed cows whose milk had been regularly shipped to Chicago. He enjoined the dairymen to sell no more milk from these cows. "I cannot say that I saw any of the cattle under the influence of liquor," said Mr. Patterson, "but I know that the corn mash has a peculiar effect upon them, and it is against the law to sell their milk."

ET THE CAR ROBBERS GO.

Two Desperadoes Arrested at San Bernardino.

Suspicion Comes Too Late and They Quickly Flee.

Men are Taken While Smoking Opium With Women—They Answered Descriptions.

Two of the deperate San Pedro electric car robbers were arrested at San Bernardino last night and then released. They put up $5 ball without asking such as going to jail, and then quickly embraced the opportunity to escape from the officers.

Every fact goes toward indicating that two of the much-wanted trio thus escaped the clutches of the law. At about the hour last night a night officer from San Bernardino found two men and two women smoking opium in a house of ill-fame, and placed them under arrest. The men were hard-looking characters, but were attired in new clothing of fine quality and flashy pattern, while their companions were women of the town. One of the men was lying down to a six-shooter of immense proportions. The men promptly offered bail for their appearance, and the officer accepted $5 for each person, without so much as inquiring their names, intending to enter them in the common "John Doe" manner.

On his way to the station the officer began to ponder over the peculiar appearance of the men and began to suspect that they were something more than common "hop heads." On arrival at the Police Station he reported his suspicions, and the officers consulted the descriptions of the hold-up men just broadcast by the Los Angeles police. Comparison with this convinced the officer who made the arrest that he had stumbled upon the two of the trio of robbers. The first thought was to hasten back and again take the pair into custody, but this was delayed for the moment until more positive information could be had from Los Angeles regarding definite marks for identification. This delay was considered safe, as the sporty pair apparently had settled themselves at the disreputable house for all night.

The Los Angeles police headquarters were called up by long-distance telephone, but as there was some delay in getting into communication, the officer who made the arrest decided to start back and get the men. The suspects were described in detail to the Los Angeles police, and when they had compared it with their records the opinion that the men taken were the robbers was greatly strengthened. The local police gave further details of the descriptions given by the robbers by the passengers robbed, and the San Bernardino end also felt sure that they were in contact with the Los Angeles desperadoes.

Though the delay occasioned by the officer's trip to the station had been very short, when he arrived at the bawdy house the birds had flown. There was every evidence that they had deserted in the greatest haste. The women inmates of the house protested their entire ignorance of the identity of their companions, and declared that they had given no hint that they were criminals beyond the fact that one was armed with an immense six-shooter. All officers available in San Bernardino were turned out on an early-morning hunt for the fugitives, and the town was scoured, but without result.

A message to The Times by long-distance telephone at 3 o'clock this morning stated that no trace of the men could be found, and there was no indication that they had "hit the road" out of town or been secreted by friends.

One of the suspects was described by the San Bernardino officers as being 5 ft. 9 in., sandy complexion and very red hair. The other was an inch taller, and had a voice of such great depth and harshness as distinguished in so pronounced a manner one of the car robbers.

NURSES ENTERTAIN.

The twenty-five nurses of the County Hospital Training School, headed by the matron, Miss Hopkins, and the hospital superintendent, Dr. D. C. Barber, gave a dancing party at the Nurses' Home last evening. It was the first social function of the new administration. There were about sixty persons present, the majority of the guests being young physicians. The lawn about the home was lit up by Japanese lanterns strung beneath the trees. At midnight an elaborate supper was served out of doors.

DEMOCRATIC CLUB CONVENTION.

The Iroquois Club last night took the second step in its campaign to secure the next annual convention of the National Association of Democratic Clubs for Los Angeles. The place of meeting is to be decided by the Executive Committee, and the Iroquois Club last night instructed its secretary to address each one of the twenty members of the national central body, setting forth the advantages of Los Angeles and the inducements which could be offered. The convention will meet about May, 1904.

About Ready For That New HAT?

The $3.00 hat has been a hobby of ours ever since "Silverwood's" became a name that men associated with smart clothes.

We figured this way. If a man gets a real big solid value at $3; if he gets a hat that looks, wears and feels every bit as good as though he paid somebody $5.00 for it—then that man is going to give us some of his business.

And if his shirts, underwear, hosiery, etc., give him equal satisfaction, then this business will continue getting bigger and broader just as it has always grown. So, season by season, the $3 Silverwood hat has covered more and more heads. It's good enough for any man, for there's nothing better in style variety, or long service.

POMONA.

TO TEST GAS O DINANCE.

POMONA, Sept. 3.—City Marshal Ogle this morning arrested Manager S. C. Carter and Collector Paul Denninger of the Pomona and Ontario Light and Fuel Company on complaints, charging them with a misdemeanor in violating the city ordinance passed some time ago, fixing the maximum charge for gas at $1.50 per 1000 cubic feet. Since the passage of the ordinance the company has continued charging $2 per thousand, but has been giving a 10 per cent. discount on bills paid before the 5th of the month. It has been known that there has been dissatisfaction among some of the patrons of the company, who have paid their bills at the $2 rate under protest. Now the Marshal states that he is going to test the worth of the ordinance. If it is valid he proposes to enforce it. Allen P. Nichols has been engaged to look after the interests of the company here, and he will be associated with Attorney Herbert C. Brown of Los Angeles, who is a member of the company. A fight will be made and interesting developments are looked for.

SCHOOL-OPENING PREPARATIONS

POMONA, Sept. 3.—Supervising Principal P. W. Kauffman and Head Janitor E. A. Reynolds are busy preparing for the opening of the public schools on Monday, September 21. The Board of Education has also decided to lay the corner-stone of the new High School building on Pearl street on that same day, and appropriate exercises are being arranged. The following janitors for the different schools have been appointed: Harry Waite, Sixth street; Mrs. Lena Dodere, Seventh street; Mrs. J. Rinearson, Tenth street, and old Central school; Mrs. S. W. Soper, Pearl street; Mrs. E. J. Howard, Libbie street, and East Kindergarten; Mrs. J. Maruge, North Pomona; Mrs. O. H. Hottel, Kingsley tract; Mrs. George Williams, Currier tract; M. M. Martin, Central school. Miss Stella Ralph has been appointed an assistant teacher in the first grade of the Central, and fourth grade of the Sixth-street schools.

POMONA POINTERS.

The death of Rev. Elias D. Howell occurred at his home on West Eleventh street here this morning. The deceased was a retired Congregational minister, and came here from Oregon two years ago in failing health. He was 61 years old, and a veteran of the Civil War. The funeral will be held from the house tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock under the auspices of the G. A. R. Post, Rev. J. H. Goodell officiating.

Miss Gertrude Hibbard, Pomona contestant in The Times' scholarship contest, has gone to Los Angeles to remain until after the counting of the votes, and the closing festivities.

TOLD SECOND HAND

An Interesting True Tale of Feeding.

A bright young woman of Coin, Iowa, who keeps her eyes open tells an interesting and true story of her chum's experience with food.

She says: "She had nervous dyspepsia for several years and when an attack came on she would go to a physician and get some relief up to last year when she had the Grip which left her very weak and then her stomach collapsed and refused to certain anything but the very simplest foods. Soon she could not eat even those and for seven days she had no nourishment but raw egg and milk and she was told by a physician that a change of air and scene might restore her to partial health but she would never again be well and would probably die of consumption of the bowels.

"She always complained of terrible distress after eating which was soon followed by vomiting yet she was so hungry all the time that she would try to eat. One day she read an article about Grape-Nuts and asked her father to get some and he went out and bought a package. She took a tablespoonful moistened with a little milk. The taste was delicious and satisfying and to every one's surprise there was absolutely no pain or trouble in her stomach after eating it.

"After a couple of hours she called for some more Grape-Nuts and this time the amount was doubled and soon after eating it she fell into a sound, natural sleep, sleeping for several hours, something she had not done since her illness without the aid of morphine. She continued to use Grape-Nuts alone for one week improving rapidly all the time and then began to increase her diet as her returning strength and appetite made this possible.

"Four months from the time she first commenced the use of Grape-Nuts she became a comparatively healthy girl, quite strong and vigorous, eating, sleeping and working much better than she had done for years. She and all of her friends feel that she owes her life to the scientific food Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

BUSINESS.

Bank clearings for the week ending today were $5,591,803.08. Last week they were $4,935,183.85. For the week ending Saturday last year they were $3,930,312. and in 1901 $2,486,531.32.

Wheat was down, but corn and oats were higher at Chicago. The dead level of dullness at New York was more pronounced than at any time lately. Few stocks, however, were depressed as much as a point.

COUNTY PRINTING—THE TRUE PRINCIPLE.

A man who has been caught at an unseemly hour in his neighbor's chicken-coop, if he has any judgment at all, ever after avoids the subject of the illegal acquirement of poultry, and it is somewhat surprising to see the Evening Express breaking out on the topic of the county advertising. One of two conclusions must be drawn: either the Express is utterly lacking in a sense of the fitness of things or is wholly reckless as to the uncovering of its spots to the public gaze. It cannot think that there is nobody in Los Angeles county with a memory.

Not only does the Express show poor taste in its croaking because the Supervisors have given the county printing to the Journal, but the whole tenor of its argument is against its own case. The Express avers that to print the county advertising in what it terms a "class publication" of limited circulation is to defeat the ends of law and endanger the validity of future legal procedure. It urges that the law designs that the county advertising shall be placed in a newspaper of general circulation so that it may be seen of all men—which is true. But this being the case, the printing should be done not in the Santa Monica Outlook nor in the Express nor in the Journal, but in a newspaper like The Times that is generally and widely circulated within the real meaning of those terms. There should be no splitting of hairs on this matter. It is well known that neither the Santa Monica Outlook nor the Evening Express nor the Journal is a paper of "general circulation" in the popularly accepted sense of the phrase or in fact.

The Express puts its foot in it again when it enunciates the principle that the advertising should be given to the newspaper of general circulation whose bid is the lowest. Although the Express claims that its own bid is the lowest, and baldly states that the bid of The Times is the highest, the facts are that on the basis of circulation the bid of The Times was the lowest submitted. This is not a matter of theory or of estimate, but one of cold figures.

The Times offered to print the county advertising at the rate of 67 2-10 cents per inch, or if put on a circulation basis, at the rate of 2 cents per inch per thousand of circulation. The bid of the Express was 40 cents per inch, which would be at the rate of about 4 cents per inch per thousand. The bid of the Santa Monica Outlook was 15 cents per inch, or at the circulation rate of about 15 cents per inch per thousand. The Journal's bid of 27 cents per inch is at the rate of about 6 cents per inch per thousand.

What is the object of advertising? Publicity, of course. What do all advertisers seek to get for their money? Value, always value, as in buying anything else. How do all advertisers reckon the value derivable in placing advertising? By the amount of publicity they secure, based on the circulation of the medium chosen. No merchant in Los Angeles will pay the Santa Monica Outlook or the Evening Express anywhere near the rate for advertising that he will pay The Times. The rate he pays is in every instance based on circulation. The county should do business in the same way. It should insist on value received. In buying advertising, stationery or anything else, it should adopt the best business methods and be governed only by sound business principles. Indeed the county has more reason than any merchant can have for insisting that its advertising have the broadest possible circulation, for the law and the equities contemplate that the legal announcements of the county officers go into the hands of every taxpayer throughout the whole county, whereas the average merchant generally seeks to reach some particular class of buyers.

The sworn statement of the business manager of The Times shows that this paper had an average daily circulation of 27,201 copies for every day of the month of August, 1903. The Express does not print a sworn statement of its circulation, which is more or less of an uncertain quantity, but is fairly presumed to be somewhere in the neighborhood of 10,000 copies daily. Accordingly its bid for the county advertising is at the rate of about 4 cents an inch per thousand, against the bid of 2 cents per inch per thousand of The Times. As already pointed out the bids of the other papers interested are much larger than that of The Times, when reckoned on a true basis. According to all rules of business, according to all the laws of fairness, according to all the rights of citizens and taxpayers to get the most for their money, the county advertising should go to The Times. The Board of Supervisors should reopen the case and award the contract as they would a personal contract, on the basis of value—should give the taxpayers their money's worth. Neither the Express nor the Santa Monica Outlook can deliver the goods.

There has been so much scandal in connection with these printing contracts that it is high time the Supervisors took a stand for square dealing and the introduction of business methods in public affairs in considering this matter. Two years ago the Express went into a combine with the Journal, the Record and the Herald to mulct the city and divide the swag. The scheme worked; the city was stuck, and the boodle was parceled out among the four papers. Last year the Express agreed to make a similar arrangement, but backed out, and after the plot was exposed by The Times, the cinch game was abandoned, the Journal reduced its bid from 35 to 15 cents an inch, and the sum of $15,000 was saved to the city by the exposure. With such a record, still fresh in the public mind, the Express would show better grace by singing low, instead of raising its voice to such a loud and marsupial pitch. There is no merit nor force in its claim for the county advertising, and the more it "hollers" the sillier it appears. A little frog with a loud voice only succeeds in calling attention to the fact that it is only a little frog.

To sum up, it is easy enough to decide this advertising question. Gentlemen of the Board of Supervisors, give the taxpayers the most for their money! Apply the same yard-stick as you would if you were doing the business for yourselves, and get for the county the most publicity at the lowest rate. If the Santa Monica Outlook, the Journal or the Evening Express can furnish more publicity at a lower rate than any other publication, one of them should get the contract. If The Times makes the lowest bid, as all advertising bids are reckoned, namely, on the basis of circulation, the contract should go to The Times. Figure it out, gentlemen!

SUGAR.

The cotton corner having apparently closed up, with a profit of millions to those who organized it, it looks as if an attempt was now to be made to control another staple, of prime necessity—sugar—not by cornering the supply in the market, but by obtaining possession, or control, of the source of supply. Instead of fighting beet sugar, the only serious rival it has in this country, the sugar trust has apparently reached the conclusion that it would be simpler and cheaper to swallow up the beet sugar business entirely. It is announced that the trust has already secured nine of the beet sugar factories in Michigan, and it is understood to have practically absorbed all the California factories except the big one of Senator Clark at Alamitos. There is much speculation among dealers as to whether this will go also. The public naturally hopes that it will remain "independent of the trust."

Meantime, the price of sugar has been steadily forced up, the latest increase of ten cents per hundred pounds having brought the price to $5.85, leaving practically nothing in it for the jobber or the retailer, to whom it represents one of their largest cash investments. It is somewhat significant that the Clark sugar is being sold at exactly the same price as the product of the trust.

It will be found a big contract, even for the sugar trust, to permanently control the beet sugar output of the United States, for the reason that the sugar beet may be and is successfully raised over so wide an area of the country, and can be made much cheaper than cane sugar, while there is never any difficulty about disposing of the product, which is "as good as gold"—or eggs. The increase in the output of American beet sugar is scarcely sufficient to equal the increased consumption, and a home market that represents an annual value of over $100,000,000 is sure to attract investors, in these days of cheap money. California, alone, could supply the whole United States with sugar, if lands now devoted to grain were utilized for the more profitable crop.

GUARDING THE PRESIDENT.

The incident which occurred at Sagamore Hill on Tuesday night, while fortunately it had no ill consequences, emphasizes anew the necessity for surrounding the Chief Executive of the United States with all possible precautions for his personal safety. It may not be that the insane man, Weilbrenner, would have attempted to do personal harm to the President if he had been able to reach him; and again, he might have made such an attempt, and it might have been successful. There is no telling what a crazy man will do, and inasmuch as Weilbrenner was armed with a big revolver, it is not unreasonable to presume that he meant to use it if, in his demented brain, he conceived its use to be necessary.

At all events, no precautions should be omitted to insure, so far as possible, the life and safety of the President. As an individual, Mr. Roosevelt is quite able and willing to take care of himself, so far as personal dangers may threaten. But the dangers which threaten him, more or less continuously, do not menace him because he is Theodore Roosevelt, but because he is President of the United States. If he were plain Theodore Roosevelt, he would not accept, nor would he receive, any more protection than any other citizen. The armed guards that watch over him are protecting the President, not merely the individual who occupies temporarily the office of President.

Within the lifetime of men still living and not yet old, three Presidents have been assassinated in the United States. After the terrible and tragic lessons which we have had, it would seem that no well-meaning citizen could object to the efficient guarding of the President. Yet, strange to say, there are many such who profess to believe that such precautions are unnecessary, undemocratic, and unwise. They say that, in conformity to the principles of democratic simplicity, the President should go about among the people like any other citizen, unarmed and unattended. Those who reason thus apparently forget that the days of democratic simplicity are past, and that they have been superseded by conditions which perhaps may properly be termed democratic complexity. Our nation has grown from one of the least in population in the world to one of the most populous. Its vast population has been drawn from all parts of the world, and it necessarily contains a certain proportion of cranks, malcontents, anarchists, degenerates, and other dangerous persons. By reason of his exalted position as the head of a great nation, the President is exposed to unusual and peculiar dangers which he would not encounter as an individual citizen. Therefore, it seems eminently right and proper that armed men should be constantly near his person, ready to protect him from any and all dangers, so far as it is possible to do so.

It is not pleasant to contemplate the results that might have ensued if the lunatic, Weilbrenner, had succeeded in getting near the person of the President, on Tuesday night, and had taken it into his crazy pate to force the President, at the point of a gun, to consent to give him his daughter Alice in marriage—the scheme which he had in mind. While the encounter would probably have resulted disastrously for Weilbrenner, it might have had other and far more terrible issue, and the nation might have been called upon to mourn another martyred President, sent to his death "in the line of duty."

THE BEST BOAT WON.

Results have proven the soundness of Sir Thomas Lipton's judgment, expressed in the remark that he would wait till Great Britain had produced a boat-builder equal to Herreshoff before challenging again for the America's cup. The Reliance has won three straight races and won them under conditions that leave no doubt as to the superiority of the American yacht. There has been a wish that the two boats might sail a race with exchanged crews, the American sailors and skipper manning the Shamrock and the English tars taking the Reliance. Such an experiment would possess some interest, but it is universally conceded that there would be nothing new at the finish line. With consummate ability has she been sailed, but it is the boat that has won the races. Captain and crew deserve plaudits, but Herreshoff's is the palm.

The gallant owner of the Shamrock has been heard to say that he really believed the Americans would like to see him win, and that too is true in a way. So conspicuous has been his good sportsmanship, so generous has been his attitude, so well has he borne himself in all the series of contests, that he has awakened widespread admiration on this side of the sea and has won a sympathy that, as he says, barely stopped short of pushing his boat over the line first. "The right stuff" is America's verdict on Sir Thomas. If the British press and public have as much good sense and firmness as he, they will now make handsome acknowledgment that as builders of racing craft the Americans have no rivals. Generally speaking, the American type leads in speed and staying qualities, whether in the boat or in the man.

Our good old friend, the London Lancet, declares that the fat baby is not what it is cracked up to be—that it is "hypertrophic, cold to the touch, square-headed, gelatinous and flabby, with none of the elasticity of the vigorous, healthy, breast-fed infant." Ha, ha! and ho, ho! So those fat little chaps that their mothers have been beaming about all over the country ever since babies commenced to come among us are mistaken, are they? Well, well! He is hypertrophic, is he? My, oh, my! Another fond illusion shattered. Another source of pride humbled and rolled in the dust. The faith of humanity has been pinned to the fat baby, it has been the popular impression that he was entitled to all the prizes at the baby show and that his mother was the smartest woman in the neighborhood. Poor little chap, guess we will have to bant him.

John Temple Graves of Georgia has been heard from again on the negro question. He asserts that "the antagonism of peoples is the fixed policy by which God peoples the different portions of the universe and establishes the individuality of nations." Just how John Temple Graves of Georgia happens to know all about the policies of the Almighty hasn't been stated. If Mr. Graves is an ambassador from the celestial court we would like to see his credentials. For our part we have our doubts about the authority of Mr. Graves in the premises. Were the God of nations to send out a representative to define His policies He would be mighty likely to pick out somebody for the office besides John Temple Graves of Georgia.

The long agony is over, the Reliance has won again in races, as well as in all the contests that weren't races. Sir Thomas Lipton, who deserves a better fate, returns to his tea scales with a beautiful row of goose eggs to his credit, and that is about all. And yet that isn't all, either, for he takes back with him the admiration of the great American people for his gameness and his sunny disposition. The cup remains on this side the pond, where it has lingered for so many years and where it is altogether likely to stay for many long years to come.

When that lovely pair Weary Willie and Dusty Rhodes hear that we are building a stockade and hauling rock in Los Angeles that they may have a nice quiet place in which to sit and hammer away all the livelong day on granite boulders that are no end hard, possibly they will conclude to pass this old pueblo by on the other side. Should such prove to be the case it will be real nice—for us.

Had the distinguished forester who is now among us made a few timely remarks upon the need of trees in Los Angeles the same would have been taken in good part. Trees may be needed on the mountains, to be sure, but there are likewise other places.

The milk dealers of Pittsburgh have formed a combine, but let it be recorded that none of them have as yet been arrested for doping the stuff that they tote about town in their daily rounds. Would that little old Los Angeles could say as much.

If a policeman could see a trolley-car bandit as readily as he does a wheelman who rides on the sidewalk in order to get out of the mud occasioned by an enthusiastic street-sprinkler, this would be one of the safest towns to go street-car riding in on the continent.

Newport has had monkey dinners, dog dinners, and lion dinners, regarding which it has had much to say. The many donkey dinners it has also had were probably so conventional that special mention thereof hasn't been considered essential.

STANDING PAT.

A FAIR STATEMENT OF THE CASE.

Industrial Freedom Under the Law.

[San Francisco News Letter:] More than 300 of the leading business men of Los Angeles have presented Editor Otis of the Los Angeles Times with a testimonial indorsing the Times' stand on the labor question. . . . He is a firm believer in the sovereignty of the American citizen, and in his right to enjoy the benefits accruing from such citizenship, and that is why he, years ago, became the champion of the independent wage-earner against the tyranny of labor unionism.

He has always insisted that the individual had the God and Constitution-given right to be a free man in all the term implies, and that one of his highest rights is to seek employment and accept it upon terms of his own and employer's making. Naturally, therefore, he has been a bitter foe to such labor organizations as stand for the abrogation of individual rights and the substitution of union-made "you shall and you shall not" law. For years The Times has been boycotted by all labor organizations; yet it has steadily gained strength in circulation, public esteem and confidence and in wealth accumulation. And all that because down deep in public sentiment there is a sense of justice and patriotism that abhors the sacrifice of the individuality and personal freedom of the citizen to the whims and tyranny of unions, cults or organizations that would circumscribe and dwarf a man's honest effort to be and to live the highest and truest expression of the nobility of free and independent manhood that he is capable of conforming to in manly aspiration. . . .

It is flattering to Editor Otis to feel and know that after all these years of strife and toil and battle against the tyranny of labor unionism, practically the whole of the business community in which his newspaper circulates now comes to the front with hearty indorsement of his heroic efforts to uphold and maintain the true dignity and manhood and independence of labor in all its sovereign freedom and rights. This action on the part of the business men of Los Angeles is public approval of Editor Otis's persistent war upon the tyranny of organized labor means that he is reinforced by those who make opportunity for brain and brawn to employ themselves, and it means, too, that a higher, truer and stronger standard of moral force and individual strength of character, freedom and independence has been established in Southern California, against which the fury and hatred and tyranny of labor unionism shall not prevail.

Ashamed of Its Viciousness?

[New York Commercial, Aug. 17:] The Commercial cannot withhold commendation from the delegates to the annual convention of the International Typographical Union, lately in session at Washington, for their refusal to vote an assessment on the entire union membership for the purpose of promoting crime by the organization. It appears that a majority of these delegates was more conservative and displayed more common sense than the lesser number constituting the Committee on Laws, for the latter's recommendation was promptly voted down. [A mistake, obviously.—Ed. Times.]

That recommendation was in the form of a resolution, providing for assessing all members of the union in the United States 5 cents per month each for the purpose of raising a fund with which to carry on the fight against non-union newspapers, by means of boycotting and the coercion of advertisers; and it was very generally understood that this fund, if so raised, was to be used chiefly—if not exclusively—for injuring and destroying, if possible, the business of the Los Angeles Times. It was voted, however, to appropriate $2500 a month from the treasury of the union to be used as a "defense fund." [This was mere cowardly dodging of the issue.—Ed. Times.]

Possibly this action may have served to conceal from the public the real use to which the money is to be devoted. And, if it was so intended, it discloses a semi-sense of decency on the part of the delegates that is not to be condemned; that is, the convention refused to go on public record as compelling union printers to pay a tax for enforcing boycotts on newspapers that have the consistency and the courage to employ whomsoever they choose for doing their mechanical work. It shows that these union printers, although they may intend to keep up their present war on non-union offices, are at least ashamed to say so outright in the way proposed by their Laws Committee.

We would like to feel sure that this $30,000-a-year "defense fund" is to be used for defense alone—that is, for defending the Typographical Union against attacks actually made on it. Unfortunately, the union's past history only justifies a belief that this money is for "offense" and not for "defense." So, until its policy in the disbursement of the fund develops fully, the union is to be credited only with a sense of shame at its own inherent viciousness.

Los Angeles Times Commended by Citizens.

[Terre Haute (Ind.) Gazette:] The Typographical Union has for years urged the same kind of guerrilla warfare, by a bulldozing, boycotting, misrepresenting conspiracy against the Los Angeles (Cal.) Times as against the Terre Haute Gazette. Large appropriations have been made by the national organization to assist the local organizations in each place to prosecute the fight. There has been an abundance of graft.

Citizens of Los Angeles recently sent to Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, the president of the Times Company, an address commending the position of The Times in the warmest terms. They credit much of the phenomenal growth of Los Angeles to the work of The Times. The Times, like the Gazette, is simply fighting for its own and its employes' inalienable rights. The address to The Times is signed by a very large number of citizens, irrespective of politics.

Gen. Otis makes an extended reply to the address.

SAM PARKS.

"What are we going to do, my man,
What shall we do for bread,
You bring no money in Saturday night,
And we'll soon have to pawn the bed;
The children sell papers, but that's not much,
And my eyes with crying are red,
Bob's jacket is worn, and the baby frets—
Say, what will we do for bread?"
The man took his pipe from his mouth and said,
"Go ask Sam Parks."

"Oh, haven't ye had enough of Parks
And his fighting the men who pay;
They want good hands and will pay them well,
But Parks must have his way;
Why don't you show him that you're a man,
And get out and go to work;
Why do you truckle and cringe and bend
To such a blathering Turk?
Aren't ye ashamed?" "Perhaps," said the man;
"Go ask Sam Parks."

"I am your wife and I'm all in rags,
And the children are ragged, too.
You're out of a job the last two months.
What does Parks do for you?
He gives ye a dollar now and again
His pocket is always lined,
And ye walk about like a yellow cur
That fears the kick behind."
Said the man as he dropped his pipe on the floor,
"Dam Sam Parks!"

Rather a Sad Case.

Pushing his way through the crowd at the bar in Thomas Burns's saloon, at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and Third avenue, an old man said to a bartender, "I want a policeman."

"We don't keep 'em on draught," said the barkeeper. "What'd you do with a policeman?"

"I want to be arrested," said the stranger. "I've got no home and I haven't had a bite to eat for two days."

He looked it, but the crowd chose to be jocose.

"Steal the electric fan," was the advice of one man. "The one they had here before was stolen and the fellow was arrested all right."

The old man gazed at him reproachfully; then went into the back room. Nobody thought he would take the advice, so he was not followed. Five minutes later Patrolman Schaefer was surprised to see a man running with an electric fan in his arms. Schaefer stopped him.

"I stole it," said the man. "They told me to."

In the Police Station he devoured ravenously the food Capt. McNally had brought in. That was on Saturday night. Yesterday in the Harlem court he said he was Charles Vernan; that he had asked a hundred persons for alms and had not received a cent. He was held. He will have prison food for the next few days.—[New York Press.

EVENTS IN SOCIETY.

Miss Annie McIntosh Henderson was married last evening to Louis Murdock at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Margaret Henderson, at No. 1255 E. Washington street. At 7:30, Mrs. Dr. Lee played the wedding march, and the bridal party entered the front parlor, where the ceremony was performed under a canopy of white roses and ferns, by Rev. Dr. Hugh K. Walker. Only the relatives and a few intimate friends were present.

The bride's gown was in white, simple but beautiful, and she carried a shower bouquet of Bride's roses and orange blossoms. Her only ornament was a sunburst of pearls, a gift from the groom. The interior of the house was beautifully decorated with greenery and a color scheme of white in the parlor and pink was carried out in the dining-room. The bride was for several years a teacher in the Liberty school, East End, Pittsburgh, Pa., where she is well known in social circles. Mr. Murdock is also of Pittsburgh, but is now located in Los Angeles, being connected with Wells-Fargo. A wedding tour will be taken to Coronado and Mexico, and the young people will return and reside in this city.

For Miss Mullen.

Miss Adeline Mullen gave a farewell party in honor of her sister, Carrie, who will leave next week to attend school at Del Sur. The evening was devoted to games and a series of exercises which partook of the nature of the "district school." Those present were: Misses Snediker, Nichols, Leonard, Murry, Donahue, Rose, Murry, Lewis, Bertonneau, Andrews, Kohler, Carrie Mullen and Adeline Mullen, Messrs. Kohler, Bertonneau, Hersom, Gates, Nickols, Fulcher, Leonard, Pius, R. Leonard and Mullen.

Rogue-Ross.

Miss Jennie Ross of Brookline, Mass., was married to Charles L. Hogue, formerly of this city, by Rev. Dr. W. S. Goodwin, Wednesday evening, at No. 635 South Hill street. Mr. Ross is a prominent business man in Battle Creek, Mich., and the young couple left for the East last night, and will make their home in Battle Creek.

At the Country Club.

Mrs. Charles M. Shannon of No. 2405 West Sixth street entertained about twenty ladies at the Country Club yesterday afternoon in honor of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Baylor Shannon of Clifton, Ariz. The luncheon was served in the dining-room, which was decorated in clematis and yellow asters. The place cards were water-color sketches of fancy highly-colored heads. Those invited were: Mrs. Olin Wellborn, Mrs. Burton Green of San Francisco, Mrs. Rowland Bishop, Mrs. Scott Helm, Mrs. Lynn Helm, Mrs. E. P. Clark, Mrs. Flora Johnston, Mrs. Charles Reed, Mrs. Ben oGodrich, Mrs. E. R. Prewitt, Mrs. Robert Ingram, Mrs. Clay of Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. Harriet Wright, Mrs. Charles R. Drake, Mrs. W. M. Lewis, Mrs. J. B. DuPuy, Mrs. Willoughby Rodman, Mrs. Albert Cutcher and Misses Louise Burke and Susie Howard.

Notes and Personals.

Mrs. Rufus H. Herron, with her daughter, Edith, and son, Paul, left last night for the East. Miss Herron will attend school at Ogontz, near Philadelphia. Mrs. Herron and her son will visit relatives in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and New York, and upon their return, about January 1, will move to Pasadena, where they will make their permanent residence.

Mrs. Emeline Childs, Miss Childs, Miss Chamberlin, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Redman and Miss Jean Redman have gone to the Hotel Del Monte, Monterey, for a two weeks' visit.

Mr. and Mrs. John Koster, Miss Callit and Roy Koster have moved to No. 1404 South Flower street. Miss Koster will receive the first and second Mondays.

Miss Ella Calish of San Francisco, who is visiting her brother, J. J. Calish, and family, No. 911 West Eleventh street, has returned from a visit with Mrs. G. Kirshner, at Camp Bivouac, Santa Catalina Island.

CALIFORNIA TEXTBOOKS.

Bulletin Issued by the Superintendent of Public Instruction—A New United States History Being Issued.

The State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Thomas J. Kirk, has just issued Bulletin 21, addressed to boards of education, and relating to school textbooks, in which he says:

"A new United States history of the State series, suitable for the advanced grammar grades, composed in the main of text matter that is well known and recognized by all educators as of the highest order of excellence, has just been published under the general direction and approval of the State Board of Education and is now going out for use in the schools. A tabulated statement of the opinions and criticisms of the State Textbook Secretary and a number of expert history teachers on subject matter for a primary United States history is now before the committee, and a selection of such matter will be made within a few days, and publication of the book will be pushed to completion at the earliest possible date. It has been decided by the committee that in addition to the two books on United States history, new textbooks on both geography and arithmetic shall be completed and ready for use in the schools by July 1, 1904.

"The entire list of subjects to be taught in the primary and grammar schools, and for which textbooks may properly be required, will be prepared and published just as speedily as the Textbook Committee can do the work, and do it as in its judgment it should be done.

"The committee will, in accordance with its interpretation of the law, designate texts for supplementary use just as soon as the State series principal texts for a given subject has been prepared and published. Textbooks for supplementary use in the subject of advanced United States history will probably be announced in a few days.

"Members of school boards, superintendents and teachers, those school officials who have taken an oath of office, particularly those who are drawing public school money, should feel under both a legal and a moral obligation not only to abide by the laws of the State, but to assist in carrying them out.

"I have regard for my oath of office, and in the event of its being conclusively shown to me that the authorities of any county, city and county, city, or school district have violated the provisions of the law above quoted, I shall surely not shrink from the discharge of the duties imposed upon me as Superintendent of Public Instruction. I have specific directions from the Attorney-General as to how to proceed in the event of its being necessary to withhold State funds from a single district."

PROTECT THE FORESTS WATER AND GAME.

FORESTRY CHIEF PINCHOT URGES NECESSITY OF IT.

Greeted at the Chamber of Commerce Yesterday Morning and His Work Indorsed by Other Speakers—Great Value of Water Here.

Gifford Pinchot, Chief of the United States Bureau of Forestry, received yesterday morning his second welcome to this section since his arrival Wedesday evening, this time in the form of a public greeting at the Chamber of Commerce, where he spoke at 11 o'clock. The assemblage was made up principally of local officials of the Forestry Bureau and General Land Office, and members of the chamber especially interested in the subject under discussion.

President Ferd K. Rule of the chamber presided, and after a few cordial words of welcome, resigned the floor to the chief forester.

Mr. Pinchot spoke along the general lines upon which he audressed the guests at the dinner given in his honor Wednesday night at the California Club.

"I have had the pleasure of knowing Southern California for a long time," he said, "and I know that you appreciate here the importance of the preservation of natural watersheds more than the people of any other section of the United States. Nowaere else in the United States is an inch of water of so great a market value as here, and nownere else is there such a valuable watershed, and one so destructible. Upon the protection of your forests and chaparral growths rests the destiny of every industry of Southern California. As it is now, I believe that only about 20 per cent. of the land capable of cultivation in this section is under ditch. The time is in sight when the San Gabriel Valley must depend for irrigation upon the annual rainfall of its watershed, because of the depletion of underground sources by increased consumption."

He advocated the building of trails and the construction of fire lines throughout the reserves, and deplored a tendency to overeconomy on the part of the government in the work of forest preservation.

"One of the vital things is to make forest reserves more easily useful to adjacent settlers," said the speaker. "There is the man who wants a little dead timber for his fences, a little grazing for his few domestic animals, etc., and these he should be allowed, and his sentiment will be quickened in favor of the forest reserve policy, instead of turned against it."

Mr. Pinchot also advocated the protection of game within designated spots of the reserves.

Remarks also were made by Hon. P. M. Daniels of Riverside and Hon. James McLachlan and W. G. Kerckhoff, who indorsed the chief forester and his work in unmeasured terms.

Among the local forest workers present were Forest Superintendent Col. B. F. Allen, Forest Supervisor E. B. Thomas and Prof. T. F. Lukens.

LOCALS WON AGAIN.

NCHED HITS PROPERLY.

Angeles, 7; Seattle, 1.

Loolcos took a fall out of St.
yesterday for the beating he them last Saturd, and it all to sudden that the Siwashes could thing to stop the show. It was a miss affair and over 1500 spec-
ors on hand to see it.
e was nothing particularly spec-r during the afternoon, for the e by Dolly Gray and St. Vrain ood enough to win any game, was stingy with his hits and tsmen had a rough time of it to land on the ball, although of them hit it hard. There were ight outs in the suburbs and how that the ball was not slapped very fiercely. Delan had an of it in throwing the ball and Gray and St. Vrain were bad, for when they threw the a base every fan in Los An-usual the Siwashes opened the ning with a run, which they n Lumley's double. Mohler's out at first, and the run home after Hoy's catch of Brashear's fly to center. In the second Gin Fizz Zinsear hit to right, and went to second on Andrews's sacrifice. Then Delan was safe at first on Toman's throw to Dillon of his grounder, which Dolan knocked out of Dillon's hands as he arrived at the base. In trying to catch Gin Fizz stealing third Dolly Gr threw the ball a mile and a half st Wheeler and Gin Fizz and Dolan scored. Mohler scored in the third on a pass, a balk, Brashear's out at first and Smith's slow bunt toward Wheeler. The final run came in the fourth on a Gin Fizz two spot, a fielder's choice and Bostiger's hit to left.

The locals scored their first two on Toman's pass, Dolan's fumble of Hurlburt's grounder and his wild throw past first of Dolly's bouncer. The next was on Wheeler's pass, St. Vrain's wild throw over first base and a fielder's choice. The sixth started with Dolan's fumble of Toman's bounder, and after that Hurlburt doubled, Hoy and Wheeler singled and Corbett hit a two-horse drive to center and Toman, Hurlburt, Hoy and Wheeler crossed the pan.

FITZGERALD WINS CONTEST.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 3.—Fitzgerald won a hard-fought ten-inning contest today, and is entitled to due credit, as his support at times made errors in critical points that were always expensive. For eight innings the San Francisco batters could do nothing with his delivery, and the visitors should have been retired in the ninth inning without a run, had it not been for a costly error by Eagan. Lindsey also pitched a good game. McLaughlin and Shay were put off the field for kicking, and several of the players were fined. Score:

OAKLAND-SAN FRANCISCO.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—Heavy batting featured today's game, both of the pitchers being hammered continuously in a number of innings, but the Northerners had the advantage of being earlier in the slugging, and their nine hits in the first two innings gave them eight runs. In the seventh, Oakland pounced upon McFarlan for half a dozen hits, but only two men got around the circuit. Score:

ROGER WILLIAMS' STAKE.

BILLY BUCK THE WINNER.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

PROVIDENCE (R. I.) Sept. 3.—The Roger Williams $10,000 stake for 2:14 trotters was the feature of the third day's racing in the Grand Circuit meeting at Narragansett Park today. Billy Buck, a bay gelding owned by E. E. Smathers and driven by E. F. Geers of Memphis, Tenn., carried off the big purse, winning in three straight heats. In a field of eleven Scott Hudson's horse, Jay McGregor, had the pole. The horses went to the three-quarter pole with McGregor in the lead, and then began a battle royal down the stretch. Billy Buck drew steadily out of the bunch, headed the leader when within two hundred yards of the finish, and captured the first heat by a narrow margin in 2:08¾, the best time made during the race. Geers took the lead in the second heat and found it easy to maintain that position, winning by a length handily.

For more than half a mile in the final heat the field held together so closely that the horses could hardly be distinguished. Billy Buck won in a hard drive by a nose. Summary:

The 2:18 pace, purse $2000: Trilby Direct won the second, third and fourth heats in 2:08¾, 2:10¾, 2:11¼. Sadie Baron won the first heat in 2:07¼.

The 2:14 class, trotting, Roger Williams Stake, purse $10,000: Billy Buck won three straight heats in 2:09¾, 2:09¾, 2:10. Jay McGregor, Masetta and eight others also started.

The 2:08 class, pace, purse $1000, two in three: Locanda won the first and third heats in 2:07, 2:07¼. Albert won the second heat in 2:07.

The 2:18 class, trot, purse $1000, two in three: Dillon Boy won two straight heats in 2:13¾, 2:11¼.

ATTEL BEATS REAGAN.

CLEVER CONTEST AT ST. LOUIS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) Sept. 3.—Abe Attel of San Francisco tonight received the decision over Johnny Reagan of Brooklyn in a twenty-round contest for the world's featherweight championship, weight 122 pounds at the ringside. The contest was one of the cleverest and fastest ever seen here.

Reagan showed cleverness in blocking and infighting, and so perfect was his guard that it seemed almost impossible for Attel to get through. His inside work troubled Attel considerably. Abe seemed unable to land an effective blow, while on the other hand Reagan repeatedly sent left and right to the head and stomach, causing Attel to wince and frequently appeal to the referee.

Attel seemed clearly beaten for the first fifteen rounds. In the sixteenth round, Abe sent in a left and right which shook Johnny up considerably, and the tide changed to the Californian's favor. From then on, Abe had slightly the better of it.

In the nineteenth round, Abe rushed Reagan to the ropes and sent in several stiff punches. Reagan came back strong, but his punches on the stomach and cheek landed lightly. He, however, failed to even matters. The twentieth round was a give-and-take affair, with honors about even. The decision was received with some signs of disapproval.

James J. Corbett was present at the ringside.

JOY ON GOLF LINKS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

GLENCOVE (L. I.) Sept. 3.—Only eight golfers are now left to continue the fight for the amateur golf championship of the United States, and the result of tomorrow's play in the tournament on the links of the Nassau Country Club will determine the two who will fight out the final battle for national honors Saturday.

The eight survivors, after a day of hard matches and surprises, are: Paul Murphy, Garden City; F. O. Reinhart, Baltusrol; Walter J. Travis, Garden City, N. Y.; George T. Brokaw, Delaware, N. J.; W. R. Tackerman, Stockbridge, Mass.; E. M. Byers, Allegheny, Pa.; S. D. Cady, Rock Island, Ill., and Bruce D. Smith, Onwentsia, Ill.

Walter Travis won his game handily today, beating J. W. Tillingham of Pennsylvania, by 5 up and 2 to play.

Walter Egan, the western champion, was defeated by George Brokaw, 5 up and 4 to play.

POG ON RIFLE RANGE.

ONLY ONE MATCH ENDED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

SEAGIRT, Sept. 3.—A heavy fog completely enveloped the rifle range here this afternoon, and ended all work before the targets, preventing the finish of the interstate regimental match and the New Jersey National Guard match. The Columbia trophy match was the only one concluded.

The team representing the First New Jersey Regiment finished in first place, with a total of 262 out of a possible 300.

James Cummings has purchased of Herbert R. Kells and Mrs. Alma Erkes, through Mines & Farish, 100x150 feet, with three frame dwellings, on the northwest corner of Tenth and Sunbury streets; consideration named, $15,400.

August Weather.

The meteorological summary of the Weather Bureau shows the mean Los Angeles temperature for August to have been 70.6 deg.; maximum, 80.9; minimum, 60.2. There were eight clear days, and twenty-three partly cloudy. The normal temperature was 2 deg. below the average for twenty-six years.

Arrest Followed Fight.

H. G. Pound, Esq., was arrested yesterday morning on a warrant sworn out by J. C. Calhain, charging him with battery. The two lawyers had a dispute over business, and so heated became the argument that a fist fight followed, in which Calhain asserts he was vigorously assaulted by Pound. The accused gave bond for his appearance in the Police Court today.

Creditors After Him.

An involuntary bankruptcy petition has been filed in the United States District Court declaring F. M. Myers, a merchant of Redondo, to be insolvent, and asking that he be declared a bankrupt. The signers of the petition, and the amounts which they hold against Myers, are the Los Angeles Brewing Company, $327.15; M. Levy & Co., $278.55, and Goldschmidt Bros., $265.12.

Sabbath Services.

The regular Sabbath services of Temple B'nai B'rith of the Hebrew church will be resumed this evening at 8 o'clock. They will be held regularly hereafter at 8 o'clock every Friday night and 10:30 o'clock each Sunday morning. Tonight Rabbi Hecht, who will officiate, will deliver an address on "The House of God," it being in the nature of a report on his recent attendance at the Conference of Rabbis.

Boyle Heights' New Postmaster.

Reddington L. Snyder has been appointed to take charge of Station B, Boyle Heights, where H. C. Worland recently resigned because the postoffice authorities proposed to investigate the alleged connection of the sub-station with a "blind pig." Mr. Snyder took possession of the Boyle Heights office the first of the month, and Mrs. Snyder has been installed as chief clerk. The office will remain in the old location in the Hendrick Block on East First street.

Arrested for Expectorating.

A general order has been issued to the members of the police force, especially those who patrol beats in the heart of the city, to strictly enforce the sanitary ordinance which makes it a misdemeanor for a person to expectorate on the sidewalk. This order is the result of a request from the city health department, it being well known that the vile and careless habit has it in an element of danger to the health of the community. For persons were arrested for this offense within an hour after the night police watch left the Police Station last night.

Badger Club.

The Badger Club met at the Woman's Club House on South Figueroa street yesterday afternoon. The president, Mrs. G. D. Ruddy, read a letter from Mrs. W. T. Lewis, who is visiting in Wisconsin, and plans for the establishment of a home for self-supporting young women to be known as "The Young Women's Club House," were discussed. Committees were appointed and a house and housekeeper will be procured. Miss Mollie Adelia Brown sang four selections in the auditorium. The next meeting will be held the first Thursday in October.

Just Took the Eggs.

Julius von Hacht, a well-known character, who for years has conducted a tamale business in Los Angeles, was arrested last evening by Deputy Sheriff Brakesuhler on a charge of petty larceny. Julius needed a supply of eggs for the night's strenuous campaign in his tamale wagon and he is said to have "just taken them" from a Second-street dealer without going through the rather necessary formality of paying for them. Julius says it isn't so and even said so to the arresting officer, but the later was obdurate and Julius was taken to the Police Station.

Priests in Retreat.

Twelve of the priests of the congregation of the mission are in retreat in St. Vincent's College, under the instruction of Very Rev. J. S. Glass, C. M., D.D. The retreat will close Sunday morning. The college will open on the 14th inst., and a largely increased attendance is expected. Workmen are pushing the completion of the main part of the college building, so as to have that part in readiness for the opening day; but the new Father Meyer Memorial Hall will not be completed for two months yet. It will be opened with the production of a play by the dramatic club of St. Vincent's College.

TARBELL BANQUETED.

Well-known Life Insurance Chief Delivers a Ringing Address to His Southern California Workers.

A handsome banquet was tendered Gage E. Tarbell of New York, second vice-president of the Equitable Life Assurance Company of the United States, last night at the Westminster Hotel by the local staff of the famous organization.

The feast and the ensuing speechmaking was marked by the proverbial enthusiasm of insurance men, and the many bursts of applause that punctuated the evening's entertainment fairly shook the banquet hall. Many ladies were seated at the long, glowing table, and added gayety to the scene.

There were sixty-eight guests, presided over as toastmaster by A. M. Jones of this city, general agent for Southern California. The principal enthusiasm of the occasion was expressed over the ringing address of Mr. Tarbell, who spoke on "Insurance Companies in General and the Equitable Life in Particular."

Others who spoke were A. M. Shields, manager for California; A. M. Jones, Mrs. M. H. Hinvan, A. P. Chipron, city manager, and Miss Ament, private secretary to Mr. Tarbell.

Vice-President Tarbell, one of the best-known life insurance men in the United States, is here in his private car, accompanied by his wife and daughter, on a trip of general inspection along the Coast. He will remain in Southern California several days, and will probably visit Santa Catalina today, going to San Pedro with his family in his private car.

Our Entire Stock of Men's Fashionable Spring and Summer

Suits $9.55.

Worth $25, $22.50, $20, $17.50, $15.

We have a right to state that this clothing is truly the finest in America. In the many years we have been in business in Los Angeles it has been our constant effort to select the best makes, and if there was any better clothing to be had we would provide it for our patrons.

Bring us $9.95 and help yourself to any Spring or Summer suit in the store—worth from $15.00 up to $25.00.

Included are the swellest and richest business suits, in dark or light mixtures; also clever two-piece suits that may not only be worn for months this year, but which will be equally stylish and serviceable next Spring and Summer.

A tailor-made appearance and a tailor's quality for $9.55! We have a larger and better variety we offer finer clothing, and this is also the biggest reduction quoted by any store in Los Angeles.

America's Finest Fall Clothing

Our New York office is supplying us with the handsomest and most fashionable styles in men's Fall overcoats and suits. These have the new rounded shoulders and the smart cut that has already become so popular in Eastern cities. While our variety is very great we show a limited number of suits of any one kind, so that men should buy here for the satisfaction of wearing genuinely exclusive clothing.

As ever, we shall retail the finest and highest grade of clothing at less money than it can be bought for in any clothing house. Any style that is new, is here. Why pay "clothing store" profits?

Grand Sale of Boys' Suits

Extra Pair of Knee Pants Free.

It is our desire to become acquainted with hundreds of mothers who have hitherto bought boy's clothing elsewhere. We mean to offer you greater value and bigger variety, and as a special inducement we shall give away free of charge a splendid, extra pair of knee pants with all boys' suits from $2.95 up.

Our boys' clothing comes from the leading manufacturers, many of the suits are made of extra fine grade of cloth, by our special instructions.

We feel assured that each of the following lines sell in the average store at 20 per cent to 30 per cent higher than the prices we ask.

Boys' suits $2.45	Boys' suits $3.95	Boys' suits $6.00
Boys' suits $2.95	Boys' suits $4.45	Boys' suits $8.00

Fall Suits at Popular Prices.

IN choosing this season's line of suits our buyers shopped through every tailoring establishment of consequence in the country, securing values and varieties that would otherwise be impossible.

Every worthy grade, every style of material, every popular cut is the result. Women's costumes in the very latest fashions, ranging from $15 on up to $100, are here.

Today we mention a few exceptionally strong numbers at popular prices:

New Suits at $15.00 each.

Made of Scotch tweeds in mixed black and white and fancy colors—reds, browns, blues, greens, etc.—with 26-in. Louis XVI coats, blouse fronts, plaited back and front, double breasted, new sleeve with turn-back cuffs; skirt nicely tailored and stitched and broad stitched flare, each $15.00.

New Suits at $20.00 each.

Made of fancy mixed cheviots, tweeds and men's suitings, in all the popular mixtures; long skirted coats, some collarless, finished with black velvet and fancy braid, elaborately strapped and stitched; skirt instep length, tailor finished, full flare; a half dozen or more styles to select from; each $20.00.

Misses' Suits at $10.00 each.

Handsomely tailored dresses for misses of 14 to 17 years, of fancy invisible striped cheviot; straight front Norfolk jackets with black velvet collars, new sleeve; jacket and skirt prettily strapped and finished in fancy buttons; full flare skirt; a dozen different colors, each $10.00.

Why not the Steinway?

It means only a few more payments at the most. And then you have the ultimate satisfaction of possessing a piano that has no shortcomings, no limitations—that leaves nothing to be desired. To the true musician this is everything, for any lesser price is no consolation for the sacrifice of perfect tone, action or power. To produce the Steinway, three generations have worked together, handing down their ideal, their experience, their genius, from father to son.

Whose Fault If Your Home Isn't Well Furnished?

Blame no one if your home isn't furnished to your full satisfaction.

Our credit system has now become so conveniently arranged that any family who suffers the embarrassment and discomfiture of a poorly furnished home can truly blame no one but themselves.

Some folks will say "My means are too limited." Not so. Folks who earn less than you do, have tidy homes of their own. It isn't an experiment. The Brent Credit System has demonstrated for years that it is the safest and easiest way for anyone to furnish a home. The Brent Credit System is so good that folks recommend it to their nearest friends. Folks who have once tried it come here repeatedly. 5000 families have furnished their homes by this credit method.

FORMER BALL STAR WAGON-LOAD THIEF.

Nic Smith Captured in Home Piled Full of Stolen Goods.

Steals Dog and Tries to Collect Reward Offered for Another, Runs from Police on Stolen Bicycle, and is Found Surrounded With Plunder on Boyle Heights. Chance for the Public to Inspect the Property Today.

NIC SMITH, for fifteen years a prominent figure on eastern baseball diamonds, was arrested yesterday on one charge of petty larceny, and as a result of that capture the detectives discovered that he is a second "wagonload thief."

How much he has stolen has not been determined, but in his house at No. 1520 Henry street, Boyle Heights, the detectives discovered enough stolen goods to fill a wagon or two, but so late was the discovery made last evening that they have not had an opportunity to make a thorough examination of all the booty. Today it will be carted to the Police Station and there displayed to persons who have been the victim of recent burglarious visits from strangers.

The arrest, which is considered most important, was made about 6 o'clock last evening by Detectives Hawley and Murphy. When they started for their man they had no idea that they would discover a place where the proceeds of numerous thefts had been taken. The find was in a measure accidental, and the officers believe that the prisoner will tell them later what he has done with many articles aside from the more than a wagonload which they have discovered.

Tuesday a fine cocker spaniel dog was stolen from a North Main-street saloon-keeper, and the owner offered a reward of $10 for its return. Smith saw this reward advertised and thought he could find a way to collect it. Accordingly he went to another place on North Main street and stole a dog of the same breed, took it to the saloon man and tried to convince him that it was his pet, and demanded the $10. It happened that the saloon man knew the dog which Smith had. He gave the tip to the detectives, who had already been informed of the theft of the second dog.

Late yesterday afternoon Smith was seen near Commercial and Los Angeles streets, and a telephone message sent to Hawley and Murphy to that effect. They got into the patrol wagon, which was responding to the call in that [illegible] approached the place where Smith was standing he saw it, became suspicious, seized a bicycle at the curb and rode off. He chose paths over which it was impossible to pursue with the patrol wagon, but the detectives hurried to Smith's home on Henry street. He had arrived there five minutes ahead of them and was coming out of the house when they appeared. They arrested him and found the bicycle with which he had escaped. They took him into the house, and what they saw there amazed them.

Stolen property was conspicuous on every hand. There were piles and piles of articles for which no one man could have use in his home. There were many sets of tools, scores of single tools, bicycle pumps, parts of bicycles, wire clothes lines, clothing which had been taken from back yards, crowbars, wire garden hose and fixtures—in short, almost every conceivable article which is to be found in tool houses, cellars of residences, back yards and even in parlors was to be found in the place.

Smith said nothing while the officers were examining the stolen property. He would not tell them where he had secured it, but that would have been impossible, for there was such a quantity of it that even the thief has probably forgotten where it came from.

At the Police Station the people who have recently lost goods will be given an opportunity of looking over the plunder for the purpose of discovering their property if possible.

The prisoner's manner was such as to create some doubt as to his sanity, the officers admitting that they do not know whether he is mentally responsible for his actions. That phase of the matter will be thoroughly investigated before Smith is presented in court. Should he be found of unsound mind he will be sent to an asylum, but in the event that he is declared sane, the last theft which he committed would be sufficient to send him to the penitentiary. That was the bicycle on which he escaped from the officers for a time.

Smith has been in Los Angeles a long time. Before he came here he was a ball player in the East. He was a member of some of the leading teams in the country while he was in the game. He spent fifteen years of his life on the baseball diamond, and was regarded as a star. He has done no work that the officers know of in the proceeds of thefts. His capture may be a solution of the mysterious loot thefts which have been numerous in this city during the summer.

NEW MISSION HOTEL OUT WESTLAKE WAY.

LOS ANGELES is to have another beautiful hotel added to its attractions, and the new structure will grace one of the points of vantage in the Westlake district. The Barr Realty Company, which has made a reputation as the builder of several fine hotel properties, has undertaken the enterprise, and will provide for Los Angeles the substructure was begun yesterday.

This company has purchased from Enoch Pepper the three lots at the southwest corner of Seventh street and Burlington avenue, for a consideration of $15,000, and the building that will be placed thereon will cost from $100,000 to $110,000.

It will be an elegant private hotel of 100 rooms five stories, in the Mission style of architecture, and will be fitted with the latest appliances. Mr. Pepper has owned the lots just purchased for eighteen years, and in honor of his long connection with the property it has been decided to name the new structure "Hotel Pepper." From this elevation a beautiful view of the city and surroundings may be obtained, and a feature of the building will be an elaborate roof garden.

Mr. Barr states that the Barr Realty Company's efforts in the "Hotel Pepper" will surpass all its former enterprises, and will provide for Los Angeles a tourist hotel that for beauty of design, modern conveniences and general attractiveness, will have no equal on the Pacific Coast.

This company built for the Lake Tahoe Railway and Transportation Company at Lake Tahoe a $250,000 hotel, and has taken the management of the same. It is known as Tahoe Tavern, and is said to be one of the most attractive summer hotels in America. The same company put up three elegant apartment buildings on Coronado street, near Seventh street, one of which they sold to ex-Gov. H. H. Markham of Pasadena, and the other to the president of the German-American Savings Bank.

ROBBED IN HALLWAY.

Dr. Storey Assaulted and Valuable Gold Watch Taken from His Pocket. Lost No Money.

A robbery, which in the manner in which it was committed, was exactly like that reported at Hollywood Monday night, occurred on the night of August 26, and the police have not been informed. The victim was Dr. T. H. Storey, but why he did not desire to inform the officers is not known. His loss consisted of a valuable gold watch, more valuable to its owner from associations than for its intrinsic worth.

The robbery was committed in a hallway at No. 210 Franklin street late at night a week ago, and Dr. Storey is not able to give a description of his assailant. He does not know whether there were more than one. He was assaulted in the hallway. The robbers did not secure any of his money.

ANTI-TOXINE TEST.

County Hospital Physicians Try Modern Means in Effort to Save Patient's Life—Case Probably Hopeless.

One of the first tests of the efficacy of anti-toxin in a case of tetanus (lockjaw) to be made in this part of the State was made yesterday by the physicians at the County Hospital under the direction of Dr. Barber, assisted by Police Surgeon Smith and a number of other eminent physicians. The patient to whom the treatment was administered is James Tracy, a mover, whose hand was crushed last Thursday under the heavy rollers used in moving a house. The flesh was crushed into a pulp and the bones mashed. He was given emergency treatment at the Receiving Hospital and then taken to the County Hospital, where he appeared to be making favorable progress.

Wednesday night symptoms of tetanus developed and yesterday morning there was no longer any doubt that he had been seized with that terrible disease. A supply of tetanus anti-toxin was procured and the first injection administered yesterday before noon. One of the physicians stated last night that, owing to the fact that the anti-toxni had been administered after the disease had developed, there is little hope of success.

Tracy has stated to the hospital attendants that he is a brother of the notorious bandit of that name who for weeks terrorized the country around Puget Sound and was finally killed in eastern Washington.

MESSENGER BOY ACCUSED.

Leon Clark Arrested on Charge of Stealing Diamond Pin—Confessed to Officers, then Pleaded Not Guilty.

Leon Clark, until recently a messenger boy, was arrested yesterday morning on a charge of having stolen a diamond scarf pin from C. S. Ward of No. 818 Bellevue avenue. About 1 o'clock on the morning of August 31 Ward was accompanied from the Del Monte Restaurant to the Jonathan Club by two messenger boys, one of whom was Clark. On the way Ward's diamond pin was missed by him, but by that time Clark had left him. The next day Clark went to a South Broadway jewelry store with a diamond pin and had the stone removed and placed in a ring and another set in the pin. The detectives learned this and after finding Clark took him to the jewelers, where, they assert, he admitted that he did not own the diamond and that it is the property of Ward. He stated that he had seen the pin fall from Ward's cravat and later returned and picked it up. This in itself would constitute larceny, because he made no effort to return the pin to its owner.

When arraigned in the Police Court, Clark secured the services of an attorney and entered a plea of not guilty and demanded a jury trial. Every effort was made by Clark's relatives to keep the arrest a secret, but all the facts will come out when the case is tried.

J. G. Tatjes, who recently sold his fruit ranch, near here, has bought a place at Arroyo Grande.

An increase of pupils at the Nipomo street school, has made the employment of another teacher necessary, and Mrs. George Willet has been engaged.

Jacob Timkin, a pioneer settler of Creston, will leave that place in a few days for Orange county.

Hon. J. V. Webster of Creston, has just put in a private telephone line between his ranch and the town.

The Board of Trade has sent out several men to solicit fruit and grain specimens for the county exhibit at the St. Louis Exposition.

The opening of the Polytechnic school has been postponed until the last of the month. The buildings could not be finished in time for the first date set. Director Anderson reports many applicants from pupils in this vicinity and abroad.

CARRIED ARMY MUSKET AT AGE OF TWELVE.

YOUNGEST CIVIL WAR VETERAN IN LOS ANGELES.

Capt. Eugene Merrick of Chicago, Who Went Forth as a Child to Fight for His Country, Comes to Coast "Prospecting."

The youngest surviving veteran of the Civil War, and a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, dropped into Los Angeles yesterday afternoon from San Francisco, following the homing flight of his comrades from the field of the last national encampment.

He is Capt. Eugene Merrick, sergeant-major of Farragut Post, G.A.R., of Chicago, who enlisted in Co. C, One Hundred and Forty-seventh Illinois Infantry, February 1, 1865, at the age of 12 years. Looking at him today, one would scarcely believe that the "Kid," as he is known among his Chicago circle of comrades, is entitled to the significant little veterans' button; but, despite his youthful appearance, the bronze insignia appears on his lapel.

At the time of his enlistment the boy Merrick lived near Yorkville, Kendall county, Ill. He caught the war fever from his two brothers, who had enlisted, and boldly presented himself before a mustering officer. He was immediately "turned down" on account of his tender years, and after five unsuccessful attempts to get into the army blue near his home town, he made his way to Chicago. At Camp Fry he found an old friend of the family, Capt. Frank Buys, of the One Hundred and Forty-seventh Illinois, who got 'm into the service. After carrying a musket for two weeks his captain, fearing a reprimand from higher sources because of the youth of his recruit, made him a drummer boy. In this capacity he went into the Georgia campaign.

War in no wise dampened the spirit of the drummer boy veteran, and at the outbreak of the Spanish-American War in 1898 he enlisted for the fray, becoming captain of a company of the Blue and Gray Regiment of Chicago, which, unfortunately, got no farther than Key West.

Capt. Merrick is at present engaged with the Smalley Manufacturing Company of Chicago, and is out on the Pacific Coast for the first time, "prospecting," as he expressed it. He says that he has ascertained through his observations during the recent encampment in San Francisco that a considerable percentage of the veterans who have just been visitors to this Coast have returned to their eastern homes with the full intention of moving to California as soon as practicable to spend their last days under the pleasant influence of its mild climate.

GEN. BLACK'S RECEPTION.

Chief of the Grand Army Will be Here Wednesday Morning—Public Greeting in Evening.

The committee of the Chamber of Commerce in charge of arrangements for the reception of Gen. John C. Black, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, met yesterday afternoon to map out an itinerary to be followed during the stay of the distinguished veteran. Upon the arrival of Gen. Black at the Arcade depot on the Owl train at 4:55 o'clock, Wednesday, he will be met by the Reception Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, and a committee from the local G.A.R. posts, and at 10:20 will be taken on a drive about the city. At 2:30 in the afternoon the visiting chief will be escorted to the Soldiers' Home at Sawtelle, and at 8 o'clock in the evening a public reception will be given in his honor at the chamber.

Thursday, through the courtesy of the Salt Lake Railroad, the guest and his party will proceed in the morning to Long Beach in a private car, to visit the camp of the Southern California Veterans' Association. At 2 p.m., boat will be taken for Santa Catalina, returning the following evening at 6:30.

The committee to have charge of the public reception Wednesday evening is yet to be appointed. With it will cooperate a committee from the G.A.R.

DELUDED MEN EXPOSE FAKE.

Spiritual Grafters Still Are "Working."

One Who Has Been Through the Mill Testifies.

Dr. H. K. Emerson Denounces Entire "Materializing" Business as a Fraud.

The spook camp-meeting at Mineral Park serves to keep spiritualist fakirs rather prominently before the public. Now and again there comes to light some one who has been hoodwinked by their deceptive practices and desires to save others from becoming the dupes of the same lass of freebooters, who fatten upon the earnings of servant girls, and the funds of men in their dotage.

Dr. H. K. Emerson, who resides at No. 1150 Central avenue, is one of the men who became enlightened after a very close acquaintance with Elsie Reynolds, the "materializing medium," who resides at No. 423 South Spring street, this city. For a year Mrs. Reynolds resided with Dr. Emerson and his wife in San Francisco, and when the latter removed to this city, Mrs. Reynolds again became a member of their household.

Relying upon their close acquaintance, Dr. Emerson was made the attendant who sat next to the cabinet—the seat of honor, next to the throne, as it were. The change in his sentiment concerning spiritualists, and "materializing mediums" in particular, may best be judged by a standing offer of $100, which he now makes to Elsie Reynolds, or any other "medium," who will hold a seance in his residence without being shown up as a fraud and imposter.

He declares the thing to be a wholesale fraud, and as relics of his experience with Elsie Reynolds, he retains a portion of her spirit-robe, made of fleecy phosphorescent material, and some other portions of her paraphernalia.

When Mrs. Reynolds is worked up to the proper degree of spirit-fervor for the entertainment of gullible innocents who have been beguiled into the net, it is her favorite plan to call for "Libby."

Now "Libby" is a capper and her name is Mrs. Coon. On the night when Dr. Emerson first got "next" concerning the imposition practiced upon the people by these two women, he sat in his designated place close to the cabinet, which was formed by hanging a curtain across the corner of the darkened room.

When "Libby" was called for by the spirit which Mrs. Reynolds had beguiled from the ethereal regions of [illegible] promptly to the call, and stepping to the side of the cabinet opposite to that occupied by Dr. Emerson, she airily received from Mrs. Reynolds, as the latter slipped out of the cabinet, a dummy formed of phosphorescent cloth, in the semblance of a veiled figure. This she held on her upraised left hand, but of course in the intense darkness nothing could be seen save the phosphorescent light.

With this dummy, which was represented to be the spirit of a departed friend, she carried on a conversation prepared for the occasion, while Mrs. Reynolds floated about the room in spirit garb, representing herself as a second spirit that had appeared at her beck, but in fact keeping watch on the crowd to see if anybody was there on a mission of investigation and likely to disturb the proceedings.

When the seance was over, while Dr. Emerson was not fully convinced of the fraud that had been practiced, Mrs. Coon supposing that he like herself, was only one of the tools in the game, told him all about her part and said that she had been acting in the same capacity for many years, and the doctor, says she is Elsie Reynolds's regular stool-pigeon today.

The Emersons had been partly saturated with spiritualism, but that cured them, and they ordered Mrs. Reynolds to leave their house, which was then at No. 724 South Spring street.

PULLED MEDIUM'S LEG.

Another of Mrs. Reynolds's favorites from the spiritland is a little mite of a spirit that she calls "Effie." The particular stunt of Effie was to bring out any suspected young man in the audience and say to him:

"Say, mister, are you a reporter? my medy don't like reporters."

As to the identity of "Effie," the eyes of the Emersons were opened in this way. In their house one night a man in the crowd had gone forward to have an interview with the little spirit, and thought he would feel of her, and there was a sudden dissolution. In explaining it to Dr. Emerson he said:

"I thought I would catch Effie and see who she was, and I caught hold of Mrs. Reynolds's leg."

He explained that the little spirit was a dummy set up on the knee of the "main guy."

"Mrs. Reynolds is a fine fraud," said Dr. Emerson. "She nearly always has a good crowd at her Thursday night seances and she always looks for reporters, and many people are refused admission because they are suspected of being on a tour of investigation. She used to advertise 'everybody welcome,' but I notice she said in her advertisement this morning, 'no one admitted unless vouched for.' She is awful sly and somebody must have been after her."

Will Hodge, a spiritualist lecturer from San Diego, in talking to Dr. Emerson about Elsie Reynolds, thought it strange that the doctor was not "onto her curves," as she was an inmate of his home, and said to him:

"Why don't you catch the spirit and you'll catch Elsie Reynolds?"

A big woman in Norwalk caught her about a year ago, and speaking of that incident the doctor said: "If they hadn't jumped on that woman and choked her, Elsie Reynolds wouldn't have had a stitch of clothes left on her back."

"John Henley and wife and Maud Freitag who are now out at the Mineral Park camp-meeting, are among the worst fakers in town, but you can put down all materializing mediums as fakes. The Arnolds are worse than some of the others because they are wholesale robbers. They have been known to take $100 from a poor servant girl as pay for 'developing' her into a 'medium.'"

AN AGED DUPE.

A reporter called on Andrew Anderson yesterday at his home on the corner of Sixteenth street and Central avenue. Mr. Anderson came here from Burnett, Cal., about a year ago, and by some means promptly fell into the clutches of the Spiritualist vampires. Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Arnold. One of the trophies he has of his communication with his spirit wife is an oil painting—a nasty daub—about 14x20 inches, which he declares was painted by the spirit of Murillo in about eight minutes. It is an elysian landscape with a magnificent mansion in the background; a portrait of "Winnifred," his spirit-wife, in the upper corner and a smaller one of his mother-in-law in a lower corner.

He was questioned about the picture and said the matter had been suggested to him by the Arnolds. He was pleased at the idea of having a picture of his spirit-wife, who, he said, had been in spirit-land more than a thousand years, and of her beautiful home. He was told to bring a frame and a stretcher the next time he came, and, of course, he complied by securing it from Edward Wyllie, the spirit-photographer on South Spring street. And by the same token, Wyllie furnished a duplicate stretcher to the Arnold fakers, and when the gullible old man showed up with his blank canvas the picture was already awaiting his arrival in the secret cabinet in the seance room of the Arnolds.

Mr. Anderson also has photographs of himself surrounded by all kinds of spirit-pictures. These were made by Wyllie and are a deep mystery to the old gentleman, who is an earnest old Swede. One of them represents Mr. Anderson with his mother and daughter, the latter two being spirit-pictures. He declares that the photographer had never seen either one, but any sane person who has looked into the face of Mr. Anderson and at the picture of his beautiful daughter hanging upon the wall of his residence, at once understands how the fakers produced the pictures and played on the old man's credulity.

Mrs. Arnold, acting as the medium, one night brought into the presence of Mr. Anderson his spirit-wife and she informed him that she was unable to appear as often as she would like because she had no clothes, and suggested the appropriateness of a white silk dress. The next time Anderson appeared he took the silk dress with him and it is asserted by Dr. Emerson that Mrs. Arnold wears that selfsame dress on the streets of Los Angeles.

In answer to a question, Mr. Anderson said that he had paid Mrs. Arnold $10 for the painting. Upon being told that the price was not so bad, he said:

"I guess it was enough, as it only took her eight minutes, and the spirit couldn't get any of it."

He is completely infatuated with his spirit-communion and is intensely in earnest concerning the whole subject. Among his other treasures he has a big pile of slates covered with fake spirit writings, each one carefully preserved by covering it with glass and sealing it around the edge with putty.

EXPOSED BY THE PRESS.

A gentleman who keeps track of Spiritualist doings says that many of the fakers have been driven from the city by the exposures of the press, and all that is needed to send the rest of the gang scurrying into their holes to catch them at their tricks.

THE MINING CONGRESS

Centers for the Mining Congress, Louis and Minerals Exhibit, Address Assembly.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

DEADWOOD, (S. D.) Aug. 29.—One of the big features of the Mining Congress will be a trip for the delegates and their friends through the underground workings of the Homestake mine, the largest gold producer in the world. It has been a number of years since the public was admitted to this mammoth mine that honeycombs the foundation of the entire city of Lead. A faint conception of the extent of this mine may be gained by the knowledge that if all the work done by the company had been spent in driving a tunnel 8x7 feet it would now have attained the grand total of 1826 miles in length.

The fight for the session of the Congress next year is waxing stronger. St. Louis is, of course, after it because of the World's Fair, but unless she develops more strength than she has shown so far it will not go there. The strongest contestant from the present indications is Minneapolis. Not only will that city send a large delegation here to work for the meeting, but Gov. Van Sant of the State of Minnesota will head a large and strong delegation coming here for that express purpose. This movement has many friends here, and Omaha, Kansas City, Pittsburg and New Mexico and Arizona, all of which are seeking the honor, will have to work hard to keep it away from Minneapolis.

The following addresses have been announced for the Congress:

"The Mining Industry and Its Relation to American Finances," Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, Secretary of the Treasury.

"The Production of Gold, and Its Relation to the Finances of the Country," Hon. George E. Roberts, Director of the Mint.

"Pyritic Smelting," Franklin H. Carpenter, Denver, Col.

"The Geology of South Dakota," Dr. J. N. Todd, State Geologist, Vermilion, S. D.

"The Cyanide Process as Used in the Homestake Mine," Charles W. Merrill, Lead, S. D.

"Geology and Mineralogy of the Black Hills," Dr. C. C. O'Harn, Rapid City, S. D.

"The St. Louis Exposition," Prof. J. A. Holmes, Chief Department of Mines and Metallurgy, St. Louis, Mo.

"Mining Industry in Nevada," Hon. C. E. Van Dusen, M. C., Nevada.

"The Money Metals and Their Influence Upon Civilization," Hon. J. L. Webster, Omaha, Neb.

"The Geology of the Black Hills," Nelson H. Darton, Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

"The Potsdam or Flat Formation of the Bald Mountain District," John Blatchford, Terry, S. D.

"Coal," E. W. Parker, Washington, D. C.

"The Revelation in Gold Mining and the Economic Treatment of Low Grade Ores for North Carolina," C. L. Dignowity, Boulder, Col.

"The Drying of Minerals," C. O. Bartlett, Cleveland, O.

"The Gold Ores of San Juan Country," Dr. A. H. Elftman, Silverton, Col.

In addition to these Dr. J. D. Irving, of the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, is down for a paper, but he has not yet announced his subject.

Another Reformer.

"Yes, sir," said the gentleman boozler. "I believe the great trouble in this country is that we are too slow in having the law take its course. There should be less delay. I am in favor of having the statute of limitations take effect within twenty-four hours."—[Chicago Record-Herald.

PUBLIC SERVICE.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

Owing to the enormous expense of sprinkling the streets with water, a strong sentiment in favor of oil is setting in. It is argued that oil is much cheaper and better than water, and that its use will save the city water supply and aid the oil industry.

The City Attorney has been instructed to bring suit against the wholesale liquor dealers and druggists who are waiting for a decision in the Braun case, to recover their license taxes.

Sentous Bros., butchers, are to be arrested for placing offal where it may pollute the river water.

Ben McClain, colored, was fined yesterday for shooting craps in Lou Simpson's place.

AT THE CITY HALL.

OIL FOR STREETS INSTEAD OF WATER.

ENORMOUS COST OF SPRINKLING NECESSITATES CHANGE.

Councilman Skilling Believes Use of Oil Will Solve Financial Problem. Superior, Will Save City Supply, and Help Oil Industry.—To Sue for Taxes.

The City Council is awakening to the act, somewhat startling, it must be admitted, that the sprinkling of the streets under city supervision is nearly twice as expensive as it has been under private contract.

The bill for August was $13,000. At this rate it would cost $156,000 a year, but of course there will be a considerable falling off in the cost during the winter months, enough, it is estimated, to make the cost about two-thirds of what it is now.

Figuring on the lessened expense during the wet season, the price which taxpayers must pay for having the streets superficially douched with water closely approaches $140,000.

Under the contract terminated a few months ago it cost the city $60,000 for sprinkling service. This is less than any contractor would be willing to take the job for now, but the lowest bid received, when the last advertisement was made was $79,000.

The difference between $140,000 and $79,000, or, $61,000, represents the extravagance of the present system.

It is admitted that the work done is somewhat superior to the quality paid for under private contract, and the 140 wagon drivers are receiving just twice as much wages as they did before, which is an important item. The contractors paid them the equivalent of $1 a day, which was $3000, a month, while the city pays them $6000 a month.

But the vast sum expended has convinced some of the city legislators that there must be some scope for economy in the present system. Councilman Skilling is among these. He believes that the solution of the matter is to substitute oil for water.

"These heavy bills coming every month for the item of sprinkling are enough to stagger one. Here we are paying out on an average of nearly $13,000 a month, and the service is little better than we got formerly for half that amount. This does not include water, either, which with Los Angeles is an important consideration.

"I understand that many of the wagons are in bad repair, although Mr. Annaberry (who rents the wagons to the city) has promised to keep them in good condition. He also gave his verbal promise to provide twenty-five new wagons, but I haven't seen any sign of them yet.

"It is apparent that the city must devise a cheaper scheme for the sprinkling of its streets, and I know of no better way than to use oil.

"The Council appropriated $200 to be used by the Street Superintendent in making experiments with oil, and I understand that these have been successful. The first application of oil will last from three to six months, and when the street is thoroughly soaked it will not need to be sprinkled more than once a year.

"Of course a street is in very disagreeable condition, when the oil has first been applied, but if a layer of dust or, preferably, sand, were sprinkled on, any offensive feature would be obviated.

"Besides saving the city water to an invaluable extent, the use of oil on the streets would help the industry immensely."

Street Superintendent Werdin, who has been conducting experiments in the Fifth Ward, says that the use of oil on the streets is a success in every way.

It is estimated that the saving to the city would be in the neighborhood of $100,000 a year if oil were used instead of water.

CITY SEEKS LICENSE MONEY.

WILL SUE WHOLESALERS.

With the Braun case in the Supreme Court, nobody knows where on the culendar, and the city worrying about the license taxes of wholesale liquor dealers and druggists who are dispensing cheer in large-sized doses, there has existed a sort of mockery in the situation, the City Dads being the brunt of the joke.

But now something is really going to be done. The city is going to sue these rum-sellers who have refused to pay their taxes, and those, also, who have failed to pay.

Councilman Parish yesterday introduced a resolution to that effect and it went through with a whoop. The City Attorney is instructed to bring suit for the recovery of back taxes from those who have failed to pay and are still doing business. Those whose licenses have been revoked will, of course, not be effected. The basis of the suits will be the evidence gathered by the police with the $250 donated.

AT THE COURT HOUSE

BLOOD AND OFFAL MAY POLLUTE WATER.

WARRANTS ISSUED FOR ARREST OF SENTOUS BROS.

Offense a High-grade Misdemeanor and the Place is Three Miles up the River. Have Been Warned by the Health Officer.

Blood and offal from the Sentous slaughter-house is in danger of polluting the water Los Angeles drinks.

Yesterday complaints were issued from the District Attorney's office for the arrest of the Sentous brothers. One is out of the city, but the other will be taken into custody.

The slaughter-house is located two or three miles up the river. Until recently no water has been taken from there. Now the water is pumped into a new storage reservoir.

The main part of the offal is fed to pigs, but the small parts and the blood from the slaughtered stock is dumped on a river bank. There is an express provision in the law against this.

The offense is a high-grade misdemeanor requiring a trial in the Superior Court.

Sentous Bros. have been served a number of times with notices by the City Health officer, but have disregarded them.

BED BUGS.

AND CONSTABLES.

Bedbugs caused the gigantic forces of the law to be turned out yesterday.

It was at the earnest solicitation of Bre'r Bob O. Venry, a colored preacher.

Bre'r O. Venry hired a few rooms in the lodging-house conducted by J. H. Hughes at No. 340 South San Pedro street. He said that his first nights there were so strenuous and war-like that he quit the rooms.

He took his children and got other rooms. He demanded his money back, which they wouldn't give. When he left they moved his furniture out in the street.

He is bound to get his money's worth of the empty rooms and appealed to Constable De la Monte yesterday. A deputy constable went down to the place and reinstated him.

THE INFERIOR COURTS.

DIVE KEEPER TAKES IT PHILOSOPHICALLY.

LOU SIMPSON SAYS FURNITURE SMASHING IS EXPENSIVE.

Little Black Coon Named Ben McClain is Fined Five Dollars for Shooting Craps at Lou's Place—Caught on a Sneak.

Lou Simpson, the colored man, who has serenely run a coon dive in the Tenderloin, and has seen the police force change a number of times and still stayed on, turned up cheerfully in the Police Court yesterday to look out for the little darky caught shooting craps i nhis joint Tuesday night.

Capt. Auble and Officer Woods raided the joint, after having secured evidence by looking through a hole in the roof.

"If the cops don't stop breaking in and smashing my furniture, it will cost me more than all the fines I have to pay," he said, resignedly.

The little coon, Ben McClain, was found guilty and paid a fine of $5.

BURGLAR CAUGHT.

SICK MAN KNEW HIM.

Joe Samora will inquire next time he commits burglary whether or not there is a man with a broken leg in the house.

He was examined yesterday before Justice Chambers, and was held over to the Superior Court largely because of the man with the broken leg.

Samora sneaked into the Folsom residence in the southwest part of the city while Mrs. Folsom was irrigating the front lawn. When he got inside he found Mrs. Folsom's son in the house with a broken leg. Samora ran out, but was caught and recognized.

Warm Name, Anyhow.

Isabella Cerson de Pentriff was charged in the Police Court yesterday—not with organizing a conspiracy to make herself queen of Spain, as might be imagined from the name—but for letting turkeys roam at large.

Carried the Jug.

Pat Given, who carried a gallon of Dago red around with him for fear he might get thirsty, was fined $3 in the Police Court yesterday.

Drunk Burglar.

John Masino, who claims that he stumbled into the room of Martin Hildebrandt when he was so drunk he didn't know what he was doing, was arraigned in the Police Court on a charge of burglary yesterday.

COLONIST RATES.

Union Pacific's Low-priced Tickets go Into Effect Again This Fall—Thousands Coming to Coast.

The Union Pacific leads the van this season by announcing that it will again put into effect its colonist rate to the Pacific Coast. A rate of $33 will be made from Chicago, and of $25 from Missouri River points, good from September 15 to November 30, coming West only. The colonist rates given last year proved a great success, and thousands of people were induced to visit the coast, who afterwards decide to make their homes here. The railroad company anticipates a greater traffic this year. It is probable that other lines will follow the action of the Union Pacific and make the reduced rates

REMAINS UNIDENTIFIED.

Nobody Found Who Has Clew to Identity of Man Who Committed Suicide Near San Gabriel.

The body of the unknown man who committed suicide Tuesday night near Rosemeade station, on the Southern Pacific Railroad, a short distance from San Gabriel, has not been identified. The inquest was held yesterday, and all that developed was the circumstances under which the remains were found, and from the evidence detailing the position of the corpse, the proximity of the revolver to the hand, and the presence of a small mirror on his breast, the jury decided that it was a case of suicide.

The Coroner is making an effort to solve the mystery of identity through the letter which was found on his person. The letter had been mailed to Charles H. Blake, Cucamonga, Cal., and the envelope contained printed matter only. A message has been sent to Cucamonga to have some one come and view the remains, in the hope that he may be able to tell who the man was.

Because of the discovery of a carefully-preserved slip of paper bearing the address of Luella Helene West, Covington, Ky., it was thought possible that the deceased may have come form Cincinnati or Covington. A press dispatch from the former city yesterday conveys the information that the woman mentioned is the wife of Benjamin J. West, former principal of schools at Newport, Ky., and that he is supposed to be somewhere in California. If the dead man was West, there is nothing beyond the address of his wife to indicate that fact. His appearance would indicate that he may have been a man capable of holding such a position, but his dress was that of a laborer. The body is at Bresee Bros.' morgue, where it may be seen by any one who thinks he can throw light upon the mystery.

CARELESS WHEELMEN.

Crusade Against Those Who Ride on Sidewalks Renewed — Twenty-nine Arrests by One Officer.

Owing to complaints received at police headquarters from various sections of the city that wheelmen have been making the sidewalks dangerous to pedestrians by riding thereon, Patrolman Parker has been detailed to endeavor to put a stop to the practice, and to arrest bicyclists found violating the ordinance. Up to last night he had made twenty-nine arrests, and stated that he had only started.

The most serious disregard for the safety of others has occurred on Fifty-fifth street between South Park and Central avenues. There two wheelmen are alleged to have run down two children and a woman carrying a baby. They did not even stop to ascertain the extent of the injuries they caused, but rode on as fast as they could. Yesterday afternoon Patrolman Parker learned the identity of the two young men who had caused the accidents. He has not been able to find them as yet.

Most of the violations of the law of this character are committed in the outlying sections where during the daytime there are no patrolmen. A number of bicyclists were fined $2 each yesterday.

EDWARD MORGAN DESCRIBES A DUEL. HE WAS INVITED TO WITNESS NEAR PARIS—LIE PASSED, OFFENDER CALLED CHALLENGED, PISTOLS NEXT MORNING, CLEVER RUSE.

BY EDWARD MORGAN.
[Star Actor and Author.]

MANY actors are content to take their instructions solely from the stage manager and are ample indeed to accept his interpretation of a part, with no personal desire to add anything on their own account to that interpretation.

A few actors go beyond this. They try to merge themselves temporarily into the character they are to portray; live life through that character's eyes and so speak, move and look as they believe that character would. The proven stage manager encourages this, for the actor who follows out such a course is apt to rise.

Often the actions of some character are outside the ordinary walks of life. In such cases the actor must often wander far afield in search of such surroundings, emotions, etc.

It was in such a search that I met with the unique and exciting adventure I am about to describe.

IT MAY WITH DUEL SCENE.

Among the plays I had engaged was one with a duel scene. Not a frilled and simpler duel of the picturesque order, but a pistol duel. Of course, such duels have been depicted in "The Three Musketeer" and a dozen more plays of a like sort, but I was anxious to see how well seen off the stage looked and be-sides, when in immediate danger of life at the hands of an opponent.

I was anxious, as only an actor who studies his art can be, to note each expression that crossed the fighters' faces, to note the way they stood, whether they trembled or if the anticipation of combat kept them steady. To be in a real duel, I thought, would give me more points for that scene in my play than would the imagination of stage managers.

Now, where is one to see such a thing in this eminently sane century? True, some years ago, as I stood awaiting a train in a crowded at a small Texas railroad station, there was a sudden din of loud voices, followed by a fusillade of heavy caliber shots, and, as the crowd scattered, I saw a cowboy in the midst of six men, while another lay in a terrible huddled heap on the boarded platform. But that was not a place where one might study physiognomy or traits of character.

Although a sigh I abandoned all hope of seeing such a duel as was described in the play I had bought, and resigned myself to the prospect of falling back upon the old-established traditions of my part, varied only by imagination.

My lost hope was to be fulfilled in a fashion.

RECREATION IN PARIS.

Then last winter's theatrical season closed I ran across to England to recreate and early in June I found myself one of a very pleasant party who were spending a fortnight in Paris. There I was introduced, through the good offices of my English friends, to a number of prominent Parisians, who were so hospitable and such altogether good fellows that when the rest of the party returned to England I remained behind for another week.

Fencing, pigeon shooting and a dozen other outdoor sports occupied the days, and at night it was pleasant to stroll along the boulevards, drive by moonlight through the Bois or attend the opera, and to wind up the evening with a supper at one of the clubs, where the cooking and service are unexcelled.

One of a dozen of us were supping one night at an exclusive Paris club patronized largely by the younger set of the "do-do men about town. Our host was a Parisian whose name is not known here, and whom I will refer to as the Comte de Pavannes. His family dated back to the Crusades, and no one needed but a single glance at his face to know that he was a nobleman of the highest, best sense of the word. I had been extremely kind to me, speaking English as well as I did, and had done me the honor to explain to me many of the customs and ways which the average American tourist has no opportunity of studying.

I had confided to him my long-cherished desire to see a duel, but he had replied politely and said that even in these days of such idiotic affairs were fast going out of fashion. Yet I remember hearing that De Pavannes himself had at various times been the second of more than one such encounter. I had difficulty in reconciling this statement with his own words. I did not like to think that a man's hereditary sense of honor and a man's cooler judgment may sometimes be at diametric ce.

DUEL AND CHALLENGE.

It was at the supper of which I speak pro-ceeded smoothly, although two or three young fellows who had had day at the Auteuil races drunk more than was good for them. The heavy potations did not seem to affect their manners nor their temperaments, and once or twice I saw De Pavannes glance uneasily at them. We fell at last to discussing one of the races on which they seemed to have staked large sums that day. The wine and their excitement led them to talk so rapidly and to interrupt each other so frequently that it was impossible for me to catch all they said. At last, however, one of them, a tall, slight man, whom I will call Junot and who was evidently a winner on the race in question, said something concerning the bad judgment displayed in bets made by a swarthy, thick-set man named De Fouche.

The latter retorted that his judgment had not been at fault, but that the race had been unfair. He further expressed his belief that Junot had known beforehand that questionable methods were to be used.

Junot leaped to his feet, and waited impatient until the clamor died out. Then he said very slowly and politely:

"Monsieur De Fouche lies."

De Pavannes sprang up to interfere, not expecting to see De Fouche knock down the man who had insulted him. Instead, De Fouche quietly walked to the other end of the room, where their coats and hats were piled, took something from his pocket, and with deliberation walked back to where Junot stood awaiting him.

My first thought was that he must have taken a revolver or a knife from his coat, and I was prepared to see him stab or shoot. He did neither. Pausing a moment, and waving aside De Pavannes, who had stepped between, he walked up to Junot and tapped him lightly across the face with a pair of gloves.

Again I looked for a struggle. But Junot merely bowed courteously and proceeded to say good-night to his host. De Fouche followed suit. There were

Half a dozen of us were supping one night at an exclusive Paris club patronized largely by the younger set of well-to-do men about town. Our host was a Parisian whose name is not unknown here, and whom I will re-christen the Comte de Pavannes. His lineage dated back to the Crusades, and one needed but a single glance at him to know that he was a nobleman of the highest, best sense of the word. He had been extremely kind to me, spoke English as well as I did, and did me the honor to explain to me many of the native customs and ways which the average American tourist has no opportunity of studying.

I had confided to him my long-cherished desire to see a duel, but he had laughed politely and said that even in France such idiotic affairs were fast going out of fashion. I did not stop to think that a man's hereditary code of honor and a man's cooler judgment may sometimes be at diametric variance.

QUARREL AND CHALLENGE.

The supper of which I speak proceeded smoothly, although two or three young fellows who had that day attended the Auteuil races drank rather more than was good for them. Their heavy potations did not seem to improve their manners nor their temper, and once or twice I saw De Pavannes glance uneasily at them.

They fell at last to discussing one of the races on which they seemed to have staked large sums that day. The rank and their excitement led them to speak so rapidly and to interrupt each other so frequently that it was impossible for me to catch all they said. At last, however, one of them, a tall, slight Spaniards, whom I will call Junot and who was evidently a winner on the race in question, said something concerning the bad judgment displayed in the bets made by a swarthy, thick-set youth named De Fouche.

The latter retorted that his judgment had not been at fault, but that the race had been unfair. He further expressed his belief that Junot had known beforehand that questionable methods were to be used.

Junot leaped to his feet, and waited for instant until the clamor died out, then said very slowly and politely:

"Monsieur De Fouche lies."

De Pavannes sprang up to interfere, but expecting to see De Fouche knock down the man who had insulted him. Instead, De Fouche quietly walked to the other end of the room, where his coats and hats were piled, took something from his pocket, and with deliberation, walked back to where Junot stood awaiting him.

My first thought was that he must have taken a revolver or a knife from his coat, and I was prepared to see him stab or shoot. He did neither. Pushing aside De Pavannes, who had stepped between, he walked up to Junot and tapped him lightly across the face with a pair of gloves.

Again I looked for a struggle. But Junot merely bowed courteously and seemed to say good-night to his host. De Fouche followed suit. There were one or two low-voiced consultations between groups of men in the room for a moment or two. Then the supper party broke up. As I rose to go De Pavannes stopped me.

"Do you mind waiting a moment?" he said. "I have to speak with one or two of these men in the anteroom. I won't detain you long."

As he went out I wondered at the meaning of all that had passed. An insult had been offered. A blow (or what doubtless passed for a blow in France) had been struck. Yet all concerned behaved as if they were at a minuet.

I was trying to puzzle it out when De Pavannes returned.

"You told me," he said, after again apologising for having left me "that you wished to see a real duel. A pistol duel a la mode. Well, my friend, you shall see one."

A light broke on me. All this courtly conduct had been the preliminary to a duel. I began to understand.

INVITED TO FIELD OF HONOR.

"I have been conferring," he went on, "with the seconds of both parties. I have had some slight experience in such matters, so they did me the honor to ask my advice. As host, I could not of course act as second to either Junot or De Fouche. But the preliminaries are arranged, and the meeting is to take place at 7 in the morning, just outside Versailles. I am to be present—purely as a friend—and although it is somewhat irregular—I have won their consent to bring you [illegible] you care to come?"

Did I care to come! It was the chance I had so long and so vainly hoped for. Apart from my desire to gain material for the scene in my play, I had the American desire to see something new, and the very human interest in witnessing a good fight. Later, when I had a chance to think it over, came the dread of looking on possible death. But I had accepted the invitation, had been offered an unusual honor, and I could not without cheerlishness decline.

At 6:45 the following morning De Pavannes and I stepped from the train at Versailles, entered a carriage that was doubtless there by appointment, and drove rapidly out of the short main street of the little suburb, past the Petit Trianon into the open country. In less than ten minutes the carriage halted and we stepped out into a little field, screened from view on three sides by woods. A group of black-coated, high-hatted men were already there, and saluted us by raising their hats. They were Junot, his two seconds and a surgeon. Scarcely a minute later De Fouche and three other men drove up and alighted.

THE PRELIMINARIES.

Two of the seconds, each carrying a long wooden case approached De Pavannes and conferred with him. Then the trio moved away to a spot some yards off, where they opened the cases and took out pistols, which they seemed to be examining. Then they handed two pistols to De Pavannes, who proceeded to load them.

Meantime the two remaining seconds were stiffly pacing off a bit of ground. One of the surgeons had opened a black bag and was arranging something—surgical instruments, doubtless—inside. The two principals stood quietly apart. After saluting they had paid no heed to each other's presence.

It was all horribly matter of fact and professional. No fury, no excitement, no facial play.

The morning was gray and chilly. From the woods somewhere a single bird was singing.

The various consultations over, the respective seconds led their principals to positions on the grass, placed a pistol in the hand of each, and, in rapid French, seemed to be explaining to them the rules of the duel.

The men stood back to back. From where I stood I could get a half-face view of each. De Fouche's features were immobile, a surly, half frown being stamped on them. Junot's face wore a bored, tired look. The hands of both seemed steady.

The rest of the party moved some yards to each side. For a moment the two duelists stood as if carved in stone. Both were dressed in black frock coats, with black ascot ties and black high hats. The object of such a costume, it was later explained to me, was to prevent any spot of white from drawing the antagonist's aim.

THE SHOOTING.

Then a second called slowly;

"Un! Deux! Trois!"

On the last word the two principals wheeled, automatically, like men at a drill. On the first and second counts they had raised their pistols.

As they wheeled Junot fired. De Fouche paused for perhaps a second; then returned the fire.

Neither fell. Their seconds rushed up to them.

Another general consultation ensued. At its close De Pavannes came over to me.

"Neither is hurt," said he. "De Fouche at first declared his honor satisfied, but Junot demands another shot."

Again the men were placed. This time the frown on De Fouche's face was a black scowl. Junot's pale cheek was flushed and the tired look was gone from his eyes.

Again the words of preparation, and again the fighters wheeled.

This time they stood for an imperceptible instant facing each other before either fired. Then the pistols barked simultaneously.

The smoke rose, and both men remained standing.

"I am satisfied," I heard Junot say as his seconds approached him.

Neither man was hit. A brief consultation and they stepped toward each other and—no, not shook hands, but embraced. Actually embraced. Two grown men.

And that was all the duel.

The whole party drove back to Versailles, where we ended the morning in a jolly breakfast party.

As De Pavannes and I returned to Paris he said:

"Well, how did the affair of honor impress you?"

"It didn't impress me at all," I replied, truthfully. "It seemed like a scene in comic opera. What wretched shots they must be to miss at that short distance!"

THE FRIENDLY SUBTERFUGE.

De Pavannes looked at me quizzically a moment. Then, drawing from his pocket a cartridge, he pinched the bullet between his fingers. It mashed like a potato.

"Tallow," he said, laconically. "I loaded the pistols. Both were too good fellows to die just because of a little dispute. Yet honor had to be satisfied. I molded these bullets myself, colored them by rubbing a soft graphite pencil over them and put them in the cartridges, with a half quantity of powder."

Still, as far as facial expression, demeanor, etc., are concerned, I had seen the models I wanted to copy for my duel scene. EDWARD MORGAN.

BARKER BROS.

Spring St. Los Angeles Cal.

HAVE been treated by Dr. Schiffman for years. I have tried all his different methods and can say unhesitatingly no dentist or physician has ever operated with such success or skill. In extracting my teeth he did it without any pain to me. It is a great pleasure to me to recommend him and his method of treatment. MILO M. POTTER,
Prop. Van Nuys Hotel and Hotel Potter, Santa Barbara.

Ten years ago a reputable D. D. S. of Va. told me that a certain molar tooth could not be satisfactorily saved and that it would probably not be of service for one year. It has not only served me for ten years, as Dr. Schiffman saved and crowned it, and comparatively speaking without pain. I sing his praise.
I. M. ANDREWS, Pastor M. E. Church, South, Cor. 6th and Mateo Streets.

On account of some unfortunate experience I had in the extraction of my teeth I became a great coward in this respect. Today Dr. Schiffman extracted one of my very refractory teeth without causing me one particle of pain. D. K. TRASK, Judge Superior Court, Los Angeles.

Dr. Schiffman extracted a tooth for me absolutely without pain. His advertising phrase, "Didn't Hurt a Bit," is literally true.
R. D. HOLABIRD, Pacific Electrical Works, Under Nadeau, First St.

EVERAL years ago Dr. Schiffman did some crown and bridge work for me which has proved entirely satisfactory. The work was done painlessly and with great skill. It gives me great pleasure to recommend him.
IRVING R. SMITH, L. A. Times.

Dr. Schiffman has put in almost an entire upper bridge for me. The bridge is perfect in every respect, and I can use it as well as my natural teeth. The work was properly and painlessly done. J. F. WILL, 301 West Fifth.

Dr. Schiffman pulled two of my wisdom teeth, and it didn't hurt a bit; on the contrary, the sensation was pleasant. GUY L. HARRISON, Vice-Pres. Merrill Pub. Co.

It is with pleasure that I state that I have had several teeth filled by Dr. Schiffman, and that he drilled and extracted the nerve and filled the root of one of my teeth, and put on a porcelain crown, which cannot be distinguished from a natural tooth, all of which was done without pain. JUDSON R. ROSE,
Of Davis & Rich, Attorneys, 6 Temple Blk.

I have had porcelain crown work and some filling done, also had ten teeth and roots extracted by Dr. Schiffman, and take great pleasure in recommending his method to anyone wishing dental work done without pain. MRS. G. F. W. BURBANK,
Member of Paloma Debenture, Ord, Austin and Wadsworth.

Dr. Schiffman has put in a very satisfactory piece of bridge work for me, and I cheerfully recommend him to anyone in need of dentistry. F. FLORENTINE,
1135 North Main St. County and City Criminal Photographer.

About a year ago I had a solid gold bridge put in by Dr. Schiffman. The work was absolutely painless, and has proved entirely satisfactory, and I cannot say too much in praise of the doctor. GUS BARKER, 218 W. First St.

Dr. Schiffman extracted my teeth and replaced same by bridge work. He also doctored and filled two teeth, which I thought were too far gone to save. The above work was well done painlessly and is perfectly satisfactory. R. A. POLLARD, 737 Central Ave.

This is to certify that Dr. Schiffman did some crown work for me seven years ago and the work is as good today as it was when he finished the job.
E. J. McKEWEIR, Police Officer, 1039 Sunset Av.

I have had fourteen teeth extracted positively without pain by Dr. Schiffman.
L. A. OSBORN, Ocean Park Postmaster.

Have just had a large back tooth extracted by Dr. Schiffman; had been troubling me, but it was only a trifle and gave no pain. FRED A. DAY, Deputy City Assessor.

MIKE CASEY ON TOBOGGAN.

San Francisco's Accursed Demagogue Doomed.

Seeks to Wreck His Own Union to Save His Power.

Agitator's Perfidy Shown by Desperate Internal Warfare Over Boodle.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30.—The Casey rocket has spent its force and the stick is descending.

Mickey the hoodlum, Casey the team driver, Mike Casey the labor agitator, Michael Casey the politician, then the Hon. Michael Casey, president of the Board of Public Works and of the Health Board of San Francisco, is the two-year record of the ascent. The descent will occupy about as many months, and the end will come before the beginning of another year.

Casey's meteoric career is but a fair sample of labor conditions in San Francisco. His dominant characteristic is brute force; his natural end is the shambles.

Casey achieved fame through the Dennis Kearney sandlot tactics, but as he lacks the Kearney brain power, he falls through his own weakness. His power came through his union labor influence; his defeat and relegation to his former obscurity will come through the same source. With Casey will fall the horde of political hucksters who were elevated to prominence through the union labor craze which took possession of San Francisco three years ago and which has almost ruined the business prospects of the city.

To save himself from utter political annihilation Casey is now scheming to destroy the Teamsters' Union, and unless those members who have no interest in politics rally to the rescue he will succeed.

Casey is now president of the Teamsters' Union. Through this position he is a delegate to the City Front Federation, and has been chosen as its president. He is also delegate from the Teamsters' Union to the San Francisco Labor Council. By virtue of his prominence in these organizations Casey secured the appointment of Commissioner of the Board of Public Works, which carries with it the membership of the Board of Health. He receives a salary from the city of $2400 a year, and as chairman of the two municipal boards has patronage amounting to millions of dollars at his disposal.

With his positions and his connection with the labor organizations he has built up a political machine which has for its object the capture of all the best positions in the municipal government. But with all of his power and patronage, Casey was not able to give to every howling trades-unionist a fat job at the city's expense. And here comes the undoing of Casey. His fellow teamsters who were doomed to continue handling the reins over the backs of truck horses looked with envy upon their more fortunate brethren holding political jobs. While they were toiling over the heavy freight for the wholesale houses their more fortunate confreres were riding in rubber-tired buggies at the city's expense, doing Casey politics in the saloons and road houses, and drawing handsome salaries from the city treasury.

The malcontents realized that all of Casey's influence and power came from the union, and none in the union were benefited by it except the special favorites of Mickey. They knew that Casey had been a unionist just eighteen months when he was appointed commissioner with a salary that was a small fortune to the average teamster. In addition to this he had perquisites and pickings and patronage that netted him nearly ten times as much as his salary, while he and his consorts drew from the funds of the union $14,000 a year.

The natural result of this influence of the erstwhile hoodlum was that the outs wanted to cut the comb of the rooster and show him that without the union he was nothing. Right here is where Casey fell down. He did not have the brains to carry out his bluff. Instead of trying to make friends with those who were disgruntled, Casey called his cohorts together and the fiat went forth that every member of the union who dared to criticise Casey was a candidate for a broken head.

BEGINNING OF THE END.

The storm began last June at the annual election. The enemies Casey had made determined to oust him from his position as president of the union, and with this end in view they canvassed the union for a man who would stand against him. Casey got word of the revolt and the tip was quietly passed around by his heelers that things would be doing for the man who dared to become a candidate against the mighty Casey. When the election came no one of the 2000 members of the union could be found with nerve enough to let his name be used as candidate for the presidency of the union. The enemies of Casey contented themselves with defeating all of Casey's friends for the minor offices and Casey continued at the head of the organization.

One of the sections of the constitution of the Teamsters' Union requires that all officers must be actively engaged in team driving, but Casey had sufficient power in the union to override this clause and continue to hold his position, notwithstanding the fact that he was an official of the city who scorned the means of his elevation. At the election two delegates were chosen to the international convention of the Brotherhood of Teamsters. These two men were George Dillon and Frank Markey, who defeated two of Casey's lieutenants. These men announced their intention of having the union changed from a political organization back to a labor organization. With Dillon and Markey went Gus Harders, one of the Casey men who was an officer of the international brotherhood.

In the international convention Markey and Dillon explained the situation as it existed in San Francisco, and then introduced a resolution making it obligatory for officers of a union to be actively engaged in the business of team driving. Harders bitterly opposed this measure and made several speeches, in which he lauded Casey to the skies, and told what he had done for the cause of unionism in San Francisco. The convention gave him close attention and then it took up the resolution of Markey and Dillon, indorsed it and made it stronger by adding an amendment which compelled every man not actively engaged in driving a team to withdraw from the union. This was a body blow for Casey and all his healers who hold fat city jobs.

It means that on October 1 Casey and his henchmen will have to withdraw from the Teamsters' Union or go back to work on the trucks. It also means that Casey, being no longer a member of the Teamsters' Union, will have to retire from the City Front Federation and lose the presidency of that organization. He will also have to retire from the Labor Council, and will thus be shut effectually from all influence with labor organizations.

Harders hurried back to San Francisco from the convention and reported to Casey what had been done. There was a council of war, and it was determined to enact a coup that would keep Casey in power and forever silence his opponents.

CASEY FIRST, OF COURSE.

In order to save Casey it was decided to wreck the union. The only way to avert the calamity was to have the Teamsters' Union of San Francisco withdraw from the international brotherhood. This would mean the ultimate destruction of the union, but that was a matter that did not concern Casey so long as he was saved. The self-interests of the politicians was vastly more important than the integrity of the union.

It would require quick work, for the delegates would soon return and make their official report. If the union indorsed the action of the convention it would legislate Casey and a hundred or more of his followers out of the union and out of power. The Casey cohorts made a house-to-house canvass of the members of the union, argued the matter with them and convinced them that to save Casey was the first duty of the members. They exacted promises from the members that they would attend the meeting and support Casey in his effort to maintain power.

The meeting was held last Thursday night, and the Casey followers were sure of success, for they saw the hall filled with their friends. The hall holds but 600 and the union membership is 2200. The 600 could take action that would bind the entire union, and this was what Casey was playing for. Dillon and Markey were on hand with their reports, and Harders was there in his official capacity. Harders was the first to talk. What he had to say was less of a report of the action of the convention than a criticism of the action of the two delegates. But instead of being received with signs of approval, Harders' talk elicited hisses and grunts. Then Markey made his report, and he was applauded to the echo. This was a stunner to Casey and his friends, who had been firmly convinced that they had the hall packed.

Fearing that the report of Dillon would arouse still more enthusiasm they sparred for time, and called for a postponement of the meeting on account of the lateness of the hour. The hall was overheated and the members were willing to get a little fresh air. The meeting was adjourned for a week, when Dillon's report will be read and the question of seceding from the brotherhood will be broached and voted on.

It will be a battle royal, for Casey will be fighting for his very existence. He and his henchmen have been making a vigorous campaign among the members of the union, promising all sorts of political reward at the expense of the city to those who will stand by Casey.

Lowman hot shots

Mr. Lowman is in New York, on his Semi-Annual trip. The immense Fall Stocks he's buying direct right of way, so everything summerish is marked at ruinously low prices.

And everything is strictly high-class—remember that.

Reckless reductions on wearables that you smart dressers will be proud to wear—prices that might lead you to think it an accumulation of contemptible bargain-counter trash if you didn't know the Lowman store never houses anything but high-class goods in up-to-the minute styles.

And it's to retain that reputation that we force this early clearance of everything meant for this summer's wear.

BANK CLEARINGS. The credits exchanged at the Los Angeles clearing-house today were $1,004,343.36. For the corresponding date last year they were $953,599.47. Same date in 1901, $972,631.47.

FINANCIAL LEGISLATION. It is now possible to make a definite statement concerning the outlook for financial legislation. It is impossible that any bill will be passed providing for any radical reform of the currency. Moreover, the administration, much as it desires such legislation as would give increased elasticity to the national bank circulation, will not undertake to propose a measure of wide sweeping reform at this time. It has been practically decided upon to restrict the movement for financial legislation to a few simple things that will not arouse hopeless opposition and leave the effort for more important changes to a more favorable opportunity.

This is distinctly in line with what the Wall Street Journal has been for some time advocating as the only policy that seemed feasible or wise on the eve of a great Presidential election. We have more than once pointed out that there were two things which could be done that would materially improve the situation, and impart a much degree of elasticity to the bank note circulation, without involving any radical departure from the present system. These two things are:

1. The deposit of customs receipts in the depository banks the same as the internal revenue receipts are now. This is in full accord with our present policy. It would involve no new experiment in finance. But it would touch the last remnant of the sub-Treasury system of locking up money that ought to be in the channels of business where it can do the most good.

2. The repeal of the law limiting the retirement of national bank notes to $3,000,000 a month. This would give the increased elasticity to the circulation without any abandonment of the present system of bank notes secured by the United States bonds. If to these two things should be added a continuance of the policy of refunding so as to provide a further supply of interest-bearing bonds available as security for circulation, there would be a notable improvement of the financial system, without any doubtful experiments in the direction of either asset currency or deposits as a circulation secured by railroad bonds.—[Wall Street Journal.

SUGAR SHIPMENTS TO ENGLAND. Bradstreet's of August 29, says at midnight on August 31 the Brussels Sugar Convention will come into operation. That will mean the total prohibition of importations of sugar from Russia, Argentina and Denmark, countries which are not parties to the agreement.

Foreign merchants who hold large stocks are chartering every available steamer so that they may land their consignments before the act comes into force. And this is why sugar-laden vessels are sailing from all parts of the globe for England, while others are hurrying short cargoes into the holds of steamers which will have a race hard to reach there in time. Should the sugar ships of the countries concerned arrive after midnight of August 31 the captains will be compelled to produce a certificate of origin. Wholesale confiscation of cargoes will follow.

The rush for the British markets is an exciting form of commercial enterprise. The first of these speedy sugar-laden boats has already arrived. Several days ago the Russians landed in London a total of 2154 hundredweights of bounty-fed sugar. When it is remembered that Russia's share of the importations has been hitherto infinitesimal, the extent of the spurt to save the bounties will be realized.

A correspondent of the London Daily News at Danzig states that the merchants there who deal largely in Russian sugar are alarmed. One exporter, he says, has chartered twenty ships for England, including one of 2000 tons to London. Ships, he adds, are even arriving in ballast, so that they may leave without delay loaded with sugar.

These extraordinary importations will, of course, have some temporary effect on the market. British merchants, while admitting that the situation will, for a brief time, be critical, are confident that the convention will eventually make for marked improvement all round. Last month the following quantities were imported: Germany, 493,774 hundredweights; Austria, 87,987 hundredweights; Argentine, 76,746 hundredweights; France, [illegible] hundredweights.

The amount of sugar sent from Russia was so small that no separate return was made; the total went under the general heading of "other countries." The supplies at present in sight are described as "fair," while the entries under the convention which continue to import are the real forces for the provision of sugar. The temporary crisis created in the trade by the new regulations may, it is said, result in a little increase in the price of sugar to the consumer, but according to the merchants, will not last long.

The government officials are now making everything ready for compliance with the international agreement. On September 1, refineries will be subjected to government supervision. The government will keep its own officers upon the premises of each great refinery and collect duty as the sugar leaves the warehouses, instead of, as at present, when it is released from the docks. All this means a vast amount of additional organization, and probably an increase in the customs' staff.

GENERAL BUSINESS TOPICS.

CITRUS-FRUIT SHIPMENTS. Shipments of citrus fruits from Southern California on Monday were 16 carloads of oranges and 4 of lemons. The total shipments for the season, from November 1, 1902, to date, are 21,786 carloads, of which number 2562 carloads are lemons.

AUTOMOBILES AND FEED. The development of the automobile has given rise to a discussion as to the possible effect of the same upon the price of oats. This proceeds upon the idea that the automobile will come to be a mere vehicle for rapid pleasure riding and be utilized for business and comfortable carriages at moderate rates of speed. This is welcomed by some on the ground that too much land is devoted to raising food for horses, and that it might be employed more profitably. Hay and oats require last year over 104,000 square miles of arable land, and the combined value of the two crops was $3,666,000,000. But it is doubtful whether the farmers will assent to the theory that this land could be more profitably employed. If it were devoted to breadstuffs it would greatly increase the supply and demand the exportation of larger quantities.—[Courier Journal.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

SHARES AND MONEY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Today's volume of dealings was not greatly below those of yesterday, but the dearth of interest in the market and the dead level of prices was more pronounced than at any time lately. Yesterday's upward movement of prices was pretty promptly halted after the market got started, and there was quite liberal profit-taking by yesterday's buyers. The decline was not far extended, and only a few of the stocks were depressed as much as a point. Reading was notably under pressure, the selling being supposed to be unloading of some pool holdings taken on expectation of a rise in the price. As a matter of fact, the consideration of the past half's earnings by the anthracite carriers has been generally giving way to the effect of the discussion of the accumulation of steam sizes of coal, followed by the shutting down of some of the collieries and some of the suggestions of curtailment of production. The principal event of the day in the financial world was the advance in the Bank of England discount rate to a full 4 per cent., from 3 to 4 per cent. This is one of the customary measures to oppose an outward movement of gold. The advance is not unusual in the fall months, but is generally delayed later than this. But the drain upon the bank of England gold supply has become so considerable as to suggest the interposing of some obstacle. Over $4,000,000 was taken from the bank today, and of this $3,500,000 went to Germany, which is the principal source of the drain. The London market was decidedly depressed in consequence of the advance in rates, the price of consols falling lower than during the Boer war. The depression reflected in New York from that source, however, was but slight and sales for London account were small. This may have been due to the fact that New York is likely to join in the demand on London for gold before long. Our foreign exchange responses to the increased bank rate in London, but our money market was practically unaffected. The heavy liquidation in the cotton market was due to the complete surprise at the condition of the crop exhibited by the Agricultural Department, and this was naturally a favorable influence upon stocks. The effect, however, was scarcely perceptible. The continued firmness in the corn market attracted more notice. The slump in Colorado Fuel was the consequent influence in passing of the dividend on the preferred stock and the heavy requirements for additional capital which are impending over the corporation. Metropolitan Street Railway reflected the continued unfavorable view of the turning back by the underwriting syndicate managers of their holdings of the stock to the dominant interests in the property. The market became practically stagnant late in the day, and heavy about the low level. The bond market was very dull and irregular. Total sales, $1,800,000. United States 2s advanced ½, and the new 4's ¼ per cent on the last call.

Bank of England Discount.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—The rate of discount of the Bank of England was increased today from 3 to 4 per cent. The rise was attributed mainly to the withdrawal of gold for the repayment of The Netherlands railroad loan and, to a lesser degree, to the demands for gold from Berlin. The action of the bank this morning was a great surprise to the Stock Exchange and caused general depression, especially in consols. It was thought the rise in the bank rate would hinder the supply for American requirements.

GENERAL EASTERN MARKETS.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—On the higher prices for corn the early wheat market showed strength, with an upturn in prices. The news was rather bearish, however, except that Northwest receipts were smaller and the strength deserted the pit and the advance was lost. December, on the early bulge, sold up to 73¾. The close was at the bottom, with a loss of ⅝ to 1½@1½, but the cash was firm. September was down ¼ to ⅝, at 71¼. Corn was influenced by the prediction of cooler weather and especially by prospects of frosts in the Dakotas and Minnesota tonight. The market was strong, and prices ruled higher, but the advances were not large. There was a good demand for September for shorts, showing that fears of congestion in that month's contracts still existed. December closed ¼ higher, at 51¾, after ranging between 51¾ and 52½@ 51¾. September was unchanged, at 51¾. Oats were strong with buying of good character, led by commission houses and local traders. December closed at 34@34¼, after selling during 34¼@34⅞, with September up ⅛, at 34¼. Fewer hogs than expected and free buying caused a good advance in provisions. Closing prices were 13.67½ for October, pork, 7.77½ for October; lard, with January, at 7.12½. October ribs were 7.35, and January, 6.75@6.77½.

The leading futures ranged as follows:

New York Cotton Market.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The cotton market opened steady. Shortly after the call, heavy liquidation set in, which carried prices rapidly downward. Then the monthly bureau report was read, showing an average condition of 81.2, against 84 last. In an instant, September was down to 11.15; October, 10.30; December, 9.45, and January, 9.42. The realizing by selling orders came in from all directions, and prices were soon on the downward trend again. The close was steady and at a slight recovery, which represented a decline from the highest of the week of from 39 to 71 points. Prices were finally net, 25 to 28 points lower. The session was one of the most active and excited that the market has ever witnessed since the early days of the bull campaign.

(NEWS REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.)

TOOK POISON ENOUGH TO KILL TWELVE MEN.

RANCHER ALBERT REED STILL LIVES AT SANTA ANA.

Despondent Man's Suicide Prevented by Overdose of Strychnine—San Joaquin Lands Proposed for Government Garden.

SANTA ANA, Sept. 3.—Ignorance of the effects of an overdose of strychnine is all that saved Albert Reed from taking his own life yesterday. Reed, who is a middle-aged farmer, living west of the river, becoming despondent on account of ill health, decided to end his suffering in death. He mixed a liberal dose of strychnine with a cup of milk about noon yesterday and drank the concoction at one draught, taking enough poison into his system to lay out a dozen men.

Reed was alone at the time, the other members of the family being at San Diego on a vacation, and it was fully two hours before a neighbor happened to call at the house and found Reed stretched out as if dead. Other neighbors were quickly called in, a physician summoned from this city, and by dint of washing out the man's stomach and administering restoratives he was revived, and is today resting well in the care of neighbors.

Reed took such a big dose of the poison that his stomach refused the burden, and his vomiting ejected practically all of the drug from his system. His mother and sister are expected home from San Diego tomorrow.

GOVERNMENT GARDEN SITE.

The Chamber of Commerce listened to reports at its meeting last night from the committee recently appointed to secure sites for the proposed government gardens and station. The committee reported a number of sites inspected in company with P. H. Dorsett, one of the representatives of the government who are viewing the locations, and gave a favorable verdict on the San Joaquin lands, which are among the most fertile in this section. The committee propose to interview the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation Company to obtain water stock for the land.

Secretary W. B. Snow reported that Don Marco Forster of Capistrano had consented to exhibit his valuable collection of old Spanish and Indian relics in the Chamber of Commerce building, and it will be brought here this week.

THOMPSON-VAN PATTEN.

Miss Lenora B. Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Thompson of Orange avenue, was married at noon today at the home of her parents to Seth F. Van Patten of this city. Rev. B. C. Cory of the First Methodist Church performed the ceremony, which was witnessed only by relatives of the contracting parties and intimate friends. Mr. Van Patten was assistant principal of the Orange schools last year, and this year goes to Escondido to take charge of the high school work there.

PEACE DISTURBERS.

Dick Covington, a town character who has frequently figured in the Police Court, was arrested last evening for disturbing the peace by boisterous conduct. The man had become drunk and in wandering about town terrified women and children. He pleaded not guilty in Justice Smithwick's court today, and his trial was set for 10 o'clock tomorrow.

Joseph Swetz, another peace disturber, who quarreled last night with his employer, S. R. Obarr of the Fourth-street meat market, was sent to jail today for five days for the offense.

ORANGETTES.

Postmaster Shaw reports an increase of 23 1-3 per cent. in the postal receipts from stamp sales of August, 1903, over August, 1902. For the last month they were $1056.55, and for the corresponding month last year were $793.34. In the rural mail delivery routes from this city a total of 21,079 pieces of mail were handled during the past month by the four carriers.

ANAHEIM.

NICKEY GETS HIS BOY.

ANAHEIM, Sept. 3.—Clyde Nickey has recovered his eight-year-old boy, which, since the death of its mother the first of the year, has been kept by the grandmother, Mrs. Carver, who gave up the child on the advice of her attorney. Nickey married Mrs. Carver's handsome daughter several years ago, and went from place to place, until his wife returned here in ill-health and broken in spirit. For months before her death Mrs. Nickey lived here, separated from her husband, who was in Los Angeles. A few months after the birth of the child the mother, who before her marriage was one of the most beautiful young women in the county, died. Her husband did not come to the funeral, and Mrs. Carver took the child, and cared for it as her own.

ONTARIO.

TWO WEDDINGS.

ONTARIO, Sept. 3.—The home of George C. Freeman on West G street was the scene of a pretty wedding yesterday morning, when his daughter, Harriet A. Freeman, was united to Louis E. Walker of Woodland. The ceremony was performed under an arch of green and white by Rev. Ralph B. Larkin. The rooms were tastefully decorated in green pepper boughs and white flowers. The bride was gowned in a dainty creation of white organdie and carried a bouquet of white carnations. The wedding march was played by Miss Bertha Palmer. After the ceremony and congratulations of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Walker left for Woodland, where they will make their home. The bride is very well known here, where she has spent most of her life. The ceremony was witnessed by the members of the immediate family and four or five friends.

The wedding of Miss Harriet E. Craig and Ross P. Gariutt was solemnized Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Henry Healy, West J street, Rev. P. B. Mather, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was the officiating clergyman. The parlors were decorated in palm leaves, vines and white carnations. The ceremony was performed under an arch of palm leaves, banked with green. The bride was attended by her two little nieces, Alma Gariutt of Ontario, and little Miss Craig of Long Beach, as flower girls. They were gowned in white and pink. The wedding march was played by Arthur Craig of Long Beach, nephew of the bride. The Episcopal ring service was used. The bride was gowned in white organdie, trimmed with rich India lace and carried a bouquet of white carnations and maidenhair ferns. Dainty refreshments were served to about forty guests. Mr. and Mrs. Gariutt, who are popular young people of Ontario, will make their home here.

C. J. Thompson and wife of Los Angeles arrived yesterday and are staying at the Hot Springs Hotel.

SALVATIONISTS NOT WRONGED BY POLICE.

MAJ. CONNETT FLATLY DENIES TALES OF PERSECUTION.

Authorities and General Public Thanked for Support of Work in "Redlight District"—Silly "Record" Sensation Without Foundation.

Maj. H. Connett, on behalf of the local forces of the Salvation Army, makes the following statement to The Times regarding the arrest of a number of members of his organization. In submitting it the major states that the Salvation Army considers that the police merely performed their sworn duty as officers of the law, and that no assault of any kind was ever made upon the army. In view of this fact the Los Angeles Record's attempt to create a sensation by printing allegations of police persecution of the Salvation Army, and other wild accusations against the police department, fall to the ground. Here is Maj. Connett's statement:

As we first stated at the time of the arrest, we did not believe it was the desire of the authorities nor the wish of the public that the Salvation Army should be in any way crippled in its endeavor to do the work which is so urgently presented on all sides, and subsequent events have proved this.

We have yet to find any one who made any complaint and thereby occasioned our arrest, nor do we know who was responsible for the same. We are satisfied to know that the general public appreciates and indorses our work, and that we have been accorded that religious freedom which so befittingly goes with the national character and intentions.

As to the meetings held by us in the red-light district on Saturday nights, we wish to state that we consider these most necessary and are fully satisfied that we are enabled to accomplish great good in this direction, especially among young men and women. There is no doubt that many young people (men especially) just entering, or about to enter, a life of vice, have been halted on the threshold, their conscience troubled by the earnest words of our officers and soldiers and have turned their backs on vice as found in this district and have lifted up their faces to purity and honesty. The men who run these places and who live off the earnings of the inmates of the cribs naturally oppose any effort at reform which would reduce their income, but we do not feel that any city officials have any desire to prevent our meetings in this place.

Our last meeting in this district was not interfered with, the crowds of men being allowed to listen. We have felt that possibly it was the opposition of individuals that made the trouble more than the general disposition of the police force, as we are confident that as a body we have their good will, especially as their duties bring them into actual contact with so much of our work. The Salvation Army, in all parts of the world, endeavors to work in harmony with the police force. To quote the late Mr. Spurgeon, "London would need 2000 additional policemen were it to lose the Salvation Army" and many similar expressions have been made by the authorities of different cities in the United States.

We want to thank the public for their hearty and spontaneous support not only for the help we received in the matter, but for the encouragement it gives us to continue our efforts for those who need spiritual and temporal help in this city.

We desire to thank the clergy of all denominations for their expressed approval of our work and for their unqualified opinion that we should be allowed the right to hold meetings in the streets.

We also thank Mayor Snyder and the city authorities, including the Councilmen and police commissioners, for the good will manifested and the unanimous decision to allow the right of open-air work.

Our thanks are especially due to Mr. William J. Hunsaker, who has most kindly and carefully conducted our case for us, and so zealously protected our interests. While Mr. Hunsaker has realized our rights, yet he has been most anxious to avoid any friction and has not spared any effort to effect an amicable settlement.

We also take this occasion to thank the press, who from their different standpoints have indorsed our work. While as Salvationists, we do not stand as sponsors for all that has been published, nor have we the insight or opportunity to understand the true inwardness of the situation, yet we feel that, as far as the Salvation Army is concerned, we have the good will and support of the press, which we value and appreciate and shall feel encouraged to continue our work in its different branches, with all the zeal possible. We are not politicians, our business is with the individual, one by one as the case presents itself, or as we go to the highway and hedges to seek those needing help, we preach reformation, and point sinners to Him who said, "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance."

We are thankful that we can report great success in our work this summer in Los Angeles, some hundreds of men and women having professed conversion. Our institutions for men are full, our rescue and children's home overcrowded. The Young Women's Home is unable to accommodate the many applicants and our relief bureau is well patronized. Two large free excursions to the seaside for the poor have been given, and another is being arranged for the 15th inst. The gospel services in each of our halls are well attended every night of the week, as are also our special services held in the tent. May the God whom we serve help us to push on, and to relieve the distressed wheresoever found, and may the accorded right to hold open-air meetings result in the salvation, both soul and body, of many enslaved by sin.

SOME interesting incidents in the new Pope's boyhood will be related in The Times Magazine the coming Sunday by a Rome correspondent of this paper.

"THE COUGH IN LOWER SEVEN" is the title of an interesting story by Frank H. Spearman which will appear in The Times Magazine the coming Sunday.

You can do better cooking with gas than with coal; more of it; easier, quicker; more comfortably, of course; and more economically.

If you have but little to do, it don't matter so much.

If you have a whole lot to do, don't wait a minute; get a gas cookstove.

Burlington Route

An Eastern Trip Made Easy.

Experience has taught us just what to provide in order to make the long overland trip attractive. The sleeping cars used for our weekly "Personally Conducted" parties are just as comfortable as a car can be. The sleeping berths are even a little bit more roomy than those in the standard Pullman cars, and the linen and blankets used are the same in each.

The price for a double berth is only $5 to Omaha or Kansas City, $6 to Chicago or St. Louis, and $8 to Boston. Less than half the palace car price. The route is through Salt Lake City and past the grand scenery of the Rockies—the most intensely interesting ride in America.

Kindly call or write for particulars.

STILETTO CUTLERY EVERY BLADE WARRANTED

A MASS OF SORES.

Awful Suffering of a Boy from an Itching Humor.

Not One Square Inch of Skin on His Whole Body Unaffected.

CURED BY CUTICURA

"My little son, a boy of five, broke out with an itching rash. Three doctors prescribed for him, but he kept getting worse, until we could not dress him any more. They finally advised me to try a certain medical college but its treatment did not do any good. At the time I was induced to try Cuticura Remedies he was so bad that I had to cut his hair off and put the Cuticura Ointment on it on bandages as it was impossible to touch him with the bare hand. There was not one square inch of skin on his whole body that was not affected. He was one mass of sores. The bandages used to stick to his skin and in removing them it used to take the skin off with them, and the screams from the poor child were heart-breaking. I began to think that he would never get well, but after the second application of Cuticura Ointment I began to see signs of improvement, and with the third and fourth applications the sores commenced to dry up. His skin peeled off twenty times, but it finally yielded to the treatment. I used the Cuticura Resolvent for his blood and now I can say that he is entirely cured, and a stronger and healthier boy you never saw than he is to-day. You can use this testimonial in whatever way you please, and if any proof outside of my word is needed I will refer to any of our neighbors." ROBERT WATTAM. 4922 Center Ave., Chicago, Ill. [NEWS REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.]

ASADENA PEPPERS SAVED FROM SCALE.

SPECTOR DAY FINDS PARASITE RAPIDLY SPREADING.

South African Fly Inhabits Over Two Hundred Trees that Were Feared Lost. Aged Preacher Hurt—Peculiar Trouble Over Lost Boy.

PASADENA, Office of The Times, No. 30 South Raymond avenue, Sept. 4.—County Horticultural Inspector C. A. Day has just completed a tour of investigation of the work that is being done by the South African fly, the pest that was imported about a year ago in hopes that it would rescue the pepper trees from the voracious black scale. He finds that a great work is being accomplished; in fact, the insect is meeting with more success than the most sanguine hopes dared to tell.

It was just a year ago that the little parasites to the number of a few hundred were placed on one tree on South Marengo avenue. At that time the residents had cut back the trees and many of them expected that they would eventually take them out altogether. It looked as though the pretty and best-known shade tree of Southern California would have to be abandoned, for it did not only succumb to the scale, or at least lost its beauty, but also served as a means of spreading the evil to other trees. The principal question to the minds of the experimenters was as to whether the parasite would propagate fast enough to overtake the scale. It is now known that it killed the scale. Mr. Day's investigation found that the dozen scale placed on the single tree a year ago now inhabit no less than 225 pepper trees in the neighborhood and are to be found also upon a large number of other trees and shrubs. They have even spread to trees on Euclid avenue.

There is not a particle of danger of the parasite ever becoming injurious," said Inspector Day yesterday. "It eats no vegetable matter whatever. When it has eaten out all the scale here it will have to move to new pastures or die of starvation."

AGED PREACHER HURT.

Rev. D. R. Mansfield was the victim of an accident yesterday morning which may have very serious results on account of his advanced age. Rev. Mr. Mansfield was walking across the street at the corner of Colorado and Oak when a horse being driven at top speed by an electric car and frightened at the latter, collided with the buggy against Mr. Mansfield, knocking him down and causing him to fracture his hip. The victim of the accident is 82 years of age and resides at No. 73 West Peoria street. He is the formerly pastor of the Advent Christian Church of this city.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCEMENT.

The engagement of Miss Helen Stanton, a young lady of Pasadena and James [illegible], who was formerly [illegible] was announced yesterday at a reception in Hamilton, N. Y., at the home of Mr. Milton's mother-in-law, Miss Shuter and sister, Mrs. George H. Shuter, are hostesses, Mrs. George H. Shuter, are entertaining. The engagement is one of the most outstanding, only made public yesterday. Mr. Miller is a prominent business man of Utica, and a junior member of the firm of Stedman & Co., paper manufacturers.

Mrs. Shuter and daughter expect to return to Pasadena the last of this month, but no date as yet has been set for the wedding.

FOUND HER BOY.

An eastern woman who rented a furnished house for the summer on North Los Robles avenue had a startling and tragic experience yesterday.

In answering to a ring at the bell the woman found a stout, strong female on the door step whom she had never seen before. As the door swung wide open the stranger pushed forward, threw up both hands, and exclaimed, with a gasp:

"My boy. What have you done with my boy?"

"Say—wh—what boy?" stammered the astonished door-opener. "I don't know anything about your—"

"Woman—where is he? Tell me this instant where you have put him—"

Confident she had to deal with a lunatic, the lady inside pushed the strange woman, who was stepping aggressively over the sill outside, and slammed the door in her face, but not before she caught the words: "If you've harmed that picture-prescute—sorry."

Down the gloom of the narrow hallway the west light burst over the renter, and she opened the door.

The excited female was the owner of the house, which had been rented through an agent; the "boy" referred to was a ghastly oil painting of a conspicuous lad, which had been so harrowing to the feelings of the renters that it was at that moment swathed in protecting sheet, hidden in the attic. Explanations which did not trip readily from the tongue soon straightened out matters, but the two women will coldly be friends.

ODDS AND ENDS.

At the monthly meeting of the Humane Society yesterday the financial report showed a balance of $158 in the treasury. Constable Wellis was delegated to climb up the San Gabriel canon and investigate the report that some mules up there are being abused.

Robert J. Burdette reported that he hadn't discovered anything as a member of the Committee on Cruelty to Children, except that she had seen a woman carrying through the streets a sleeping infant whose face was toward the sun. When Mrs. Burdette called attention to the burning glances that the sun she got a burning glances from the woman, who thought the sun was good for it. Taken altogether, the meetings of the society during the past month don't tend to show that we are a very wicked community—just careless.

Today the Health Officer, Dr. F. F. Rowland, and Plumbing Inspector Buchanan will take a trip to Catalina Island to inspect the incineration plant that is to be established at that place. Maybe they will get some seed or cuttings and plant a plant in it here, as the city's property for that purpose, on the banks of the arroyo, is now ready for occupancy.

News has been received of the death of Mary Blume, wife of Henry Blume of No. 216 Arcadia street. The death occurred at Fortuna, Aris., August 23. Interment will be at McKeesport, Pa. The Woman's Exchange at No. 112 East Colorado street has closed its doors after eight months' trial. The reason of service and information will be continued for the present from 9 to 5 p.m.

Charles McDaniel was fined $10 yesterday because when he was ejected from an electric car Sunday night, while drunk, he fired a shot from a revolver.

Mrs. F. S. Brown and Miss A. A. Brown have arrived from a two years' stay abroad. They are at No. 670 South Pasadena Grove boulevard.

Stefan Khuzera, a Bulgarian girl, aged about 25 years, is dead in North Pasadena, a victim of consumption. She came here from Chicago six months ago, in company with a nurse and Joseph Valetcha, her fiancé.

"Come all ye that are heavy laden"—put a "Liner" in The Times and the burden will be gone. Telephone your "wants" to Red 1451, and our Pasadena Agency will take your ad. and send it to the main office.

Catalina visitors can secure special low rates at Hotel Windsor during September.

CLAREMONT.

COLLEGE-TOWN PERSONALS.

CLAREMONT, Sept. 3.—Miss Nellie Decker, '01, Pomona College, has left the valley to enter upon her second year in teaching at the town of Palo Verde, Riverside county, on the Colorado River, where she has taken up a government claim.

James S. Bennett, '03, Pomona College, will start next Wednesday for Columbia University to enter the law department.

Dr. Frank W. Thomas has gone with his family for a brief outing at Long Beach.

Walter Scott Desendorf, '99, Pomona College, is reported to be suffering severely from lung trouble.

Miss Lena McCormick of Pomona College has gone on a ten days' outing to Los Angeles and the beaches.

Arthur L. T. Gould, '01, Pomona College, left this morning for several days' visit at Santa Ana. He will start within two weeks to take up his second year of post-graduate work at Yale University.

A crew of tunnelers are working on the well at the G. G. Charlton ranch on Mesa avenue. They have bored to fifty feet at a depth of 165 feet below the ground surface. The well capacity has been already increased from 25 to 35 inches.

LONG BEACH.

ALERT AT ENCAMPMENT.

LONG BEACH, Sept. 4.—Camp life was quiet today on account of the visit if many of the veterans at the Soldiers' Home.

The only excitement during the morning was the arrival of the training ship Alert, which anchored immediately off the camp and only a short distance out. As soon as the Sons of Veterans on guard were certain of the identity of the boat they ran their cannon down on the beach and fired a salute as she came to anchor.

This afternoon the ladies of John F. Godfrey W.R.C., Pasadena, took possession of the big tent and held a reception for the newcomers and those who had not taken the excursion.

Tonight the entertainment was in the hands of John F. Godfrey Post and Corps, and the big tent was again filled to overflowing. There was first a brief but hearty welcome from A. K. Nash, commander of the Post, and Mrs. Myra Follette, president of the W.R.C. Following this were excellently rendered recitations by Mrs. Georgiana Donnell and Miss Edna Jay. The remainder of the evening was devoted to a social good time.

Tomorrow will be devoted largely to routine camp life, the veterans being left to find their own pleasures. In the evening Vicksburg W.R.C. of Pomona will entertain in the big tent. An invitation has been extended to all soldiers and their families to be present. The Long Beach Marine Band at the pavilion during the evening. This same invitation has been extended the boys on the Alert.

BEACH BRIEFS.

A professional diver has been secured to make search for the body of Warren Coolidge in the deep water at the end of the wharf. He is the one who is said to have fallen from the end of the wharf while talking to two friends three days ago. The search was commenced this afternoon.

Commencing at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, Wood of Ontario and Strong of Pomona will commence a series of games to determine anew the croquet championship. Strong now holds the medal for Southern California and Wood wants it. The games will be played on the court of the local club, at the corner of Ocean Park and Cedar avenues.

Maj. A. S. Carper, member of the executive staff of Gov. Cummins at Des Moines, Ia., is visiting Iowa friends here and attending the encampment.

Mrs. A. B. Cole and wife of Hastings, Neb., are among recent arrivals.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Shrewsbury of Woolley, Wash., are guests of his brother, J. E. Shrewsbury, of this city.

Another fine well has just been added to the equipment of the Alamitos Water Company. It is 400 feet deep, 12 inches in diameter, and shows an excellent flow.

Roy Taylor closed his vacation this morning and returned to his work for the Southern Pacific at Bakersfield.

Miss Lottie Miller took the members of her class in the Christian Sunday School to East Lake Park today for a picnic.

William Carse and Miss Pearl Wilcox were united in marriage at the home of the bride's mother, No. 144 Elm avenue, last evening, Rev. Frank K. Lewis officiating. Only the relatives and immediate friends were present.

Mrs. D. J. Bartley and Mrs. Professor Chawner, who have been visiting their sister, Mrs. George H. Blount, left for their homes in El Modena this morning.

Two strangers went to sleep in one of the rooms of the lodging-house over the First National Bank last night, leaving the gas turned on. About 10 o'clock they called the landlady to complain of the smell and were surprised to learn how near they had been to death.

Hotel Riviera, a few vacant rooms now.

TROPICO.

RELIEF CORPS BENEFIT.

TROPICO, Sept. 3.—Prof. Joseph Kirkham of the Pacific Art Tile Works of Tropico, and his corps of artists, assisted by local talent, gave an enjoyable musical programme before a large and appreciative audience in G.A.R. Hall, Tuesday evening. The entertainment was for the benefit of N. P. Banks, Woman's Relief Corps of Tropico, and about $40 was realized to apply on the ladies' debt for furnishing the hall. Otto P. Snyder, superintendent of the tile works, presided, and Prof. Kirkham gave a brief address. Those who contributed music were Misses Ellen Chase, Ina Whitaker, Fannie Marple, Flora Chandler; Mmes. Joseph Marple and C. T. Chandler; Messrs. Geoffrey Morgan, Joseph Marple, Clarence Peck and Joseph Marple, Jr. The numbers included vocal and instrumental solos and quartette singing, and each selection was warmly received

FIRST JUSTICE DEAD IN SANTA MONICA.

HON. JOHN C. MORGAN EXPIRES AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Was First Practicing Attorney and Early Settler of Santa Monica Township—Presbyterians Give a Pretty Lawn Fete—Beach Pickings.

SANTA MONICA, Sept. 3.—Hon. John C. Morgan, the first practicing attorney and the first justice of the peace of this township, and one of the first settlers, died here this morning of cirrhosis of the liver, after an illness of several months, during only a small portion of which time he was confined to his home. The funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at the chapel of Guidinger's undertaking establishment. Burial will be made in Woodlawn cemetery.

At Judge Morgan's bedside at the time of his death were his sister-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Finn, and his son, Vincent Morgan.

Judge Morgan came to Santa Monica in 1875, when the "city" consisted of a few scattered houses. His first business here was as the proprietor of the old Santa Monica hotel. Later he purchased property on Second street near Utah avenue and established his permanent residence, and subsequently he became township justice. He was appointed City Attorney of Santa Monica upon the incorporation of the town in November, 1888, and filled that office two terms. He served one term as school trustee, and in 1900 he was elected to the Board of Town Trustees. Owing to the reorganization of Santa Monica into a city of the fifth class, he held this office for only two instead of four years, and at the last municipal election was defeated in his candidacy for reelection. This defeat weighed heavily on Judge Morgan, and dated the beginning of the decline which terminated in his death. Judge Morgan was an old-line Democrat and prided himself upon never having changed from his political adherence. About the year 1886 he served one term as justice of the peace in Los Angeles city, and in the early part of that decade served as clerk in the State Legislature. He was a native of Louisiana and aged 68 years.

PRETTY LAWN FETE.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church this afternoon gave a very pleasant and successful lawn party on the beautiful grounds surrounding the Sweetser residence on Fifth street, between Oregon and Utah avenues. Mrs. M. M. Treadwell, president of the society, and Mrs. J. H. Clark and Mrs. E. H. Sweetser, as Executive Committee, had charge of the fete. The lawns were gay with decorated booths and thronged with prettily-gowned women.

Mrs. Fay Hunt, assisted by Mrs. Jessica Clark, Mrs. Spies, Mrs. Hanna and Mrs. H. D. Coulson of Randsburg, presided over the booth in which fancy articles were for sale. The Japanese booth, where ice cream and cake were served, was in charge of Mrs. Lyon E. Case, assisted by Miss Wagil and Mrs. Bennett. The candy and popcorn booth was directed by Miss Josephine Potter, assisted by Mrs. Ruth Hart and Miss Oma Dunham. The booth for domestic articles was presided over by Mrs. C. S. Dales, assisted by Mrs. J. H. Dunham, Mrs. Rea and Mrs. T. H. James. The fete was a decided success, socially and financially.

WENT FOR FISH.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Harper of Farmington, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Parks, of Oklahoma; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gard and Mr. Stoneburger of Hunnewell, Kan.; Mrs. Lou Miller and Miss Jennie Van Sickle of Los Angeles and Miss Minnie Cross of Sawtelle, made up a jolly launch party to the fishing grounds off Point Dume yesterday morning. Mrs. Wilms was chartered for the excursion. A fair haul of barracuda, yellowtail, rock bass and bonita was taken.

The members of the Ladies' Afternoon Card Club were entertained yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Gaffey, on Ocean avenue. Handsome prizes were distributed.

Mrs. J. C. Healey has returned from a two weeks' vacation spent at Glen ranch.

Mrs. R. P. Winters and family of Riverside have returned home after a vacation spent at the beach.

Among the guests registered at the Hotel Arcadia are Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Campbell-Johnston, Garvanza; Mrs. E. B. Smith, Miss Clara Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Cattern, Miss May Newton, F. D. Parker, A. F. Levitt, Los Angeles; George N. Lawrence, Salt Lake; Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Scott, Artesia.

"A fool and his money are soon parted," but the wise man takes his money and earns more with it by advertising in The Times. Telephone your wants to Main 95 and our Santa Monica Agency will take your ad. and send it to the main office.

SOLDIERS' HOME.

VISITORS FROM ENCAMPMENT.

SOLDIERS' HOME, Sept. 3.—Over three hundred delegates of the G.A.R. encampment at Long Beach, their ladies and friends, visited the home today. They came aboard six special cars via the Los Angeles-Pacific electric road. The home band went to Los Angeles early in the morning, where they met the guests and escorted them here with martial music.

The visitors were met on their arrival at Sawtelle, by Grand Army comrades, with a number of vehicles for the infirm and the ladies. The ablebodied majority, headed by the home band and the Los Angeles Fife and Drum Corps, took up the march for the home.

At Memorial Hall the party was warmly greeted by members of the home. Col. Andrew R. Earl of Uncle Sam Post, G.A.R., made a brief address of welcome, which was responded to on behalf of the visitors by Maj. Thomas McE. Brady, commander of the Southern California Veterans' Association.

The day was one of mutual enjoyment, in the renewing of acquaintances. A number of instances were noted where comrades had not met before since the parting at "muster out" at the close of the war.

LORDSBURG.

NEW JOINT CEMETERY.

LORDSBURG, Sept. 3.—At a meeting held last night at the residence of L. C. Meredith at La Verne, attended by the leading citizens of San Dimas, La Verne and Lordsburg, it was decided to purchase ten acres from W. D. Cason to be used as a cemetery for the three districts. All the money required has been subscribed, the project meeting with the hearty support of the whole district. The cemetery grounds are located a short distance south of Mesa avenue, and east of the Orchard recently sold by Col. Firey; and they will be laid out and beautified by an expert landscape gardener. The great distance to any other cemetery and the very high price demanded for lots have proved extremely burdensome to these communities. Steps were taken to incorporate under the name of the "Evergreen Cemetery Association."

ROUND AND ABOUT.

A number of the ranchers around here are preparing to fumigate their trees this fall. Considerable fumigating last year was carelessly done, resulting in damage rather than a benefit to the orchards. One rancher, instead of paying for his fumigating, received suit as damages for injuries to his trees, owing to indifferent work.

As a result some of the ranchers will spray, while others still prefer the fumigation when well done.

The San Dimas hunters returned yesterday from Coldwater Cañon, bringing a plentiful supply of venison.

T. J. Culp and wife of Kansas are visiting at the home of R. A. Wallace. Mr. Culp and Mr. Wallace were comrades together in the same company during the Civil War, and attended the reunion of the G.A.R. at San Francisco.

GREAT TUNA SPECTACLE SURPRISES CATALINA.

THOUSANDS OF THE GAMY LEAPERS SEEN OFF AVALON.

Flying Fish Chased Out of the Water in Hordes and Fisherman Rush Out, but Absence of Proper Bait Results in No Captures.

AVALON, Sept. 3.—The passengers on the big boat Lady Lou were treated to a great sight this morning on their return trip from Moonstone Beach. As they neared Avalon a few splashes were observed, and some one remarked: "That looks like tuna." The tuna season proper having long since passed, the incident was also about to be passed up. All of a sudden the whole area of ocean visible in looking toward the mainland became flecked with white foam and dashing spray from hundreds, and even thousands of this mightiest of game fishes. Their huge bodies were seen leaping into the air in every direction, some of them apparently reaching a height of ten feet and more.

It was a school of tuna of immense proportions, reaching from the confines of Avalon Bay as far as the eye could see in the direction of Long Point. They had run into a school of flying fish, and these little winged creatures were chased out of the water in myriad numbers, the tuna leaping after them, and frequently seizing them in midair.

Some of the big fish could be seen plowing through the water just at the surface, keeping pace with the flying fish, and as the latter struck the water it was seized in the rapacious jaws of the tigers of the sea. Sometimes the aim of the big fish was bad, and instead of seizing its prey, would strike it with its nose and toss it in the air a distance of ten or fifteen feet. The poor flying fish were at the mercy of the hordes of hungry tuna, and they were constantly being chased into the air in countless flocks.

Not an angler had discovered the presence of the tuna, as all the fishermen had gone this morning either to the Isthmus, or to Seal Rocks and beyond. When the Lady Lou reached port and spread the news, there was wild excitement. Unluckily there was no bait to be had—that is, no flying fish, which is the approved tuna bait. A number of anglers went out with whatever bait was available, but no tuna were caught. Many of the old tuna fishers now here, who witnessed the onslaught of the tuna on the flying fish say they have seen no such demonstration for years. It is hoped the tuna will remain hereabouts for a few days, as there will be bait and a new supply of anglers available tomorrow. Among the latter is Gen. A. W. Barrett, president of the Tuna Club, with some San Francisco friends.

The result of the contest for The Times scholarships has been ascertained. The smoke of the battle has cleared away and Miss Gertrude Ursula Pedelty of Santa Ana is revealed as the victor over the entire field of contestants.

Miss Pedelty played for high stakes and won. Her success is the most brilliant achievement that has ever happened in the history of a Times scholarship contest. She started in to win the $250 cash prize offered by The Times in lieu of a regular scholarship, with the understanding that the money was to be used by the winner in furtherance of her education. Miss Pedelty has already spent two years in the Los Angeles State Normal School, and she desires to complete the full four years' course. The $250 will enable her to do so with comfort and ease, and if she graduates with as high honors from the Normal as she has achieved in the contest she will prove an ornament to the teaching profession, which she expects to follow.

REMARKABLE VICTORY.

Miss Pedelty's victory is indeed a remarkable one, and the enormity of her score will surprise even her most sanguine friends. Down Orange county way there has never been any doubt of Miss Pedelty's success. The only question down there was in regard to her majority of votes over the next highest candidate. Outside of Orange county, however, Miss Jeanette Bower of Pasadena was looked upon as the most likely winner of first honors. Miss Bower's lead during the closing weeks of the contest was so great and sympathy for her so general, that wagers at odds of three to one were laid that she would be first in the race at the finish. The people of Pasadena, although a little slow in getting interested in Miss Bower at the start, at last became infected with the enthusiasm that prevailed in other communities that had representatives in the race, and such powerful influences were set to work in her favor during the closing stages of the contest that defeat for her seemed impossible. In fact, arrangements were being made on an elaborate scale to celebrate Miss Bower's victory, which would have been considered a victory for Pasadena as well. A movement was on foot to bring her and her aged father to Los Angeles on Saturday morning in a big red automobile to head the procession of horseless carriages in which the contestants are to be given a ride around Los Angeles. A halt in these plans was called yesterday, when it began to be rumored that Miss Bower had not after all won first prize. It was a bitter disappointment to that young lady's many friends and admirers, although she, herself, is said to have accepted second place in the race quite philosophically, saying that if she had to be beaten she was glad that her defeat was accomplished by one so worthy as Miss Pedelty.

MISS BOWER NOT A LOSER.

It was Miss Bower's intention, in fact, if she did finish first, to let the $250 cash prize go to Miss Pedelty, any way, provided the latter were second. Miss Bower made up her mind some time ago to choose a scholarship in the Brownsberger Home School, worth $100, and the $150 cash that goes with first choice of scholarships, thus giving Miss Pedelty a chance to get the $250 to take her through the Normal School. It turns out, therefore, that Miss Bower will get what she wanted, just the same as if she had won first place on the list. Miss Pedelty gets the higher honors; that is the only difference in the result as the case stands now.

ORANGE COUNTY GRIT.

While Miss Pedelty's signal success attests her own efficiency and the high esteem in which she is held where she is best known, it is also an unmistakable index to the local patriotism, liberality and prosperity of the people of Orange county, where most of her support came from. The citizens of Santa Ana and neighboring towns in the famous Santa Ana Valley and the renowned pentlands have a reputation for standing together and sparing no expense to keep Orange county in the lead in any line of achievement attempted by any of the worthy inhabitants of that fruitful region. The Orange countians are as proud of their girls as of the products of their unexcelled soil and climate. When an Orange county girl goes after anything she usually gets it, if the backing of the loyal citizen of the county counts for anything, and judging by the results achieved by the young ladies from Santa Ana, who have competed for scholarships, it counts for a great deal. Two years ago Miss Jessie Mullinix of Santa Ana won first prize by making a grand-stand finish, with the entire population of Santa Ana and vicinity acting as "rooters." Last year Miss Rae Price, the "Pride of the Peatlands," swept the county like a cyclone and finished second in a race that was a record-breaker up to that time, and came within an ace of being first. This year there were two popular candidates from Santa Ana, and both have succeeded in making magnificent scores, Miss Pedelty finishing first with the enormous total of 289,309 points, as compared with 151,942, the high-water mark of last year, while Hazel Merle Ball, also of Santa Ana, has come under the wire in thirteenth place with the handsome score of 90,576.

ADEPT SOLICITOR.

Judge Ballard of Santa Ana is quoted as saying that Miss Pedelty is the most adept solicitor he has ever seen. Money unquestionably is plenty in the county of Orange, but it certainly must take a very persuasive talker to induce people to subscribe and pay in advance for even so indispensible a family visitor as the Daily Times, for five years. That is what Miss Pedelty did in at least half a dozen instances, and yearly subscriptions, many of them new, she raked in by the hundreds. When it is considered that it would require 360 new paid-in-advance yearly subscriptions (at $3 per year,) or 524 renewals, to make a score of 289,000, figures exceeded by Miss Pedelty, according to the system of credits employed in The Times' contest, the volume of business that she transacted during the sixty-four days the contest lasted, is apparent.

MISS BOWER'S SCORE.

Miss Bower's score of 223,330 is itself a phenomenal one. More than half of it was made in the last ten days of the contest. Pasadena contributed last week nearly 100,000 votes. The town of Corona contributed about 27,000 points, and it was through this liberal assistance that Miss Bower first assumed the lead. Mr. and Mrs. Max Emanuel of Los Angeles really started Miss Bower's boom by volunteering to help her when her mother died during the early stages of the contest. Their example was followed by many others, and Miss Bower soon became the most conspicuous figure in the contest, and remained so until the votes were all in, and the count of the ballots showed that Miss Pedelty had scored the greatest success. Both young ladies deserve hearty congratulations on the result of their work, for their own laborers counted most.

MISS HIBBARD'S CLOSE CALL.

Miss Gertrude Hibbard of Pomona finished third, and is another record-breaker. Her score of 179,122 represents an enormous amount of business, and most of it was secured through Miss Hibbard's own indefatigable efforts. She craved no sympathy, but made her campaign strictly on her merits, and was most loyally supported by the people of the Pomona Valley, as well as distant places where she is known. Miss Hibbard will choose a scholarship in Pomona College and $125 cash. Her sole aim in entering the contest was to win a scholarship in the college of her home town, or rather the town of Claremont, and her success was apparent from the beginning.

PEARL OF WHITTIER FOURTH.

Miss Pearl Ellis of Whittier won fourth place and almost tied Miss Hibbard's score. The score as printed today is subject to revision if mistakes are discovered or pointed out, and a change of a few hundred votes would put Miss Ellis in third place, and Miss Hibbard in fourth. These two young ladies are very equally matched in character, popularity and loyal support of the communities in which they live. Whether third or fourth in the race, according to the revised figures, Miss Ellis has done herself proud and reflects great credit on the district which she represents. She has worked from the start with but one aim in view, and that was to earn a scholarship in Occidental College, and it is hers, together with a cash prize of $110 if she remains in fourth place.

DON MANUEL GETS THERE.

The friends of Manuel E. Saenz of The Palms will rejoice to see him finish among the "High Five" in a contest so strenuously waged in which he was pitted against so many bright boys and girls older than he. "Don" Manuel has elected to choose a scholarship in that excellent school for boys, St. Vincent's College, and will also get a bonus of $100 for being fifth in the race. His score, 161,044, is one he may well be proud of, and it represents many days of hard work to reach the desired goal. Manuel is not ready to enter college this fall; he wishes to take one more year in High School, so as to be the better prepared for college next year.

ELIZABETH'S LUCK.

The fact that Elizabeth Dehmlow exceeded the highest score made last year and landed in sixth place, will bring joy not only to her, but to hundreds of her sympathizers and warm admirers. More people assisted her than any other candidate, and the hundreds of kindly messages sent to the scholarship manager in her behalf illustrate most eloquently how the sympathy of the American people always goes out to the poor and unfortunate.

Miss Dehmlow has almost recovered from her serious bicycle accident, and is receiving the kindest attention at the home of A. M. Parsons, No. 1259 Dewey avenue. Mr. Parsons proved a friend indeed when Elizabeth was in need, and it was chiefly through his philanthropic efforts and many others of like generous impulses that Miss Dehmlow was changed from a hopeless candidate to one of the most successful ones in the contest. Her score of 152,515 points is a monument to the goodness of the readers of The Times who came to her rescue when she seemed to have no chance of winning a scholarship, which she so earnestly was striving for.

Not one of the other contestants will begrudge "Elizabeth's luck." Practically every one of them has said on more than one occasion "Well, I hope Elizabeth Dehmlow will get one of the money prizes and a good scholarship whether I do or not."

Elizabeth has won both. She has decided to choose a scholarship of the Woodbury Business College, and it is understood that Prof. Isaacs has generously offered to give her the whole year's cuition. This, with the $96 cash which she will be awarded by The Times, and the new home she has found and the thousands of friends she has made, gives life a rosy hue to this most deserving girl.

MORE ANON.

Owing to the lateness of the hour that the count was completed last night it was impossible to complete in time for publication this morning the review of the final score and the statement of the choice of scholarships the various contestants will probably make. A great deal of very interesting matter, especially about the schools and scholarships, must go over until Saturday morning.

LEST WE FORGET.

The programme for Saturday's jubilee and the awarding of the prizes, as heretofore outlined, will be carried out in full and the lucky contestants may look forward to a very good time. Special invitations have been sent out to all the contestants, down to and including Thomas E. Cheney of Santa Monica, who dropped out some time ago, to be present and participate in the festivities. If any of them fail to get their mailed invitations in time, they will please consider themselves invited anyway.

As the addresses of most of the participants in the former contests are not known, no special invitations have been mailed to them, but a general invitation is extended to them to attend the exercises at Blanchard Hall on Saturday evening, when the prizes will be awarded. They are also invited to attend the reunion and "hop" which Mrs. Florida Brownsberger will give after the regular adjournment. Mrs. Brownsberger at considerable expense has employed a first-class orchestra to furnish music for the occasion, and a caterer to serve refreshments, so a good time is in store for all who wish to accept her hospitality. The Brownsberger alumni are included in Mrs. Brownsberger's invitation to the social season.

The general public will be admitted to Blanchard Hall to witness the awarding of the prizes and attendant exercises. Two hundred seats in front of the stage will be reserved, however, for the immediate relatives and friends of the contestants. Admission to these seats will be by card only, and each contestant will be entitled to three tickets, which may be had of the scholarship manager next Saturday. The contestants themselves will be given seats on the stage.

The reunion and social session is intended for the young people. There will not be room for many spectators besides parents or chaperones of the youngsters.

The automobile ride will begin at The Times office, First and Broadway, at 10 o'clock sharp, and all contestants are requested to report there not later than 9:30 a.m. The special trolley car will leave for Long Beach about 12:30 p.m. Upon arrival there an excellent lunch will be served to the visitors by the Long Beach Business College, assisted by ladies and citizens of the town. After lunch the commodious power launch Neptune, not a rag, is advertently stated in the printed invitations, will be in waiting at the wharf to take the guests to the big breakwater at San Pedro. The boat ride is tendered by Principal Isaacs of the Woodbury Business College. This will be a pleasant trip, and return will be made to Long Beach in time to hear the band concert, ride on the merry-go-round and take a swim, if desired.

See Saturday's Times for further announcements.

OCEAN PARK.

LARGE WINTER POPULATION.

OCEAN PARK, Sept. 3.—Indications are that this year the winter population of Ocean Park will be almost as large as the summer population has been, in so far as six-months residents are counted. With the departure of the summer cottagers the winter dwellers are coming in by dozens, scores and fifties. Real estate agents report the demand for cottages for the next six months to be almost greater than the market supply. The location in Ocean Park of a thoroughly equipped and graded grammar school is inducing many of the summer residents to extend their leases so as to cover the winter months.

SEASIDE JOTTINGS.

Mrs. J. Anderson and Mrs. E. J. Ferrell of Los Angeles are spending a week with Mrs. F. W. Ross at No. 122 Ocean avenue.

Willis Miller and family of Redlands have taken a cottage at Ocean Front and Brooks avenue for the month of September.

FRUIT EXCHANGE TRUCE.

After a session at Colton lasting all day and part of the night it seems probable a truce will be patched up between the Southern California Fruit Exchange and the San Bernardino County Exchange, which withdrew a week ago. Concessions have been made on both sides and independent shippers will still be allowed to pack fruit, but all must be marketed by the California Fruit Agency, which absolutely controls all southern California citrus fruit in eastern markets. In addition to delegates from all local exchanges in attendance at the Colton conference was O. W. Felts, representing the California Citrus Union. The compromise arranged will be referred to the citrus union, at Los Angeles early in the morning for ratification. If the general compromise plan is approved the details will be completed at another conference at Colton tomorrow.

TROOPS MAY TAKE HAND.

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—The local gendarmerie of the little district of Altenberg (neutral Moresnet) appear unwilling to forcibly close the gambling casino as jointly ordered by Prussia and Belgium. If the proprietors continue to disregard the order, it is said troops from both States will occupy the neutral territory and stop roulette playing.

FLEETS WILL ACT IN CASE OF CRISIS.

Powers are Well Represented at the Portals of the Porte.

French Ambassador at Constantinople Advises His Government That Warvessels are Needed—Minister Leishman Cables to Washington That the Force at the American Legation Has Been Increased.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BEIRUT (Syria) Sept. 4.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The United States cruisers Brooklyn and San Francisco have arrived here.

AWAITING REPORT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—No orders regarding the future movements of the American vessels have been sent to Admiral Cotton, and much will depend upon the character of the report he makes concerning conditions in and about Beirut, and on the representations which may come from the Minister as to the necessity for the presence of the American war vessels in Turkish waters to look after the protection of the interests of the citizens of the United States in the Sultan's domain.

CRITICAL FEATURE.

KILLING OF AUSTRIANS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 5.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The situation is critical for the Bulgarian government, telegraphs the Sofia correspondent of the Times, not only on account of Macedonia, but also because of the international political complications.

The Vienna correspondent of the Times reports that in various competent quarters the danger of a Turko-Bulgarian conflict is reported to be graver at the present moment than at any previous juncture.

Although it is considered certain that the destruction of the Hungarian steamer Vaskapu in the Black Sea was the work of the insurgents, the intention to kill Hungarian subjects may provoke Austria.

The police are arresting Bulgarians in all parts of Constantinople, and wild rumors are afloat of other projected outrages.

Most active military preparations by the Turkish government are proceeding, and Turkish officers are talking of their ability to reach Sofia within three weeks from the outbreak of war.

FRENCH FLEET IN READINESS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

PARIS, Sept. 4.—[By Atlantic Cable.] It is authoritatively stated that in view of the growing disorders in Turkey, a French fleet will be ordered to hold itself in readiness to proceed to Turkish waters. This determination followed the receipt of a telegram from the French Ambassador at Constantinople that it was desirable to have warships in readiness for all eventualities. Similar expressions have been made by Italy, Austria, Russia and Great Britain. The officials here expect the fleets will act together in case of a crisis.

The first autumn meeting of the Cabinet was held today. Foreign Minister Delcasse reviewed the Turkish situation. The French Consul at Monastir reports that conditions there have not improved. The Consul of France at Salonica says the conditions at that port are much worse.

SPECIAL COURT ESTABLISHED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SALONICA, Sept. 4.—A special court has been constituted for the purpose of trying the Bulgarians implicated in the insurrection. Over two hundred and thirty Albanians who refused to do military service were dispatched yesterday to Smyrna. Strong insurgent bands are threatening Ghevghell and Gumenjo, thirty-five miles northwest of Salonica.

BRITAIN WILL FOLLOW SUIT.

NO MARINES LANDED YET.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 4.—[By Atlantic Cable.] No British marines have been landed at Constantinople so far as the Foreign Office is aware, but it is said that if the embassy requires protection, the Ambassador is empowered to call upon the commander of the British guardship for guards.

The Foreign Office considers it probable that Russia and Austria have landed marines to protect their embassies as a result of the Porte's note to the Ambassadors warning them that Bulgarian agitators were projecting outrages against the embassies, legations, and public buildings at Constantinople. So far as the Foreign Office knows, Constantinople is quiet.

FROM MINISTER LEISHMAN.

LEGATION FORCE INCREASED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Minister Leishman has cabled to the State Department that, owing to disturbed conditions in Constantinople, an additional detective force had been stationed at the American legation. This action was taken on the suggestion of the Turkish government, which has assured the American Minister that it will use every precaution to protect all foreigners, but has warned the different embassies and legations that it would be well to strength the force around the buildings.

In case a necessity develops, it is probable that the Turkish government will be requested to allow the United States to send a detachment of marines from the squadron which is expected to arrive at Beirut today. Minister Leishman has not yet made such a request of this government. The United States has no authority to send a warship through the Dardanelles, and would have to have the consent of Turkey and also that of the other European powers to do so.

Minister Leishman, in his cablegram, informed the department that a number of governments have landed marines in Constantinople for the protection of the embassies.

CONSTANTINOPLE ADVICES.

MILITARY MOVES SUCCESSFUL.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 4.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Consul Ravendal telegraphs from Beirut to Minister Leishman that the authorities there have been actively seeking the assailant of Vice-Consul Magelssen, but the Consul is not able to state if he is among the persons already arrested.

The report circulated by a news agency September 1 in the United States that a balloon bomb had been found near the palace is utterly without foundation.

Turkish official reports indicate the complete success of the military operations against the insurgents in the Kilsura district. Over 400 insurgents are said to have been killed. The agent here of the Hungarian Lavant Steamship Line has gone to Burgas to investigate the three explosions which occurred Wednesday on the Austrian steamer Vaskapu soon after that vessel had left the port of Burgas on her way to Constantinople, resulting in the death of twenty-nine persons. The cause of the explosion is still in doubt.

It is now said that the assistant conductor of the sleeping car was the author of the bomb outrage August 27, when the daily express from Budapest was blown up near Keluell Burgas, and seven persons were killed and fifteen others injured. He left the train at Philippopolis and has been arrested there.

The Sultan announces the gift of 50,000 woolen coats to the troops concentrated in Roumelia, and in an official note issued by the perfecture of this city the population is invited to contribute flannel vests, boots, socks, etc., which are required by the soldiers in the field.

JANKOFF CROSSES FRONTIER.

ZONTCHEFF ALSO GETS BY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SOFIA (Bulgaria) Sept. 4.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Col. Jankoff, the insurgent leader, with three lieutenants of the Servian army, at the head of a band of 600 insurgents, with a flag flying, crossed the frontier Monday evening and passed the Turkish outposts unopposed.

Gen. Zontcheff, president of the Macedonian Committee, in the disguise of a sheep herder, also crossed the frontier.

Capt. Stoyanoff's band captured fifty Turkish soldiers at Rakovitza (about fifteen miles southeast of Sofia) August 31, took their arms and ammunition and proceeded to Melnishko.

A dispatch from Rila, 40 miles from Sofia, says the date of the general insurrection has been postponed.

According to reliable informtaion from Constantinople, Turkey will shortly have 400,000 soldiers in Macedonia. The prospects of the appearance of such an immense army causes the most intense anxiety here. It is regarded as certain to arouse the apprehensions of the powers.

The Porte had great difficulty in inducing the Asiatic troops to proceed to European Turkey. The change of climate has already caused many deaths.

AMERICA'S RESPONSIBILITY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 5.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Morning Post publishes a letter from its Constantinople correspondent, in which he discusses the Beriut affair and the position of the American missionaries in Asia Minor. He says:

"Things have arrived at a crisis. The United States must either insist upon the Porte listening to its representations regarding American converts, or drop the missionaries altogether. The latter course is natually impossible, and the sending of a squadron has great significance as showing a determination on the part of America to take an active part in the Turkish question.

"One result of this step will probably be to induce the Sultan to raise his representative at Washington to the rank of ambassador, so that the United States can be equally represented here. At present, America is [illegible] compared with the other first-class powers. Nobody can quite foresee the ultimate attitude of the United States, but it is almost certain that her weight will incline on the side of the Christian against the Turk. At the same time, as a matter of im[illegible] almost bound to oppose the descent of Russia on the Dardanelles, because, in religious matters, the Turk is more tolerant than the Russian."

PHILIPPOPOLIS, Sept. 4.—It is reported that the Turkish troops have set fire to the Rhodope forest along the frontier, with the object of preventing Bulgarian bands from crossing border.

EDSON'S SHORTAGE.

St. Michael's Episcopal Church Has Lost Over Fifty Thousand Dollars by His Dishonesty.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—More than $50,000, and perhaps $100,000, is lost to St. Michael's Protestant Episcopal Church, according to the Herald, through forgeries and misappropriations by Henry T. Edson, who last Wednesday killed Mrs. Fannie Pulen and himself. The vestry met last Monday for the purpose of authorizing an expert accountant to examine the books kept by Edson as controller of the church property. He was summoned from Maine, and the threatened exposure is believed to have unbalanced his mind.

Although the investigation has only begun, it is alleged to have been found that Edson discounted a note for $25,000 purporting to be signed by the treasurer of the church; that he cashed several forged checks, and that he appropriated to his own use rents and voluntary contributions.

The church, although it has few wealthy members, is heavily endowed, and has properties which yield a large income.

GORMAN MAY HAVE SUPPORT OF BRYAN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Senator Arthur Pue Gorman spent today in Washington. The Senator's friends are much pleased at the attitude taken by William J. Bryan in regard to the candidacy of John H. Clarke for the United States Senate from Ohio, and by politicians generally it is looked upon as a significant sign.

There are a great many Democrats here who have been confident for months that if Bryan was properly approached, his support would be pledged to Senator Gorman. Believing this, these Democrats have planned to have a certain prominent Western lawyer, who is a close personal friend of both Bryan and Gorman, call on the former and try to effect an understanding between the two. It is stated that this lawyer will be empowered to say to Bryan: "If Senator Gorman is nominated and elected, he will give to you the same consideration that he would give to any other Democrat who supported him and is loyal to the ticket. Nothing that you may have stood for in the past will prevent you and your friends being fairly and justly treated in the matter of patronage."

It is thought that Bryan would yield to arguments of this sort, and that should Senator Gorman be nominated, the Nebraskan would come out in favor of his candidature. These men say that the trouble all along with the so-called reorganizers is that they have tried to drive Bryan out, and by abusing him and his followers have forced him to retaliate in kind. If Bryan is decently treated, they continue, he will be all right. He will not only not bolt the ticket, but will be for it. But, they say, if reorganizers keep on their campaign of assault on Bryan, they may look for trouble.

The movement in favor of Gorman's nomination seems to be spreading, particularly throughout the South. Reports have come here from Georgia, North Carolina and Alabama of a very encouraging nature to the friends of the Maryland Senator.

PLOTTED MURDER OF THE REGICIDES.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BELGRADE, Sept. 4.—[By Atlantic Cable.] A number of officers of the Nish and other garrisons in Servia, have been arrested in connection with a murderous conspiracy and the issuance of the proclamation demanding the trial by court-martial of the conspirators who were concerned in the assassination of King Alexander and Queen Draga, and their ministry.

It is announced that a group of officers of the Nish garrison had decided to kill all the conspirators concerned in the palace assassinations, and that many officers of other garrisons joined them. It was intended to act at an early date, but the news leaked out, and all the conspirators were arrested during the night. Forty-seven officers have been arrested at Nish alone.

Hanna, Conant, and Jenks Have Been Sounding Europeans as to Concert of Action.

Pressure is to be Brought Upon China Toward Establishing Coinage System

Silver Basis Or Gold Basis The Point in Dispute—Ratio Not Important.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] According to information received at the treasury, the commission, consisting of Messrs. Hanna, Conant and Jenks, which has been visiting European capitals in an endeavor to bring about a concert of action regarding the use of silver in Asiatic colonies and countries, will return next week, prepared to submit a report to the Chinese government and to our own. The American commission, working in harmony with one appointed by Mexico, has endeavored to induce several powers interested in international commerce, particularly with China, to bring pressure to bear upon that country toward establishment of a reliable national coinage system. The two commissions worked from the same point of view: except that America took up the relief of China from indemnity pressure, whereas, the Mexican commission, having nothing to do with the indemnity, omitted that phase of the case.

The results of the discussion seem to be these: England, France and Russia believe that national currency should be introduced into China, but that it should be on a silver basis. Russia and France hold that coinage should be governed by China, while England maintains that it should be free coinage. The two commissions urge that it be placed on a gold basis with a limited circulation, at a ratio of 32 to 1, like that in the Philippines. Germany, Belgium and Holland agreed in theory with the American commission. All nations were united, however, in taking the position that China's popular coinage should be silver, and that it should be raised to a gold parity as soon as practicable, if it were not already so.

The work of the commission was not affected by the recent rise in the price of silver, since their best advices were that it could by no possibility be carried above a point which would set the Gresham law in operation against any coinage on a 32-to-1 basis.

FRENCH THE AGGRESSORS.

General Indignation Over Wounding of Americans in Peking—Legation Demands Punishment of Guilty Parties.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

PEKING, Sept. 4.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The severe wounds inflicted upon two Americans yesterday by French soldiers have created general indignation against the policy of German and French commanders in ordering their soldiers to carry side arms while off duty. After the German-Austrian affray last May, all of the foreign commanders agreed to prohibit the carrying of side arms while the men were outside of their posts. This agreement, however, was overruled by the German general, and the soldiers of the Kaiser were again ordered to wear their side arms, and this example was followed by the French. All the other foreign soldiers travel about unarmed.

Witnesses to the affair of yesterday declare that the French were clearly the aggressors. The French commander treats the matter lightly, but a strong request for the punishment of the guilty parties has been made by Capt. Andre Brewster, military attaché of the American legation.

UNLUCKY LANGLEY.

Part Propeller of the Big Flying Machine Wrecked and the Launching is Indefinitely Postponed.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WIDEWATER (Va.) Sept. 4.—The prospective launching today of Prof. Langley's big aerodrome was abandoned at 4 o'clock after the pet propeller, revolving about 600 times a minute, had wrecked itself among the rods and bars of the machine. Both blades of the propeller were torn to small pieces, and one of the main supporting rods of the airship was bent to a right angle. Other slight damage was done. The accident was the result of a change occurring in some unexplained manner in the orbit of the blades.

AFTER A GAS TRUST.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 4.—Injunction proceedings instituted today by Atty.-Gen. Crow before Judge Taylor of the Circuit Court reveal an apparent attempt on the part of the La Clede Gaslight Company to regulate and control the prices of gas ranges manufactured and sold in St. Louis. The La Clede Gas Company was recently sold to the North American Company of Philadelphia, which is capitalized at $80,000,000. The petition for an injunction charges that the La Clede Gaslight Company served notice on all St. Louis manufacturers to the effect that their ranges would have to be sold at a certain price or the gas company would refuse to make connections free of charge.

MILITIA IS CALLED OUT.

Gov. Peabody Orders Troops to Cripple Creek.

Lives and Property in Danger from Lawless Strikers.

Miller Case Nearing a Decision. All the Sam Parks' Strikes Are Declared Off.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

DENVER (Colo.) Sept. 4.—Gov. Peabody decided at noon, after receiving the report of the committee which he sent to Cripple Creek to investigate the strike conditions there, to dispatch troops to the gold camp. Orders were issued by Adjt.-Gen. Bell to the First Regiment of Infantry, Co. H, of the Second Regiment of Infantry, the First Squadron of Cavalry, consisting of troops B, D and C, Battery A, and the Signal Corps and Medical Corps of the National Guard to proceed to Cripple Creek forthwith. Brig.-Gen. John Chase will be in command of the force which will number about 1000 men.

The Governor made the following statement regarding his action in calling out the troops: "I have tried to act with prudence. The gentlemen who went to Cripple Creek at my request to investigate conditions advised me that the situation was such that troops should be ordered out."

The report of the Governor's committee was as follows: "Having visited Cripple Creek and Victor, and after careful inquiry among representative citizens and property owners, including the Mayor of Cripple Creek and Victor, we are of the opinion that the lives of the citizens of the district are in imminent danger, and property and personal rights are in jeopardy. Prompt action is imperatively demanded by the above people to protect the lives and property of the citizens. We find that a reign of terror exists in the district which should be relieved at once. We do not believe the civil authorities are able to cope with the situation."

President Charles H. Moyer, of the Western Federation of Miners has addressed a letter to Gov. Peabody in which he declares that the conditions in the Cripple Creek district are not such as to warrant the calling out of troops. He declares that such an act by the Governor at this time is a violation of the law under which the Executive is empowered to call out troops. President Moyer says that the members of the federation of the Cripple Creek district will help to maintain order.

URGED TO HASTEN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

DENVER, Sept. 4.—At 10 o'clock Gov. Peabody received a message from Gen. Bell at Colorado Springs, where he had been delayed by a change in the plans, saying that he was advised by Lieut. Whann, commanding the Cripple Creek militia company, that the conditions were becoming threatening, and was urged to hasten the movement of the troops.

CRIPPLE CREEK (Col.) Sept. 4.—The Board of Commissioners of Teller county today adopted resolutions denouncing the action of Gov. Peabody in sending troops to the Cripple Creek district. The resolutions declare that there is no need for troops here, and that their presence will do more harm than good.

HOW UNION WORKED IA.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

TELLURIDE (Colo.) Sept. 4.—The Federal Labor Union today called out the cooks and waiters at the Smuggler-Union mine, and in consequence nearly all miners will be forced to cease work, as there is no other place where they can obtain board.

The Miners' Union could not call out the men working in the Smuggler-Union mines in consequence of an agreement which they have had with the company. The action of the Federal Union, which works in harmony with the Miners' Union, causes every property in the county equipped with a mill to close operations, and the tie-up is complete.

A commissary and a lodging-house for idle miners and idle men in this district were opened today by the Western Federation of Miners. The number of men already thrown out of work in consequence of the mill men's strike is about 1000.

MILLER CASE.

FINAL DECISION NEAR.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The long drawn out Miller case at the Government Printing Office is nearing an end, and the discharge of Foreman Miller may be looked for any day, in the opinion of officials who have been following the case. The Star says that after the Bookbinders' Union made charges to prevent Miller's retention, Miller filed counter charges of importance. These were referred to Garfield, Commissioner of Corporations in the Bureau of Commerce and Labor, and it is said that he finds the charges made by Miller not sustained.

The Star says that President Roosevelt is anxious that Miller should be disposed of and publicly announced before Labor Day, when he is to make a speech at Syracuse. Garfield and also Secretary Cortelyou, who have had the Miller case before them, are out of the city, the former being in New York.

Operators Get Strike Benefits.

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) Sept. 4.—The coal strike in northeast Missouri has produced a reversal of ordinary strike conditions. By defying the authority of the national organization, the miners have barred themselves from drawing strike benefits, but the Southwestern Coal Operators Association has assumed the responsibility of indemnifying the operators for losses sustained during the present fight, and it is the operators who will get strike benefits. So far as the operators here are informed, matters at Novinger are still at a standstill today.

BAVARIAN PRINCESS LATELY IN NEW YORK.

STRICKEN WITH APPENDICITIS AND HURRIED ABROAD.

Successful Operation Performed—Presence in America Was Jealously Guarded—But for Law of Settlement She Would be Queen of England.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It has just been learned that the future Queen of Bavaria, Princess Louise, had a narrow escape from death in New York a few weeks ago while traveling incognito with her husband, Prince Rupert of Bavaria. The royal couple will some day be the rulers of their native land.

It was well known that Prince Rupert was in this country incognito, but the fact of the presence of his wife was guarded as a jealous secret. She traveled with her husband very quietly, and when they reached this city she was overtaken with severe illness, which detained her here for some time. Finally she sailed for Europe in company with her husband and under the charge of a New York physician, Dr. Killany, and of two New York trained nurses. On reaching Possenhofen in Bavaria, the Princess underwent an operation for appendicitis, performed by the New York doctor, with the assistance of Munich court surgeons, and is now slowly recovering.

It is interesting in this connection to note that were it not for that clause of the British Constitution known as the act of settlement by means of which Parliament vested the crown of Great Britain in the Protestant Hanoverian branch of descendants of King James I of England, Rupert of Bavaria and his consort would, as descendants of King Charles I of England—that is to say, less remotely connected with old Stuart dynasty than King Edward—be entitled to the dignity of "Prince and Princess of Wales," while Rupert's mother would be Queen Regent of England. Indeed, Princess Louise of Bavaria is styled "Queen Mary of England" by the legitimate association in England known as the White Rose League, which includes among its members such people as the Earl of Ashburnham and the widowed Viscountess Maldstone, and which has branches in this country, notably at Boston and Philadelphia, where special memorial services are celebrated by them each year on the anniversary of the execution of King Charls I.

LIPTON DINED BY PILGRIMS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Sir Thomas Lipton was the guest of honor of the Pilgrims of the United States at a dinner given tonight at the Waldorf-Astoria. Nearly 150 men prominent in many walks of life were present. Sir Thomas, escorted by George T. Wilson, led the way from the reception room to the tables. At either end of the hall was hung Sir Thomas's private emblem, the Shamrock, on a field of yellow, surrounded by a green border, while above the guests' tables were draped the flags of Great Britain and the United States. Bunches of red roses on each table and greens on the walls completed the decorations.

Surmounting the menus, which bore the flags of Sir Thomas and the Royal Ulster Yacht Club, was a reduced yacht which bore no name. In order to enliven matters somewhat at the outset, the guests sang a little song to the refrain of "Mr. Dooley," which told of the virtues of Sir Thomas and his enduring efforts to lift the cup.

There had been arranged no formal speeches, but the following were called upon: George T. Wilson, Sir Thomas Lipton, Gen. Joseph Wheeler, ex-Gov. C. S. Smith of Colorado, Gen. H. C. Corbin, Col. Henry Watterson and Senator E. A. Bate. With Sir Thomas at the guests' table sat the Earl of Shaftesbury, commodore of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club; Col. Sherman Crawford, vice-commodore of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club; Commodore F. G. Bourne, William Fife, Rear-Admiral Rodgers, Henry Watterson, Gen. Joseph Wheeler, George T. Wilson and ex-Gov. Thomas.

Mr. Wilson presided at the dinner in the absence of Bishop Potter, the president of the society. When the ices were served a procession of waiters marched in to a popular air, bearing trains crowned with gilded harps, full-rigged models of the Reliance and the Shamrock, and easels with figures of yachts. Later women began to appear in boxes, among them being the Countess of Shaftesbury and many ladies who have been Sir Thomas's guests on board the Erin.

Mr. Wilson, addressing Sir Thomas, said that his attitude had struck a responsive chord in every heart.

"As a looser," he said, "you are a 'corker.' You will ever have the admiration, love and regard of all Americans."

Sir Thomas was given many hearty rounds of cheers when he arose. He said:

"As regards the cup races, we have been fairly and squarely beaten, and I congratulate America on having the better boat. I have heard much comment for and against the Sandy Hook course. It is as good a course as any other—nay, there is no other course in the world like it.

"I am beginning to think that there is some magic spell about the blooming old cup. Two years ago, I had it almost within my grasp, but it escaped me then, as it has escaped me now, and it seems as far off as ever. Herreshoff is the greatest designer of the age, but I am still very hopeful that I will see that cup on the other side yet.

"America is a very hard country to beat, and I know it. I am a very disappointed man, but still I have the consolation that both conqueror and conquered belong to the same good old race. The cup is still in the family, only it is held by a younger and more go-ahead generation.

"Gentlemen, while I lost the cup, or rather did not succeed in winning it, I have not lost the esteem and good will of my American friends, which esteem and good-will I reciprocate in the very highest degree possible. A great consolation to me in my unsuccessful effort to lift the cup is the great kindness shown me by all classes. My feeling of gratitude for this spirit is great beyond expression. I shall bear in mind the remembrances of your kindly acts for all time. I am sure that as the days and years roll by these contests will not have been held in vain, if they make us realise that, wherever we are, all the world over, we shall brothers be 'for a' that.'"

Coroner's Jury Finds Against Mrs. Bowers—Dr. Jordan's Gift to Stanford.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] William Wayne Belvin, former millionaire of Richmond, Va., has contrived to appear annually in public print for the past few years. His latest appearance fell due in San Francisco, where he has become involved in the unpleasant notoriety of an unpaid hotel bill and confiscated trunks, which are held at the Palace Hotel for security. Last evening with his suit case, which still remained to him, Belvin made the rounds of the down-town hotels and finally secured apartments at the Russ House, where today he is reviewing the situation and considering means of redeeming his baggage.

Belvin is widely known as a promoter of large enterprises, and at one time, under the wing of Henry Villard, he invaded Wall street with considerable success. He has made and lost several fortunes, and in periods of depression has continued his career as a spender. A few years ago he underwent the discomfort of arrest for leaving an unpaid board bill of $140 at the Waldorf-Astoria.

VINE GROWERS MEET.

PREPARING TO ORGANIZE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LODI, Sept. 4.—A majority of those interested in vine growing met here tonight. G. E. Lawrence, a member of the general committee appointed at the mass meeting in Stockton August 22, called the meeting to order. Resolutions formulated at a prior meeting were discussed. Charles A. Wetmore made an address setting forth the advantages of coöperation on the part of vine growers. The sentiment of the meeting was in favor of a permanent organization and united effort to maintain free and open markets, the encouragement of competing wineries, and the study of all practical methods for disposing of grapes. This meeting was preliminary to a session to be held in Stockton tomorrow.

DEMANDS REWARD.

DISTRUSTFUL SPARKS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CARSON (Nev.) Sept. 4.—Gov. Sparks, in an interview, has stated that the two convicts captured at Reno, Miller and Woods, would not be returned to California until the rewards offered by the State of California were paid. He did not intend, he said, that the officers making the capture should be put to the trouble of a law suit that generally follows such cases. The Governor stated that when the check came for the amount due the extradition papers would be signed, and not before. It is believed that the division of the money among the Reno men will be a matter of little difficulty.

ASKS FOR REQUISITION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 4.—Dist.-Atty. A. M. Seymour of this county this afternoon applied to Gov. Pardee for a requisition upon the Governor of Nevada for the return to this State of Convicts Joseph Murphy and John H. Woods, who escaped from the Folsom prison on the 27th of last July with a number of other convicts. Murphy and Woods are charged with murder, burglary and a number of other offenses. Murphy is also charged with jail breaking. Woods is not charged with the latter offense as he was serving a life sentence.

CANNOT BELIEVE IT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 4.—Gov. Pardee declines to say what he will do about the convicts in Nevada until he is officially informed that Gov. Sparks of Nevada refuses to honor his requisition. "I can't believe it; I can't believe it. I would not say a word one way or another now. I must wait for official information," said Gov. Pardee.

PRESIDENT JORDAN.

GIVES LIBRARY TO STANFORD.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] President Jordan has presented to the university as a gift his magnificent collection of books on the subject of ichthyology, on which he is one of the leading authorities of the world. The collection contains in the neighborhood of three thousand volumes, and is undoubtedly one of the finest in existence. It is a working library that Dr. Jordan has collected during the past quarter of a century, and contains many volumes and sets that it would be almost impossible to duplicate. Some of the works date back to the middle of the sixteenth century, and there are volumes and pamphlets that deal with science of fishes from that time to the present day. Among the more important works that are contained in this collection is a complete set of Marc Elieser Bloch's "Ichthyology, or Natural Science of the Fish," which, besides its descriptive matter in French, contains thousands of carefully-executed pictures of fishes, finely illustrated in colors by hand. There is a set of Bleeker's "Atlas of Fishes of the Indian Ocean," in several large volumes, which also contain a great number of beautifully hand-colored pictures of every known specimen. There is also a set of Cuvier's "Natural History of the Fish," a great French work.

The collection also contains 237 stout volumes of pamphlets that have been collected by Dr. Jordan during past years. These pamphlets number many thousands and cover every phase of the subject of fish and fisheries. They are all written by men who know their subject, and in available form in which they have been put together, and they are of great value to students of zoology. Every pamphlet has been carefully catalogued and can be found without trouble. The collection is to be shelved in the department of zoology, which has just removed to its new quarters on the other quadrangle.

PRICES FOR GRAPES.

WEST WINERIES' SCHEDULE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

STOCKTON, Sept. 4.—George West & Son, incorporated, owners of the famous West wineries, announce the following prices which they will pay this year for grapes: Ordinary varieties of wine grapes, $13.50 per ton; Mission grapes, $12 per ton; Black Prince grapes, $11 per ton; Tokay grapes, $8 per ton.

For a few varieties higher prices will be paid.

Terms of payment are one-third cash, balance two deferred payments. They say there is an overproduction of wine grapes and point lower prices as inevitable if wild planting continues.

Figures are given showing there are 22,615 acres of non-bearing vines in San Joaquin Valley and 129,960 acres of bearing vines. The production of wine in 1902 was 20,000,000 gallons, or twice the requirements of a year's business, they say, and the present crop is another large one.

HUMBOLDT PROSPEROUS.

INCREASE IN ASSESSMENT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 4.—Humboldt county was the first county up before the State Board of Equalization this morning. The assessed valuation of the county in 1902 was $19,044,381. This year it is $22,698,629. In answer to questions propounded by members of the board, Deputy Assessor H. F. Ferrill said the lumber and dairy interests of the county were low for a number of years, but of late years have become coming up. The assessment roll has kept pace with values. Lumbering is the main industry. Timber land is assessed from $50 to $60 an acre. The best timber land is situated north of Arcata on the Little River. The assessment of property in Eureka this year was increased $897,000 over that of last year. Stock cattle are assessed for from $10 to $13 a head; beef cattle $30 a head; dairy cows, $21.50; sheep, $1.50.

Mendocino county was represented by Assessor M. A. Thomas and other officials of that county. The assessed valuation in 1902 was $10,610,856. This year it is $11,137,172. There are nearly 300,000 acres of timber land in the county. The lumber mills have capacities of from 20,000 to 60,000 feet a day. A large area of the timber land has been sold for less than it was assessed, instanced by County Auditor and Recorder Conley, as follows: 160 acres sold for $500, assessed for $800; 480 acres sold for $1200, assessed for $2400; 560 acres sold for $1680, assessed for $2800; 850 acres sold for $5000, assessed for $5282; 160 acres sold for $400, assessed for $800; 820 acres sold for $4 per acre, assessed for not less than $5 an acre.

The best timber land is assessed for $16 an acre. Some of the town lots in Ukiah were sold for more than they were assessed for. One hundred and fifty thousand dollars in taxes were lost on personal property on account of the fire. Forty thousand dollars are annually lost on account of timber cutting. During the last ten years there was a loss of $350,000 on account of land being deeded to the State for unpaid taxes. Some of that land is being redeemed.

SLOPE BRIEFS.

Identified as Robbers.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—John Smith, alias Meyers, alias O'Brien, and Dennis O'Brien, alias Meyers, the notorious criminals who were taken into custody last Wednesday on suspicion that they were the robbers who have been raiding various saloons and robbing their proprietors and patrons, were positively identified today by Henry Eimers, as being the two men who held up his grocery store a few nights ago.

Two Women Killed.

MARSHFIELD (Or.) Sept. 4.—Mrs. Fannie Bickford and Mrs. E. O. Gibson were run over and instantly killed this morning by the logging train at the Daniels Creek Railway station at Kings Camp. The women attempted to get on while the cars were moving slowly, when one missed her footing, and in her fall grasped the garments of the other, taking her down under the wheels with her. Their bodies were badly mangled. Mrs. Bickford's husband was running the locomotive.

Joseph West is Wanted.

SUISUN, Sept. 4.—Joseph West was tried in the Superior Court on the charge of burglary a few days ago and acquitted. He is now suspected of having robbed the Bartlett Springs stage a few months ago. Detective Thacker says he has sufficient evidence to convict West of the stage hold-up. Search is being made for the man.

Small Boy's Fatal Frolic.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—Willie Stone, 3 years old, was run over by a truck and instantly killed today within a stone's throw of his home. One of the rear wheels of the heavy vehicle passed over the boy's head, crushing his skull. Charles Schell, the driver of the team, did not see the accident, and did not know that the truck had killed the boy until he heard the cries of E. H. Henalle, who saw the child fall under the wheels. The boy boarded the truck to steal a ride.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—The expedition sent to Point Reyes by the local Weather Bureau has succeeded in picking up the shore end of the Pacific cable. The cable will be spliced and will then be able to resume daily reports from the islands.

Good Reason for Deportation.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—A novel interpretation of a new law has just been made by Secretary Cortelyou, which will be of interest to every alien in the country. A communication was received by the commissioner of immigration, Hart North, ordering the deportation of a Japanese alien on the ground that the man had become a public charge, inasmuch as he had served a term in jail. The ruling is that should any alien become an inmate of a jail for any cause whatsoever, or for any length of time during the first three years of his residence in this country, he will be subject to deportation.

SOUTHERN COUNTIES LEAD AS USUAL.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 4.—Senator A. A. Caldwell of Riverside, and Col. J. D. Schuyler of Los Angeles, have been added to the list of delegates to the National Irrigation Congress, completing the list of twenty Gov. Pardee is authorized to appoint. The Governor himself has accepted an appointment, as delegate from the Oakland Board of Trade.

In speaking of the Congress, which he expects to attend, Gov. Pardee today said: "I believe this will be one of the most important gatherings ever called together in the West, and no State has a deeper interest than California in the questions of irrigation, water conservation and forestry, which will be then discussed. I should be glad to see every county in this State represented at the Ogden meeting. As Governor, I was asked to appoint twenty delegates, and after considerable correspondence I have selected that number, every one of whom has agreed to be present at the congress. A majority of them are from the southern end of the State, where greater concern about irrigation problems is felt than in the northern and central regions. But the northern counties, many of which would be benefited by more extensive employment of irrigation, are making a mistake in not taking more interest in the coming convention.

"I wish the newspapers would call attention to the fact that, under the call for the congress, each county is entitled to two delegates, to be appointed by the Supervisors; each city of less than 25,000 inhabitants also to two delegates to be named by the Mayor; each city of larger population to four delegates; each Chamber of Commerce or Board of Trade or real estate exchange to two delegates, and each irrigation or agricultural association, society of engineers, agricultural college or university also to two delegates. I suggest and urge that county Supervisors, Mayors and the associations named take advantage of their privilege and appoint delegates who will attend, to the end that we may have a numerous and influential delegation to work for the development of the West."

CORONER'S JURY ACCUSES MRS. BOWERS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—A Coroner's jury has returned a verdict that Martin Bowers came to his death from arsenical poisoning; that the poison was procured through the prescription forged by Mrs. Martha E. Bowers, wife of the deceased; and that Mrs. Z. C. Sutton, sister of Mrs. Bowers, secured the poison on the forged prescription. Mrs. Bowers was charged with murder.

Concerning her sister, Mrs. Sutton, the jury said: "We do not feel justified from the evidence in charging Mrs. Sutton as a principal, but we recommend that Mrs. Sutton be compelled to stand trial as an accessory to the crime."

The police announced tonight that complaints charging both women with murder will be sworn out tomorrow.

DOES AWAY WITH GRAFT.

Change in Method of Making Consular Appointments.

Men Who Can Help to Extend Trade Will Get Preference.

Experience in the Service is to be Weighed—Promotions for Tried Men.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

OYSTER BAY (L. I.) Sept. 4.—An important change of policy with respect to the making of appointments in the consular service has been decided upon by the President.

For many years it has been practically the unanimous practice for Presidents to appoint men to positions in the consular service, substantially without reference to whatever previous experience they may have had. Quite naturally the President endeavored always to select for appointment men of integrity and ability, but experience was not a determining factor in the equation.

The President, after consultation with Secretary Hay, Assistant Secretary of State Loomis and members of the Cabinet, immediately identified with the State Department, has determined to appoint, hereafter, to important places in the consular service men who already are in the service, and have had experience and training in minor positions which will render them the most capable of filling places of high grade and greater importance. The change in policy does not extend the civil service to the consular services, and it does not extend, necessarily, a consul's tenure of office at any particular place; but, it is pointed out, it does give reasonable assurance to the manufacturing and commercial interests of the United States, which particularly are interested in the extension of the country's trade, that in a comparatively brief time all important consular positions will be filled by men not only of character and ability, but with men who, by training and experience, are especially qualified to advance the trade interests of the United States.

Secretary Cortelyou was the first caller on the President today. The Secretary came to Oyster Bay to talk with the President about an official matter that has been pending for some time.

As guests for luncheon were Assistant Secretary of State Loomis and Chief and Mrs. Lafayette Young of Des Moines, Iowa. Secretary Loomis went over some State Department matters upon which the President desired information. Col. Young is editor of the Des Moines Capital.

CROKER WANTS THE MARYLANDER NOMINATED FOR PRESIDENCY.

Former Boss of Tammany Informs a Personal Friend that this is His One Political Wish—Not Picking Candidates for Mayoralty.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Theodore W. Myers, former Comptroller of New York City, banker, man of affairs, is now in Paris on business connected with the Louisiana Purchase, has arrived at the Elysee Palace Hotel, in the course of his visit to Europe.

During an interesting interview Myers positively ascribed these words to Richard Croker, with whom he passed a day at Wantage lately, and whom he will again visit before he returns to America: "In any event, the only political wish I have today is my earnest desire that Senator Arthur Pue Gorman of Maryland be the next Democratic nominee for the Presidency."

Mr. Myers is in fine health, and is greatly enjoying his travels.

"I am glad," in answer to your questions, to say a word about utterances relative to political matters which are attributed to Richard Croker," said he.

"I passed a day with Mr. Croker on my way here. He emphatically denied having expressed any preference for anyone as the next Democratic candidate for Mayor of New York, except, possibly, in a casual way, and while in conversation with personal friends. Mr. Croker said to me: 'It would be an impertinence on my part to the Tammany organization for me to try to influence its choice of a Mayoralty candidate. It would be an impertinence under any circumstances, when I am at this distance; how much greater when I am free of politics.'

"'In any event, the only political wish I have today is my earnest desire that Senator Arthur Pue Gorman of Maryland be the next Democratic nominee for the Presidency.'

"That is Mr. Croker's position today," said Myers, with emphasis. "You can say so as coming from me."

Belleisle Goes to the Bottom—Invention to Prevent Her from Sinking Fails to Work.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

PORTSMOUTH (Eng.) Sept. 4.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The old battleship Belleisle was torpedoed her stoday and sung at her moorings, for the purpose of experiment a section had been constructed on the port side of the Belleisle, representing the side of a modern battleship. This was filled with an American invention which it was claimed would prevent a ship from sinking when the hull is penetrated below the water line. When the vessel was struck a large column of water enveloped her. She rolled heavily, and then settled down with a list to port. The Belleisle will be raised for further experiments. It is said that the damage to the ship's bottom is extensive.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Congressman Timothy D. Sullivan is now the head of the fraternal order of Eagles, having been elected Grand Worthy Master at the convention in Tammany Hall today. Many western contingents favored the election of Vice-President Pelltier of Kansas City and waged a vigorous fight to place him at the head of the order. On the first ballot Sullivan polled 783 votes, Pelltier 729, and Henry ("Hy") Davis of Cincinnati, 250. The two latter candidates then withdrew, and the Congressman's election was made unanimous. A protest was made against the votes from Honolulu, which were represented in proxy by the California delegates. As the Hawaiians were in favor of Sullivan, his adherents fought vigorously until the California delegates were permit-

FLASHES FROM THE WIRES.

Three painters, James Field, John Henley, and a man whose name is unknown, have been fatally injured by a falling scaffold at the City Institution for the Insane on Ward's Island, New York. Field and Henley had nearly every bone in their bodies broken.

Scores of infuriated women have beaten John Nulty, recently discharged from the navy, into insensibility in Madison Square, New York, because he attempted to hug Fortunito Lorito, a pretty girl of 14 years. Fortunito, with her two sisters, was listening to the band playing in the park when Nulty came along. "I'm going to kiss you," he said to Fortunito, and grasped her in his arms. The girl screamed for help. Instantly hundreds of women rushed to the rescue.

Mrs. Weir Martin of New York and her aunt, Mrs. Hessing, of Chicago, are reported to have been robbed of cash and jewelry amounting to more than $2000 at an Alexandria Bay, N. Y., summer hotel. The women were boating and left the valuables in their room. A female servant has disappeared.

The laundries of Chicago have raised their prices on articles such as collars, cuffs, and flat work, in the hope that they will be able to recover the amount lost during the recent strike of their employés. The laundry business of Chicago has fallen off 30 per cent. since the struggle, and many small concerns have been forced out of business.

Twofold interest attaches to a vessel built in Chicago and just sent on its first trip across Lake Michigan. The boat is the Grace J, the smallest freighter on the lakes, and the first gasoline freight ship ever given attention by the United States inspectors.

Two hundred and fifteen glue makers have gone on a strike at the factory of Armour and Company, Chicago, for a minimum wage of $2 a day.

There left New York yesterday on the steamers Nubia and Sagami for the Philippines, 10,465,000 silver coins, aggregating in currency value $1,075,000. The coins were packed at the Philadelphia Mint in little iron-bound kegs, each containing $2500.

Suffering from remorse for having gone on strike against the employer for whom he had worked for twenty-five years, Jacob B. Smith threw himself from the fourth-story window of his home in Chicago. He struck the sidewalk and was instantly killed.

A report published by the Paris Patrie that the French government might expel Cardinal Gibbons from France owing to his alleged statements to the Breton and other French clergy, is officially pronounced to be false and absurd. The government officers also express indignation at such a careless use of the cardinal's name.

The method pursued by the Supreme Lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen in increasing the rate of assessment upon its members has been indorsed by the National Fraternal Congress, which is an organization composed of representatives of sixty-three fraternal beneficiary societies.

Sarah and Gladys Hogan, daughters of Samuel Hogan, a Jefferson-county farmer, fifteen miles northeast of Topeka, were burned to death Thursday evening. The elder girl, of 14 years, had the younger in her arms and was lighting the fire with kerosene, when the can exploded, scattering the flames over the children.

At his home at Cove Neck, N. Y., it was said yesterday that F. R. Cowdert of New York, who is suffering from heart trouble, had passed a restful night and was better.

Influential German newspapers and magazines are urging the government to limit the number of foreigners instructed in the German technical high schools, or more properly technical universities, which are overcrowded.

The special grand jury of Denver has reported indictments against Charles W. Crouter, former Colorado State Auditor, and W. C. Munsell, his chief clerk.—Munsell is accused of embezzling some $2000 of flat tax money and the Auditor is charged with making no effort to collect this or to turn over other flat tax money which he collected. There are nineteen counts in the indictments.

Herr Lewald, the commissioner of Germany at the St. Louis Exposition, has made arrangements to have Berlin's comprehensive exhibit at Dresden's municipal exposition transferred to St. Louis.

A man affirming that he is an American, and a priest named Gullinski, recently arrived at Gleiwitz, Poland, with six girls who, it is alleged, he was taking to a convent at St. Louis with the object of fostering Polishism. The man was arrested under the paragraph in the emigration law forbidding the enticing of young girls out of the country.

A fire Thursday almost destroyed the town of Dvenik, Bosnia. Several persons were killed and about six hundred houses, seven mosques and a synagogue were burned.

The control of the Russian finances by M. Witte, who has been made president of the Council of Ministers, ceases with the conclusion of the pending commercial negotiations.

Suit was today instituted by United States Attorney William D. Wright for the government against Sheriff J. W. Fox of Knoxville, Tenn., and his bondsmen for $10,000 damages. The government claim is on account of the escape of Harvey Logan, the Montana train robber, from the Knox-county jail on June 27 last.

At a meeting in Boston of the directors of the Tri-Mountain Mining Company yesterday all the directors resigned and their places were filled by the directors of the Copper Range Consolidated Mining Company, which recently obtained control of the Tri-Mountain stock.

It is semi-officially announced that the French Parliament will reassemble October 20.

OBITUARY.

Col. Thomas O. Hall.

LOUISVILLE (Ky.) Sept. 4.—Col. Thomas O. Hall, a veteran steamboat man and one of the best-known river editors in the South, died suddenly at his home here this morning of heart failure. Col. Hall was 63 years of age, a Confederate veteran, and for many years had been in charge of the river column of the Louisville Post.

Count Von Deyme.

GERMANIC'S FATE UNSETTLED.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The old White Star Line steamer Germanic arrived today from Liverpool and Queenstown on her last voyage of the season, making the run in seven days, twelve hours and twenty-four minutes. The Germanic will return to Liverpool and lay up in reserve to await the future disposition of the vessel. Her sister ship, the Britannic, was sold recently to be broken up. The Germanic had been recently overhauled to meet the same fate, but she may be put in reserve as an extra ship or until she can be sold.

FORMIDABLE RIVAL OF FRUIT COMBINE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Additional details were obtained today of the proposed United States and Colombia Trading Company, which is in process of formation. The authorized capital of the concern is to be $5,000,000. It will engage in a number of enterprises in the way of developing valuable lands in South America, one of the most important features being the fruit industry, in which it will compete actively with the United Fruit Company.

The general office of the company is to be in this city. The ports of entry are to be Mobile, Ala., and New Orleans and the South American headquarters at Turbo, Department of Cauca, and Port Arbolete, Department of Bolivar, Colombia.

Following is a statement of the holdings of the company: Thirty-nine thousand six hundred hectares of land warrants, entitling the company to free entry of any public land in the Colombian domain in fee simple, or a total of 79,000 acres. In addition to this there is also included natural gas fields surrounding the city of Barranquilla, which brings the grand total to nearly 100,000 acres; and leases of a section twenty-five miles square surrounding the bay of Arbolete in the departments of Cauca and Bolivar, including oil, mahogany, and ranch lands of that district. These leases cover all the minerals of the region, and run for a period of forty-nine years. In consideration of this grant the Colombian government is to receive 15 per cent. of the net profits from the mining of coal and extraction of petroleum after permitting the company to deduct all expenses, and 6 per cent. on investment.

At Mobile, the company will have connection with the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, and at New Orleans with Chicago & Alton.

MRS. DREXEL'S LOST JEWELS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Two jewels, the value of which is estimated at $10,000, have been lost by Mrs. John R. Drexel, a prominent society leader, according to dispatches from Newport. One disappeared July 4 and the other August 14, but as Mrs. Drexel hoped to find them by quiet search, the matter was kept secret. Both jewels were necklace pendants—one a pear-shaped diamond, surrounded by five fine stones of rare color, and the other a pear-shaped emerald.

Vaughn, Wisconsin, and Miss Katherine Egleston, Ohio.

HOW NEGRO AVOIDED LYNCHING.

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) Sept. 4.—An unknown negro was caught this afternoon in the act of assaulting Mrs. Margaret Gerahn, a white woman, in her home at Armourdale, Kan., a suburb. He fled, chased by a crowd, and when he realized that escape was impossible, drowned himself in the Kansas River. Jumping overboard from a rowboat in which he was trying to gain the Missouri side. The negro had been in Mrs. Gerahan's house for three hours and had repeatedly choked her to make the woman give up her money. She probably will recover.

MRS. MOLINEUX DIVORCED.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Counsel for Mrs. Roland B. Molineux has announced that the reports of his client having secured a decree of divorce in South Dakota are true. None of those connected with the case will say where the decree was issued. Beyond the mere confirmation the only statement vouchsafed was that Mrs. Molineux will resume her maiden name.

TRAVIS AND BYERS.

GLEN COVE, Sept. 4.—Walter J. Travis of the Garden City Golf Club and E. M. Byers of the Allegheny Country Club, Pittsburgh, will meet tomorrow on the Nassau County Club links in the final round for the amateur golf championship of the United States.

Travis has held the national championship twice, and Byers was the runner-up last year at the Glen View Club, near Chicago. Curiously enough, Travis and Byers met last year in the round preceding the semi-final, and Byers won by a single hole.

The day in this city and the southern lake region was threatening with rain and northwest winds. Light frosts were reported in North Dakota this morning, and with an area of very high pressure and clear cold weather moving over the Dakotas and Minnesota, frosts are predicted for Michigan and Wisconsin tomorrow morning. Temperatures at 7 a.m.: New York, Boston, 64; Philadelphia, Chicago and Cincinnati, 66; Washington and St. Louis, 70; Minneapolis, 50.

MRS. HITT'S DIVORCE.

Mrs. Marion Burnham Hitt, daughter of S. W. Burnham, formerly clerk of the United States Circuit Court, today filed suit for divorce against Addison W. Hitt. She charges desertion and statutory offense, claiming that he has refused to live with her since January 2, 1902.

THRASHERS FOR SOUTH AMERICA

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RACINE (Wis.) Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The J. I. Case Thrashing Machine Company is now packing for shipment to Buenos Ayres eighty thrashing machines. Forty cars will be used to carry the thrashers to New York.

BISHOP JOYCE'S CHAIR.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SOUTH BEND (Ind.) Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In addressing the Northwest Indiana Methodist Conference class this forenoon, Bishop Joyce, in speaking of theological schools, declared that if he were rich enough or had enough rich friends he would establish a new theological chair, the chair of common sense. His remarks startled the assembled ministry.

POSITION WITH THE TURKS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

IOWA FALLS, Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Joseph Morcombe, an Iowa newspaper man, has been offered a position with the Turkish government through that country's Minister at Washington, and will accept. The duties will be to represent through the American press the true conditions that exist in the Ottoman empire. It is claimed that distorted reports come from Macedonia, and it is desired to correct the impression created by them.

GOV. YATES'S DAUGHTER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SPRINGFIELD (Ill.) Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Gov. Yates's daughter, Dorothy, is seriously ill at the summer home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Wadsworth of Jacksonville, at Harbor Springs, Mich. Mrs. Yates, who was visiting friends in Danville, left this afternoon for the Michigan summer resort, and the Governor has cancelled speaking engagements in order to leave at once, should his daughter's condition become dangerous.

RUNNING FOR CONGRESS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

IOWA FALLS, Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] M. J. Tobin, one of the best known attorneys in Central Iowa, is in the field for the seat in Congress now occupied by Robert G. Cousins of Tipton. His home is at Vinton.

MARRIED ON HIGH.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TERRE HAUTE (Ind.) Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Charles T. Thompson and Miss Bessie Wilson, visitors to the fair, were married in the Courthouse tower, 175 feet above the ground today, a justice of the peace declaring them man and wife.

HORSE SELECTED THE WIFE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 4.—[Exclusive dispatch.] Mrs. Ralph E. Brown of Hendricks county, in her suit for divorce, charges that her husband let a horse select his wife. She and Brown were married in August last year and separated in December. She says Brown was paying attention to a woman in Indianapolis and she herself lived in Clayton. On the day fixed for the wedding, Brown got into his buggy, dropped the reins over the dashboard and left the decision to the horse, which turned off at the Clayton road, thus deciding the defendant as to the choice of a wife.

KOKOMO GOES WET.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

KOKOMO (Ind.) Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After being practically dry for six months as a result of the crusade against the saloons under the remonstrance law, Kokomo went "wet" in every ward today. Since February, sixty applications for license have been refused. About twenty secured licenses today.

KANSAS CORN CROP.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TOPEKA, Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Reports today say that all corn in Kansas will be fully matured by October 1, and that if frost does not appear before that time more than two hundred million bushels will be harvested.

REFORM HIS SLOGAN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ROCK ISLAND (Ill.) Sept. 4.—George W. McCaskrin, a local lawyer and editor of the Weekly Independent, a "reform" paper, is preparing to announce his independent candidacy for Governor of Illinois, and is making plans to stump the State on horseback. Reform will be his slogan.

GOULD RAILROADS AND WESTERN UNION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The World tomorrow will say that the report that the Goulds are trying to get an entrance into Philadelphia is not taken seriously in railroad circles. Gould will probably be content to make his eastern terminus in Baltimore. As a matter of fact, he is morally bound to do so. When he bought the Western Maryland road from the city of Baltimore, he promised the Mayor and Council of that city that he would not extend his lines to any other seaboard town.

The relations between the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Company have grown very much more friendly within the last year, and while there is probably no truth in the story that the two companies are to be consolidated, it is generally believed that they have a close understanding. The two companies have an agreement as to tariffs, and it was as the result of this agreement that the advance in local rates was recently made.

The Pennsylvania has really accomplished very little by ousting the Western Union from its territory. Its arrangement with the Postal Telegraph Company has not proved altogether satisfactory, and the road has been very much embarrassed by the hasty eviction of the older telegraph company.

Great Piece of Engineering.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—A. E. Welby, for many years general superintendent of the Rio Grande Western Road has just returned from Peru, where he has been engaged for a year past in the construction of seventy-five miles of railroad. Mr. Welby says the road, which has just been completed, is a wonderful piece of work. It starts at Lima, 12,000 feet above the sea level, and climbs to an altitude of 17,000 feet in seventy miles.

New York's Subway.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Excavations have begun in Lower Broadway for the extension of the Rapid Transit Subway from City Hall Park to the battery. When completed this extension will make a continuous ride possible beneath the surface from end to end of Manhattan Island, when the subway opens for business. Owing to the great crush of traffic in Broadway, precautions not thought necessary in other sections have been taken to carry on the work with the least possible disturbance on the street surface.

ARIZONA.

COUNTY SUPERVISORS OF YAVAPAI SUED.

MADE A LARGE DONATION TO MINING COMPANY.

Peculiar Legal Tangle Over Raised Assessment of United Verde Copper Property—Two-million-dollar Water-power Scheme on the Colorado River.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) Sept. 3.—The next term of the District Court of Yavapai county will wrestle with a peculiar legal question. The County Assessor raised the assessment of the United Verde Copper Company from about $500,000 to over $1,000,000. The company refused to pay the increased assessment, not upon the ground that its property was not worth the amount it was assessed, but because it was alleged that the assessment was proportionately greater than levied upon other mining enterprises within Arizona. In a suit in the District Court over the difference Judge Sloan decided against the corporation, on the ground that it had not fulfilled the requirements of a territorial statute which prescribes that appeals from tax assessments can be had only after the appealing party has paid into the County Treasury the full amount of tax charged against him on the books of the County Tax Collector.

Later the Board of Supervisors, apparently without any right of law, merely on the application of H. J. Allen, manager for the United Verde Company, reduced the assessment. The taxes and penalties due on the original assessment amounted to $50,-638.30, for which the Supervisors accepted $36,218 from the company. On receipt of this amount they directed the County Tax Collector to issue to the company a receipt in full for all taxes, penalties and costs for the year 1902, and directed, as well, that all actions occurring out of the claim against the United Verde for taxes be discharged and released. Trouble materialized for the Supervisors at once. The County Treasurer, ex-officio Tax Collector, receipted for the $36,210 by noting across the face of the receipt the fact that it was issued by order of the Board of Supervisors. The Treasurer, moreover, refused to cancel the sale wherein the property of the company had been sold for taxes. On top of this the District Attorney, E. S. Clark, instituted proceedings against the Supervisors to annul the action whereby they had donated $14,000 to the United Verde company, Mr. Clark stating that in his judgment "the entire transaction of the board is illegal and in excess of its jurisdiction and void." A third interesting feature of the transaction materialized in a demand made upon the County Treasurer by the Territorial Treasurer for the full amount of the territorial taxes due from the United Verde Copper Company on the assessment for 1902. The Territory takes about one-third of all taxes collected within the counties, and Attorney General Wells has figured it out that by the action of the board the Territory has been illegally deprived of something over $4000. The Attorney General will join the District Attorney in pushing the case against the Supervisors and the mining company.

IMPRISONED FOR CONTEMPT.

Judge Sloan has sentenced M. J. Connelly to six months' imprisonment in the County Jail for contempt of court for violation of an injunction issued by the magistrate restraining the Western Federation of Miners and any individual from interfering with the operations of certain mining companies in this vicinity. Connelly and one Henry Pitts had been arrested for making threatening demonstrations against non-union miners and using incendiary language and displaying firearms around the Champion mine in the Walker district. The defense tried to make out a plain case of drunkenness, and then to substantiate a degree of insanity in the case of Connelly, the principal defendant. The miners' union generally disclaimed any connection with the case, though the men, it was shown, were more than violent in their language and their threats against "scabs," and that Connelly, in the most open manner, had defied the injunction of the court.

POWER SCHEME.

A $2,000,000 water-power scheme is materializing on the Colorado River, at a point about twenty-five miles below the mouth of lower Box Cañon above Needles. A company, known as the Minnesota and Arizona Gold Mining Company, proposes to build a dam at a point where the cañon is narrowest, primarily, for the purpose of developing power for mining enterprises. It is asserted, however, that 23,000 horse power can be developed for the outlay, enough to furnish power for practically all the mining enterprises in Northwestern Arizona and Southeastern California.

SOUTHERN NOTES.

E. S. Gosney, one of the leading capitalists of Northern Arizona, and probably the largest sheep owner in the Southwest, is to establish a new bank at Flagstaff. Mr. Gosney is also heavily interested in the new meat-packing combine which is to fight the packers' trust.

The public schools of Prescott started Monday, with a large attendance. The handsome new school building on Gurley street hill was occupied for the first time. It is believed to be the finest school structure in the Southwest.

Paul A. Johns has resigned as general manager of the Braganza Gold Mining Company and will establish himself in Prescott as a mining expert.

In a single week this summer 2700 tourists visited the Grand Cañon, by way of the Santa Fé connection at Williams.

One tourist has succumbed this summer to the fatigues of the Grand Cañon exploration. C. R. Moore of Harveyville, Kas, died of overexertion, due to an attempt to walk to the river and back at Bright Angel trail. The trip is far too severe a one to be made on foot in one day, but it can be readily accomplished on mule back.

Mrs. Roy Hampston, 25 years of age, was found dead in her bed at Poland lately. Though no reason can be found for the deed, it was decided that her death was a case of suicide by means of laudanum.

Juan Valencia, is in jail in Prescott, charged with an attempt to rob the mails. Valencia held up the stage from Congress Junction to Congress. The driver misunderstood the threat of the leveled pistol, and thinking it a joke, increased the speed of his horses. Valencia shot, the bullet striking the coach, within a few inches of the driver's head. The driver dropped to the bottom of the wagon and the frightened horses galloped with the wagon away from the scene. There seems no doubt that Valencia is the man wanted.

The body of Charles Harper was found a short time ago on the plain near Ashfork, only a few hundred yards from the Santa Fé track. The body had been denuded of flesh by coyotes, but identity was established by means of a memorandum book. Harper had been an employé of the Grand Cañon Hotel about a year ago.

Sleep That Costs Nine Hundred Dollars a Night—Big Price for Slumber Paid by Sultan.

[STAFF CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 22.—Sleep that costs $900 a night seems pretty expensive, but that is what the Sultan of Turkey is paying for the privilege of more or less tranquil repose. The money is received by the members of the special military staff which guards Abdul Hamid's bedroom, and which consists of two generals, a colonel, a major, a captain and several soldiers. For their night's work each of the two generals gets 50 Turkish pounds—or about $225—the colonel 40, the major 35, the captain 30, and each soldier 1, the entire amount aggregating slightly over $900 in American money. The officers and men get their fee every morning immediately they have been relieved, and don't have to wait for it like some pretty big nations to whom Abdul Hamid owes money.

This expensive night guard of the Sultan's has been maintained by him only since the recent assassination of the royal couple of Servia. Of course, the timorous ruler of Turkey always has been particularly well guarded at night, but the murders at Belgrade scared Abdul Hamid almost out of his wits and he immediately determined that he would surround his bedchamber with the most vigilant men who could be secured and make it to their interest to protect him. The command of the special night guard is intrusted to eight of the Sultan's most trusted generals, two of whom are on duty every night. Owing chiefly to this and other precautions that the ruler has adopted recently, it is estimated that the weekly expense of running Yildes Kiosk is over $80,000.

SWEET LAVENDER.

Picturesque Woman With Quaint but Musical Song Sells it in the Streets of London.

[STAFF CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Aug. 21.—One of the most picturesque of London "types" is the sweet lavender woman, and by far the most musical of the London street cries is the quaint ditty with which she describes her wares. Lavender is, of course, the uncommonly fragrant plant which grows so abundantly in this country, and it is used mostly by those who buy it to put in clothes presses and drawers where linen is kept to perfume them. The lavender, which costs a penny for four branches, is generally sold by women, and all of them utter the same cry, which has been in use for centuries. There is a complete song of it which begins as follows:

"Won't you buy my blooming lavender,
Four good branches for a penny?"

Then the singer goes on to say that she "picked it fresh this very morning," and goes on with something about it being "what you want to scent your pocket 'ankerchief," which you always try to catch, but can't exactly. But the plaintive cry sung as the lavender woman makes her way through a London back street is one of the most genuinely striking sounds to be heard in the metropolis.

"Sweet Lavender" it may be remembered is the name of one of Ninero's most delightful comedies.

A DECIDED SUCCESS.

The Pacific Music Company Gave the First of a Series of Musical Recitals.

The recital of the Pacific Music Co., given yesterday afternoon, was attended by the cream of Los Angeles musical critics, and the work of Fordyce Hunter on the Knabe grand piano and the Chase & Baker self-piano player manipulated by Mr. E. E. Salyer, was applauded to the limit by the select audience present. These concerts will be continued for several weeks, by request, at Pacific Music Co.'s warerooms at 437 and 439 South Broadway. —[Adv.

ORGANIZED EDITORS ON SUMMER OUTING.

SEVENTY-FIVE SCRIBES AND LADIES AT CORONADO BEACH.

Ninety-two New Members Voted in at First Business Session—Bids Opened for Fort Rosecrans Buildings—Gifford Pinchot Inspects Park.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, Sept 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Counting the ladies, the Southern California Editorial Association came to town this afternoon seventy-five strong, for its summer outing. They were met by a committee of the Chamber of Commerce and the local press upon arrival here. Most of them traveled away to the cool breezes and the seating houses at Tent City. This afternoon they took life easy and became acquainted. This evening they held a business session at one of the big tents, labeled "Editorial Association Headquarters," the interior being decorated with flags and flowers. Edgar Johnson of the Fullerton Arbuane, president of the association, was the right-hand man of H. Hart Moore of the Santa Fé, in charge of the excursion.

The Executive Committee reported favorably on a list of ninety-two applications for membership, all representing Southern California papers, making the total membership to 150. The applicants were elected, and immediately an assessment of $1 each, new and old, was voted for current expenses. A movement to exempt the editors from dues proved unpopular, and was dropped like a hot poker.

After that the moulders of public opinion and their ladies heard the Tent City Band play, this being followed by attending the pavilion vaudeville and the ball on the floating casino. By midnight most of them were tucked in a row of tents generously provided by the management of the city. At 4 a.m. tomorrow they are supposed to be skylarking on the beach and battling with the breakers of the ocean. At 9:30 o'clock Col Vodges will take all hands down the bay in the government steamer Gen. De Russey.

Those in the excursion include: C. [illegible] wife and daughter, [illegible] Champion; Wilbur Spence, [illegible] Blade; S. A. Swanton, E. E. EGYPTIAN COTTON SUCCESS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

IMPERIAL, Sept. 3.—A letter regarding Egyptian cotton grown at Calexico, in the valley, has just been received by Thomas H. Kearney, physiologist in the bureau of plant industry, Department of Agriculture, in which he says:

"We have just received a report from Mr. Getty, the Egyptian correspondent of Mr. F. W. Reynolds Co. of Providence, R. I., on the Jannovitch cotton grown at Calexico in 1902. We are informed that Mr. Getty has been over [illegible] years in Egypt in the cotton [illegible]. He reports as follows: [illegible]ength of fiber, quite two inches; [illegible]th, very good; uniformity, good; fine, rich in color; spinning quality very high; valuation at present

Gifford Pinchot, chief of the United States Bureau of Forestry, has returned to Los Angeles after making inspection of the work being done in the large park here. He will endeavor to have two field assistants sent here to survey the park, with the intention of having trees planted therein by the government.

James Musselman of Escondido is on trial on the charge of mayhem; in other words, of striking and breaking two teeth from the upper jaw of Alfred Hartshorn the Fourth of July at San Marcos. Musselman is 25 years of age and weighs 190 pounds, while Hartshorn is 14 and weighs 120.

Prof. H. M. Shafer, who resigned from the faculty of the State Normal school here to accept the presidency of the State Normal at Cheney, Wash., was tendered a reception at the Normal yesterday. Prof. Shafer and family will leave tomorrow evening.

IMPERIAL VALLEY.

EGYPTIAN COTTON SUCCESS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.] IMPERIAL, Sept. 3.—A letter regarding Egyptian cotton grown at Calexico, this valley, has just been received from Thomas H. Kearney, physiologist in the bureau of plant industry, Department of Agriculture, in which he says:

"We have just received a report from Mr. Getty, the Egyptian correspondent of the F. W. Reynolds Co. of Providence, R. I., on the Jannovitch cotton grown at Calexico in 1902. We are indeed glad that Mr. Getty has been over many years in Egypt in the cotton country. He reports as follows:

'Length of fiber, quite two inches; strength, very good; uniformity, good; fine, rich in color; spinning quality very high; valuation at present market conditions, 21 to 22 cents per pound; is especially adapted for sewing cotton and for same purposes as sea Island; is equal to the best Jannovitch in all respects, and cannot be improved upon.'

"I do not think we could have a more favorable report upon a sample of American-grown Egyptian cotton than this."

In the half-acre experiment patch at Calexico another crop of this cotton is growing, and cotton experts estimate the yield at a bale to the acre, or a gross revenue from cotton of $100 an acre, with value of seed added.

This is the first time, after years of experimental work, in different parts of the country, that success has been met with Egyptian long-fiber cotton, and the results are so favorable that a larger experiment will be made next year on a commercial basis.

"GENTLEMAN GEORGE" PUT AWAY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Harry Brooks, alias "Gentleman George" Robinson, who on Wednesday pleaded guilty to five indictments, three of which charged burglary, was today sentenced to twenty-three years' imprisonment. Brooks had been in New York only a short time, yet, according to his confession, he had committed thirty-nine burglaries and stolen property worth in the aggregate $65,000.

DISAPPEARING

An Old Chronic Coffee Symptom Going.

It is a fact that the old time enemy, sick headache, is disappearing as the use of Postum Food Coffee in place of coffee becomes more widespread.

Sick headache is always caused by improper food or drink, and coffee is the most prominent cause of sick headaches.

In those families where Postum has taken the place of coffee you will seldom find a case of sick headache, nausea or nervousness. "I had sick headache frequently before beginning the use of Postum which was a year ago last June but since I have quit coffee and use Postum I have had only one spell.

"My husband suffered so greatly from stomach trouble for two years, with extreme weakness at times and smothering so badly that his friends generally gave him up as a consumptive. Two physicians tried their skill but did not help him. Yet in less than a year since he quit coffee and began the use of Postum he is well. The smothering spells are entirely gone and he is back again at his usual farm work strong and happy. We both began to notice a change for the better after we had used Postum about a month and now we would neither one of us go without it.

"My husband's mother had stomach trouble entirely different from my husband's. She had had weak stomach for thirty years without being able to get much help from medical treatment. After she saw what Postum had done for my husband, she was easily persuaded to give up coffee and try Postum and the old cramps from which she used to suffer so much are almost entirely gone and her stomach is getting strong and normal. I could tell you of a number of other cases among my relatives and townspeople but guess you will understand from this what we think of Postum in this part of the country.

"You could not persuade any of these people that I have named to risk even one cup of coffee now, since they have seen what giving up coffee and drinking Postum will do toward getting back health and happiness." This was written by a well-known lady of Brick Church, Tenn. Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

SEE TOMORROW'S

THERE ARE HATS AND HATS

If we sold fewer $3.00 hats we would have to make more profit on e ch hat.

That would mean an ordinary hat for $3.00.

But—

We can afford to give a better hat for the solid simple reason that we sell so many. We make less profit on each transaction, but when we figure up the season's profit we find that it pays mighty well to give a little better hat than the other fellow.

Besides the good quality a Silverwood hat is always correct, and an expert hat man is ever ready to give you his best thought and attention.

The men who are returning from their vacations find their wardrobe in need of new hosiery, underwear, shirts, etc. Drop in.

BUSINESS.

Temporary quiet in business is reflected in lighter bank clearings for the day. They still exceed last year's totals. The resumption of activity in the oil industry is in part responsible for the heavy demand for loans.

A bullish tone in the Chicago wheat market rushed prices upward, but free offerings caused an easy closing. The New York stock market was dull, but distinctly strong.

A TALE OF TWO CITIES.

One of the features of this labor-union business that should be earnestly and dispassionately considered by all who are not absolutely prejudiced on the subject, is the manner in which important industries are handicapped and destroyed, or driven away, by the unreasonable demands and the constant tyranny of labor agitators, thus throwing thousands of people out of employment, upsetting business, and depreciating the value of property. Many instances might be cited where towns have been ruined by continual labor agitation which the manufacturers have finally refused to put up with. Unless there is soon a turn in the tide, it looks as if the great city of Chicago might ere long be added to the list of those places that have suffered from the despotism of the labor demagogue. If so, it would certainly be a sort of poetical justice, for above all cities of the country Chicago has been noted as a headquarters for extremists among the boycotters and strikers, and a city where such people have always been sure of more or less sympathy and support.

A recent dispatch from Chicago states that labor conditions and high rent have driven a score of big manufacturing concerns to leave that city. Other large concerns have decided to leave the city, which has been styled "strike ridden." Business men's associations have been formed in every town and village within a hundred miles of Chicago, and are flooding Chicago with offers of factory sites and tranquil labor situations, and are assisting Chicago manufacturers in finding outside locations. Freight rates have been made to favor outside towns, giving them as advantageous a position as shipping points as Chicago. Among other big concerns that have decided to take this step is the big publishing house of Rand, McNally & Co.

Little sympathy will be wasted by outsiders upon the property owners of Chicago who may find their real estate declining heavily in value or upon the merchants who find their business falling off. They have made their bed and they must be prepared to lie upon it, with what comfort they may. If they have not directly aided and abetted the insolent tyranny of these Chicago labor agitators, they have at least connived at it by cowardly silence or hypocritical concealment of their real convictions.

Other American cities may well take warning by this lesson. On this Coast we have another union-cursed city, where capital is becoming discouraged and disgusted, and many who have their money invested there are planning to go elsewhere—a city where the newspapers, and the courts, and the public officials appear to live in abject terror of the labor-union bogie man. That San Francisco, notwithstanding the immense advantages it has enjoyed during the past few years in the shape of business attending the oriental disturbances, the increase of oriental trade and the opening up of the rich Klondike country, has made such comparatively small progress is undoubtedly mainly due to the fact that its business men have been manacled by labor-union tyranny, and prevented from developing the commerce of the city as they might have done had they been unfettered.

There is another city on the Pacific Coast whose citizens have steadily and sternly refused to bow the knee to the labor-union dictator, or to countenance the strike and the boycott. That city has during the past decade made the most phenomenal growth of any city in the United States, as is shown by the records of population, of bank deposits, of postoffice business, of building, and of every other feature that goes to make up a live and progressive city.

There is a moral in all this, and it is too plain to need pointing out to the intelligent readers of The Times.

THE CIRCULATION BASIS.

In its further discussion of the county advertising contract the Evening Express evades the point. The crux of the whole matter is that the advertising shou.d be awarded on the basis of circulation, in order that the county's announcements shall meet the eyes of as many readers as possible and the taxpayers shall get their money's worth. The Supervisors should seek the medium which offers the most for the money; in no other way can they do justice to the people who pay the bills and are entitled to see the advertisements.

Reckoned on the basis of circulation The Times bid is 2 cents per inch per thousand; the bid of the Express is somewhere about 4 cents per inch per thousand; the Santa Monica Outlook wants 15 cents per inch per thousand; and the Journal asks 6 cents per inch per thousand. The Times offers to do the advertising for the lowest rate and to reach by far the largest number of readers. What private concern would hesitate in awarding this contract? What business man would not pay the least and get the most? In its insincerity the Express does not touch upon this point. It prints what purports to be a statement of its circulation, a statement which it has hitherto withheld from the public gaze. Perhaps it has been ashamed to publish it.

MISSIONARY ETHICS.

The Turkish Minister at Washington recently accorded an interview to a representative of the Associated Press, in the course of which he said:

"Now there is that other troublesome question of missionaries. Do not understand me as criticising the missionary, for I must again remind you we are a tolerant people. We have allowed the missionaries great liberties, and with what result? I read in the American papers frequently of what some returned missionary from Turkey has to say about wiping my country off the map of Europe. I am advised that certain missionaries when they go to Turkey are constantly arousing the Armenians against the Moslems. They even talk to the Armenians about exterminating us. Is that not inciting the Armenian subjects to rebellion?

"Suppose I should establish in Washington a school for negroes, and my teachers should tell the negroes attending that school that they ought not to submit to lynching and should rebel. Do you think I would remain in this country long, or that my school would flourish? This is a side of the question that is not often heard.

"But we have the missionaries, and my government earnestly strives to protect them. It is merely justice, however, that when the missionary comes to Turkey he should confine himself to the religious and intellectual training of his pupils, and not endeavor to make them dissatisfied with their present form of government. I am sure you do not expect us to encourage the undermining of our government."

There is, undoubtedly, some basis of truth for this complaint and it is a subject which we should not entirely ignore. It may be remembered that similar complaints were made by the Chinese government at the time of the recent troubles in Peking, and some unprejudiced Americans who have lived in the Orient agreed that there was a foundation for those complaints.

It is the privilege of enthusiastic missionaries to go into foreign lands—civilized, uncivilized and semi-civilized—for the purpose of spreading the knowledge of their various creeds, and endeavoring to make converts thereto, just as it is the privilege of American merchants, and manufacturers, and newspaper men, and scientists, and pleasure seekers to travel through those lands, or to reside in them, and just as the natives of those countries have a right to travel and reside in the United States, so long as they do not run counter to the laws of the land. The missionaries should, however, remember that, in pursuing their line of activity in these foreign countries, they are subject to the laws of those countries, just as foreigners within our gates are subject to the laws of the United States. Moreover, it is not seemly, as the Turkish Minister points out, for religious teachers, who carry on their vocation by the courtesy of the government of the country in which they live, to go out of their way to criticise that government, or to incite opposition to it—supposing them to have done so. Also, the missionaries should remember that, in pushing their way into strange and isolated sections, where the people are ignorant and fanatical, and in preaching doctrines that may be considered by those natives as a reflection upon their cherished beliefs, they are running a great risk of getting into trouble, and should therefore always exercise a high grade of diplomacy. In short, they should endeavor to be "as wise as serpents and as harmless as doves." Otherwise, the United States will need a much larger navy than it now possesses, merely to attend to the petty wars that it may be dragged into through the thoughtless or ill-considered actions of these men of peace.

Yes, as the Record says, The Times is occupying a part of the sidewalk while making a considerable addition to its quarters. When the work is done The Times will have about doubled the size of its building, and the Record will be invited to the house-warming. As far as the protection of the police goes, that is not necessary for building operations in Los Angeles today, thanks to the public sentiment which keeps the walking delegates in check. Yes, there are some newspapers which not only occupy the sidewalks, but spread over a large portion of the earth—greatly to the chagrin of their little neighbors.

Even if nothing is done at the next session of Congress toward the elasticization of the currency, a little time might be devoted to changing the picture of the beetle-browed woman on the iron dollar for one that bears some slight resemblance to the typical American girl, who is the loveliest thing alive. It is little wonder that the country is all torn up with strikes and other troubles when one stops to consider that the face of that female on our silver coins is enough to make any people desperate and ill-tempered. The United States will never be truly happy until that woman is melted down and remoulded.

The clash in colonist rates to California means much to Los Angeles and all Southern California, for the reason that this is California to the most of the people back East who have a notion that it would be a strictly pious idea to come West and grow up with the country.

Our dear young friend Aguinaldo has again succeeded in urging himself into the public gaze. Let's see, what was it that Aguinaldo was doing a while back? Oh yes, being sympathized with by Ed Atkinson of Boston. By the way, what has become of our old friend Ed?

A Los Angeles man has been elected vice-president of the American Society of Professors of Dancing, and unless somebody else speaks up pretty soon we may pick out a candidate for a running mate to Mr. Roosevelt. It would be painful to have a vacancy in that quarter.

Since that recent dose given one of our doping milkmen by the honorable court, one may drink milk with the utmost confidence that he isn't likewise swallowing something that will eat the lining off his diaphragm and other interior arrangements.

We are informed that the United States has no authority to send a fleet through the Dardanelles, and yet it is barely possible that should Uncle Sam take a notion a flotilla might make a stagger at getting through, even without authority.

It seems that no matter how far a baseball team may be in the lead for the pennant there are moments when even the best-natured player becomes possessed of an almost overpowering desire to slug the umpire.

We are pleased to note that our esteemed English contemporaries take the defeat of their yacht with great good nature. But they ought to when it has become second nature to them after so many years of practice.

As Santa Monica is to have one of Mr. Carnegie's justly famous libraries we will at least be able to go down occasionally and see how the thing looks, even though we are deprived of one of our own.

Now that the yacht races are over about the only thing we have to look forward to is the knocking off of the block of that man Munroe of Montana by our distinguished townsman, Mr. James Jeffries.

It would be painful should it turn out that when the Colombians have fully made up their minds about the construction of that canal our good Uncle Sam had made other arrangements.

Now, had that San Bernardine sleuth's foresight been as good as his hindsight, we might have those trolley-car bandits reposing in fancied security in the bastile on the hill.

Wall street's case of acute gastritis still continues. Her digestion is fully equal to that of the man who has been supping on Welsh rarebits for sixteen consecutive weeks.

Now that the price of washing cuffs in Chicago has been increased to 5 cents per pair the moment ought to be propitious for booming the sleeveless shirt.

There is this to be said about crimes committed in Chicago and other eastern points, the authorities always seem to have some sort of an idea who it was that did it.

It is costing double what it used to to sprinkle the streets, and we fail to see that the bicycle path is any drier than it was under the contract system.

Prof. Langley's flying machine is still hugging terra firma, and if the professor is as wise as we take him to be he will likewise grab a-holt and hang on, too.

We hesitate about mentioning the matter, but it is a fact that Los Angeles will be a better town than it is now when the streets are all nice and shady.

It is most unfortunate that the Shamrock isn't even fit to bob for eels with; and as a vessel for gathering clams it would be a dead failure.

Chicago laundry prices have been advanced, and thus is the time when the Chicago man changes his shirt given further postponement.

We can now take our eyes off Sandy Hook and watch the Alaska Boundary Commission as it jockeys for position.

Let us be thankful that oil and water don't mix, otherwise our streets would shortly be in a beautiful muss.

Of course the strike at Cripple Creek is entirely peaceable, but the troops have been called out, all the same.

SCHOLARSHIP CONTEST.

FRUITS OF VICTORY TO BE ENJOYED TODAY.

All aboard for the automobile trip and other pleasures planned for The Times scholarship winners today. This is the day we celebrate and award the prizes to those who have so deservedly won them.

All the contestants who have been invited to join in the festivities will please meet at The Times office at 9:30 o'clock this morning. Half an hour will be spent in viewing The Times presses and linotype machines at work, and at 10 o'clock sharp, the automobile ride will begin. If any are late they will miss this treat, but can join the rest of the party at the Pacific Electric Railway station at Sixth and Main streets at 12 o'clock noon.

The autos furnished by the Automobile Livery Company of No. 331 South Main street, will be in charge of competent chauffeurs, and there will be enough of the vehicles to accommodate all of the invited guests. The route of the parade will practically be as follows:

Start at First street and Broadway at 10 o'clock; proceed down Broadway to Seventh street; east to Spring street, north to Temple and Main, south on Main to Seventh, west on Seventh to Westlake Park; through the park drives to Wilshire boulevard and Park View avenue; thence back to Seventh street; east on Seventh to Alvarado, south on Alvarado to Ninth, east to Burlington avenue, south to Winfield street, west to Westlake avenue, thence via Alvarado Terrace, Hoover street and Twenty-third street to Chester Place and West Adams street; west on Adams to Orchard avenue, south on Orchard avenue to Jefferson, east to Figueroa, north on Figueroa to Adams, east to Main and north on Main to Sixth.

At Sixth and Main streets a special car on the Pacific Electric Railway will be in waiting to whisk the excursionists to Long Beach. The beautiful seaside resort will be reached about 1 o'clock p.m.

LONG BEACH HOSPITALITY.

At Long Beach a splendid collation will be ready for the entire party, the Long Beach Business College, the Board of Trade of Long Beach and the people of that progressive town, generally, acting as hosts. The lunch will be served in the big dining-room of the Sea Side Water Company's palatial bath-house. The good people of Long Beach have given assurance that there will be loads of good cheer and entertainment for the visitors. The freedom of the city will be extended to the bright boys and girls who have so greatly distinguished themselves in the contest just closed. There will be a special band concert for their delectation, and the bathing privileges, merry-go-round and other sports will be free to the honored guests. "If there is anything you want, just ask for it," is the generous invitation that has been extended to the coming guests. Committees have been appointed to receive the visitors and look after their comfort while there, and everything that could be desired will be done to make the afternoon a pleasant one for all who are fortunate enough to be numbered among the guests.

MARINE EXCURSION.

Long Beach has never called on outside people to help in entertaining, and in this case the enterprising citizens offered to furnish every form of amusement desired, without money and without price, a compliment which The Times thoroughly appreciates. It was the desire of the majority of the scholarship winners, however, to accept the invitation of Prof. E. K. Isaacs, president of the Woodbury Business College, to devote a portion of the afternoon at the seashore to a trip to the big breakwater at San Pedro on board the neat little excursion steamer Nellie, which has been especially chartered for the occasion. The marine excursion will take up not to exceed an hour and a half of the afternoon, and it is designed to leave the Long Beach wharf at 2 o'clock, returning, if possible, at 3:15. This will leave about two hours to spend on the beach, in bathing and other forms of amusement that the hospitable people of Long Beach have so generously offered to provide. The return to the city by special trolley express will be made before 6 o'clock, in order to give all of the contestants ample time to get ready for the awarding of the prizes at Blanchard Hall at 8 o'clock p.m.

AWARDING OF PRIZES.

The doors will be open at 7:30 p.m., and those expecting to secure good seats would better be on hand early as the capacity of the hall will be taxed to the utmost by the friends and admirers of the contestants. Two hundred of the front seats have been reserved for the immediate relatives and friends of the prize winners. Admission to these will be by card, each contestant being allowed three tickets. Those who have not yet secured their tickets can get them of the scholarship manager this morning. The rest of the hall will be open to the general public.

The contestants and representatives of the schools furnishing the scholarships will be given seats on the stage. The programme will be informal and will be hurried to a conclusion as speedily as possible, it being designed to get through with the exercises before 10 o'clock.

An orchestra whose services have been tendered by Mrs. Florida Brownsberger, head of the splendid educational institution that bears her name, will play several selections while the audience is assembling between 7:30 and 8 o'clock. No time will be wasted in preliminary speech-making, but almost immediately after assembling the roll of scholarship winners will be commenced. As each name is called the respondent will rise and name his or her choice of scholarship. The precious document earned by so much hard labor, and the cash bonus accompanying it, in the case of the first ten prize-winners, will then be handed over by a representative of the school, or of the Times-Mirror Company, with a few appropriate remarks, speeches being limited to three minutes each. The recipients of the prizes may have a minute or two to make their acknowledgments if they feel moved to say anything.

As there is a total of thirty-five scholarships to be awarded, the remarks must necessarily be brief. Several musical selections will be rendered during the evening to vary the monotony of the programme.

SOCIAL SESSION.

After the awards are all made, The Times will dismiss its guests and the audience, but those of the contestants and other school folk, both old and young, who wish to remain for a social session after the regular adjournment can do so, as Mrs. Brownsberger has bespoken the use of the hall until midnight, for the purpose of holding a reunion of scholarship contestants and alumni of her school. The orchestra will play for such as wish to engage in a social "hop," and light refreshments will be served to all who accept the hospitality of the enterprising school manager.

PRIZE WINNERS AND THEIR REWARDS.

In yesterday's Times a partial review of the final score was begun, and some mention was made of the scholarships that the leaders of the race would probably choose. The scholarship manager is not yet informed as to the choice all of the contestants will make, as some have not yet fully made up their minds. In some cases the choice will depend upon what will be left when their names are called.

MISS DARCH'S CHOICE.

Florence Darch, who finished in seventh place with the magnificent score of 144,954, will select a scholarship of Throop Polytechnic Institute of Pasadena, and will receive a cash bonus of $50. Last year Miss Darch was No. 5 at the close of the contest, and won a Throop scholarship and $100. Her score last year was only 126,255. She worked harder this year and made a larger score, but owing to the fortunes of war was not altogether so successful in pecuniary results. Florence is well satisfied with the outcome, however, and feels well repaid in gaining another year's tuition in Throop. She has made a special study of clay modeling in the polytechnic school, and her work in that line is among the best ever turned out by a pupil of that institution. Miss Darch has great artistic ability, and those who have helped her in her two scholarship campaigns may well be assured that they have encouraged and assisted a most worthy young lady, and also one with a heart bubbling over with gratitude. There is no limit to Miss Darch's pluck and perseverance, and her success in two scholarship contests is entirely due to her own efforts. Her achievement has been on merit alone, and The Times takes great pleasure in rewarding so efficient and conscientious a worker.

ORANGE BLOSSOM GIRL.

A name not unfamiliar to persons interested in The Times' scholarship contests, is Winifred Beckingsale. This young lady won renown in the contest of 1902 as the Ontario "Orange Blossom Girl." She won first prize last year, and chose a scholarship in Pomona College entitling her to two years' tuition. She has now over more to her credit in that excellent institution and will resume her studies this fall. Miss Beckingsale is a young lady of extraordinary ability and is making her mark in college work, for which she shows as great aptitude as in scholarship campaigning. She was greatly handicapped in this year's contest by the fact that several other powerful candidates were operating in the field she occupied exclusively last year. Her score this year is smaller than it was in the former contest, and she finished in eighth instead of first place, but circumstances considered, her victory is just as great as last year, notwithstanding that the fruits of it are less. As she still has one year to study in Pomona College, her mind is not fully made up as to the scholarship she will choose as her reward in the event of her success.

REDLANDS RUSTLER.

Miss Georgia A. Pitts of Redlands finished in ninth place, with a score of 128,143. Miss Pitts proved herself to be one of the most capable girls in the contest, and the manner in which she handled her campaign evoked a great deal of enthusiasm among her friends. The Redlands people supported her loyally, but she did not have so populous a territory to draw upon as some of the other contestants, and her score is therefore not the best that was made, but a very creditable one indeed. Her choice of scholarships is still an open question, but she aspires to something good in the elocutionary line.

"LADY CLARE."

One of the most popular young ladies in the contest, as well as most charming personally, is Miss Clare Templeton of Lamanda. Although she did not enter the contest until it had been in progress for some time, Miss Templeton managed to squeeze in among the "Upper Ten." She did this by the hardest kind of campaigning and proved herself to be one of the cleverest workers in the entire bunch. The country around Lamanda Park proved too small for Miss Templeton, so after she had cleaned up about all the points that were to be had in that community, she made a trip to Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo counties, where the people received her most kindly. She has won a scholarship in the Throop Polytechnic Institute and $50 in cash, and deserves hearty congratulations on her success.

GARDENA WONDER.

Porter Blackburn was one of the most popular candidates in the contest and made a score that he may well be proud of, 123,132, but, unfortunately, fell just a few hundred votes short of having enough to win one of the cash prizes. The result is a great disappointment to him, as well as to all of his friends and supporters, but the fault is by no means that of the young man. He did the very best he could, and a scholarship in the Los Angeles College of Law, or the University of Southern California, is at his disposal. His aim has been to take up the study of law, but his failure to win one of the cash prizes to defray his incidental expenses has somewhat disheartened him. However, a way to make up to him what he has lost by failing to be one of the ten cash prize-winners may yet be found, and it is hoped he may be able to attain the goal of his ambition.

THE LAW SCHOOL.

The Los Angeles College of Law, a scholarship of which was specially engaged for the benefit of young Mr. Blackburn, was opened in 1897, and has endeavored from the beginning to furnish advantages for legal instruction equal to any obtainable elsewhere. It has been affiliated with the University of Southern California, and its students will have the privilege of taking without extra cost a limited amount of work in the university, in the Department of Liberal Arts. Many new courses have been added for the coming year, in addition to the instruction covering all the fundamental and ordinary branches of the law, and the corps of instructors has been materially strengthened.

The college has good quarters convenient to the City Hall, public and City, State and Federal courts. Ample facilities are furnished for literary and debating societies, and practice court work. In every respect the opportunities for the study of law are exceptional. The course of instruction covers a period of two years, and leads to the degree of LL.B.

The college year extends from the third Monday in September until and including the second Thursday in June.

The corps of lecturers includes lawyers in active practice and judges on the bench. The recitation hours are from 5 to 7 p.m. Opportunities are afforded students to put in part of their time at employment in busy offices, or in other callings to aid in defraying expenses.

Among the lecturers are Judges Smith and Conrey of the Superior bench, and it is expected that Judge Wellborn of the United States District Court will give lectures during the year on Federal Relations and Procedure. Prof. J. A. Foshay, City Superintendent of Schools, will give some lectures on the best methods of study in professional schools. The college has recently been reorganized with Daniel M. Hammack, A.M., as dean. All in all, the school affords a course as good as any obtainable.

COLORED VICTOR.

One of the most distinctive victories won in the contest is that of Miss Vada Watson, an Afro-American girl, who has finished in twelfth place with a score of 88,320. Miss Watson's achievement is one that reflects credit on her race, in point of intelligence she ranks with the best and brightest of the contestants, and the scholarship she has won will be a reward of merit. The colored people of Los Angeles and of all Southern California, stood by her most loyally, and many white people also assisted the ambitious colored girl. It is the first time in the history of the race in this city, that any colored girl has won such distinction. Miss Vada is well advanced in the work of the Los Angeles Commercial High School, and she will choose for her reward, a scholarship in the College of Liberal Arts of the University of Southern California, which she is amply qualified to enter.

PRIDE OF THE PEATLANDS.

Little Hazel Ball of Santa Ana, who inherited the title of the "Pride of the Peatlands," from Miss Ray Price, winner of second prize in last year's contest, has finished in thirteenth place with a score of 90,574. Miss Ball is a musical prodigy, her forte being the piano, and her choice of scholarships is one just added to the list—a year's tuition by Miss Alice Coleman, one of the best pianists and organists in the West. Miss Coleman's home is in Pasadena, but she has spent most of her professional life in Boston, returning to California about a year ago.

In Boston Miss Coleman studied for some years under B. J. Lang, the well-known piano-forte instructor, organist and conductor. While in Boston Miss Coleman not only established a reputation as a piano teacher, but successfully gave notable piano recitals. At one of these she played Brahms's great D-minor concerto (its first bearing in Boston) with the assistance of Mr. Lang and Arthur Foote. Other work was done by her in connection with the Cecilia Choral Club. Of her work the Boston Herald says: "We cannot call to mind the performance of any young woman pianist which has seemed to us so fine and so propitiary since Adele Aus der Ohe entered the profession." Of a concert given in Providence, R. I., the Evening Telegram said: "Miss Coleman must be given the name of being one of the most artistic players that ever visited Providence."

Since her return from Boston, Miss Coleman has done notable work in Los Angeles and Pasadena. She played Beethoven's C major concerto with the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, gave a series of talks explanatory of the symphony programmes, is associated with the Cumnock School of Expression as its pianoforte teacher, has a large class in Los Angeles and Pasadena, and in the latter city is organist of the First Methodist Church.

LILY OF THE VALLEY.

Miss Mabel Brown of Colegrove, No. 14 in the list of prize winners, has worked for a scholarship in the old reliable Los Angeles Business College, and has won it. She has an older sister who is a graduate of that institution, and now occupying a good business position, and Mabel, who has been known by the sobriquet of the "Lily of the Cahuenga Valley," thinks it wise to follow in her sister's footsteps. Everybody will concede that her choice is a good one, for the reputation of the Los Angeles Business College is so well established as to gainsay all doubt as to its efficiency as a place of instruction.

MISS BRYAN'S CHOICE.

Miss Ethel E. Bryan, who has finished in fifteenth place, has decided that the Dobinson School of Expression affords the opportunity she has longed for. Miss Bryan wants to enter the Dobinson School, and the Dobinson School is ready to receive Miss Bryan with open arms, for she is a most charming young lady, and has talent that is capable of high development by such an institution. Miss Bryan selected the Dobinson scholarship after making a thorough investigation, and her only fear now is that some one else will select it before she has the opportunity to name her choice.

The Dobinson School of Expression and Dramatic Art has come rapidly to the front as a leading institution on the Pacific Coast in its line for the study of literature, and its interpretation for physical culture, and also for dramatic training, and the studies connected therewith. The contract for its new, handsome building on Hope st., near Tenth, has been let, and ground will be broken today. The building, which will be 85 feet front by 150 feet deep, and two stories in height, is to be known as the "Dobinson Institute," and promises, according to the plans and elevation, to be an architectural ornament to the city.

WHEN NANETTE BAKES.

When Nanette bakes a jelly cake
She finds the work so serious
She cannot have me near her, for
My presence's deleterious!
The yellow bowl, so big and clean,
In which she mixes flour,
Is bushy, for her plump arms clasp
It fully half an hour!

When Nanette bakes a jelly cake
She puts her whole soul in it;
That's why it is so light and good—
Oh, would that I might win it!
She whips the eggs till they are pale—
Poor thing, they also fear her!—
While I must sit with folded arms
And never once go near her.

When Nanette bakes a jelly cake
She lets me have a sample;
"To feast the gods," I say to her,
"Such food as this were ample!"
And yet my share I'd gladly give—
The prospect makes me dizzy—
For one small kiss from Nanette's lips,
But she?—she's far too busy!

—[Jack Appleton, in Lippincott's.

Didn't Dare.

"Why don't you try to demonstrate to your constituents that you are capable of an unselfish action?"

"My dear sir," answered Senator Borghum, "if these people who have known me for years were to find me doing something in which I had no apparent interest, they'd get suspicious and decide that I was engaged in a deep and diabolical plot."—[Washington Star.

The Middle Mile

He strove to climb the ladder of success,
But though the top seemed very near,
He never reached it. Yet he kept clear,
And thought each day that he drew closer press.

Midway he stopped, and there he stands today,
While others pass him on the upward climb;
And does he, then, put in his time
Bewailing what the Fates have in his way?

Ah, no. He found that there was to do.
He cheers all those who pass as they go;
Then, turning to the struggle below,
He cries: "Come on! There's room there for you!"

THE OIL INDUSTRY

CAPITAL MAY BUILD BRIQUET FACTORY.

NEW INDUSTRY THAT OFFERS BIG INDUCEMENTS.

Associated Company Solves Water Problem — Developing San Joaquin Property — S. P. Immense Storage Reservoir—Stock Market.

Persistent rumors are afloat to the effect that a syndicate backed by ample capital, has been organized for the purpose of manufacturing briquets from crude petroleum. An investigation has been on foot for several weeks, and backers of the proposed plant are convinced that there is a field here for a high grade of product.

One plant in the northern end of the city has been built up a profitable business in this line, and equal advantages are claimed here. As yet no definite step has been taken regarding the location of the new establishment, but it is believed that a site near the river will be chosen.

The new and very simple process was recently conceived for making petroleum briquets. To a liter of petroleum are added 150 grams of resin and 100 grams of caustic soda lye wash. The mixture is heated and well shaken. As soon as the mass begins to solidify, which should be in about forty minutes, the process of the operation should be very carefully watched. When the mixture is "ripe" it is poured into molds, and within a few minutes it is ready for use.

SOLVED WATER PROBLEM.

As the result of a plan recently adopted the "Associated" now finds its water supply not only equal, but in excess of the demand, says the Bakersfield Californian. Formerly the water was pumped from the wells into the main line for conveyance to where it was wanted, and this proved unsatisfactory. The plan now being used is the erection of large tanks into which water is pumped for storage before passing into the pipes. One 2000-barrel tank has been erected at the Rosedale pumping plant near the river, where the water is obtained. Four new wells are now being drilled here, and a 4-inch pipe line has just been completed to the oil field lease, a distance of about four miles. This is in addition to the line recently put into the San Joaquin lease, and tanks are now all filled and the supply exceeds the demand for the first time in about a year.

DEVELOPING SAN JOAQUIN.

Important improvements are being made by the Associated on the San Joaquin lease, which is being put in first-class condition. Better accommodation for oil is being provided by the erection of several reservoirs. The production of the property is rapidly increasing.

S. P.'S IMMENSE RESERVOIR.

The Southern Pacific has commenced the construction of a large reservoir at its property at Oil City. The company has in all eight tanks, six of them holding 35,000 barrels and the remaining 25,000. The new reservoir will hold 400,000 barrels.

GRAPE MEN'S TROUBLES.

Wine Grapes Are in Great Demand Here This Season, but Wineries Are Seeking to Hold Down Prices.

With this season's crop of wine grapes short in the North, and already well brought up, promising a ready market and good prices for the Southern California crop, it develops, according to one who is familiar with the subject, that a majority of the individual wineries have combined to keep the price of fresh grapes down in this section. This is regarded as especially unfortunate just at this juncture, when the growers of this end of the State were looking forward to bright prospects, which promised to give added impetus to an industry capable of assuming large proportions in the South.

It is said that the big new winery under construction by the powerful California Wine Association at Cucamonga, which, it is expected, will be completed in three or four weeks, will not join in the combine to knock down prices, as the demand for grapes is genuine and may save the situation for local growers. Percy Morgan of San Francisco, president of the California Wine Association, is expected to arrive in Los Angeles today, and it is understood that the purpose of his visit to Southern California is to make large advance purchases of wine grapes to supply particularly the new winery.

SOME interesting incidents in the new Pope's boyhood will be related in The Times Magazine the coming Sunday by a Rome correspondent of this paper.

FIVE WHEELS FOUND AMONG THE PLUNDER.

NICK SMITH'S JUNK MORE THAN FILLED A WAGON.

Veteran Ball Player Served Two Terms in Stockton Insane Asylum and is Undoubtedly Demented—Possible that Insanity Charge Will be Made to Save Felony.

It took a wagon to haul the plunder from Nick Smith's house at No. 1520 Kearney street yesterday, and then it was overloaded. The ex-ball player had laid his fingers on everything imaginable from a measly little bolt to a bicycle. There were five wheels, one of them brand new.

Smith told the detectives that he borrowed the best wheel from the curb in front of Levy's. He said it belonged to a waiter, and explained that the freemasonry among knights of the napkin permitted such loans. He rode to the ball park, he said, and had only reached home on it when the officers nabbed him.

The value of the junk stolen by Smith from sundry back yards, shops and houses is several hundred dollars. If the persons from whom the wheels were stolen—four have been stolen—wish to swear to either a grand larceny or insanity complaint the police will take no steps, but if the owners of Smith's plunder do nothing the police will charge him with grand larceny.

There are good grounds for believing that Smith is demented. The police lean to this theory—and the result of the ball player's arrest will probably be his incarceration in an insane asylum.

This will not be a new experience for Smith, as he has been in the Stockton asylum on two different commitments.

TO THE PUBLIC.

A Card from Dr. McKanna, the Originator of "The Three-Day Liquor Cure."

My system of treatment for the cure of drunkenness has an established standing throughout the United States, which makes it unnecessary for me to speak in its praise. My single purpose in this notice is to warn the public against the numerous impostors in the field who are trafficking upon my reputation and that of my cure. No one outside of myself knows of the ingredients of my medicine except the chemical company which puts it up, and this company is under heavy bonds not to disclose this information. The system was originated by me thirteen years ago, and has remained an exclusive secret ever since. No one but myself has ever administered the Dr. McKanna treatment. No one has been authorized to represent me or my method on this Coast, and no one desiring to avail himself of my celebrated cure can do so in San Francisco outside of my establishment at No. 14 Geary street.

My method of treatment is all through the stomach, no hypodermics. I do the work in three days' time, and then put a man on a tonic for a month. It cures all appetite for liquor in a man. He simply backs away from it, and will have no more of it. The railroads, the Masonic lodges and the big factories of the East are now sending me their men whom they have had to discharge for drunkenness, and many such have been reinstated.

I also wish to advise the public that the "Three-Day Liquor" cures springing up in the country are simply exponents with unknown results. Nothing but time will tell whether or not they effect a cure or ruin a man's health. Before opening my Los Angeles office this fall, I will be pleased to answer any inquires as to my methods, standing or treatment. I have establishments in Chicago, Kansas City and Oklahoma City, and refer all to the thousands who know me throughout the East. Dr. J. J. McKanna, 14 Geary street, San Francisco, Cal.—[Adv.

BOSTON DRY GOODS STORE
239 South Broadway, Opposite City Hall, Los Angeles.

Every day is men's day at our store, but as it is usually more convenient for the men to do their buying on Saturday we generally offer some special inducements for the day.

Men's Specials

For this Saturday we show three items for men and one for the little men. Do not think that these are the only inducements, however; there are many others that you will observe while looking over our stock.

(FIRST FLOOR, FRONT)

$1 and $1.25 Shirts 50c
We have about 10 dozen of men's negligee golf shirts, odds and ends from regular $1.00 and $1.25 stocks. These are broken lines, but in all sizes from 14 to 17. We make a final cleanup of them Saturday at 50c.

Balbriggan Underwear 50c
You may need a few light undergarments to piece out the season with. We are selling French balbriggan underwear, double seated pants, regularly sold at 75c; Saturday, 50c.

Men's Domet Nightshirts
We have about 25 dozen men's 75c quality Domet flannel night robes, cut full, 54 inches long, in every way a first-class garment. Sizes 15 to 19. Saturday 50c.

Boys' Shirts at Half Price
Saturday we will place on sale 15 dozen boys' white laundered shirts, sizes 12 to 14; our regular $1.00 stock. We are going to close out our boys' shirt stock and consequently $1 will do the work of $2 on Saturday. Come early and be sure of getting the size. Saturday, 50c.

Open Until 6 p.m. Today. Closed All Day Next Monday

CARD PRIZES

The selection of card prizes has already proven a difficult task especially for a club, when the amount set aside is a specified one. We have carefully considered the many disadvantages and can assure our customers that the selection of card prizes will be found a comparative pleasure now, with our varied assortment of inexpensive specialties.

We have a large selection of novelties for 25c, 50c, 75c and $1.00 each.

This we know will interest many.

NOTE—Vacation season is past. Store open Saturday afternoons as usual, beginning today.

At the junction of Vermont ave. and Prospect, becoming a point much above, more especially the KINGSWELL & BOURNE SUBDIVISION. Soon destined to engross more public attention than any tract recently placed upon the market; the improvements being put in are of a nature unsurpassed. There are a number of important public enterprises going on in this vicinity, among them the completion of the SUNSET BOULEVARD to the city. The building of EDDY'S scenic railroad, which will afford the tourists an opportunity of viewing this magnificent landscape at a glance, and lastly the improvements of GRIFFITH PARK, containing 3000 acres to be laid out in drives and trails together with a large bunch of ELK contributed by the government; this is sure to make a park of national reputation; go and see this unrivaled location and call upon our representative, Mr. W. A. Colwell, on the tract, who will show you these choice lots at a price most satisfactory upon which to build you a home or make an investment. Call at our office for FREE TICKETS any day.

GIRL AND WOMAN

CARE NEEDED AT THE TRANSITION FROM ONE TO THE OTHER.

Many a Life Spent in Suffering Because Troubles Were Allowed to Develop at This Time.

Every mother of a growing girl should remember that there will come a time when her daughter will be a girl no longer but will share with her the blessings of womanhood. Unless nourishment keeps pace with growth the foundations of a life of suffering are laid at that time. Chlorosis, commonly called green sickness, may develop unless the blood is kept rich and pure; incipient consumption and nervous and constitutional troubles that have been dormant in the blood, will surely appear unless the system is kept toned up until the danger line is passed. Mrs. John MacKinney, of No. 748 Thirteenth street, Detroit, Mich., writes a timely word on the subject. She says:

"I did not get proper care at the first critical time in my life and for seventeen years I suffered as a result. I had dizzy spells, felt a constant fear that something dreadful was about to happen, and was afraid to go out alone. My breathing was very short and I had palpitation of the heart so badly that I could not go upstairs nor walk even moderately fast. I was so nervous that I could not sit still. At different times for years I was under the care of the best physicians in Detroit and I tried a number of advertised medicines. Nothing helped me until, on the advice of a neighbor, I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I felt relieved before the first box was finished and I kept on taking them until I was cured.

"Last winter my little girl had rheumatism and I gave her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and she got well right away. My sister's daughter was thought to be going into consumption and, upon my advice, she tried the pills. They cured her cough and she is now well and strong. You can readily see that my entire family is enthusiastic over Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and we cannot say enough in their praise."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are always successful because they go to the root of the disease. Other remedies act on the symptoms—these marvelous vegetable pills remove the cause of the trouble. They have proven themselves to be an unfailing specific for all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood and weakened nerves—two fruitful causes of nearly all the ills to which human kind is heir. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold in boxes at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Will It Ever Stop?

Will the never-ceasing aches of the back ever stop? Many a sufferer mentally asks this question after vain efforts to find relief and cure for backache. There is a cure, but you can't expect to find it unless you know the cause of "that bad back." Most backache pains come from the kidneys, and the seat of the trouble must be attacked. Plasters, liniments and lotions may relieve the ache, but will not cure, as they fail to reach the cause — the Kidneys.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

cure bad back and every kidney ill—rheumatic pains, sleeplessness, nervous conditions, diabetes, dropsy, gravel and all complaints of the Kidneys and Bladder down to that dread destroyer, Bright's disease. A safe and sure remedy, indorsed by friends and neighbors.

Can you ask for better proof than this?

Los Angeles Proof

Mrs. E. Hutchinson, of 134 Toluca Street, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills, which I procured at Dean's drug store at Spring and Second Streets, are a wonderful soothing and curative remedy. For the past four years I have suffered more or less with kidney complaint, which seemed impervious to any medicine which I used until I tried Doan's Kidney Pills. The use of three boxes quickly demonstrated their wonderful value. I certainly indorse them strongly."

BROWN MUST SUFFER FOR SWENSEN'S DEATH.

SIXTEEN-MONTH SENTENCE FOR "CRIMINAL CARELESSNESS."

Supreme Court of State of Sonora, Mexico, Approves Verdict Rendered Secretly by Judge at Atil—End of Mysterious Tragedy.

Newton Brown has been convicted in Mexico of "criminal carelessness" and sentenced to sixteen months' imprisonment at hard labor for the killing of Anton Swensen, the Los Angeles contractor, at Atil, State of Sonora, Mexico, last June.

This is the finish of a mysterious tragedy which aroused the greatest interest and feeling in Los Angeles. Large numbers of friends of the dead contractor believed that he was first shamefully swindled and then murdered in cold blood by Brown, while a smaller faction believed Brown's explanation of the mining deal and the accused man's claim that the killing was an accident.

The conviction and sentence for "criminal carelessness" may be regarded as a compromise verdict, and is made possible by the peculiarities of the Mexican criminal law.

Brown was a prospector and mining promoter who called San Bernardino his home, but who spent most of his time away from the mining fields in this city. He had several claims near Atil, Sonora, Mexico, and induced Swensen to take a half interest in the properties for about $2000 cash. Shortly after this partnership was formed Brown signed Swensen's name to a check for several hundred dollars with Swensen's name and passed it in Mexico, but the paper was dishonored by Swensen and the bank in this city. This proceeding and other reports aroused Swensen's suspicions, and he decided to go to Mexico in person and investigate.

Brown attempted to stave off Swensen's investigation, as the evidence went to show that he had transferred the share in the mining properties already sold to Swensen to a third person. Circumstances also developed going to show that Brown was infatuated with a very young Mexican girl, and had planned to leave his wife and elope with her as soon as he could clean up all the money available.

Swensen went to Mexico, secured a rig and in company with a young Mexican named Alejandro Suares for an interpreter, started from Nogales for Atil. The two were met by Brown at Santa Ana, on the Sonora Railroad, and the three continued to Atil. They drove into Atil with Swensen and the boy, Suares seated on the high front seat, and Brown astride a roll of blankets in the bed of the wagon behind the latter holding a shotgun and leading a saddle horse by a riata. Just as the outfit was in front of Brown's lodgings the gun went off, the charge shattering Swensen's face and causing instant death.

The police at once arrested Brown on a charge of murder, and the boy as the only witness. The judge of the first instance was a friend of Brown, and after a hasty and perfunctory trial he was discharged, and became the guest of the judge. A few Americans in Atil thereupon made a protest to the State authorities at Hermosillo, with the result that the judge was removed and transferred to another district, a new judge sent and another trial ordered. Attorney John H. Foley of this city was sent to Atil by Mrs. Swensen, the widow, to assist in fully investigating and prosecuting. Detective George Beard was sent by friends of Brown to look after the prisoner's interests.

As the evidence was deemed insufficient to prove murder beyond a reasonable doubt, the charge was reduced on this second trial to "criminal carelessness." The trial was concluded several weeks ago, but the Mexican procedure required that the verdict of the judge be sealed and sent with the evidence and sentence imposed to the Supreme Court at Hermosillo for approval. The Supreme Court has just rendered its final verdict, approving the verdict and sentence of the Atil judge, and word of its action reached Los Angeles yesterday in a dispatch to The Times. The course for Brown now is to appeal to a national tribunal at the City of Mexico. It is doubtful whether such an appeal would be entertained, and probable that Brown will go no further, as it might take considerable time to secure a decision throwing out his sentence.

WARD OF BARR'S MERIT.

Gain of the Reliance to Get a Life Annuity.

and Syndicate Delighted With His Seamanship.

Jersey Guardsmen Win a Trophy—Munroe Will Not Fight in October.

[DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In recognition of his great work in handling the Reliance in defense of the America's cup, Capt. Barr will receive $2000 a year for life it is proposed. An annuity of that amount has been settled upon him, by the syndicate which owns the Reliance and ran against the Shamrock III.

Oliver Iselin, managing owner of the victor, has notified Capt. Barr to that effect, according to the report current today. Each member of the crew of the Reliance, according to this report, has received a handsome bonus.

The members of the syndicate are delighted with the masterful manner in which Capt. Barr handled his vessel against Sir Thomas Lipton's Wringe, who was regarded by yachting experts as one of the greatest skippers and masters in the world.

Among the members of the syndicate owning the Reliance are: C. Oliver Iselin, managing owner; ex-Judge Elbert H. Gary, Clement A. Griscom, James J. Hill, William H. Leeds, William Rockefeller, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Henry Payne, P. A. B. Widener and Norman B. Ream.

SIR THOMAS WILL TRY AGAIN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "I will make another attempt to capture the America's cup," said Sir Thomas Lipton today. "I will challenge just as soon as I can get a man to design a boat to beat the Reliance sloop. My new boat will be a better.

"There must be some man in England who can design a boat to lift the cup, and I am bound to find him at any cost. I say that I will not challenge again until I am sure. The challenge may not come next year, but I want to say emphatically that I am coming back after the cup as soon as I can find a man to design the boat.

"You have beaten me three times in 90-footers, and I believe in fighting those same lines, I want to win a victory with the same sized boat over the same course on which I have been defeated. Otherwise I would not be so proud of a victory."

Sir Thomas appeared to have taken the latest defeat very much to heart, as apparently from the poor performance of the Shamrock III in a fair test, compared with her work on the other side, than from his failure to lift the cup.

"Something has gone wrong with the Shamrock III," he continued, "but what it is mystifies me. She was the finest sloop ever launched when she was launched, the 90-foot waterline. Since she has been here she seems to have gone back. As a 90-footer she can beat anything that floats. If you have an offer from a gentlemen to buy her, and I cannot take her back. I replied to the gentleman that I was willing to consider any fair offer for either or all of the Shamrocks, but I referred him to the secretary."

LIPTON TO VISIT CHICAGO.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Sir Thomas Lipton will visit this city next week, and will be the guest of Alexander H. Revell, according to a statement made today upon the receipt of a telegram from the noted yachtsman today. No formal entertainments will be given the British visitor.

THE TWO YACHTS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The yacht Reliance was taken to her former anchorage off New Rochelle today. Later, it is expected she will be taken to City Island to be laid up for the winter. The Shamrock III lays inside of Sandy Hook preparing for her long trip back to Clyde.

NEW BASEBALL AGREEMENT.

MINOR LEAGUES INTERESTED.

[DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Representatives of the minor leagues will meet with the National Baseball Commission in Chicago, some time next week, to consider the final draft of a national agreement to govern the game throughout the country. The actual date of the meeting will be left to August Herrmann of Cincinnati, chairman of the National Commission. The minor leaguers have already had a substitute agreement, which has already forwarded to President Herrmann and the National Commission, composed of Herrmann, President Johnson and Pulliam. President Hickey would not talk for publication regarding the agreement drawn up by the minor leaguers, but it is believed that it is radically different from the one adopted in Buffalo.

"I will say that today I did not know that the minor leagues had failed to accept the agreement," said President Johnson, "I was surprised at the way which President Somers has allowed himself to be quoted. His recent statement about the strength of the minors is peculiar, in the face of the fact that he told Comiskey and myself at the Criterion Hotel in New York, that the minor leagues would be forced to go out of business until the major leaues came to terms and offered them a national agreement at once. One thing is certain, the minor leagues need a national agreement more than the major leagues.

"I will watch the developments of today, it would seem that the big leagues are likely to 'fall' on the agreement which the minors have offered and let those of the minor leagues that care to accept the terms do so with them under these conditions, leaving the other little leagues to fight for themselves. It is almost certain that this will be the move of the big fellows, if the minor leagues become too arbitrary in the matter he had wired his message. "The time is really too short for me in which to get into the condition I want to be in when I meet the champion.

"But I want to fight Jeffries, and all I ask is that the date for the contest be set for some time in January. Before starting in hard work for the bout I would want to spend a month at Hot Springs. I have been sick for some time, and am away out of condition now.

"While I have accepted the Los Angeles club's offer for January, I am sure that 'Jeff' and I could get as much, if not more, money if we fought in Butte. I have been informed by my friends there that boxing bouts will be permitted there soon, and that one of the matches the athletic clubs there want is mine with Jeffries.

"But Los Angeles will do for me if it does for Jeffries. I want to fight him, and when I do I will enter the ring in the very best of condition. If I lose, then I will have no excuses to make. Surely Jeffries ought to grant me an extension of time, and I believe he will. But that is for him to say."

MUNROE PUTS OFF FIGHT TO JANUARY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Jack Munroe, the Butter miner, has refused to fight Jim Jeffries for the world's heavyweight championship before the Century Athletic Club of Los Angeles, Cal., October 16.

This morning Munroe received a telegram from Manager McCarey of the Century Athletic Club as follows: "Jeffries has signed; 65 of gross for Jeffries and yourself; date October 16. Answer at once." The man from Butte immediately sent the following reply:

"Tom McCarey, Manager Century A. C., Los Angeles, Cal. Date too soon. Will fight Jeffries in January. Not time enough to train. JACK MUNROE."

Despite the fact that Munroe received a four-round decision over the champion in Butte last year, he holds the big champion in great respect, and says that he is not going into a battle until he is in absolutely perfect condition.

"It would be unfair to myself, as well as to the people who pay to see the fight, if I were to accept that date for a fight with Jeffries," said Munroe, after

GREAT RUN BY MINUTEMAN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The Minuteman, a two-year-old, owned by J. E. Madden, ran the fastest mile run in the East in four or five years at Sheepshead Bay today. The same son of Juvenal-Semper Paratus, not only ran a remarkably fast mile, but also beat the great McChesney, the idol of the West. He went the distance in 1:38 4-5. Although the Smathers horse was defeated he ran an excellent race, considering that this was his first start in nearly two months. In itself it was a procession, The Minuteman jumping away in front, opening up a gap, keeping his advantage and winning by two lengths. McChesney closed very strong, but was never able to catch the flying leader. Summary:

Five and a half furlongs: Juvenile Maxim won, St. Valentine second, Armenia third; time 1:07 4-5.

One mile: The Minuteman, 92 (Higgins,) 9 to 2, won; McChesney, 122 (Fuller,) 11 to 20, second; Ithan, 119 (Byer,) 100 to 1, third; time 1:38 4-5. Three starters.

Six furlongs: Silver Bells won, Miladi Love second, Ringdove third; time not taken owing to fog.

Mile and three-sixteenths: Caughnawaga won, Duke of Kendall second; time 2:06 3-5. Two starters.

Five and a half furlongs: Hippocrates won, Adbell second, Woatan third; time 1:06 2-5.

The Turf Handicap, mile and a quarter, on turf: Florham Queen won, Leader second, Moon Daisy third; time 2:29 2-5.

RIFLEMEN'S RECORD BROKEN.

MANY SEEK WIMBLEDON CUP.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SEAGIRT (N. J.) Sept. 4.—All previous records in the number of competitors in an individual contest were broken today, when 113 riflemen reported at the firing line to compete in the Wimbledon Cup match for the famous trophy presented by the National Rifle Association of Great Britain, to be shot for under the auspices of the National Rifle Association of America. The winner received a medal, and is entitled to hold the cup for one year. Each competitor was required to fire twenty shots at 1000 yards. The firing began at 10 o'clock this morning, and was continued until nearly dark. The cup was won by Capt. Richards of Ohio, who scored a total of 91 out of a possible 100.

The other individual event of the day was the match open to all inspectors and ex-inspectors of rifle practice. The distances were 500 and 600 yards, ten shots by each competitor at each distance. Capt. Springsted of New Jersey scored a total of 96 out of a possible 100, and won the prize badge, to be held by him for one year, and $25 in cash.

FRANKIE NEIL GETS DECISION.

Defeats De Coursey in Fifteen Fierce Rounds.

San Francisco Lad Shows Great Cleverness.

De Coursey Outclassed From the Start—He Puts Up Fine Game Showing.

Frankie Neil, the bantam champion, was awarded the decision over Billy De Coursey in the fifteenth round of their contest in Hazard's Pavilion last night after a fight which was characterized by the unusual effectiveness of the San Francisco lad's style of fighting and the phenomenal gameness of De Coursey. From the first round there was not a decent doubt as to the outcome. The battle simmered down to a question of how long Neil intended to let his courageous little opponent stay, for the little champion had the battle in hand as soon as he had measured blows with his opponent. And Neil knew it.

The crowd taxed Hazard's Pavilion, and was one of the most orderly attendances that ever beheld a boxing contest in this city. The immediate cause of the decision being awarded in the middle of a round was police interference on the part of Capt. Auble, who saw no reason why a hopeless battle should be prolonged when a courageous little fellow like De Coursey had no part in it other than that of receiver general. Auble's action was entirely justifiable, though it is considered etiquette in such matters to request the referee to issue the final edict instead of taking the play out of his hands. De Coursey was a beaten man after the second round, but Neil allowed him to stay until the tenth, fiddling about and delivering few blows compared to the glove hailstorm he rained down on the poor little Irishman's head from that round to the finish.

NEIL AND DECOURSEY—THE WIN NER AT THE TOP.

After some delay, the men shaped up in the center of the ring and began some lively foot work. Neil at once assumed the crouch that has made San Francisco famous, and allowed De Coursey to take the initiative, which he was quite ready to do. Throughout the contest a prominent feature of Neil's defensive work was his blocking, a taste of which was given at the start when Jim Neil's pride caught a pair of well meant swings by De Coursey and turned them aside with almost no effort. The grace and thoroughness with which the little champion protected himself from those chance wallops that win so many fights gave the crowd a good line on why young Neil is a leader in his class. The effect of his aggressive work, which was entirely infighting, showed why the boy's victories are so generally knockouts. He wastes but little effort in long distance fighting, or in swinging, but relies on short body bolts, a divers assortment of hooks and jabs for the head, and an occasional swinging uppercut.

De Coursey in the first round outlined much the same style of boxing as he usually shows, only, if possible, more cautious than usual. He is always a careful boxer, willing enough to take chances when necessary, but conservative at other times. Last night he was on the defensive almost entirely.

Neil's style proved a sore puzzle to the little Irishman. The crouch and Neil's blocking made left-hand work exceedingly difficult to score with, and De Coursey's jabs, which are usually his main reliance, were only a hindrance to him, for Neil was under and beside each one, slipping into close quarters and seldom failing to plant a stiff jolt on the ribs or under the heart. The effectiveness of his body blows was soon shown in the weakness of De Coursey, who after the second round was decidedly tired. He looked rather drawn, and it is possible the weight of 122 ringside was a trifle low for him. Little Billy had nearly as much speed as he usually shows, but Neil was so much faster that he made De Coursey seem slow by comparison.

At the start Neil cut loose with a wicked left, slashing and chopping it in with dire effect, cutting De Coursey's mouth and cheek, puffing up his eyes and making his nose very sore for further future reference. Later on occasional straight shots to the much belabored organ bothered De Coursey a great deal.

The third round Neil dropped De Coursey for the count of seven with a succession of body jolts alternated with hooks for the ear. De Coursey could not land effectively. Late in the round Neil gave him an awful mauling in the corner and the gong had a very welcome sound to the tired little fellow as he dragged himself to his chair.

In the third round Neil began stalling. He danced in and out, jabbed in a left occasionally when De Coursey became a little wicked, and kept him hustling all the time. Neil in action throws his entire weight against his man, leans his head over his shoulder where it is out of harm's way and digs in with both hands so fast that the other is too busy to do anything but block. Up to and including the tenth round Neil changed his tactics but little. De Coursey finally solved them and began husbanding his strength as best he could, so when the eleventh came and Neil went in to get his opponent, he found a tougher proposition than he had expected. In the eighth De Coursey accidentally struck Neil low and made him angry. The result was a hotter round than the average, but in the next Neil returned to stalling tactics, having knocked De Coursey down once in the round.

The eleventh was a whirlwind of flying gloves, a hailstorm of driving blows. Neil assumed the aggressive from the start. Repeatedly he sent in left hooks to the ear, staggering De Coursey. A left and right hook in the corner dropped Billy, who took five and came up for more. Two hard lefts to the head and a jab on the nose made De Coursey wince, but he kept his feet until the gong.

Neil went at Decoursey like a runaway automobile in the twelfth and shot in a hook to the ear, receiving to his surprise, one in return. De Coursey braced himself and tried to exchange a few blows, but was too weak to profit by it, and returned to the defensive. Neil sent in a succession of left hooks, jolts with the right, and then shifted beautifully, sending a hard left to the stomach, which hurt De Coursey sorely. He lasted the round and came up for another trouncing in the thirteenth, which all thought would be the last. He was so weak that Neil's first left jab sent him down for the count of six. Another jab and a left hook to the jaw dropped De Coursey for the count of nine. He rose and Neil scored another knockdown with right and left. Hanging over the ropes, Neil acknowledged the gameness of his opponent as De Coursey, after taking nine again staggered to his feet. Neil's left and right to the head dropped Billy for another nine seconds, and he went down again just before the gong sounded.

When the fourteenth rolled around no one conceded De Coursey a chance to last the round, and after a fierce rush by Neil, who landed a series of hooks to the head, an uppercut to the nose and a few wallops in the ribs, Billy collapsed to the floor, but his sterling grit brought him up after six had been counted. The fifteenth was the last. Neil touched up the sore nose, and Billy slipped to the floor, dead weak. He took four. Rising, a left swing on the jaw dropped him for nine. He came up again game as a fighting cock, and dropped to hands and knees from a left and right to the body. At this juncture Capt. Auble stopped the fight, and Referee Eyton awarded the decision to Neil.

Eyton's work as third man in the ring satisfied everybody. He did the referee's work acceptably and quietly; let the men alone as long as they were fighting, and really had little trouble, for there was never a cleaner battle fought. Neither tried any foul tactics, and the contest was a fine definition of the Queensberry game.

The first preliminary did not amount to much, but the second was of unusual interest. The contestants were Joe Reilly and Johnny Bryant, the latter a well-known lad here. It went the full ten rounds, and for once Bryant had his hands full. The Reilly lad was a little too good for him throughout, and he received a well-earned decision from referee Tom Savage. Reilly will make a good man with proper training. He has two good hands, a world of courage, and plenty of natural skill. The beaten lad showed commendable gameness.

In the first event young Beal of San Bernardino beat Bo Peep of San Pedro in four rounds, having the best of the weight. As an evening's sport the show was highly satisfactory.

HALL HIT HARD.

LOOLOOS LOST ANOTHER.

Seattle, 7; Los Angeles, 3.

Hard hitting and plenty of errors distinguished the game yesterday at Chutes Park, and as the Looloos were on the short end of one and the long end of the other, there is little else to recount but another defeat for the locals.

Hall was bad at the wrong times, and the errors bunched in with the swats did the business. It seemed that the Siwashes had but little else to do than to get men on bases, and then the hits came like hail. They were all strong enough to count, and there was no keeping the visitors from spiking the plate. Hall stood the fusillade throughout, but Jay Hughes became alarmed and quit in the middle of the game, leaving the Barber to shave the Looloos out as best he could.

There was nothing startling about the show except the hard hits, and as there were twenty-one of these a number of blunders crept in and added to the agony. Joe Corbett was in bad shape, and in addition to not being able to hit the ball, he couldn't field it. He made three fumbles, and held another grounder so long that Dillon dropped it when it was thrown to him.

Dillon and Spies carried off the batting honors, smacking the ball almost every time they went to bat. Dillon scored two of the runs with his hits and Spies the other. It is really surprising that ten hits will produce but three runs, but such was the result yesterday, and the 1600 fans present never saw a better exhibition of a hit and no run game.

On the contrary, the Siwashes landed on Hall in bunches at the tail end of the game, and batted in all kinds of runs. When they were not swiping the ball they were taking advantage of an error or a useless fielder's choice or something, and had little difficulty in scoring.

There was one unfortunate feature that will keep Shortstop Dolan out of the game for some weeks. With two men out in the sixth inning, he hit a two-bagger over third base, and in running to beat it out at second base, he jumped into the bag and turned his ankle, throwing the bone out of the socket. The game was delayed while he was carried off the grounds by two Seattle players, and he was sent to a hospital.

In the first, after Hoy had singled to right field, Wheeler forced him with a grounder to Dolan. Wheeler stole second base and on Byers's low throw to second, Wheeler kept on to third and scored on Dillon's single to right field. In the seventh Cravath was soaked with the ball, went to second on Ross's fielder's choice that was useless, was sacrificed to third and scored on Spies's swipe to left field. In the eighth Dummy Hoy hit to center, stole second, went to third on Wheeler's grounder to first base, and scored on Dillon's double.

The Siwashes got their first on Smith's double past Wheeler, a Gin-Fizz sacrifice and Andrews's out at first. In the eighth Smith hit safely, stole second, and scored on Jansing's hit to right. Cravath let this swat go past him, and Jansing ran to second, and came across on Barber's hit to left. Byers had reached first on one of Corbett's errors, and went to second on the hit. He scored when Corbett bungled one of Lumley's hard ones. In the ninth Brashear's pass, Andrews's fielder's choice, Dillon's error, Jansing's two spot and Byers's single produced three more runs.

In the last half of the seventh with two of the Looloos out, Pitcher Hughes retired from the game on account of a sore arm, having given it a jerk when he socked Cravath with the ball a few minutes before.

There was a big lot of rooting in the eighth and ninth innings when the locals had a possible chance to make a few runs, but these hopes were short lived, for the Siwashes off-set the local hits with perfect play, and all the work was for nothing.

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

NEWS AND BUSINESS.

Figueroa Street Lot.

Milton Metzler has sold to Mrs. I. N. Van Nuys, through Wright & Callender, 62x155 feet on the west side of Figueroa street, 100 feet south of Eighth street, unimproved; consideration named, $9000.

Nadeau Park Tract Sold.

M. S. Heilman has purchased from Charles E. French, as trustee for a local syndicate, the Nadeau Park tract, containing forty acres, near the southeastern corner of the city; consideration named, $36,500.

Two Holidays for Banks.

Local bankers will enjoy two days off next week. As the State laws provide that the banks shall close on Monday, Labor Day, and on Wednesday, Admission Day, there is nothing to do but close up shop. Tuesday will probably be a busy session for the local handlers of cold coin.

Collector Campbell Embezzled.

H. A. Campbell, a young man employed by Dennis & Williams, dealers in art goods, at No. 311 South Main street, was arrested yesterday for embezzlement. It is said that Campbell collected about $250 of the firm's money and held onto it. The charge against him is misdemeanor embezzlement, as the collections were made in small amounts.

Ostriches in Town.

Two ostriches, the last remaining of the fifteen sent some years ago to the experimental farm about fifteen miles from Ventura, were shipped to Los Angeles last night, and the attempt that has been made for the past three years to establish the Ventura ostrich farm has been finally abandoned. The ostriches have been taken to the Chutes and will be on exhibition in the zoo there.

Died of Lockjaw.

Anti-toxin failed to loosen the grip of tetanus on Joseph Tracy, the house-mover, who claimed to be a brother of the notorious desperado, Harry Tracy. He died yesterday evening at the County Hospital, notwithstanding the labors of several physicians. Tracy's arm was crushed between the rollers of a house-moving machine three days ago, and shortly afterward a case of lockjaw developed.

Mexican Confessed Murder.

Rafael Flores, a Mexican, arrested ten days ago by Patrolman Burgh on suspicion, yesterday confessed to Chief Elton that he murdered Miguel Rivas in Parral, Chihuahua, Mex. The Chief received a telegram from the authorities at Parral yesterday morning, saying that the man arrested here is wanted for murder. After being closeted with the Mexican a few minutes Chief Elton wrung a confession from him.

For New Church.

The Second Church of Christ, Scientist, has purchased of Milo Baker, for the stated consideration of $13,500, a lot, 100x157 feet on the east side of Hope street, about midway between Ninth and Tenth streets, and intends ultimately to erect upon the premises a brick and stone church building that will sit back forty or fifty feet from the street and be one of the handsomest churches, from an architectural point of view, to be found in the city.

New Rural Route.

Rural Route No. 3 for Los Angeles was put into opertaion the first of September. It is supplied from Station K at Vernon, and the carrier is James L. Crockett. The territory served lies to the south and west of Vernon and about 100 families are accommodated. The route traversed is twenty-three miles long. This is the second route supplied by the Vernon sub-station. The other rural route for Los Angeles is supplied from the Garvanza station.

W.C.T.U. Federation.

The first monthly meeting of the W. C.T.U. Federation following the two-months summer vacation will be held in the Christian Church, corner of Broadway and Temple street, Wednesday, September 5. The federation will be entertained by the Central Union, and the all-day programme includes a temperance address by Rev. Dr. Thos. O'Hanlon of Pennington Seminary, New Jersey, greetings from President Mrs. Ada R. Hand, response by President Mrs. Hester T. Griffith, address on Ransom Home by Mrs. M. C. Sampson, devotions, business and a social hour over lunch at noon.

Methodism and Outsiders.

As this is the 200th anniversary of the birth of John Wesley, and as the national gathering of the Methodist Church is shortly to convene in Los Angeles, Rev. Dr. Geo. Thos. Dowling's topic at the reopening of Christ Church Sunday morning, in Simpson Auditorium, will be "John Wesley, or Methodism as Seen by an Outsider." It is expected that the new church edifice of this parish will have sufficiently progressed toward completion for the congregation to move into it by February 1. The tower, which will be over 100 feet high, will be surmounted by an enormous cross twenty feet in height, lighted by electricity. This will be the gift of the rector.

BREVITIES.

Rev. Dr. George Thomas Dowling will preach at the reopening of Christ Parish Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, in Simpson Auditorium, Hope street, between Seventh and Eighth, on "John Wesley, or Methodism as Seen by an Outsider." The service will be printed in full. Vested choir. Seats will be reserved for seat-holders only until the clergy and choir have entered the chancel. Those desiring to become permanent worshipers with this congregation, may secure sittings at $1.50 per month, by applying to the Committee at the close of Sunday-morning services, or at the office of the treasurer, Mr. Alexander Mills, 330 Byrne Block, Broadway, corner Third. The Sunday-school, which will be held in the auditorium until the completion of the new edifice, will reconvene at 9:30 a.m. The music will be led by Prof. E. H. Clark, with an orchestra of twenty players. All children not attending elsewhere are invited to join the school.

Real estate advertisers and others: Hereafter all real estate and other classified "want" advertisements for Sunday insertion must be in The Times office not later than 11 o'clock Saturday night in order to be properly classified. All small advertisements received after this hour will be printed under a special heading of "Too Late to Classify." Special request is made of those telephoning "Liners" to do so before 10 p.m. each night.

If you want to know all about Avalon and Catalina Island, who's there, and what's doing, send 50 cents to The Times office for a month's subscription to "The Wireless," Avalon's new daily published by The Times-Mirror Company. It prints "All the News All the Time" concerning the enchanted isle, and tells big-fish stories every day.

The Kansas Society will hold its annual picnic Monday, September 7, Labor Day, at Redondo Beach; special rate, thirty cents round trip. For particulars and tickets see Miss Harbaugh, at Chamber of Commerce, or Saturday night and Monday morning, at Dean's Drug Store.

Persons can earn their tuition in fencing by forming classes of two or more. Send postal for elegant novel prospectus souvenir giving classical fencing, poses. Call or write California School of Fencing, 212 and 214 Johnson Building.

OPENING OF DESERT MINES.

Local Capital Interested in Developing Valuable Properties—Great Cost of Old Dominion Smelter.

Excellent progress is being made in the development of the Cedar Valley mine in the desert country, local capital backing the venture. The property is owned by a company, which is financed by Capt. C. Henry Thompson of this city, includes sixteen claims, nine of which are patented. Among the number is the old Arnold mine, one of the most historic mines in the Territory of Arizona. Years ago the property was profitably worked when labor cost $10 a day and supplies were correspondingly high and were hauled overland hundreds of miles. The property lies twenty miles east of Yucca, a point on the Santa Fé, some thirty miles from the Needles. Development work is being prosecuted through the original working shaft of the Arnold mine, which has been sunk to a present depth of 250 feet with levels run on the vein at proper intervals. A fifteen-stamp mill is on the property and in operation and so quietly has work been prosecuted upon the property that little has been made public as to developments. It is interesting to note that in the store maintained by the company, the government has established the only postoffice within a distance of twenty miles. A large force of men have been engaged upon the property since possession was acquired by Capt. Thompson, and assay and mill returns are most gratifying, merely substantiating the assertion that some of the richest mineralized ground in Arizona is to be found within the confines of Mojave county, on what is commonly called the "desert." The history of the Arnold mine is well known to old residents of the Territory, and the present company, using the most approved type of machinery in both mine and mill is assured of high returns under the system of development work now being introduced. Capt. Thompson before operating in the Southwest was connected with a number of important properties in the Northwest and British Columbia, and has been engaged in mining for the past thirty years in various parts of the West.

OLD DOMINION SMELTER.

The estimated cost of the Old Dominion smelter, in Arizona, is $260,000, the concentrator $60,000, the railroad $70,000, sinking new shaft and thoroughly equipping same $360,000, a total of $750,000. Of this amount the company has already paid $125,000.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

The following marriage licenses were issued yesterday from the office of the County Clerk:

Walter Stone, aged 28, a native of New York, and Florence M. Thompson, aged 21, a native of Nebraska, both residents of Garden Grove.

Jean Chaldu, aged 36, a native of France, and Jeanne Labrucherie, aged 23, a native of France, both residents of Los Angeles.

BULLET IN HEAD OF MRS. G. J. GRIFFITH.

She Declares that Her Husband Shot Her—Result May be Fatal.

Col. Griffith Declares that the Shooting Was an Accident—She Fell or Jumped from Top Story of Hotel Arcadia, Santa Monica, to Roof of Porch—Relatives Scout the Story of Her Husband.

IN moments of consciousness last evening Mrs. Griffith, at the hospital, gav her version of the shooting affair to one of her relatives, who reported it to The Times as follows:

Mrs. Griffith was in the room packing the trunk preparatory to coming home to Los Angeles, when Griffith entered the room and pulled his revolver. He pointed it at Mrs. Griffith, and said: "Get your prayer book and kneel down, and cover your eyes. I'm going to shoot you, and going to kill you."

Mrs. Griffith then begged him to lay aside his pistol, saying, "Oh, Griffith, don't, don't!" and thereupon she was shot by Griffith. She sprang toward him after being shot, and scuffled with him, and noticing the open window, let go and jumped out. She fell on the porch roof and fractured her shoulder. She got up and walked on the roof to the open window and got into the room on the second floor, where she collapsed.

Mr. and Mrs. Griffith had not had a quarrel recently. After the shooting Mrs. Griffith was in a state of terror, always afraid that Griffith would come in and complete his work.

It is claimed that Griffith has threatened before to shoot his wife. She has said that she believed him insane.

Mrs. Griffith said to her sister, Mrs. C. L. Whipple: "Oh, Lucy, it was awful! I expected every minute to be my last."

Mrs. Griffith fully expected to die, and sent for a priest.

MRS. GRIFFITH J. GRIFFITH, wife of the well-known capitalist and member of the Board of Park Commissioners, the man who deeded 3000 acres to the city of Los Angeles for park purposes, lies at the California Hospital hovering between life and death from the effects of a pistol shot wound in the head, and a fall which produced a compound fracture of the shoulder blade.

She was shot late Thursday evening in her room at Hotel Arcadia, at Santa Monica, where she, with her husband and fifteen-year-old son, passed the summer months. Following the shooting she either jumped or fell from the window of her room and dropped onto the roof of a porch on the level of the floor below.

She was treated at the hotel, remained there Thursday night, and was brought to Los Angeles yesterday morning and taken to the hospital. She was unconscious when reaching that institution. During the day it was necessary to perform an operation to remove the bullet. This disclosed that the wound is very serious, although Dr. M. L. Moore is of the opinion that the patient will recover.

The bullet struck Mrs. Griffith at the outer edge of the left eye, and hitting the bone at the edge of the eye-socket, fractured that bone and split into fragments, one piece of lead passing through the eyeball, and others glancing along the skull under the scalp. It was necessary for the surgeons to entirely remove the left eye and some of the tissue surrounding it. They found that the bullet had not penetrated the cavity of the brain, but in such wounds there is always danger of inflammation and of loss of sight of the other eye through sympathy.

The cause of the shooting is shrouded in mystery. Col. Griffith declares that it was accidental; that while his wife was packing a trunk a revolver in it was accidentally discharged, and the bullet hit her; that she fell to the floor and thus sustained a fracture of the shoulder blade. He has denied that there was any quarrel between them. There were no other witnesses to the shooting, Col. and Mrs. Griffith being alone in the room at the time.

On the other hand the members of Mrs. Griffith's family, her brothers and other relatives, make no secret of the fact that they do not believe the Colonel's story of the affair. One of her brothers voiced the belief of the others, or some of them, last night when he made this statement:

"Mrs. Griffith did not shoot herself; the shooting was not an accident, in our opinion. We are sure there was no attempt at suicide. We believe that her broken shoulder blade was not sustained by falling to the floor after she had been shot. The injury was produced by either jumping or falling from the window of her room to the roof of the porch below. Why did she jump? She may be able to tell that later. We have been unable to get any statement from her because her condition will not admit. She may never make one. What will we do? Nothing until the members of the family have held a consultation, and possibly not then until our sister is able to express her desires as to what course we shall take, and we will, of course, be guided by her wishes. As yet we make no accusations, but we believe that the shot was not accidental, nor was it fired with suicidal intent."

COL. G. J. GRIFFITH

The Scene of and Principals in the Affair. The Dotted Line Indicates Mrs. Griffith's Leap or Fall from the Upper Story to the Porch Roof.

Weeks must elapse before the wounded woman will be able to leave the hospital, if ever.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

STATEMENT OF LANDLORD.

The tragic affair occurred at 5:30 o'clock Thursday evening, but was kept so quiet that even some of the guests in the hotel knew nothing of it until yesterday.

Mr. Wright, proprietor of the Arcadia, says that while sitting in the hotel office at 5:30 o'clock Thursday evening he heard a heavy thud, or crash, the sound coming from the outside of the building. He turned to Clerk Smith, behind the desk, and inquired the cause. A few moments later Col. Griffith summoned a bellboy and told him that Mrs. Griffith had met with an accident, and help must be called. The hotel management telephoned for Dr. Crawford of Santa Monica, and he responded promptly. Presently Col. Griffith communicated by long distance telephone with C. L. Whipple, Mrs. Griffith's brother-in-law, and Mr. Whipple and his wife, came down by electric car at once.

All of this time, however, the wounded woman was not lying upon the veranda roof on which she fell. Though bleeding from the bullet wound in her head, and bruised and severely shaken up and stunned by her fall of twelve or fourteen feet from the third-story window, Mrs. Griffith almost immediately after the plunge regained her feet, crawled across the slanting roof of the veranda and reëntered the hotel through the open window of a second story vacant room. As the ledge of this window is not more than two or three feet above the house edge of the veranda roof, she was able to pull herself up and climb into the room.

Exhausted by her injuries and hysterical through fright and anguish, she sank upon the bed, where she lay when a few moments later Dr. Crawford entered the room. The physician applied emergency restoratives, stopped the flow of blood from the wound in the head, and later administered a sedative. Mrs. Griffith's condition bordering on nervous collapse.

Col. Griffith's presence in the room where his wife lay resulted in her asking the physician to request that he go away. Col. Griffith complied, but subsequently complained to those below.

Soon after the hurried arrival at the Arcadia of Mr. and Mrs. Whipple, who went at once to Mrs. Griffith's bedside, Dr. M. L. Moore, the family physician, who also had been summoned from Los Angeles by telephone, arrived, and to him Dr. Crawford relinquished the case. No attempt was made to extract the portion of bullet that lodged in Mrs. Griffith's head, but an opiate was administered, and under its effect the injured woman sank to sleep. A careful examination failed to satisfy the physicians whether or not intercranial injury had resulted from the fall; but the bullet wound looked serious, and it was decided to remove Mrs. Griffith to the California Hospital in the morning.

Mrs. Whipple sat by her sister's bedside throughout the night. Col. Griffith and his 15-year-old son, Vande'l, passed the night in the room on the floor above, in which the shooting occurred and from the window of which the lad's mother plunged.

Proprietor Wright of the Arcadia said he was much depressed by the unfortunate accident—he believed it to be nothing more than an accident—and said he had deemed it best for all concerned to attract as little notoriety as possible. For this reason he and his employés had refrained from speaking of the matter to outsiders

CONCLUSIONS OF RELATIVES.

AFTER a council held late last night by the close relatives of Mrs. Griffith the following statement was given out for publication:

"That it be the consensus of opinion of this meeting, that judgment be suspended until Mrs. Griffith is able to make a statement, but that a full explanation be demanded from Mr. Griffith and that a full investigation be made."

It was further stated by the spokesman of the gathering to a Times reporter that the relatives do not countenance the idea that the shooting was accidental or that there was an attempt at suicide by Mrs. Griffith; that they believe there has been trouble between Col. and Mrs. Griffith over religious differences, she being a devout Catholic and he opposed to that faith; that Col. Griffith had been drinking to excess.

GRIFFITH'S VERSION.

SAYS IT WAS ACCIDENTAL.

The following interview took place yesterday afternoon between Col. Griffith and a Times representative, at Santa Monica:

"The story," said Col. Griffith, "that the injury to my wife was other than accidental is wholly false. Mrs. Griffith spent a part of the afternoon on the beach, while I called on friends in Santa Monica. I returned to the hotel about 5 o'clock. Mrs. Griffith had arrived there before me, and was engaged in packing a trunk, preparatory to our intended departure for Los Angeles this morning. I entered our rooms and began to help her, folding up clothing of my own and doing other little things of that sort. Suddenly a revolver—a hammerless weapon of mine, I believe—was discharged, the bullet striking my wife in the face and inflicting a glancing wound across the right side of the forehead, as I afterward ascertained.

"Mrs. Griffith cried out, 'I am hurt!' or some words like that, and ran to the window. Almost immediately afterward she fell out of the window. Looking out and down, I saw her rising to her knees from the roof of the veranda. There was blood on her face. I at once called a bellboy and gave the alarm, following him presently to the hotel office, where I stated that there had been an accident, in which Mrs. Griffith unfortunately shot herself, and that she also had fallen from the window.

"Mr. Wright or Clerk Smith, I do not remember which, telephoned for Dr. Crawford, and I myself telephoned to the Whippies in Los Angeles. That is all there is to the story, and I cannot see why any attempt should be made to create a sensation about it. It is a most unfortunate affair, most unfortunate, indeed, but purely an accident, and one in which the public is not concerned."

"Where in the room was Mrs. Griffith standing, or sitting, at the moment the revolver was discharged?" was asked, Col. Griffith replied:

"Now I am not sure—I was so stunned and bewildered. But I think she was bending over the trunk and placing clothing in it. The hammer of the pistol must have struck against the edge of the trunk."

"Then it was not a hammerless revolver?"

"Why—ah—yes, I think it was. Yes, I think so. But I cannot be perfectly sure. Yes, sir, the weapon belongs to me, and I have had it for some time. No, I cannot say why Mrs. Griffith had the pistol—but she must have had it in her hand at the time. I am quite sure she had it in her hand."

"What was Mrs. Griffith doing with the weapon?"

"Indeed I cannot tell. No, she certainly had not made any demonstration with it. I tell you the whole thing was an accident."

"The story is in circulation, Colonel, that immediately prior to the shooting an altercation was in progress between yourself and your wife. Is that correct?"

"It is not correct. My wife and I have never quarreled. The poor thing is a—is a Catholic—believes in that sort of thing—doesn't know any better; and—well, you understand. But on this occasion there was no quarrel between us."

"Had there not been an argument?"

"Oh, there might have been a little discussion, but absolutely nothing to amount to anything."

"Where were you standing, with reference to Mrs. Griffith's position, at the time the shot was fired?"

"Now I couldn't tell you that. I was startled, stunned, utterly bewildered by the shot. I cannot remember where I stood."

"How close to the window was Mrs. Griffith when the shot was fired?"

"She was very close to it—right beside it, in fact."

"Not bending over the trunk, then?"

"Yes, I think she was."

"How near to the window was the trunk?"

"Oh, a couple of feet away. Very close. Right at the window."

"The window is at the far end of a narrow gableway at the side of the room, is it not? And this gableway is at least ten feet long? And the trunk was standing in the room proper, not in the gableway?"

"Those statements are correct."

"The story that has gone out is to the effect that you were drinking heavily on Thursday, that when you entered your room an altercation arose between yourself and Mrs. Griffith, and that the revolver was discharged while you and she were struggling for its possession. Is this story wholly incorrect?"

"Wholly so," replied Col. Griffith. "On Thursday I drank nothing to speak of. In fact, I cut down on that sort of thing several weeks ago. I was sober, and can prove it by friends on whom I called that afternoon. I have told you there was no quarrel between myself and Mrs. Griffith. We did not scuffle for possession of the weapon. I do not know how it came to be discharged or why my wife had it in her hand at the time. The whole thing bewildered me."

"Do you know why Mrs. Griffith ran into the gableway and threw herself from the open window? Was it to escape from some harm that she feared?"

"She did not throw herself from the window. She fell out accidentally."

"Do you know why, after having been shot, your wife ran to the window, instead of throwing herself on the bed or waiting while you summoned help?"

"No, I don't know why she went to the window, but maybe it was to get fresh air. The whole thing was a most unfortunate accident, and I regret it more than anyone else. I have scarcely eaten a thing since it happened, and I could hardly sleep last night."

A strange feature of the affair is that no one in the hotel or in the grounds seems to have heard the report of the pistol, while a man who was passing on the opposite side of the street, and whose name has not been learned, heard the shot and ran across to the hotel and reported it. The story is more or less current in Santa Monica that for a long time the domestic relations between Col. and Mrs. Griffith have been strained by discordant incidents, but if there are those who know this to be a fact they prefer to keep quiet.

When Col. Griffith was asked whether his son, Vandell, was in the room at the time of the shooting, he replied that he could not remember. He was averse to asking the boy, but finally put the question to him. Vandell replied that he was playing near the hotel at the time, and knew nothing of what had happened to his mother until some time afterward.

The father and son spent last night at the Arcadia, and will come to Los Angeles this morning, bringing with them what luggage remains at the hotel.

AT THE HOSPITAL.

RELATIVES ARE RETICENT.

The special car in which Mrs. Griffith was brought to Los Angles was stopped at Sixteenth and Hope streets, a block from the California Hospital. With all tenderness the wounded woman was borne to that institution on a stretcher. A private room had been engaged and not even the hospital attendants were aware of the nature of her injuries until hours after she had been admitted. Her sister, Mrs. Charles L. Whipple, was with her and accompanied her to the room. Dr. M. L. Moore had been summoned and was in waiting. He made a careful examination of the wound and decided that an immediate operation was necessary.

The patient was conveyed to the operating room, from which her relatives were, of course, excluded, and after an anesthetic had been administered, her left eye was removed. It was found that the bullet had struck squarely against the knife-like edge of the outer rim of the bone which forms the eye socket. A portion of this bone had been shattered and the bullet split upon it, one section passing directly through the eyeball, destroying it, and other portions of the missile had plowed their way under the skin across the temple and lodged under the scalp.

Had the bullet struck a sixteenth of an inch farther to the right, it would have caused instant death, for it would have penetrated the brain. Had it struck a sixteenth of an inch farther to the left, the wound would have been of a trivial nature.

Mrs. Griffith did not make a favorable recovery from the shock incident to the operation, which left her in almost a state of collapse. Subsequently, however, she partly revived and late last evening Dr. Moore announced that in his opinion the patient will recover, barring unforeseen complications. That her condition is very serious is admitted. Of all her relatives, only her sister, Mrs. Whipple, can see her. Last night Mrs. Whipple herself was under the care of a physician at her home, No. 532 Westlake avenue. Worn out by a long vigil by the bedside of her sister in the hotel at Santa Monica, and followed by the tremendous strain of a long wait at the California Hospital while in the next room she knew her sister was under a surgeon's knife, she was prostrated last night and obliged to take to her bed.

Joseph Mesmer, brother of Mrs. Griffith, spent most of yesterday afternoon at the hospital, but by the physician's orders he was not admitted to her room. The relatives remained as long as they thought there was any possibility of doing anything for the patient.

Dr. Moore enjoined the strictest quiet upon the nurses who are attending Mrs. Griffith. The thing to be most guarded against is exciting her. She had passed through a terrible ordeal, and upon the maintenance of perfect quiet and the absence of all possible excitement depends in great measure the very life of the patient. Should in-

A Glance at the Field of Fresh Literature—What Authors are Saying and Doing.

NEW BOOKS REVIEWED.

LONDON LITERARY NEWS.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Aug. 7.—I have been about town more of late than is my usual custom, and have, of course, run across a lot of writers of all classes and not a few publishers. It is surprising how many of our writers—and I mean not only those who have their permanent quarters here in London—are about town at the present time. You meet them in great numbers almost everywhere. They are not, as some may suppose, to be found scanning the stock of second-hand booksellers, looking for valuable old editions; nor are they to be found in such large numbers at the club, although the out-of-town writers always make it a point to drop into the clubs when in town. But they are found in the anterooms of the publishers; there you will find them consulting with members of the firm about their latest work, how it is to be illustrated, what the title is to be, what little advertisements are required from the biographies of men hour since dead and coupled to their name in the bits of literary gossip with which the publishers supply the public; or, perhaps—who can tell—trying to convince the publishers that the work they have just returned as unavailable is not so bad after all. I see them, and greet many of them, especially those of the second grade. But, occasionally, they pass by as if they did not see me, hoping, I can tell, that I may not see them.

I have referred in a previous letter to the death of Phil May. That I return to the subject does not seem strange when account is taken of the fact that the death of the artist is still a matter of daily comment in the newspapers and weeklies, while the monthly and literary magazines are just beginning to print their little appreciations of the artist and his work.

The Pilot says: "While summer has been capricious, timid and long delaying, Death has been one greedy of prizes. Within the last few weeks we have to say a few words over the graves of W. E. Henley and of James M'Neil Whistler, and now it is our heavy lot to speak in the past tense of one who meant more than either of these to the great mass of our fellow-countrymen, to a wider public, indeed, than that bounded by our encircling seas, of him whose witty pencil had made his name familiar in thousands and thousands of households—Phil May. . . . Of the man himself, what little need to add and assuredly be let down in all affection and regret. Despite his brilliant endowment, had he himself (to repeat Browning's question) what's best for men? One fears, alas! that the answer must be in the negative. The story of his life is only too well known. Thrown on the world, while still a mere child, to earn his own living, how little must his backward glance have found of those gracious memories of a sheltered childhood, of disciplined boyhood, of cloistered youth, with its high imaginings, among fit comrades, that are to make up at once the treasure-house and the sanctuary of thousands who achieve no fame and die obscure. Precocious always, he had taken on himself while still a boy, the responsibilities of a man. The bitter struggle of his early years was crowned with success too suddenly and too soon. He kept a certain childlike faith and innocence, an uncalculating trust and openness that were little to his profit in this world."

Among the new books promised for the fall is a story of the sea by Joseph Conrad. The author of "Youth" is at present busily engaged in putting the finishing touches to his manuscript. The work will be immediately in the press and it will probably be on the market some time before Christmas. It seems almost foolish that men should go to such extremes in discussing the remarkable pictures Mr. Conrad gives of the sea and sea life, although he has never been a sailor. There is none who admires the work of this clever writer more than do I, but that Mr. Conrad should be able to write of the sea as he does does not seem so very remarkable to me. I have read stories of the sea by men who had become so accustomed to the water that they felt almost fearful of the land, and yet their books did not impress one simply because they lacked the scent of the sea. A writer either catches the atmosphere or he does not; if he does, it is not necessary that he spend a lifetime on the sea in order that people see the reasonableness of his writing intelligently about the sailor's life; and if he has not the ability to catch the breath of sea life, he will fail to impress the reader with the truthfulness of his pictures, though he—figuratively speaking—dip his pen into the sea.

The other day in the Morning Post Mr. Andrew Lang said some true things about the poetry-reading public. Some of us have supposed that our young enthusiasm for verse has descended to our children or our friends' children, but the facts are rather against that optimistic belief. Even the older poets, Mr. Lang surmises—Shakespeare, Spenser, Pope, Scott—are largely bought as birthday presents and school prizes. Says Mr. Lang:

"Children used to like poetry long ago, not only Aytoun, and ballads, and Macaulay, but Shakespeare. Now they shy away from a gift of a poetry book, and think (if they do not say, like an outspoken boy of my acquaintance) 'I suppose somebody will give me a prayer book next.' I attribute this unnatural behavior to education. The modern child lives in constant fear of being pounced on and asked questions, and made to get poetry off by heart, which children used to do for their own delight. Perhaps they were always the exceptions; we do not hear that Scott's many brothers and sisters went along shouting 'Hardyknute.'

Another reason is that people read poetry for its moral purpose, and form themselves into societies for discovering the undiscoverable. Poetry has not necessarily anything whatever to do with moral purpose. Mr. Lang concludes:

"Then we have all the lectures and books on the sources of poets, and what they cribbed from each other, and about foreign influences, and philology, and whatever else delights the soul of Prof. Skeat and other professors. So poetry becomes a branch of science and contributes to the vast dreariness of ineffectual things."

We shall have to get back to simplicity and the fairies somehow. The new play by Bernard Shaw, "Man and Superman," which was recently "read" for copyright purposes, seems to promise rather well. It covers a number of themes—Mr. Shaw could never be content with one—including the repugnance which springs from blood relationship and the silliness of romance. The hero makes up his mind never to allow the heroine to marry him, but of course his resolution breaks down. Incidentally, we have a dream interlude in which the devil, Don Juan, and others discuss the love and various vital matters to musical phrases from Mozart.

Mr. Sidney Lee has republished, with various extensions, his contribution to the Stratford-on-Avon Library discussion. In his preface Mr. Lee says: "It is with regret that I find myself in conflict with Miss Corelli. However mistaken I may deem most of her action in the present matter, I have no reason to disbelieve in her devotion to Stratford and to Shakespeare's memory." The pamphlet is rather curiously dedicated "To my Friends in America."

Mr. Lee's pamphlet, however, is not to be allowed to go without challenge, for Messrs. Methuen have just issued a booklet by Miss Corelli, called "The Plain Truth of the Intended Vandalism at Stratford-on-Avon." Miss Corelli avowedly deals only with dates and facts.

"Darrell of the Blessed Isles," which I believe was published in America early in the year, is also announced from the press of Messrs. Methuen.

Mr. Charles Hannan, who dramatized "A Cigarette Maker's Romance," has completed a new book of Scottish fiction which has been secured by Messrs. R. A. Everett and Co., for immediate publication in book form under the title of "The Elder McGregor."

BRAINARD CARRUTHERS.

EDUCATIONAL.

Concerning Jesuits.

JESUIT EDUCATION. By Robert Schwickerath, S. Herder, St. Louis.

There has been no bitterer controversy in the history of education than that concerning the merits and demerits of the Jesuit system of education. On the one hand there have been those who have denounced it as giving but a false culture, a showy, superficial gloss, and those who have held this view have not been confined to those whose theological presuppositions made them antagonistic to the Roman church and the especial champions of the Roman church. On the other hand, there have been the Jesuits and many who have been educated by these born leaders, and they have always been loud in the praises of the admirable method that enables the Jesuit schools to obtain such great success. It is not here in place to enter into this long dispute or to point out the blind zeal or the stupid prejudice that have prompted not a few to their conclusions on both sides of the controversy. But the amount of information before the contestants has not always been in proportion to the vehemence of their assertions and the confidence of their manner. And the subject has been very fully discussed there has been no thoroughly scientific book on the subject of Jesuit pedagogy, although there have always been a multitude of treatises upon education which gave some opinion of the Jesuit system. The book before us goes into the whole subject with unusual care. It is divided into two parts, one treating of the history of Jesuit education, tracing it from the beginning of the order, after giving an introduction on the condition of education at the time of the Reformation. In this the author shakes somewhat rudely the fables that have arisen around some of the worthies of that period. But in doing this he is very careful to cite the works of prominent Protestant writers who were acknowledged for their fairness. He relies especially upon Fro. Parker. We think that he has well chosen when he sees the real meaning of movements, which are often grossly represented when not seen in connection with larger workings of the spirit. We have, necessarily, little in the statement of fact contained in a history of education or literature no place for historical interpretation and the result is often a misconception of the movement under discussion. Perhaps the most valuable part of the work is that which is devoted to an exposition of the actual method followed in Jesuit schools. The historical portion shows a lack of historical insight and is therefore in places of comparatively little value, but the expository portion has the great advantage of being a statement by a result of long practice followed by him and his colleagues in their work. As the author is more careful to make all his statements with copious references so that his opinions and assertions may be tested he has made a valuable contribution to pedagogical theory. In this second part of the work the exposition is full and particular. There is hardly a conceivable point that is not explained, that is from the standpoint of the author. The book, however, suffers from a somewhat tiresome style. We regret this the more because it renders reading of it suggestive of the question whether such a style is desirable to cultivate, whether it is desirable to commit youths to those who have no more assistance of greater than is given by English. If this were the only example of the style we had ever seen, we should hardly have called attention to it, but we have had the misfortune of meeting it on several occasions.

DRAMATIC.

An Irish Play.

WHEN THERE IS NOTHING. By W. B. Yeates. The Macmillan Company, New York.

This volume, the first of a series of "Plays for an Irish Theater," opens to us a vista down which we long to see far. The thought of a series of plays Celtic and natural in spirit rises before us. The conception of such a series is so attractive to us that we hesitate to present a criticism that shall destroy as with a blow the dream that we wish so might be realized. Yeates is the master of a beautiful style, his words flow in limpid periods—have you read "The Secret Rose," "The Celtic Twilight," "The Wind Among the Reeds" or "The Shadowy Waters?" His thoughts are clean thoughts that come sweetly to us. We were justified in hoping that "When There Is Nothing" might be truly a play worthy of such a series as "Plays for an Irish Theater" might well be. Our hope has come to nothing, our dream is o'er, for a more inane and puerile play than "When There Is Nothing" has never aroused the expectations of those to whom drama is the highest expression of literary ability. Trash is a mild word to apply to the driveling first act. Rot is the epithet applicable to the second act, and the third can worthily share in the term. The fourth act is the best of the four. In it there is more action and more thought, but the fourth act is not strong enough to redeem its fellows. There is, of course, a lesson in the play, but it is so clouded with verbiage, so hidden by banalities, that we lose sight of it and disappointedly consign "When There Is Nothing" to the limbo of dramatic failures.

CIVICS.

A Study in Government.

THE AMERICAN REPUBLIC AND ITS GOVERNMENT. By James Albert Woodburn. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

This is not a book of the same grade as that to which the usual books on civics belong. In the first place, it is a much better book, and in the second, it addresses itself to a more advanced class of readers. The author has endeavored to produce a book that will be so clear and simple in statement and so full and interesting that it will be available in the upper classes of a high school. Such a book should have such fullness as to give a clear and at the same time complete view of the principal divisions of the government. It should be such as would at the same time be interesting to the reader who did not use it in the classroom. The style of the work before us is good. The statements are accurate. In saying this we make that general allowance which must always be made in a general opinion, as there are differences between the various political schools that are apparently irreconcilable. The arrangement leaves little to be desired. The principal fault that we have found in the method of handling the whole subject is that there is not sufficient attention given to the "unwritten constitution" of this country. It has been customary to regard our Constitution as confined to the written document. That may be true, but only in a limited sense. The interpretation that has been put upon the Constitution is still a potent factor in the practical working of the government, and the action of parties and the party system generally, is regarded as much a part of the Constitution as that form of government under which we live as are the actual clauses of the written document. It would be flattery to compare this book with Bryce's great treatise. That work has been of profound influence in the development of political thought in this country. It gave for the first time such a picture of the nation and its varied life that it was possible for the young American to understand and appreciate the conditions under which he lived. The present book well deserves to be placed beside those works which have been worthy followers of "The American Commonwealth." It has none of the characteristics of the ordinary books on civics, weak hack-work turned out on an order from a schoolbook publishing house. It appears to be the result of a wide scholarship and long reflection. The literature cited is always up to date and the appearance of the page inspires confidence.

We believe that the recent increase in the number of works dealing with the same subject as that of the volume before us is a hopeful sign of the awakening of the educational forces of this country. There was a time when it was thought that the schools needed to do little more than impart the merest rudiments of civics, when the strength of the school should be spent upon studies that were chiefly of value because they were foundations of intellectual culture. At the same time there has been the growing conviction in the minds of not a few that the chief function of the schools was to prepare men for citizenship. The true citizen needs not merely moral qualities, which are, of course, indispensable, but an actual knowledge of the Constitution of this country's government, and the forces that keep the various institutions of that government working. There can hardly be too much instruction in such matters. There should be perfect familiarity with all the principal matters. This is the only way in which the great problems that are presented to the people to solve can be approached with any certainty of solution. The school certainly every school that is of the high-school grade, that does not teach civics is, in our opinion, not doing its duty. Its work of training the young for the duties that are to be theirs in virtue of their birth, is not being performed. We trust that the author's present volume, as well as that which we had occasion to notice some time ago, "Political Parties and Party Problems in the United States," may before long find its way into our public schools. These works appear to have the essential qualifications fitting them for wide usefulness.

PSYCHOLOGY.

Relation of Mind and Body.

WHY THE MIND HAS A BODY. By C. A. Strong. The Macmillan Company, New York.

The question that is here propounded is one that arouses interest in many minds. As it is stated, the question reads, "Why the Mind has a Body." Without a body it would be mind still and as such would be capable of a sort of mind-life. But it has been provided with a body. Why was this added? It would be a speculation as to the functions of the body as related to mind in the general order of providence, it would be essentially a teleological inquiry. It would therefore belong almost exclusively to theology. But this is not the meaning that the author would put upon his question, although we see no other meaning justified by the text. The author has before him quite a different problem. It is, what are the relations existing between the mind and the body. It might even be narrowed still further: How it is that the body and mind to stand in such relation to each other that sensation and voluntary actions are possible? We think that the title does not adequately describe the book and have therefore approached it with some misgivings. The work before us is divided into two parts of about the same length. In the first part there is a statement of the principal facts in connection with the relation of body and mind as well as a series of arguments for each of the three solutions of the problem. The arguments given respectively for automatism, interactionism and parallelism are clearly and forcibly set forth.

The second part of the book consists of two divisions: in one of which are discussed the general theory of consciousness and things-in-themselves. The second division of this part is devoted to a criticism of the three theories that have been held for explanation or statement of the relation of the mind to the body. The conclusion of the author is that the answer is to be found in an idealistic view of existence, but his is an idealism that is more comprehensive than the idealism of the older metaphysicians. He himself calls it "psycho-physical idealism." The best part of the book is to be found in the various portions taken by themselves rather than in the course of the argument as a whole. The discussion and the criticism of the contending theories is good and sound. The speculation as to the nature of "things-in-themselves" is also good. But as an answer to the question propounded, either the question as it appears upon the title-page or as the author clearly understands it in his work, the book is disappointing. It becomes even more disappointing when one approaches the end and finds that all the principal points involved in the question run up into a larger discussion than that which the author has seen fit to give us. He reserves that for another work. We think that the book displays many of the characteristics of a careful study of the subject, a keen and in some respects original examination of the theories, and a good statement of the pros and cons. When one has said that, he has said all he can in favor of the book. For it displays the same lack of constructive speculation and definiteness of grasp that characterizes a great many works of the same class. It appears to us as being more a good thesis than anything else.

POETRY.

An English Text-book.

ENGLISH POEMS FROM CHAUCER TO KIPLING. Edited by Thomas Marc Parrott and Augustus White Long. Ginn & Co., Boston.

Although intended by its editors primarily as a text-book, this volume of poems from the time of Chaucer to the present, will be a welcome addition to the library of the general reader, as well as to the reference library. To try to include within the covers of a moderate-sized volume a selection from the poets of all the various periods of English letters was no small task, and the compilers have doubtless laid themselves open to criticism. Their work, however, has been done about as satisfactorily as could have been expected, and while many may take exception to their rules of inclusion and exclusion, their judgment on the whole seems good. Prof. Thomas Marc Parrott, professor of English in Princeton University, and Prof. Augustus White Long of Lawrenceville School, are the editors of "English Poems from Chaucer to Kipling." In the present work they aimed to produce a book of poems that would "serve as a link between the earlier studies in English and the work required for entrance to college." They also endeavored to give to their book such quality as would make it useful in the freshman year in many colleges as an introduction to the study of English poetry. But as we have said above, while the work is intended more especially as a text-book, and in that field will be found of much use either as a guide book for the teacher or as a reading course for the student, it is also of much value to the general reader.

The volume opens with an outline sketch of the history of English poetry. Then follow chapters devoted to some representative poet or school of poetry. Each of these chapters is supplied with a short sketch of the poet quoted, giving brief biographical data and also a concise review of his time and work. These sketches are followed by one or more selections from the writings of the poet under consideration; in some cases, however, an author's most representative poem is omitted "because it was not suitable for our purpose, which is to catch the attention and hold the interest of the young student."

The title of the chapters will give more than a mere suggestion as to the contents of the volume. They are: Chaucer, Old English Ballads, Spenser, Shakespeare, An Elizabethan Miscellany, Milton, Cavalier Poets, Dryden, Pope, Gray, Goldsmith, Cowper, Burns, Wordsworth, Coleridge, Scott, Campbell, Byron, Shelley, Keats, Tennyson, Browning, Arnold and a Victorian Miscellany. The poets included in the last-named chapter are Walter Savage Landor; Bryan Waller Proctor Thomas Babington Macaulay, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, William Makepeace Thackeray, Charles Kingsley, George Walter Thornbury, Dante Gabriel Rosetti, William Morris, Algernon Charles Swinburne, Robert Louis Stevenson, John Henry Newman, Rudyard Kipling.

The volume is supplemented with more than 100 pages of notes of explanation, etc., that will be found of much use for both teacher and for general reference use. The usefulness of the work might have been augmented by an extensive index, but in the absence of this the list of contents will, in a fairly satisfactory way, answer.

LANGUAGE.

The Universal Language.

ESPERANTO. THE UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE. Compiled by J. C. O'Connor. Fleming H. Revell Company, New York.

Many years have elapsed since Professor Kerchoffs attempted to impress on Americans the crying need of a universal or international language. Since that time the number of inventors of "universal languages" has become legion. Yet it appears that the greater part of the world is not in the slightest degree interested in the subject—indeed, it might be truthfully stated that the majority of the world's population is not aware of the fact that there is any such subject under discussion.

As each new attempt at a new language assumes tangible shape it is taken up by the faddists for a short time and then passes on into oblivion. We now have Dr. Zamenhof's "Esperanto," which so far has met with much more success than did its predecessors. By many of the French and English papers it has been received with favor, and such substitute personages as Max Muller, Tolstoi and Max O'Rell have favorably criticised it. The inventor's claims for his achievement are not distinguished by modesty, and it seems to us that they are not as well founded as they might be. A careful investigation of the principles of "Esperanto" has convinced us that this language represents all the difficulties of the established languages, with the possible exceptions of Sanskrit, Russian and English. It is certainly no more easy of acquirement than is any one which it resembles. Assuming that there are facts and not misconceptions, why go to the trouble to acquire "Esperanto?" Why should not the world, when it becomes convinced of the necessity for a universal language, select one of those which are rich in literature, tradition and association? The volume under consideration is a complete text-book of "Esperanto:" it contains a full grammar, exercises, conversations, commercial letters and two vocabularies. It is evident that its compiler has done for granted what knowledge of English grammar, which knowledge is not so common as might be supposed. The author states that his whole grammar can be learned in one hour.

TRANSLATION.

Ideal Womanhood.

THE PERFECT WOMAN. Translated from the French by Charles Salzote-Fels. By Zephirin R. Marier & Co., Boston.

Books of the sort to which this little work belongs are, as a rule, rather hard reading. This is not because the style is unusual, although it is apt to be so, nor because the thought is profound, although it rarely is anything more than shallow talk, but because the ideals that are set up are so unnatural, so far removed from the possibility of attainment, while the knowledge of the real workings of the heart is so meager that the books are worthless and impress one on every page that they are worthless. The present work is a distinct exception to what we have at times been inclined to believe was the rule. It is distinctly worth reading and, although there is a little more than we like of the unction, which is characteristic of French devotional works, and which is retained in the English translation, we have found it on the whole a good and sensible book, presented in a style that arrests the attention and suggests plenty of good reflections. The work, as might be gathered from the title page, was written primarily for those of the same Christian communion as the author, a French ecclesiastic. But although it will be found most helpful by Roman Catholics, it will have much in it that will be of interest to Protestants without offending their belief. It is the basing of the whole subject upon the fundamental Christianity that makes the book so attractive to us in addition to the sound sense.

FICTION.

Mary MacLane.

MY FRIEND ANNABEL LEE. By Mary MacLane. Herbert S. Stone & Co., Chicago.

A year ago a little volume of morbid nonsense was placed upon the book market and attained, not so much because of any intrinsic worth as because of the ingenuity and persistency of the publishers, a remarkable sale. The volume was "The Story of Mary MacLane." The reasons for its success, outside of that already referred to, were several. The public is usually willing to pay for originality, and "The Story" possessed what we might, if we dared, call "imitative originality." Miss MacLane aped the work of another young woman, but the ability of the mimic was so much less than that of her prototype that any resemblance at all was patent only to those who were familiar with the earlier author's work. Not a few, indeed, bought the book with the thought that it was simply a parody.

"The Story of Mary MacLane," although worn cover to cover it was trash—trash of the sort that any school girl who is given to morbid meditations and who denies herself the broadening that comes through association with healthy minds might write—possessed, nevertheless, some little feeling. There was here and there just a glimpse of something human. This was due in a measure, we suppose, to the manner of its composition. Miss MacLane was not, at the time of writing, certain of her audience; in fact, she may not have been certain of her publishers, and so, when she forgot that she was writing to be read, she wrote the most readable—perhaps the only readable parts of her story. But whatever praise or dispraise the book may have won, we do not believe that one of the many who read "The Story" through will take exception to the statement that the principal fault with the volume was that there was too much of it. And now the same author comes with "My Friend Annabel Lee," which is simply a continuation of that "muchness." By the time the reader had reached the last page of "The Story of Mary MacLane" he had become thoroughly tired of style and matter and author; and so it will be in a spirit of weariness that he will open the present volume and—perhaps—read it.

We—the public—were caught, doubtless, in an off moment by the publishers and so, thoughtlessly, helped them to make "Mary MacLane" a success. But now that the excitement has worn off, it seems almost ridiculous that enough of the edition should have been sold to pay for printing. The book, if taken up today, no longer appeals to us; no longer shocks; no longer is read by us. And so this second volume of "Mary MacLane" does not seem to enter the world with bright prospects. It does not even compare favorably with its predecessor. The frontispiece of the earlier volume was not unattractive; but we cannot afford the portrait of the author in the present volume even that negative praise. If we did not fear that we might thereby be laying ourselves open to a charge of libel, we should comment on the portrait of the author that appears as a frontispiece to this volume as follows: If this be an accurate picture of Mary MacLane, then she is an unintelligent, uninteresting, sleepy-looking creature, with a mass of hair that resembles more than anything else we know a tarnished bush of cotton. As to the text of the volume; poor little Mary has gone beyond her depth. In her earlier book she confined herself to a very small subject—herself—and her failure was less marked; but when she would discourse on Mrs. Fiske, and on Trouserdrive, and subjects that call for thought, her efforts are pitiable.

It does not seem to us probable that "My Friend Annabel Lee" will have a large sale; and if Mary MacLane is going to write at this rate we are persuaded that the fewer copies sold of the present work the better will be the chances for the future productions of this western writer.

Lilian Bell.

THE DOWAGER COUNTESS AND THE AMERICAN GIRL. By Lilian Bell. Harper & Bros., New York.

Lilian Bell has always reminded us more or less of John Kendrick Bangs. We suppose that both Lilian Bell and Mr. Bangs would protest at being compared with the other, and yet the very reason why they would protest is the identical cause of the comparison in our opinion; namely, they each manifest enthusiasm, and each is to turn out a "corker" that is surprisingly bad. One wonders how a man who has written as cleverly as did Mr. Bangs on occasions can today sanction the publication of such poor stuff with his name upon the title page. And the same wonder is experienced in connection with Lilian Bell. Miss Bell, as she was then, wrote several things that were clever and pleasing; but today when she is either clever or pleasing the reader seems taken by surprise.

Eighteen months ago the Harpers published, we believe it was in their portrait series, a collection of stories by Lilian Bell under the title "Sir John and the American Girl." The story that gave the book its title was one of the best things that have fallen from the pen of Miss Bell. It was short and amusing; its action moved swiftly; its characters were decided types. Mr. Alfred Ely, according to the dedication, was also pleased with "Sir John and the American Girl," but in an evil or foolish thing in advising the author to write a continuation of the little story. In the dedication, Lilian Bell says: "To my friend Alfred Ely, Esq., who was the first to suggest this sequel to 'Sir John and the American Girl.'" And now "The Dowager Countess and the American Girl" (what a burdensome title) comes to tell what happened to the American girl after Sir John had put an end to the question as to whether or no his relative, the younger son of the Earl of Mayhew, should follow the dictates of his heart or his family in the matter of choosing a wife.

In this new volume is told the story of a family duel between the Englishman's mother, an elderly dowager countess of England, and the wife of her son, the American girl. The characters that were met in "Sir John and the American Girl" are again introduced to the reader; but they appeal less strongly in the present work. Sir John, Edith Joyce, Archibald Cavendish, and the relatives of the Englishman that stood out so distinctly in the short story, become blurred and conventional and melodramatic in the present work. The renewal of the acquaintance is not pleasing to the reader, for the pleasant impression made by the earlier acquaintance with these characters is much distracted from by afterwards finding people who promised so well at first sight developing into bores, at times at least.

Of course, "The Dowager Countess and the American Girl" is readable. It is interesting throughout, despite its faults, but it is not the kind of work that we have reason to expect from the pen of Lilian Bell, and that Lilian Bell can give us if she wills to do it. We could name a dozen books that we have apparently praised more highly than the volume under review, but which fell far beneath it in real merit; but then the other works were written for an entirely different audience, and that audience was in view when the books were criticised. If Lilian Bell is writing for the same class of readers that enjoys The Duchess, then we are sure that the readers for whom she writes will think "The Dowager Countess and the American Girl" just "too grand." But if Lilian Bell has in mind an intelligent audience when she writes, then she must steer clear of the conventionality, the melodramatic, and the amateurishness that mar the present work if she hopes to hold her audience.

Loomis at Play.

A PARTNERSHIP IN MAGIC. By Charles Battell Loomis. The Lothrop Publishing Company.

Charles Battell Loomis, the popular humorist, ventures before the public with "A Partnership in Magic," his first piece of long fiction. It has a fairy-tale motive in a realistic setting. It is a book written for the younger reader; but it may be read without harm and with profit by the older reader. We believe that Mr. Loomis can tell just what he aimed to accomplish and just what he has succeeded in accomplishing better than we, and so we shall give him a chance to speak for himself. We have had "prefaces" and "forewords" and "introductions"; but we believe that to Mr. Loomis belongs the credit for having created "A Word Before," which is as follows:

"Dear Reader: When I was a 'dear reader' myself, I fought shy of the preface until I had finished the story, because I knew that there were certain writers who made no bones of saying out and out that the hero died in the last chapter, and I did not like to hear bad news until it was absolutely necessary.

"Now if I tell you that the hero doesn't die at all, you may feel like reading my preface, but as it seems to be the present mode for writers to do all their talking in the story, and never to throw in anything for good measure, I'll follow the mode.

"I regret this decision because it's lots of fun to get up and make a speech to the people before the actual performance begins, and that's what a preface is, or should be: just a familiar little speech while the folk are tripping over many feet and finding their seats and settling themselves for the performance in comfortable attitudes. You know the style: 'I regret to say that owing to the illness of Miss So-and-So, there will be no heroine, as it was found impossible to obtain a substitute at short notice. I assure you, ladies and gentlemen, that this will not make the slightest difference in the working of the plot and thanking you for your kind attendance, and hoping that you will report any incivilities on the part of the ushers, I am,' etc.

"By the way, I hope you'll like the pictures. Mr. Heyer read the story before he drew them, and so he knew what he was at, and I think you'll agree with me that he's all right. If, after reading the story, you decide that there was any 'Partnership in Magic,' he was one of the partners.

"CHARLES BATTELL LOOMIS."

Although we are told that this book is meant for the juvenile reader, the older reader will catch from this introduction a glimpse into the delicate humor and satire that characterize the work of Mr. Loomis, and that will be lost on the younger reader. The older reader will find the style attractive, the fun irresistible, and the story itself not beneath his dignity. The story, of course, will be the chief source of interest to the boy or girl. In "A Partnership in Magic" a country boy, who has a marvelous power of plucking fruit from the bare branches of any tree, goes to New York, and with a friend starts in the fruit business on a large scale. Lack of money in a couple of weeks of their partnership. There is a cruel stepfather, and his adventures in New York in search of the boy, together with the many city scenes in connection with Mr. Loomis's experiences, make it a highly amusing and graphic story.

As for the illustrations, they are all that Mr. Loomis claims for them.

BOOK NOTES.

Why practice, Love, this small economy
Of your heart's favors? Can you keep a kiss
To be enjoyed in age? and would the free
Expense of pleasure leave you penniless?
Nay, nay. Be wise. Believe me, pleasure is
A gambler's token, only gold today.
The day of love is short, the every bliss
Untasted now is a bliss thrown away.
'Twere pitiful, in truth, such treasures should
Lie by like misers' crusts till mouldy grown.
Think you the hand of age will be less rude
In touching your sweet bosom than my own?
Alas, what matter, when our heads are gray,
Whether you loved, or did not love today?

Dramas based on Dickens's stories appear with a frequency that is eloquent testimony to the great novelist's popularity, and new editions of his work multiply to the confusion of his detractors. Many of the dramas are old plays subjected to new treatment, but ever fresh in their appeal to human nature. Thirty-four years ago Sam Emery, a noted actor, used to lift his voice nightly on the stage of the Olympic in London, and bring down the house with old Peggoty's pathetic cry, "I'm a-going to seek my Em'ly." Now, at the Adelphi, in the Strand, he is succeeded by Mr. Cartwright, an actor whose impersonation of the simple, great-hearted fisherman is said to be as robustly effective in humor and pathos as was that of his predecessor. "Em'ly," as the latest adaptation of "David Copperfield" is called, is supported by a good company and looks to be a success. We note that Miss Madge Lessing, who has deserted us so long, does wonders with little Emily, the comic opera training notwithstanding.

The Ford family seems to be coming it strong in the making of books. There was James L. Ford, who made us all set up with "The Literary Shop;" there was the late Paul Leicester Ford, of "Janice Meredith" fame, and now there are two S. Fords who are in danger of getting themselves mixed. Indeed, Sewell Ford, who has a humorous story in the September Harper's Magazine, has had to unravel a tangle which got him mixed up with Simeon Ford, the author of "A Few Remarks." In a letter to the editor of the Bango; Daily Commercial he says:

Dear Sir: With an intent evidently of the best, you have most amazingly mixed the deeds and doings of two Fords. I am one of them. No, I am not going to be indignant. I expect, in my sixteen years of newspaper work, I have made many "breaks" of the same kind. This is merely to untangle myself for your benefit from the other Ford, and perhaps prevent more confusion among my numerous relatives in Maine.

The author of "Horses Nine," who was born in South Levant, and who remembers coming into Bangor at daybreak with his "Uncle Will" to sell green corn, is Sewell Ford. That's me. Simeon Ford, whose picture you printed and to whom you gave credit for writing the horse stories, is the genial proprietor of the Grand Union Hotel in New York. . . .

It's Sewell Ford who had sixteen (not thirty-five) years' experience in newspaper work, Simeon who is the "long, lean laugh-maker." . . . "Haven't achieved much fame, and what little I possess I cannot afford to have merged with Simeon's, which is greater and of a different character.

Sincerely, SEWELL FORD.

An anecdote about Browning in the Cornhill Magazine relates that "when he produced an early volume of poems he was delighted at receiving a letter from J. S. Mill proposing to write a notice of them in the Westminster Review. A few days after his expectations were dashed by hearing from Mill saying he could not write the article as he had been forestalled by a notice which had appeared in the Westminster Review itself. With palpitating heart Browning rushed to his club and searched the pages of the Review to find to his dismay the article which had robbed him of J. S. Mill's notice. It was to this effect: 'A volume of poems by Browning—balderdash.'" Now Sir Algernon West, who tells the story, is slightly in error. In the first place, the reference was not to "a volume of poems," but to Browning's "Pauline," which appeared in 1832. In the second place, the scant review did not appear in the Westminster Review, but in Tait's Magazine, and it was for the latter Mill intended to notice "Pauline," but was forestalled. In the third place, the criticism was not "balderdash," but a piece of pure bewilderment." The difference and scorn with which Browning was at first received by the critics gave Miss Barrett cause for the expression of a fine indignation in her early letters to the young poet.

At a time when the name of Carlyle is being dragged in the mud by his detractors, it is refreshing to come across Ruskin's testimony in one of the delightful letters which he wrote to Mary Gladstone. "The death of Carlyle," he writes, "is no sorrow to me. It is, I believe, not an end, but a beginning of his real life. Nay, perhaps, also of mine. My remorse, every day he lived, for not having sufficiently loved him in the days gone by, is greater now, but less, in the hope that he knows what I am feeling about it—and all other—moments."

Randall Blackshaw, writing of the poet William Ernest Henley in the current "Critic," says: "Henley was like some love of talk and argument as Whistler had, with even more than Whistler's aggressiveness. He met opposition, because his rugged nature found itself in the wordy combats which were the only forms of strife unkind fate allowed him to engage in. He was built for battle with men and with the elements; but nature, having bestowed upon him, with one hand, the stature of a viking, withdrew the gift with the other hand by adding a physical malady that sapped his strength and plagued his life from childhood's middle age—for it was to middle age only that he had attained when he and came, on July 11. . . . His admirers, and the criticisms he inspired, were apt to be of the "slashing" sort. He wielded, not the finely-tempered needle-pointed rapier of the duellist, but a well-ground ax, that sometimes turned in his hand and came down headforemost with the blunt force of a navvy's hammer."

We are informed that William Crane is soon to appear in the dramatization of Harry Leon Wilson's strong novel, "The Spenders."

ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

Advent Christian Churches of Southern California Close Their Yearly Assemblage Tomorrow at Old Central Park.

The Advent Christian Churches of Southern California have been holding their annual conference and camp meeting during the past ten days at the old Central Park out on Central avenue, between Forty-ninth and Fortieth street. There have been many interesting sessions, and people have been in attendance from all parts of Southern California. The annual conference for Northern California closed last week at Santa Cruz, and the body has sent as its fraternal delegate to the southern brethren, Rev. E. Fiske of Napa.

One of the features of the week was the Home and Foreign Missionary Societies' anniversary last Tuesday. The business session and a programme of missionary topics occupied the forenoon, and at night an address was given by Miss Armstrong, a missionary who has been back from her work in India only a few weeks.

At this meeting Mrs. Sarah M. Bent of Tustin was elected president; Mrs. A. E. Pinkham of Pasadena, vice-president; Mrs. A. G. Corson of Los Angeles, secretary and treasurer.

Thursday was given to the "Young People," the young people's society of the Advent Christian Church. There was a sunrise meeting; a business session in the forenoon, and an annual sermon by Elder W. E. Blunt of Garden Grove, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, which was devoted to a programme of topics pertinent to the young people's work. And in the evening an address was given by Elder E. J. DeGrief of Lordsburg.

Yesterday afternoon the sermon was delivered by Elder W. R. Chandler of Tropico; and the election of officers for the conference was taken up. Elder L. H. Rogers was elected president, and Elder D. Webster of Fresno as vice-president. The other officers will be elected at this morning's session.

The speakers on today's programme are Elder D. Webster for this morning, Elder D. Fiske of Napa this afternoon, and Elder L. A. Rogers tonight. Tomorrow will be the last day of the conference.

"THE COUGH IN LOWER SEVEN" is the title of an interesting story by Sherman which will appear in The Times Magazine the coming Sunday.

How many bright-face women are there among us, who spend a good share of their lives in the kitchens?

And what is a bright face good for? What is a woman good for without it?

May be, it's none of our business; we're thinking of coal and gas cookstoves; how coal makes wrinkles, and gas would smooth them out if it could.

And coal is extravagant, too; we use it because we're used to it. Oh, if we could only get some good habits; we stick to our bad ones so

LONDON LITERARY NEWS.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—I have been about town more of late than is my usual custom, and have, of course, run across a lot of writers of all classes and not a few publishers. It is surprising how many of our writers—and also not a few publishers. I mean not only those who have their permanent quarters here in London—are about town at the present time. You meet them in great numbers almost everywhere. They are not, as some may suppose, to be found scanning the stock of second-hand booksellers, looking for valuable old editions, nor are they to be found in such large numbers at the club, although the out-of-town writers always make it a point to drop into the clubs when in town. But they are found in the antechamber of the publishers; there you will find them consulting with members of the firm about their latest work, how it is to be illustrated, what the title is to be, what little anecdote may be resurrected from the biographies of men long since dead and coupled to their name in the bits of literary gossip with which the publishers supply the public; or, perhaps—who can tell—trying to convince the publishers that the work they have just returned as unavailable is not so bad after all. I see them, and greet many of them, especially those of the second grade. But, occasionally, they pass by as if they did not see me, hoping, I can tell, that I may not see them.

I have referred in a previous letter to the death of Phil May. That I return to the subject does not seem strange when account is taken of the fact that the death of the artist is still a matter of daily comment in the newspapers and weeklies, while the monthly and literary magazines are just beginning to print their little appreciations of the artist and his work.

The Pilot says: "While summer has been capricious, timid and long delayed, Death has been ever ready of heroes. Within the last few weeks we had to say a few words over the graves of W. E. Henley and of James M'Neil Whistler, and now it is our heavy lot to speak in the past tense of one who meant more than either of these to the great mass of our fellow-countrymen, to a wider public, indeed, than any produced by our encircling seas, of him whose witty pencil had made his name familiar in thousands and thousands of households—Phil May. . . . Of the man himself that little need be said and assuredly be set down in all affection and regret. Despite his brilliant endowment, had he himself (to repeat Browning's question) what's best for men?' we fear, alas! that the answer must be in the negative. The story of his life is only too well known. Thrown on the world, while still a mere child, to earn his own living, how little must his backward glance have found of those gracious influences of sheltered childhood, of disciplined boyhood, of cloistered youth, with its high imaginings, among fit comrades, that are to make up at once the treasure-house and the sanctuary of memories who achieve no fame and die obscure. Precocious always, he had taken on himself while still a boy, the responsibilities of a man. The bitter struggle of his early years was crowned with success too suddenly and too soon. He kept a certain childlike faith and innocence, an uncalculating trust and openness that were little to his profit in this world."

Among the new books promised for the fall is a story of the sea by Joseph Conrad. The author of "Youth" is at present busily engaged in putting the finishing touches to his manuscript. The work will immediately go to press and it will probably be on the market some time before Christmas. It seems almost foolish that men should go to such extremes in discussing the remarkable pictures Mr. Conrad gives of the sea and sea life, although he has never been a sailor. There is none who admires the work of this clever writer more than do I, but that Mr. Conrad should be able to write of the sea as he does does not seem so very remarkable to me. I have read stories of the sea by men who had become so accustomed to the water that they felt almost tired of the land, and yet their books did not impress one, simply because they lacked the scent of the sea. A writer either catches the atmosphere or he does not; if he does, it is not necessary that he spend a lifetime on the sea in order to make people see the seasickness of his writing intelligently about the sailor's life; and if he has not the ability to catch the breath of sea life, his will fail to impress the reader with the truthfulness of his pictures, though he—figuratively speaking—dip his pen into the sea.

The other day in the Morning Post Mr. Andrew Lang said some true things about the poetry-reading public. Some of us have supposed that our young enthusiasm for verse has descended to our children or our friends' children, but the facts are rather against that optimistic belief. Even the older poets, Mr. Lang surmises—Shakespeare, Spenser, Pope, Scott—are largely bought as birthday presents and school prizes. Says Mr. Lang:

"Children used to like poetry long ago, not only Aytoun, and ballads, and Macaulay, but Shakespeare. Now they shy away from a gift of a poetry book, and think (if they do not say, like an outspoken boy of my acquaintance,) 'I suppose somebody will give me a prayer book next.' I attribute this unnatural behavior to education. The modern child lives in constant fear of being pounced on and asked questions, and made to get poetry off by heart, which children used to do for their own delight. Perhaps they were always the exceptions; we do not hear that Scott's many brothers and sisters went along shouting 'Hardyknute.'"

Another reason is that people read poetry for its moral purpose, and form themselves into societies for discovering the undiscoverable. Poetry has not necessarily anything whatever to do with moral purpose. Mr. Lang concludes:

"Then we have all the lectures and books on the sources of poets, and what they cribbed from each other, and about foreign influences, and philology, and whatever else delights the soul of Prof. Skeat and other professors. So poetry becomes a branch of science and contributes to the vast dreariness of ineffectual things."

We shall have to get back to simplicity and the fairies somehow. The new play by Bernard Shaw, "Man and Superman," which was recently "read" for copyright purposes, seems to promise rather well. It covers a number of themes—Mr. Shaw could never be content with one—including the repugnance which springs from blood relationship and the silliness of romance. The hero makes up his mind never to allow the heroine to marry him, but of course his resolution breaks down. Incidentally, we have a dream interlude in which the devil, Don Juan, and others discuss the love and various vital matters to musical phrases from Mozart.

Mr. Sidney Lee has republished, with various extensions, his contribution to the Stratford-on-Avon Library discussion. In his preface Mr. Lee says: "It is with regret that I find myself in conflict with Miss Corelli. However mistaken I may deem most of her action in the present matter, I have no reason to disbelieve in her devotion to Stratford and to Shakespeare's memory." The pamphlet is rather curiously dedicated "To my Friends in America."

Mr. Lee's pamphlet, however, is not to be allowed to go without challenge, for Messrs. Methuen have just issued a booklet by Miss Corelli, called "The Plain Truth of the Intended Vandalism at Stratford-on-Avon." Miss Corelli avowedly deals only with dates and facts.

"Darrell of the Blessed Isles," which I believe was published in America early in the year, is also announced from the press of Messrs. Methuen.

Mr. Charles Hannan, who dramatized "A Cigarette Maker's Romance," has completed a new book of Scottish fiction which has been secured by Messrs. R. A. Everett and Co., for immediate publication in booksellers' form under the title of "The Elder McGregor."

BRAINARD CARRUTHERS.

EDUCATIONAL.

Concerning Jesuits.

JESUIT EDUCATION. By Robert Schwickerath, S. J. Benziger, St. Louis.

There has been no bitterer controversy in the history of education than that concerning the merits and demerits of the Jesuit system of education. On the one hand there have been those who have denounced it as giving but a false culture, a showy, superficial gloss, and those who have held this view have not been confined to those whose theological preposessions made them antagonistic to the Roman church and the especial champions of the Roman church. On the other hand, there have been the Jesuits and many who have been educated by these born leaders, and they have always been loud in the praises of the admirable method that enables the Jesuit schools to obtain such great success. It is not here in place to enter into this long dispute or to point out the blind zeal or the stupid prejudice that have prompted not a few to their conclusions on both sides of the controversy. But the amount of information before the contestants has not always been in proportion to the vehemence of their assertions and the confidence of their manner. And the reason has been very largely because there has been no thoroughly scientific book on the subject of Jesuit pedagogy, although there have always been multitude of treatises upon education which gave some opinion of the Jesuit system. The book before us goes into the whole subject thoroughly. As it is divided into two parts, one treating of the history of Jesuit education, tracing it from the beginning of the order, after giving an introduction on the condition of education at the time of the Reformation. In this the author shakes somewhat rudely the fables that have arisen around some of the worthies of that period. But in doing this he is very careful to cite the works of prominent Protestant writers who were acknowledged for their fairness. He relies especially upon Pro. Farker. We think that he has not always been able to see the real meaning of movements, which are often grossly represented when not seen in connection with larger workings of the spirit. We have, necessarily, to go, in a statement of fact contained in a history of education or literature no place for historical interpretation and the result is often a misconception of the movement under discussion. But the most valuable part of the work is that which is devoted to an exposition of the actual method followed in Jesuit schools. The historical portion shows a lack of historical insight and is therefore in places of comparatively little value, but the expository portion has the great advantage of being a statement by a Jesuit of the methods followed by him and his colleagues in their work. As the author is more careful to make all his statements with copious references so that his opinions and assertions may be tested he has made a valuable contribution to pedagogical theory. In this second part of the work the exposition is full and particular. There is hardly a conceivable point that is not explained, that is from the standpoint of the author. The book, however, suffers from a somewhat tiresome style. We regret this the more because it hinders a reading of it suggestive of the question whether such a style is desirable to cultivate, whether it is desirable to commit youths to those who have no more mastery of grace and ease and English. If this were the only example of the style we had ever seen, we should hardly have called attention to it, but we have had the misfortune of meeting it on several occasions.

DRAMATIC.

An Irish Play.

WHEN THERE IS NOTHING. By W. B. Yeats. The Macmillan Company, New York.

This volume, the first of a series of "Plays for an Irish Theater," opens to us a vista down which we long to see far. The thought of a series of plays Celtic and natural in spirit rises before us. The conception of such a series is so attractive to us that we hesitate to present a criticism that shall destroy at with a flaw the dream that we wish so might be realized. Yeates is the master of a beautiful style, his words flow in limpid periods—have you read "The Secret Rose," "The Celtic Twilight," "The Wind Among the Reeds" or "The Shadowy Waters"? His thoughts are clean thoughts that come sweetly to us. We were justified in hoping that "When There Is Nothing" might be truly a play worthy of such a series as "Plays for an Irish Theater" might well be. Our hope has come to nothing, our dream is o'er, for a more inane and puerile play than "When There Is Nothing" has never aroused the expectations of those to whom drama is the highest expression of literary ability. Trash is a mild word to apply to the driveling first act. Rot is the epithet applicable to the second act, and the third can worthily share in the term. The fourth act is the best of the four. In it there is more action and more thought, but the fourth act is not strong enough to redeem its fellows. There is, of course, a lesson in the play, but it is so clouded with verbiage, so hidden by banalities, that we lose sight of it and disappointedly consign "When There Is Nothing" to the limbo of dramatic failures.

CIVICS.

A Study in Government.

THE AMERICAN REPUBLIC AND ITS GOVERNMENT. By James Albert Woodburn. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

This is not a book of the same grade as that to which the usual books on civics belong. In the first place, it is a much better book, and in the second, it addresses itself to a more advanced class of readers. The author has endeavored to produce a book that will be so clear and simple in statement and so full and interesting that it will be available in the upper classes of a high school. Such a book should have such fullness as to give a clear and at the same time complete view of the principal divisions of the government. It should be such as would at the same time be interesting to the reader who did not use it in the classroom. The style of the work before us is good. The statements are accurate. In saying this we make that general allowance which must always be made in a general opinion, as there are differences between the various political schools that are apparently irreconcilable. The arrangement leaves little to be desired. The principal fault that we have found in the method of handling the whole subject is that there is not sufficient attention given to the "unwritten constitution" of this country. It has been customary to regard our Constitution as confined to the written document. That may be true, but only in a limited sense. The interpretation that has been put upon the Constitution is still a potent factor in the practical working of the government, and the action of parties and the party system generally, is regarded as much a part of the Constitution as that form of government under which we live as are the actual clauses of the written document. It would be flattery to compare this book with Bryce's great treatise. That work has been of profound influence in the development of political thought in this country. It gave for the first time such a picture of the nation and its varied life that was possible for the young American to understand and appreciate the conditions under which he lived. The present book well deserves to be placed beside those works which have been worthy followers of "The American Commonwealth." It has none of the characteristics of the ordinary books on civics, weak hack-work turned out on an order from a schoolbook publishing house. It appears to be the result of a wide scholarship and long reflection. The literature cited is always up to date and the appearance of the page inspires confidence.

We believe that the recent increase in the number of works dealing with the same subject as that of the volume before us is a hopeful sign of the awakening of the educational forces of this country. There was a time when it was thought that the schools needed to do little more than impart the merest rudiments of civics, when the strength of the school should be spent upon studies that were chiefly of value because they were foundations of intellectual culture. At the same time there has been the growing conviction in the minds of not a few that the chief function of the schools was to prepare men for citizenship. The true citizen needs not merely moral qualities, which are, of course, indispensable, but an actual knowledge of the Constitution of this country's government, and the forces that keep the various institutions of that government working. There can hardly be too much instruction in such matters. These should be perfect familiarity with all the principal matters. This is the only way in which the great problems that are presented to the people to solve can be approached with any certainty of solution. Such books certainly every school that is of the high-school grade, that does not teach civics is, in our opinion, not doing its duty. Its work of training the young for the duties that are to be theirs in virtue of their birth, is not being performed. We trust that the author's present volume, as well as that which we had occasion to notice some time ago, "Political Parties and Party Problems in the United States," may before long find its way into our public schools. These works appear to have the essential qualifications fitting them for wide usefulness.

PSYCHOLOGY.

Relation of Mind and Body.

WHY THE MIND HAS A BODY. By C. A. Strong. The Macmillan Company, New York.

The question that is here propounded is one that arouses interest in many minds. As it is stated, the question reads, "Why the Mind has a Body." Without a body it would be mind still and as such would be capable of a sort of life, but it would be a disembodied life. But it has been added to, with a body. Why was this added? It would be a speculation as to the functions of the body as related to mind in the general order of providence, it would be essentially a teleological inquiry. It would therefore belong almost exclusively to theology. But this is not the meaning that the author would put upon his question, although we see no other meaning justified by the text. The author has before him quite a different problem. It is, what are the relations existing between the mind and the body. It might even be narrowed still further. It is the possible for the body and mind to stand in such relation to each other that sensation and voluntary actions are possible? We think that the title does not adequately describe the book and have therefore approached it with some misgivings. The work before us is divided into two parts of about the same length. In the first part there is a statement of the principal facts in connection with the relation of body and mind as well as a series of arguments for each of the three solutions of the problem. The arguments given respectively for automatism, interactionism and parallelism are clearly and forcibly set forth.

The second part of the book consists of two divisions: in one of which are discussed the general theory of consciousness and things-themselves. The second division of this part is devoted to a criticism of the three theories that have been held for explanation or statement of the relation of the mind to the body. The conclusion of the author is that the best answer is to be found in an idealistic view of existence, but his is an idealism that is more comprehensive than the idealism of the older metaphysicians. He himself calls it "psychophysical idealism." The best part of the book is to be found in the various portions taken by themselves rather than in the course of the argument as a whole. The discussion and the criticism of the contending theories is good and sound. The speculation as to the nature of "things-in-themselves" is also good. But as an answer to the question propounded, either the question as it appears upon the title-page or as the author clearly understands it in his work, the book is disappointing. It becomes even more disappointing when one approaches the end and finds that all the principal points involved in the question run up into a larger discussion than that which the author has seen fit to give us. He reserves that for another work. We think that the book displays many of the characteristics of a careful study of the subject, a keen and in some respects original examination of theories, and a good statement of the pros and cons. When one has said that, he has said all he can in favor of the book. For it displays the same lack of constructive speculation and definiteness of grasp that characterizes a great many works of the same class. It appears to us as being more a good thesis than anything else.

POETRY.

An English Text-book.

Although intended by its editors primarily as a text-book, this volume of poems from the time of Chaucer to the present, will be a welcome addition to the library of the general reader, as well as to the reference library. To try to include within the covers of a moderate-sized volume a selection from the poets of all the various periods of English letters was no small task, and the compilers have doubtless laid themselves open to criticism. Their work, however, has been done about as satisfactorily as could have been expected, and while many may take exception to their rules of inclusion and exclusion, their judgment on the whole seems good. Prof. Thomas Marc Parrott, professor of English in Princeton University, and Prof. Augustus White Long of Lawrenceville School, are the editors of "English Poems from Chaucer to Kipling." In the present work they aimed to produce a book of poems that would "serve as a link between the earlier studies in English and the work required for entrance to college." They also endeavored to give to their book such quality as would make it useful in the freshman year in many colleges as an introduction to the study of English poetry. But as we have said above, while the work is intended more especially as a text-book, and in that field will be found of much use either as a guide book for the teacher or as a reading course for the student, it is also of much value to the general reader.

The volume opens with an outline sketch of the history of English poetry. Then follow chapters devoted to some representative poet or school of poetry. Each of these chapters is supplied with a short sketch of the poet quoted, giving brief biographical data and also a concise review of his time and work. These sketches are followed by one or more selections from the writings of the poet under consideration; in some cases, however, an author's most representative poem is omitted "because it was not suitable for our purpose, which is to catch the attention and hold the interest of the young student."

The title of the chapters will give more than a mere suggestion as to the contents of the volume. They are: Chaucer; Old English Ballads, Spenser, Shakespeare, An Elizabethan Miscellany, Milton, Cavalier Poets, Dryden, Pope, Gray, Goldsmith, Cowper, Burns, Wordsworth, Coleridge, Scott, Campbell, Byron, Shelley, Keats, Tennyson, Browning, Arnold and a Victorian Miscellany. The poets included in the last-named chapter are Walter Savage Landor; Bryan Waller Proctor Thomas Babington Macaulay, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, William Makepeace Thackeray, Charles Kingsley, George Walter Thornbury, Dante Gabriel Rosetti, William Morris, Algernon Charles Swinburne, Robert Louis Stevenson, John Henry Newman, Rudyard Kipling.

The volume is supplemented with more than 100 pages of notes of explanation, etc., that will be found of much use for both teacher and for general reference use. The usefulness of the work might have been augmented by an extensive index, but in the absence of this the list of contents will, in a fairly satisfactory way, answer.

LANGUAGE.

The Universal Language.

ESPERANTO, THE UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE. Compiled by J. N. O'Connor. Fleming H. Revell Company, New York.

Many years have elapsed since Professor Kerchoffs attempted to impress on Americans the crying need of a universal or international language. Since that time the number of inventors of "universal languages" has become legion. Yet it appears that the greater part of the world is not in the slightest degree interested in the subject—indeed, it might be truthfully stated that the majority of the world's population is not aware of the fact that there is any such subject under discussion.

As each new attempt at a new language assumes tangible shape it is taken up by the faddists for a short time and then passes on into oblivion. We now have Dr. Zamenhof's "Esperanto," which so far has met with much more success than did its predecessors. By many of the French and English papers it has been received with enthusiasm, and such astute personages as Max Muller, Tolstoi and Max O'Rell have favorably criticised it. The inventor's claims for his achievement are not distinguished by modesty, and it seems to us that they are not as well founded as they might be. A careful investigation of the principles of "Esperanto" has convinced us that this language is framed to meet all the difficulties of the established languages, with the possible exceptions of Sanskrit, Russian and English. It is certainly no more easy of acquirement further than is that which it resembles. Assuming that there are facts and not misconceptions, why go to the trouble to acquire "Esperanto?" Why should not the world, when it becomes convinced of the necessity for a universal language, select one of those which are rich in literature, tradition and association? The volume under consideration is a complete textbook of "Esperanto:" it contains a full grammar, exercises, conversations, commercial letters and two vocabularies. It is evident that its compiler has the spiritual knowledge of English grammar, which knowledge is not so common as might be supposed. The author states that his whole grammar can be learned in one hour.

TRANSLATION.

Ideal Womanhood.

THE PERFECT WOMAN. Translated from the French by Charles Salzte-Fol. By Zephirine N. Brown. Hurlbut & Co., Boston.

Books of the sort to which this little work belongs are, as a rule, rather hard reading. This is not because the style is unusual, although it is apt to be so, nor because the thought is profound, although it rarely is anything more than shallow talk, but because the ideals that are set up are so unnatural, so far removed from the possibility of attainment, while the knowledge of the real workings of the heart is so meager that the books are worthless and impress one on every page that they are worthless. The present work is a distinct exception to what we have at times been inclined to believe was the rule. It is distinctly worth reading and, although there is a little more than we like of the unction, which is characteristic of French devotional works, and which is retained in the English translation, we have found it on the whole a good and sensible book, presented in a style that arrests the attention and suggests plenty of good reflections. The work, as might be gathered from the title page, was written primarily for those of the same Christian communion as the author, a French ecclesiastic. But although it will be found most helpful by Roman Catholics, it will have much in it that will be of interest to Protestants without offending their belief. It is the basing of the whole subject upon the fundamental Christianity that makes the book so attractive to us in addition to the sound sense.

FICTION.

Mary MacLane.

MY FRIEND ANNABEL LEE. By Mary MacLane. Herbert S. Stone & Co., Chicago.

A year ago a little volume of morbid nonsense was placed upon the book market and attained, not so much because of any intrinsic worth as because of the ingenuity and persistency of the publishers, a remarkable sale. The volume was "The Story of Mary MacLane." The reasons for its success, outside of that already referred to, were several. The public is usually willing to pay for originality, and "The Story" possessed what we might, if we dared, call "imitative originality." Miss Maclane aped the work of another young woman, but the ability of the mimic was so much less than that of her prototype that any resemblance at all was patent only to those who were familiar with the earlier author's work. Not a few, indeed, bought the book with the thought that it was simply a parody.

"The Story of Mary MacLane," although a gown of cover to cover it was transparent—trash of the sort that any school girl who is given to morbid meditations and who denies herself the broadening that comes through association with healthy minds might write—possessed, nevertheless, some little feeling. There was here and there just a glimpse of something human. This was due in a measure, we suppose, to the manner of its composition. Miss MacLane was not, at the time of writing, certain of her audience; in fact, she may not have been certain of her publishers, and so, when she forgot that she was writing to be read, she wrote the most readable—perhaps the only readable parts of her story. But whatever praise or dispraise the book may have won, we do not believe that one of the many who read "The Story" through will take exception to the statement that the principal fault with the volume was that there was too much of it. And now the same author comes with "My Friend Annabel Lee," which is simply a continuation of that "muchness." By the time the reader had reached the last page of "The Story of Mary MacLane" he had become thoroughly tired of style and matter and author; and so it will be in a spirit of weariness that he will open the present volume and—perhaps—read it.

We—the public—were caught, doubtless, in an off moment by the publishers and so, thoughtlessly, helped them to make "Mary MacLane" a success. But now that the excitement has worn off, it seems almost ridiculous that enough of the edition should have been sold to pay for printing. The book, if taken up today, no longer appeals to us; no longer shocks; no longer is read by us. And so this second volume of "Mary MacLane" does not seem to enter the world with bright prospects. It does not even compare favorably with its predecessor. The frontispiece of the earlier volume was not unattractive; but we cannot afford to put anything of the author in the present volume even that negative praise. If we did not fear that we might thereby be laying ourselves open to a charge of libel, we should comment on the portrait of the author that appears as a frontispiece to this volume as follows: If this be an accurate picture of Mary MacLane, then she is an unintelligent, uninteresting, sleepy-looking creature, with a mass of hair that resembles more than anything else a bunch of unraveled cloth of cotton. As to the text of the volume; poor little Mary has gone beyond her depth. In her earlier book she confined herself to a very small subject—herself—and her failure was less marked; but when she would discourse on Mrs. Fiske, and on Trouble Bridge, and subjects that call for thought, her efforts are pitiable.

It does not seem to us probable that "My Friend Annabel Lee" will have a large sale; and if Mary MacLane is going to write any more books we are persuaded that she never can be equal of the present work the better will be the chances for the future productions of this western writer.

Lilian Bell.

THE DOWAGER COUNTESS AND THE AMERICAN GIRL. By Lilian Bell. Harper & Bros., New York.

Lilian Bell has always reminded us more or less of John Kendrick Bangs. We suppose that both Lilian Bell and Mr. Bangs would protest at being compared with the other, and yet the very reason why they would protest is the identical cause of the comparison in our opinion; namely, they each manage to turn out a lot of "copy" that is surprisingly bad. One wonders how a man who has written as cleverly as did Mr. Bangs on occasions can today sanction the publication of such poor stuff with his name upon the title page. And the same wonder is experienced in connection with Lilian Bell. Miss Bell, as she was then, wrote several things that were clever and pleasing; but today when she is either clever or pleasing the reader seems taken by surprise.

Eighteen months in the Harpers published, we believe it was in their portrait series, a collection of stories by Lilian Bell under the title "Sir John and the American Girl." The story that gave the book its title was one of the best things Miss Bell has had from the pen of Miss Bell. It was short and amusing; its action moved swiftly; its characters were decided types. Mr. Alfred Ety, according to the dedication, was also pleased with "Sir John and the American Girl," but he did a foolish thing in advising the author to write a continuation of the little story. In the dedication, Lilian Bell says: "To my friend Alfred Ely, Esq., who was the first to suggest this sequel to 'Sir John and the American Girl.'" And now "The Dowager Countess and the American Girl" (what a burdensome title) comes to tell what happened to the American girl after Sir John had put an end to the question of her future. Sir John, relative, the younger son of the Earl of Mayhew, should follow the dictates of his heart or his family in the matter of choosing a wife.

In this new volume is told the story of a family duel between the Englishman's mother, the elderly dowager countess of England, and the wife of her son, the American girl. The characters that were met in "Sir John and the American Girl" are again introduced to the reader; but they appear less strongly in the present work. Sir John, Edith Joyce, Archibald Cavendish, and the relatives of the Englishman that stood out so distinctly in the short story, become blurred and conventional and melodramatic in the present work. The renewal of the acquaintance is not pleasing to the reader, for the pleasant impression made by the earlier acquaintance with these characters is much detracted from by afterwards finding people who promised so well at first sight developing into bores, at times at least.

Of course, "The Dowager Countess and the American Girl" is readable. It is interesting throughout, despite its faults, but it is not the kind of work that we have reason to expect from the pen of Lilian Bell, and that Lilian Bell can give us if she wills to do it. We could name a dozen books that we have apparently praised more highly than the volume under review, but which fell far beneath it in real merit; but then the other works were written for an entirely different audience, and that audience was in view when the books were criticised. If Lilian Bell is writing for the same class of readers that enjoyed The Duchess, then we are sure that the readers for whom she writes will think "The Dowager Countess and the American Girl" just "too grand." But if Lilian Bell has in mind an intelligent audience when she writes, then she must steer clear of the conventionality, the melodramatic, and the amateurishness that mar the present work if she hopes to hold her audience.

Loomis at Play.

A PARTNERSHIP IN MAGIC. By Charles Battle Loomis. The Lothrop Publishing Company.

Charles Battell Loomis, the popular humorist, ventures before the public with "A Partnership in Magic," his first piece of long fiction. It has a fairy-tale motive in a realistic setting. It is a book written for the younger reader; but it may be read without harm and with profit by the older reader. We believe that Mr. Loomis can tell just what he aimed to accomplish and just what he has succeeded in accomplishing better than we, and so we shall give him a chance to speak for himself. We have had "prefaces" and "forewords" and "introductions"; but we believe that to Mr. Loomis belongs the credit for having created "A Word Before," which is as follows:

"Dear Reader: When I was a 'dear reader' myself, I fought shy of the preface until I had finished the story, because I knew that there were certain writers who made no bones of saying out and out that the hero died in the last chapter, and I did not like to hear bad news until it was absolutely necessary.

"Now if I tell you that the hero doesn't die at all, you may feel like reading my preface, but as it seems to be the present mode for writers to do all their talking in the story, and never to throw in anything for good measure, I'll follow the mode.

"I regret this decision because it's lots of fun to get up and make a speech to the people before the actual performance begins, and that's what a preface is, or should be: just a familiar little speech while the folk are tripping over many feet and finding their seats and settling themselves for the performance in comfortable attitudes. You know the style: 'I regret to say that owing to the illness of Miss Soand-So, there will be no heroine, as it was found impossible to obtain a substitute at short notice. I assure you, ladies and gentlemen, that this will not make the slightest difference in the working of the plot and thanking ing you for your kind attendance, and hoping that you will report any incivilities on the part of the ushers, I am,' etc.

"By the way, I hope you'll like the pictures. Mr. Heyer read the story before he drew them, and so he knew what he was at, and I think you'll agree with me that he's all right. If, after reading the story, you decide that there was any 'Partnership in Magic,' he was one of the partners.

"CHARLES BATTELL LOOMIS."

Although we are told that this book is meant for the juvenile reader, the older reader will catch from this introduction a glimpse into the delicate humor and satire that characterizes the work of Mr. Loomis, and that will be lost on the younger reader. The older reader will find the style attractive, the fun irresistible, and the story itself not beneath his dignity. The story, of course, will be the chief source of interest to the boy or girl. In "A Partnership in Magic" a country boy, who has a marvelous power of plucking fruit from the bare branches of any tree, goes to New York, and with a friend starts in the fruit business, and makes a big sum of money in a couple of weeks of their partnership. There is a cruel stepfather, and his adventures in New York in search of the boy, together with the many city scenes in connection with the hero's experiences, make it a highly amusing and graphic story.

As for the illustrations, they are all that Mr. Loomis claims for them.

BOOK NOTES.

Why practice, Love, this small economy
Of your heart's favors? Can you keep a kiss
To be enjoyed in age? and would the free
Expense of pleasure leave you penniless?
Nay, nay. Be wise. Believe me, pleasure is
A gambler's token, only gold today.
The day of love is short, the every bliss
Untasted now is a bliss thrown away.
'Twere pitiful, in truth, such treasures should
Lie by like misers' coats till mouldy grown.
Think you the hand of age will be less rude
In touching your sweet bosom than my own?
Alas, what matter, when our heads are gray,
Whether you loved, or did not love today?

—[From "Love Poems by W. S. Blunt." Reprinted by permission of John Lane, Esq.

Dramas based on Dickens's stories appear with a frequency that is eloquent testimony to the great novelist's popularity, and new editions of his work multiply to the confusion of his detractors. Many of the dramas are old plays subjected to new treatment, but ever fresh in their appeal to human nature. Thirty-four years ago Sam Emery, a noted actor, used to lift his voice nightly on the stage of the Olympic in London, and bring down the house with old Peggoty's pathetic cry, 'I'm a-going to seek my Em'ly.' Now, at the Adelphi, in the Strand, he is succeeded by Mr. Cartwright, an actor whose impersonation of the simple, great-hearted fisherman is said to be as robustly effective in humor and pathos as was that of his predecessor. "Em'ly," as the latest adaptation of "David Copperfield" is called, is supported by a good company and looks to be a success. We note that Miss Madge Lessing, who has deserted us so long, does wonders with little Em'ly, her comic opera training notwithstanding.

The Ford family seems to be coming it strong in the making of books. There was James L. Ford, who made us all sit up with "The Literary Shop;" there was the late Paul Leicester Ford, of "Janice Meredith" fame, and now there are two S. Fords who are in danger of getting themselves mixed. Indeed, Sewell Ford, who has a humorous story in the September Harper's Magazine, has had to unravel a tangle which got him mixed up with Simeon Ford, the author of "A Few Remarks." In a letter to the editor of the Bangor Daily Commercial he says:

Dear Sir: With an intent evidently of the best, you have most amazingly mixed the deeds and doings of two Fords. I am one of them. No, I am not going to be indignant. I expect, in my sixteen years of newspaper work, I have made many "breaks" of the same kind. This is merely to untangle myself for your benefit from the other Ford, and perhaps prevent more confusion among my numerous relatives in Maine.

The author of "Horses Nine," who was born in South Levant, and who remembers coming into Bangor at daybreak with his "Uncle Will" to sell green corn, is Sewell Ford. That's me. Simeon Ford, whose picture you printed and to whom you gave credit for writing the horse stories, is the genial proprietor of the Grand Union Hotel in New York. . . .

It's Sewell Ford who had sixteen (not thirty-five) years' experience in newspaper work, Simeon who is the "long, lean laugh-maker." . . . "Haven't achieved much fame, and what little I possess I cannot afford to have merged with Simeon's, which is greater and of a different character.

Sincerely, SEWELL FORD.

An anecdote about Browning in the Cornhill Magazine relates that "when he produced an early volume of poems he was delighted at receiving a letter from J. S. Mill proposing to write a notice of them in the Westminster Review. A few days after his expectations were dashed by hearing from Mill saying he could not write the article as he had been forestalled by a notice which had appeared in the Westminster Review itself. With palpitating heart Browning rushed to his club and searched the pages of the Review to find to his dismay the article which had robbed him of J. S. Mill's notice. It was to this effect: 'A volume of poems by Browning, balderdash.'" Now Sir Algernon West, who tells the story, is slightly inaccurate. In the first place, the reference was not to "a volume of poems," but to Browning's "Pauline," which appeared in 1832. In the second place, the scant review did not appear in the Westminster Review, but in Tait's Magazine, and it was for the latter Mill intended to notice "Pauline," but was forestalled. In the third place, the criticism was not "balderdash," but a piece of pure bewilderment." The difference and scorn with which Browning was at first received by the critics gave Miss Barrett cause for the expression of a fine indignation in her early letters to the young poet.

At a time when the name of Carlyle is being dragged in the mud by his detractors, it is refreshing to come across Ruskin's testimony in one of the delightful letters which he wrote to Mary Gladstone. "The death of Carlyle," he writes, "is no sorrow to me. It is, I believe, not an end, but a beginning of his real life. Nay, perhaps, also of mine. My remorse, every day he lived, for not having seen and loved him in the days gone by, is no greater now, but less, in the hope that he knows what I am feeling about him at this—and all other—moments."

Randall Blackshaw, writing of the poet William Ernest Henley in the current "Critic," says: "Henley had the same love of talk and argument that Whistler had, with even more than Whistler's aggressiveness. He met opposition, because his rugged nature found itself in the wordy combat which were the only form of strife to which unkind fate allowed him to engage. He was built for battle with man or with the elements; but nature, having bestowed upon him, with one hand, a stature of a viking, withdrew the gift with the other hand by adding a physical malady that sapped his strength and plagued his life from childhood's middle age—for it was to middle age only that he had attained when the end came, on July 11. . . . His comradeships, his combativeness, and his criticisms, and the criticisms he invoked, were apt to be of the "slashing" order. He wielded, not the finely-tempered needle-pointed rapier of the duellist, but a well-ground ax, that sometimes turned in his hand and came down headforemost with the blunt force of a navvy's hammer."

Here are informed, that William Watson Crane is soon to appear in the dramatization of Harry Leon Wilson's strong novel, "The Spenders."

ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

Advent Christian Churches of Southern California Close Their Yearly Assemblage Tomorrow at Old Central Park.

The Advent Christian Churches of Southern California have been holding their annual conference and camp meeting during the past ten days at the old Central Park out on Central avenue, between Forty-ninth and Fiftieth street. There have been many interesting sessions, and people have been in attendance from all parts of Southern California. The annual conference for Northern California closed last week at Santa Cruz, and a good body has sent as its fraternal delegate to the southern brethren, Rev. R. Fiske of Napa.

One of the features of the week was the Home and Foreign Missionary Societies' anniversary last Tuesday. The business session and a programme of missionary topics occupied the afternoon, and at night an address was given by Miss Armstrong, a missionary who has been back from her work in India only a few weeks.

At the first meeting Mrs. Sarah M. Bowen of Tustin was elected president; Mrs. A. E. Pinkham of Pasadena, vice president; Mrs. A. G. Corson of Los Angeles, secretary and treasurer.

Thursday was given to the "Young People's" work, the young people's society of the Advent Christian Church. There was a sunrise meeting; a business session in the forenoon, and an annual sermon by Elder W. A. Blodgett of Colton. The afternoon was devoted to a programme of topics pertinent to the young people's work, and in the evening an address was given by Elder E. P. DeGrief of Los Angeles.

Yesterday afternoon the sermon was delivered by Elder W. R. Chandler of Tropico; and the election of officers for the conference was taken up. Elder L. H. Rogers was elected president, and Elder D. Webster of Tustin as vice-president. The other officers will be elected at this morning's session.

The speakers on today's programme are Elder D. Webster for this morning, Elder D. Fiske of Napa this afternoon, and Elder L. A. Rogers tonight. Tomorrow will be the last day of the conference.

"THE COUGH IN LOWER SEVEN," title of an interesting story by [illegible] Spearman which will appear in The Times Magazine the coming Sunday.

How many bright-face wo[men] are there among us, who spend good share of their lives in [the] kitchens?

And what is a bright face [worth] for? What is a woman good [for] without it?

May be, it's none of our busine[ss] we're thinking of coal and [gas] cookstoves; how coal makes [ashes], and gas would smooth [things] out if it could.

And coal is extravagant, too; [we] use it because we're used to it. [Even] if we could only get some [new] habits; we stick to our old ones.

THE CONNECTION.

After David spared Saul at Hachilah and reproached him for his cruelty, he fled to the Philistine Achish, King of Gath, for he knew Saul too well to accept his impulsive invitation to go back to the palace. He felt more deserted than ever, for he knew Saul would kill him if he had a chance. It was a risky thing to go to his enemies, where he would have to practice deception and might get into trouble. He deceived the King with professions of friendship and was given the city of Ziklag for himself and his band. He was made guardian of the borders, and was forced to pretend to be an enemy of his own people. He lied before the King, but not his lords, and when the Philistines went to war with Saul, they would not let David fight with them against Israel for fear he would betray them in a critical hour. He and his men were sent back home, but on their return found that Ziklag had been burned and plundered by the Amalekites. He recovered their families and possessions, at the same time they [heard] was going on in a tragic fashion between the Philistines and the Amalekites. The former were encamped [at] Jezreel in the Valley of Esdraelon, one of the world's famous battle fields, where Saul and his army had gathered. Saul was unnerved. SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 6.

I Samuel xxxi, 1-12. Death of Saul and Jona- than.

THE CONNECTION.

After David spared Saul at Hachilah and reproached him for his cruelty, he fled to the Philistine Achish, King of Gath, for he knew Saul too well to accept his impulsive invitation to go back to the palace. He felt more desolate than ever, for he knew Saul would kill him if he had a chance. It was a rash thing to go to his enemies, where he would have to practice deception and would get into trouble. He deceived the King with professions of friendship, and was given the city of Ziklag for himself and his band. He was made guardian of the borders, and was forced to pretend to be an enemy of his own people. He hoodwinked the King, but not his lords, and when the Philistines went to war with Saul, they would not let David fight with them against Israel for fear he would betray them in a critical hour. He and his men were sent back home, but on their return found that Ziklag had been burned and plundered by the Amalekites. He recovered their families and possessions, at the same time the war was going on in a tragic fashion between the Philistines and the Amalekites. The former were encamped at Jezreel in the Valley of Esdraelon, one of the world's famous battle fields, where Saul and his army had gathered. Saul was unnerved. Samuel, his counselor, was dead; God had left him. The army of Philistines, awful in size and equipment, was too much for him. In his despair, he relapsed into the superstition he had tried to suppress, by God's command, and consulted a witch. Samuel appeared, not because of the witch, but because God allowed him to announce Saul's doom. The tragic events follow very rapidly, and it is an important fact that the awful defeat of Saul, for distrust and disobedience, took place near where Gideon, with careful and brave obedience, won a unique victory several generations before.

THE LESSON.

I.

Circumstances of their death. 1-6.

"1. Now the Philistines fought against Israel; and the men of Israel fled from before the Philistines, and fell down slain in Mount of Gilboa. 2. And the Philistines followed hard upon Saul and upon his sons; and the Philistines slew Jonathan, and Abinadab, and Malchi-shua, the sons of Saul. 3. And the battle went sore against Saul, and the archers overtook him; and he was greatly distressed by reason of the archers. 4. Then said Saul to his armorbearer, draw thy sword, and thrust me through therewith, lest these uncircumcised come and thrust me through, and abuse me. But his armorbearer would not; for he was sore afraid. Therefore Saul took his sword, and fell upon it. 5. And when his armorbearer saw that Saul was dead, he likewise fell upon his sword, and died with him. 6. So Saul died, and his three sons, and his armorbearer, and all his men, that same day together."

The place where they fought—in the Valley of Esdraelon—has been a famous battle field. There Deborah and Barak defeated Sisera; Gideon routed the Midianites; Saul and Israel were defeated in Mt. Gilboa; Josiah was slain in battle with Pharaoh Necbio about three centuries later; the Crusaders were overpowered by Saracens in 1187 A. D. The valley was a center and a pivoted place.

The people were demoralized from the start. Their former defeats; the size and equipment of the Philistine army; the contagious despair of their leader, Saul—these things unnerved them.

They seem to have fallen back after a brave fight and been driven up the hill, Gilboa.

The Philistines concentrated their attack on Saul and his body guard, among whom were three of his sons. At first to fall was the brave and beautiful Jonathan, and then the other sons, perhaps as they sought to keep the enemy away from their father. That did not save Saul, but only added to the bitterness of his defeat.

In the final moment of utmost despair Saul took his own life, by planting the hilt of his sword in the ground and falling on its sharp point. Let us not try to enter into his feelings and understand the reason for the rash deed. Should he entered on the battle, he was unnerved by the ripening conviction that God had doomed him, as Samuel had told him, during his life time, to his death. Now, at this moment, these things crushed his hope and led to the suicide—his people were routed and many slain in army, all gone; his sons were slain, all save one, and there was small hope that he would have a king from among his sons; the curse was upon him, and would surely follow him; they would torture him before killing him, and he shrank from unnamed pain; they would make sport of him, too, in ways that would add to his humiliation and he would fear that. As Maclaran says:

"We have to think of him as there lies like a wounded bison, his sons and his kingdom gone, his soldierly life quenched, the arrows falling around him, and black despair in his heart. Never was there a more tragic ending of a career once radiant with great possibilities and rich in splendid promise. How far he had fallen from that day when, in the early morning, Samuel poured the oil on his head and kissed him. And everything had all been steadily declining till he had reached this lowest depth of despair and self-slaughter. The glory was gone, courage was gone, and now life had gone; and now life had lost its charm. What had been the beginning of the fall? Self-will putting aside a divine commandment. What had been the progress of the fall? Complete abandonment to his own lawless, suspicious, unbridled passions; spasms of remorse that found no expression, and did not change his conduct or his heart; gloomy fits of the torturing jealousy that wore away all his old frank generosity and worked him into savage hatred of his noble son and of the young hero who had done so much for him; and the worst of all, and cause of all, obstinate determination not to bend, however God might strike, but to defy Him and all its lightnings."

His armorbearer would not take his life, for he feared to touch the man whom God had anointed to be King; he feared to incur the displeasure and punishment of the nation; he feared to do wrong. In loyal devotion he followed suit.

II.

Effect on the Philistines. 7-10.

"7. And when the men of Israel that were on the other side of the valley, and they that were beyond Jordan, saw that the men of Israel fled, and that Saul and his sons were dead, they forsook the cities, and fled; and the Philistines came and dwelt in them. 8. And it came to pass on the morrow, when the Philistines came to strip the slain, that they found Saul and his three sons fallen in Mount Gilboa. 9. And they cut off his head, and stripped off his armor, and sent into the land of the Philistines round about, to carry the tidings unto the house of their idols, and to the people. 10. And they put his armor in the house of the Ashtaroth; and they fastened his body to the wall of Beth-shan."

The general results of the battle were the complete panic of the Israelites even beyond the valley, in which the battle was fought and even beyond Jordan and the occupation of their homes and cities by the Philistines. That was further north than the Philistines had yet gone and gave them a new lordship over the nation of Israel, which continued till after David was made King. After telling these general results the historian tells us how they treated the dead body of Saul. They looted the deserted cities that night and the next day paid their respects to the dead King. They enjoyed a brutal treatment of their fallen foe. They cut off his head and stripped off his armour. The head, they sent it around to the different cities as a trophy and after exhibiting it in various temples fixed it in the temple of Dagon (1. Chronicle x:10.) The armour—they displayed it in the temple of Ashtaroth. The body—they maimed it and pinned it to the wall of Beth-Shan, te largest city in the valley. Thus they gratified their cruelty, flattered their god and goddess and insulted the nation of Israel.

III.

Effect on Israel. 11-13.

"(11.) And when the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead heard concerning him that which the Philistines had done to Saul. (12.) All the valiant men arose, and went all night, and took the body of Saul and the bodies of his sons from the wall of Beth-shan; and they came to Jabesh, and burnt them there. (13.) And they took their bones, and buried them under the tamarisk-tree in Jabesh, and fasted seven days."

We know its effect on David. It almost broke his heart and he composed a great requiem, the Song of the Bow, which we find in 2. Samuel, first chapter. The rest of the nation seem to have been awed. Only one community made any demonstration—that of Jabesh-gilead, over the Jordan. When a young King, Saul had come to their aid, and driven off the Ammonites. Their gratitude is beautiful and furnishes the only ray of sunshine, save the song of David, in all that dark tragedy. They were brave, for they dared to go by night and steal away the bodies pinned to the wall of Beth-Shan, to show them proper respect. They burned the decaying bodies, buried the charred bones and appointed a day of morning. When David became King, he thanked them for this.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

A thousand years after Saul's day, a thousand Hebrews, by unanimous consent, slew one another in masada to save themselves from falling alive into the hands of the Romans; and it is still the case, men prefer to die rather than to be taken prisoners by a non-Christian enemy. David knew this; therefore he said, "Let me not fall into the hand of man," (2. Samuel xxiv:14.) Non-Christian victors inflict not only physical torture, but every possible indignity on their prisoners. The courtesy and kind treatment which prisoners received in the American-Spanish War, and still later in South Africa, are products of the life of Jesus Christ, which Saul had no reason to expect at the hands of the Philistines, and no one expects here today.—[Howie.

And what was the end of his downward progress? A death full of despair. The last suicidal act, dreadful as it was, and rare as its like is in Scripture history, was but the expression of the thick darkness that had settled on him. It was the appropriate end of such a life, for he had been committing slow suicide for years, slaying his spirit by his sinful self-will; and when he desperately fell on his own sword, he was ending his career in the same fashion as he had pursued it. But it is pitiful and strange, yet most true to nature, that his last dread should be of a trivial matter. What lay heavy on his soul was not the loss of sons, kingdom, glory, or even the loss of communion with God; what he feared was nothing beyond the grave, but the mockery of his foes if he fell into their hands living.—[Maclaran.

Jabesh-gilead knew only Saul the hero; they were ignorant of Saul the made man. The honor they gave him was worthy of the delusion they possessed. Even when we know more about people, and see the evil as well as the good, we have the power, as Longfellow says, of thinking of the evil forces that made the wrong, or pitying, where we would blame, and of forgiving where we would judge. That is the heart of Jesus in the life of the world.—J. R. Brown.

POINTS TO IMPRESS.

(1.) That, if God's people keep right with God, they will never have to retreat.

(2.) That sin is suicide.

(3.) That it is necessary, not only to begin, but to continue, right.

(4.) That superstition invariably mates with a false religion.

(5.) That the unselfish fidelity of Jonathan is to be imitated.

(6.) That kindness to a helpless foe is a mark of manliness.

(7.) That gratitude for kindness received should never be allowed to die out of the heart.

(8.) That it is a duty to discover and cherish every virtue, both of the living and the dead.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

STANDING FOR RIGHT.

Terse Comments on the Uniform Prayer Meeting Topic for Christian Endeavor Societies, the Baptist Young People's Union, Etc., for Sept. 6. "The Allied Forces of Righteousness." John xvii, 20-23; 1 Cor. i, 10-12.

By William T. Ellis

Christian unity has always been the dream and desire of true disciples, even as it was of Jesus himself. A divided church is a debilitated church. Whatever hinders oneness is not of God, but of evil. Many ingenious arguments have been invented to show that Christianity is better off for being divided up into a multitude of parties and names; but over against these must be put the plain words of Jesus concerning the oneness of his followers. In these present times this great truth is being recognized as it has not been for ages. The spirit of Christian unity is stronger today than it has been for hundreds of years. There are many signs that the unity for which the Master prayed is becoming also the desire and purpose of his Church.

The sectarianism of our grandfathers is dead, never again to be resurrected. Instead of a narrow denominationalism, we see today, in all branches of the Church universal, a spirit of Christian tolerance and brotherhood that is a foreglean of the dawn of Christian unity.

The modern interdenominational movements, of which the young people's societies are a conspicuous example, illustrate the power which may be gained by cooperation. The world cannot ignore the allied forces of the kingdom, nor fail to feel their power.

He who keeps close to Christ in service will find himself a fellow-worker with many brethren.

Whatever or whoever, for selfish or sectarian reasons, stands in the way of the closest fellowship and cooperation of the followers of Jesus should be resolutely pushed aside. If any one man or body of men, or any commercial institution, is hindering the amalgamation of the host of similar young people's societies in America—to cite a case of immediate interest—he, or they, or it, whichever it may be, should be made to feel the irresistible force of Christian opinion. It is idle for us to talk about the allied forces of righteousness in our prayer meetings, and yet refuse to give the hand of fellowship in Christian work to a body of neighboring Christian young people with identical purposes and organization.

Men cannot be laborers together with one another.

Whoever is serving the truth, wherever or in whatever way it may be, is an ally of every other servant of truth in all the universe.

Evil cannot stand before Christians standing together.

The old watchword is still a good one for all who would work together in the service of righteousness—"In essentials, unity; in non-essentials, liberty; in all things, charity."

THE CALLING OF A LEADER.

Comments on the Epworth League Topic for September 6, "The Call of Moses." Ex. iii, 1-12.

God's calls come only to the qualified. Wherever God speaks is a holy place. Humility may easily become distrust of God.

Moses, like that other great leader of Israel, Samuel, replied: "Here am I," to God's call, and, like Samuel, he was given to see that God can make great use of any servant who simply stands in readiness to do his will.

God never calls the wrong man.

The great causes of God still have as their most serious need leaders who will hear the call of God, and dare great things at His command.

One of the mistakes of Moses—as it has been a mistake of almost every other man summoned to a great duty—was that his mind dwelt more on the fact that Moses was being called than on the fact that God was calling him. He looked too much upon his own weakness and not enough upon God's might.

Mr. and Mrs. James MacMullen and two sons are again in camp and will pass the rest of the month here.

A Social Triumph.

A lady from Alexandria, Va., visiting in Philadelphia quite recently, told an anecdote of her retiring cook, which is good enough to be told again.

Myra, the colored cook, gave notice to Mrs. Richardson of her intention to leave at the end of the week. Mrs. R. highly prized the cook's abilities in the culinary line, and proceeded to interview her in an effort to learn the reason for her departure. The following conversation ensued:

"Myra, are you not satisfied with the wages, and the home I give you?"

"Yes, Mis' Richurson, I allus bin happy wiv you all."

"Well, why do you leave?"

"Say, Mis' Richurson, don't you all 'member dat fun'l in de nex' block, las' Friday?"

GRIFFITH.

flammation set in, her condition would at once become much more serious, or even critical.

Despite the seriousness of his wife's condition, the actions of Col. Griffith yesterday were such as to be remarked by those who observed them. There was that about his manner which seemed to deepen the mystery surrounding the case. He visited the hospital, of course, and later he took his lunch at the Jonathan Club and during the morning called at the City Hall, presumably to attend a meeting of the Board of Park Commissioners. Last night he returned to Santa Monica, saying that he intended to drive from there to Los Angeles this morning. It is unfortunately true that Col. Griffith has been drinking lately. He had been drinking yesterday before he returned to Santa Monica. Wherever he is known, and that includes practically all sections of this end of the State, he has long been regarded as peculiar in some respects. When in his normal condition, Col. Griffith has been the personification of geniality, but when in his cups—and he has not frequently been in that condition—he has been known to give way to a display of violent temper when crossed even about little things.

Few men in Los Angeles are more generally known than Col. Griffith. He has been a prominent figure in this city for many years. He is the owner of the famous Los Feliz rancho, a portion of which was deeded to the city as Griffith Park. As to public-spiritedness, he has given frequent evidences of the possession of that quality, and he has often taken a leading part in public affairs. Hollywood owes much of her development to his energy, and in matters taken up by the Chamber of Commerce he has always stood ready to do his share of the work necessary to the welfare of the city. For several years the family lived at the Nadeau Hotel.

Mrs. Griffith is a native of Los Angeles county. Her father was the late Louis Mesmer, who was one of the most widely-known of the pioneers of Los Angeles county. He amassed a fortune and for years conducted the United States Hotel on North Main street. She is a sister to Joseph and Tony Mesmer and Mrs. Charles L. Whipple.

FAMILY COUNCIL.

CAUSES OF TROUBLE.

Relatives of the family of Mrs. Griffith gathered last night at the house of Mrs. Griffith's sister, Mrs. C. L. Whipple, to express their deep sympathy for Mrs. Griffith and to fully discuss the horrible affair. The meeting was long and discursive, and it is needless to say that the conversation covered the ground since the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Griffith. The general sentiment of those present was that the facts in the case looked very black and are in need of an airing.

"We do not feel that we can come out with a statement now," said Mr. Whipple, who was the spokesman or chairman as it were, of the meeting. "We do not know what Mrs. Griffith may say, and can not tell. The brave little woman has stood by her husband through all and may stand by him still. We do not believe that she attempted to kill herself. Such a claim will not be listened to for one minute. It was not an attempt at suicide, emphatically no."

Mr Whipple added a little later, "from facts at hand it does not seem as if the accident claim can be reasonable."

"Does that not narrow the case down to just one thing?" was asked.

"It may look that way, but still we must wait," he answered.

"Is a cause given for the row which is said to have taken place between Mr. and Mrs. Griffith before the shot was fired?"

"It is now known that Mr. and Mrs. Griffith have had many words in the past on religious questions, she being a devout Catholic and he hating the Catholics worse than poison. The question of the bringing up of their son has always been a source of trouble, and it is thought that this was the cause of the words."

"If Griffith did the deed," said one of the other relatives present, "we are inclined to believe that the man is insane. We have thought so before. He is a moral man, but he has his hobbies and ideas and some of the latter have at times almost verged on insanity. It is so with his hatred of the Catholics."

In the controversy the fact has come to light that Griffith is censured by some of the members of his wife's family for his treatment of her in regard to money matters. It was stated last night that after he was engaged to her and after the wedding invitations had been sent out and the young woman placed in such a position that withdrawal would be most embarrassing, Griffith demanded of her that she deed over to him the Briswalter tract, which later sold for $200,000. The family say this act has been a handicap to Griffith ever since and last night the matter was dragged back into conversation after all these years.

It was the opinion of the meeting last night that Mrs. Griffith has suffered unknown trials from her husband and that of late the drink craze has been the worst evil.

"No matter which way the wind blows when more is known, we do not feel that enough can ever be proven on the defensive to clear Griffith in the minds of most of us." This statement was made by one of the relatives.

There were seven relatives present and they decided to stand together as a body and see the matter to the end at all costs.

WHAT MRS. BRADY SAW.

Mrs. Brady, daughter of C. A. Harrison, proprietor of the Abbotsford inn, was standing in the window of her room at the Arcadia when Mrs. Griffith struck on the porch roof directly in front of her. Mrs. Brady was so frightened that she screamed loudly for help and then rushed to the office of the hotel and reported what she had witnessed. Mrs. Brady could not be found yesterday, but if the affair ever comes into court will prove a strong witness, as she heard the shot and went to the window in an endeavor to ascertain the cause.

DETECTIVE EMPLOYED.

If any steps are taken toward prosecution, Isadore Dockweiler will take the initiative.

Detective Hawley was sent to Santa Monica last evening to secure the gun and prevent its being tampered with.

This is the first step in the prosecution.

Large Families in Lincolnshire.

Large families are so much the rule in Lincolnshire that the Agricultural Society of that county has for many years offered four prizes, ranging from £4 to £1, to "laborers in husbandry who have brought up and placed out the greatest number of children without having received parochial relief or occupied more than half an acre of land." This year the ten laborers who entered the competition aggregated 141 children. The first prizewinner, Thomas Hought, of Telby, Market Rasen, has had nineteen, seventeen of whom he brought up, and twelve of whom are "placed out."—[Tit-Bits.

"I could not get along without Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They give me almost instant relief from almost any pain. I give them to all of the children, even the baby, and we feel no bad effects afterwards, as one does from most remedies."—MRS. IRA ALLEN, 206 Indiana Ave., Riverside, Calif.

"Two years ago I had a severe attack of La Grippe, and was under the doctor's care for five days without any relief. Then I bought a box of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, and five Pills cured me. A short time ago I had another attack, but thanks to the Pain Pills I was soon cured, taking only three of the pills."—JOHN N. PURTTEMAN, Glendale, Ohio.

"I have used Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for a number of years, and find that they promptly relieve ordinary and neuralgiac headache. They give similar relief to my wife."—D. B. BAKER, Los Angeles, Calif.

"Once, and often twice a week, for years I have had spells of dull, heavy pains across the forehead, accompanied with pains in the heart, arm and shoulders. I find Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills very beneficial, one tablet usually being sufficient to stop the pain."—MRS. LEONA ELDER, Wheatland, Calif.

"I have frequently used Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for Neuralgia, and they give speedy relief. Also in traveling, am never without them, using them to prevent drowsiness and headache."—E. L. SANFORD, Mgr. Etna Springs Hotel, Etna Springs, Calif.

MRS. M. S. TOBEY, who owas 11 years postmistress at Carpenteria, Calif., says: "I suffered a long time from nervous headache, and very severe pain in the back of my neck. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills brought relief, for which I was very grateful. I am pleased to recommend them to others."

Dills Cure Headache

Ague Pains, Indigestion, Dizziness, Nervousness and Sleeplessness. Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Backache, La Grippe, Pain in Stomach,

"I have used Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for Neuralgia and Nervous Headache and always received prompt relief. The headaches occurred at intervals, usually in the morning, and taking a Pain Pill when first symptom appeared, always prevented the attacks. My husband also used them for headache, and says he could not get along without them."—MRS. W. H. BRADBURY, Moscow, Idaho.

"I am very grateful that I have found such a perfect remedy for headache. I had a sunstroke while in the army, and ever since have suffered greatly from headache and biliousness. The only thing that ever gave me any relief was Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, which I have used with satisfactory results for a number of years."—M. B. BALLARD, 98 Catlina Ave., Pasadena, Calif.

"I have been bothered for years with headache and dull pains. I came across some of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, and tried them, and they gave me relief at once. I have found them to be just the thing, and recommend them highly."—J. FRANK STERNS, Eugene, Ore.

"I was long subject to spells of severe pain through the eyes and across my forehead—caused by indigestion. The attacks often continued two days, during which time I was unable to do anything. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills relieved the pain, and I afterwards prevented the attacks by taking one Pill when I felt the malady coming on. I have used them for a long time and they never fail to relieve me."—W. R. HOYT, Hillsboro, Ore.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are sold by all druggists, 25 cents a box, under a positive guarantee that the first box will benefit or money refunded.

FORESTRY FROM THE COMMERCIAL SIDE.

TIMBER USERS ADDRESSED BY GIFFORD PINCHOT.

He Tells the Engineers and Architects How the Bureau of Forestry Seeks to Educate Railroad and Lumber Companies Not to Waste Trees.

The Engineers' and Architects' Association entertained at their dinner last night at Levy's Gifford Pinchot, chief of the government Bureau of Forestry, and Ralph Hosmer, of Mr. Pinchot's staff, who is in charge of the experimental work being carried on in Southern California.

Beside touching on the points of general importance in the work of his bureau tnat he has put before the public previously during his present visit, the forestry expert spoke upon a phase of his work especially affecting the professions of those gathered before him—the commercial side of forest protection.

"Through the liberality of Congress," he said, "the Bureau of Forestry has recently been enabled to take up for study the questions of supply, and the construction use of timber throughout the United States. The proper forester is not a protector of individual trees, but of forests. This world's work cannot be conducted without wood, and the wood must naturally come from the forests, and the question is how to cut necessary timber without destroying its source.

"In connection with this question the plan of timber tests adopted by the bureau is now carried on in different parts of the country, including work at Berkeley done in conjunction with the authorities of the State University.

"The bureau has taken up the question of the conservation of timber supplies with the railroads of the country, which use 120,000,000 new ties each year, and I am happy to say that some of the largest lines have begun to enter into the work with the best spirit. One of the important studies in this connection is to find a way to lengthen the life of ties, another is to increase the production of the forests by learning the most economical way of cutting the timber for this particular use; and we are seeking to educate the roads to the advisability of acquiring and scientifically handling timber tracts of their own from which to draw their supply.

"We must prolong the life of the forests. There is no reason why well-established forests, properly handled, should not keep on producing timber. If their working capital is kept secure, their surplus will supply commercial needs."

The speaker told further of the bureau's work with the great lumber companies, and said that many of them have responded by preparing to practice practical forestry on their lands. In California especially, he said, the companies are finding that it is a far better proposition for them to do their cutting in such a way as to leave a chance for a second growth instead of denuding their tracts and letting them revert to the State for delinquent taxes.

"The timber country west of the Sierra Nevadas and the Cascades will be the greatest natural timber factory in the world if properly cared for," prophesied the speaker. "Nowhere else is the reproduction of trees so fast, and all conditions tend to make the timber forests the most valuable asset of the Pacific Coast."

He said that the science of forestry is vital to the professional life of every business man in the United States, all industries being dependent on the maintenance of the timber supply, and urged that every citizen consider it a public duty to forward the establishment of a State institution for the immediate education of men to work for the preservation of the forests. He said that the preservation of the forests of the United States depends very largely on a favorable attitude of the private owner, as only a small proportion of timber land is under control of the government.

Mr. Hosmer followed his chief with a few words on the experimental work under his charge in this end of the State, especially as touching experiments with the eucalyptus as a tree of timber value. He said that careful forest maps covering the whole State are being made.

Others who spoke were T. C. Comstock, Abbott Kinney, John Parkinson, G. Purcell and S. T. Storrow. Mr. Kinney suggested that the island of San Clemente would be a likely place for the bureau to establish a forestry experiment station, as it is already under the control of the government, and new growths there would be unmolested in any way.

The association extended a vote of thanks to its forestry guests before adjourning.

ISRAEL.

Today there is no Israel—
No place they may call home,
But up and down through all the world
The paffent people roam.
For them there is no Canaan land
Where milk and honey flow,
But still the promises they hold,
And wait the call to go.
They watch for the pillar of cloud by day
And pillar of fire by night
To lead their feet in the promised way to th country of delight.

Today there is no Israel—
No tampled hills are here,
But yet the songs that David sang
Thrill all the worshipers.
But yet the golden prophecies,
As in the days of old,
Are cherished for the tenderness
And truth of what they hold.
And still they turn to the barring sea with hopefully trusting gaze
And wait and watch for the pathway fr that they walked in the other days.

Today there is no Israel—
No land of corn and wine.
Long, long the desert sand has hid
The fig tree and the vine;
But still the chant is echoing
And full its cadence keeps:
"Lo, He that keepeth Israel,
He slumbers not nor sleeps."
They watch for the pillar of fire by night an pillar of cloud by day
To mark the road that will lead aright to the end of the weary way.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

The new specifications for street work, together with the system of inspecting and approval of improvements by the city before dedication, will put an end to shoddy grading so evident in many of the tracts opened up recently for the sale of lots.

Mrs. Ollie Simpson, a girl who eloped, was sent to Whittier Reform School yesterday.

Walter Harvey was sent to State's prison for twenty years yesterday by Judge Smith.

AT THE CITY HALL.

CHECK TO WILDCAT STREET IMPROVEMENTS.

NO MORE SHODDY GRADING ON NEWLY-OPENED TRACTS.

Specifications for Work Require the Best and a Thorough System of Inspection—Many Thousand Dollars Worth of Oil Will Be Used Yearly in Surfacing.

Wildcat "improvements" on tracts, villas and other bodies of land laid out for the benefit of investors are to be cut out.

The new specifications for street grading and the system of approving the work on thoroughfares before their dedication to the city will bring about of necessity substantial methods of improvement.

The enforced use of oil along with the gravel by contractors in grading streets will also benefit the oil industry many thousands of dollars each year.

The specifications on which the City Engineer has been working for many weeks require that not less than a gallon of oil shall be mixed with each square yard of the surface layer of gravel, which is to be three inches in depth. The cost of the oil to be used on a street of ordinary width and length will be several hundred dollars.

Under the new law governing street grading there is to be a first layer of gravel five inches deep. On top of this will be laid the surfacing gravel, which is to be three inches deep, and thoroughly mixed with oil. Two applications of oil will be made and enough put in so that all of it is soaked up. The sand will be sprinkled over the gravel, altogether concealing the oily substance.

When a contractor has finished a street the City Engineer will test the work and find whether it comes up to specifications or not. If it should not the Council cannot accept the street.

The rule with reference to the acceptance of streets was made solely with a view to putting an end to hurried improvements by owners of tracts. Many of these have been responsible for the cheapest kind of street work, the only end to be accomplished being the sale of lots.

STEPS FOR TUMBLERS.

CHILDREN CAN GO SAFELY.

There are going to be some steps built at last for the dwellers above the Third-street tunnel, who occasionally are obliged to descend the Alpine trail that leads down into Hope street. The people there have been trying to get the city authorities to take action for, lo, these many weeks, and yesterday the Board of Public Works recommended that the City Engineer advertise for bids to construct the same steps from the hill on the south side of the tunnel down into the street.

Lawrence Holmes appeared before the board and drew a picture of kids tumbling down the hill. He said that he never missed seeing three or four children a day rolling down the eminence at the risk of their limbs. It is estimated that the cost of steps, which are to be of concrete, will be about $2000.

POOR PURPS.

AUGUST CURSED WITH CURS.

During the month of August the poundmaster caught, killed and scalped stray dogs to the number of 383, a record breaker. For each of these, the scalp and ears having been attested to, the poundmaster received $1, or a total for the month of $383. By this showing the poundmaster is the best paid of city officials.

Barbecue for Parkmen.

The park employes, with their families, are to be given a barbecue in Eastlake Park September 30. Park Commissioner Griffith will be master of ceremonies, and the other commissioners will come in on the beef and frijoles.

Parks are Valuable.

An estimate of the value of the parks of the city, exclusive of improvements, has been made by County Assessor Ward, and shows Los Angeles to possess in the way of park land $1,725,000. The various figures are as follows: Westlake, $775,000; Eastlake, $30,000; Hollenbeck, $35,000; Central, $750,000; Plaza, $10,000; Elysian, $150,000; Echo, $35,000; Prospect, $5000; St. James, $10,000; South, $20,000; Griffith, $300,000; Sunset, $18,000; Cemetery, $5000; Ela, $2000.

PLANNING ROYAL WELCOME.

Local Financiers Raise Five Thousand Dollars to Entertain the Delegates of the American Bankers' Association.

Local members are preparing to entertain delegates to the American Bankers' Association Convention, which meets in San Francisco October 20 to 23. They are going to do it in grand style, too.

It is estimated that probably 1200 delegates will attend the San Francisco meeting, as 1100 were present at the last year's gathering, which was held in New Orleans. It is anticipated that if inducements are offered many of these delegates and their families will visit this city.

Local members of the association are going to make sure that the right inducements are held out, and that there may be no doubt on this score they have already subscribed $5000 as an entertainment fund.

In speaking of the matter yesterday J. G. Mossin of the American National said: "Times are good at present, and indications point to a large attendance at the San Francisco meeting. As Southern California, especially Los Angeles, has been widely advertised, many are curious to see what we have to boast about. I believe that we will be able to bring a large delegation from San Francisco after the convention. As to the nature of the entertainment, that is now in the hands of a committee."

AT THE COURT HOUSE

MARRIED WOMAN SENT TO WHITTIER.

SHE ELOPED WITH A STREET CAR CONDUCTOR.

Left Her Husband and Went to an Evil Life in Happy Valley—Her Father Connived at Her Illegal Marriage. Neglectful Mother.

For the first time in the history of the local courts a married woman was sent to Whittier Reform School yesterday.

She is Ollie Simpson, who eloped with Bert Hadley, a street car conductor. They got a license in San Diego by means of a note in which her father misrepresented her age, she being really only 15, and incapable of contracting marriage.

Yesterday, in court, she impudently confessed that she deserted her husband at the end of two weeks, and went with another girl to live in a house of prostitution at Happy Valley, San Pedro.

In making the order committing her to Whittier, Judge Wilbur entered down in the papers the fact she had obtained the license by the representations of her own father.

Joe Andrews, a little coon who, with a number of other boys crawled into an ice chest on East Third street one hot day last month, was sent to Whittier. Joe has been before the Juvenile Court a number of times, and his people can do nothing with him.

Joe was one of the newsboys who held up a newsboy and robbed him of 6 cents.

Henderson Brashier, a little colored boy whose mother is so engrossed with "ladies' clubs" that she cannot take care of her children, was sent to Whittier. He cried bitterly, but there was nothing else could be done with him, as the mother could not very well be sent.

TENDERLOIN'S VICTIM.

SENT TO PRISON.

The deadly "red light district" closed over another victim yesterday, when a boy was led from Judge Smith's court, crying like a child, with the best twenty years of his life wiped out.

That was the sentence that Judge Smith regretfully passed upon Young Walter Harvey, whose picture was published in The Times Wednesday morning.

He is a decent-looking boy not more than 22 or 23. Working as a freight handler at the Southern Pacific yards, he got to straying through the tenderloin. At length he quit his job and became one of the leeches, hangers-on of the place.

The end of it was that he went broke the middle of last month. He enticed a man named Casper Schants down into the cribs, and after getting him drunk, hit him on the head with a bottle, robbing him of a gold-filled watch and $1.10.

Harvey confessed to the police and pleaded guilty before Judge Smith yesterday.

WIDOW'S GRIEVANCE.

SAYS SHE WAS CHEATED.

Mrs. Laura Hamer, a widow who seems to consider that she has been cheated in buying a lodging-house, brought suit yesterday against Roberts Land Co., James A. Roberts and E. H. Turner.

She claims that she agreed to purchase the good will and fixtures of a rooming-house at No. 1297 West Eighth street for $1250. She paid down $350.

She claims that the gas bill is twice what it was represented; that the dishes represented as full sets are not full sets, and that the furniture is old and of small value.

She wants her $350 back. She claims they represented that a lease for two years went with the place, when there was no lease.

A CHILD IN FORM, A WOMAN IN YEARS.

LITTLE IRMA NEWTON, the pitiful child whom charitable people were trying to rescue, has turned out to be no child at all, but a woman 23 years old.

When this fact was shown yesterday she had to be given back to her parents, who are alleged to have treated her with brutal cruelty and to have deserted her.

The question of her custody was to have been fought out yesterday in the Juvenile Court—her mother against certain women who had taken an interest in the case. The mother blocked all this. Judge Wilbur had to drop the case, it being shown that Irma is too old to give the Juvenile Court jurisdiction.

A peculiar circumstance is that the mother has kept her child's age a secret. She has kept the secret from the child herself. Irma until yesterday believed she was but 14.

They told her in court. She cried and said she didn't know.

IRMA NEWTON AND HER MOTHER. THE "GIRL" IS 23 YEARS OLD.

"Can't you remember?" asked the judge.

"I can't remember good," she whimpered. "I can't remember back more than two years."

A neighbor of Mrs. Newton's, Miss Annie Owen, claims that the woman has good reason for keeping the childwoman's age a secret. She says Mrs. Newton told her that she and Mr. Newton had been married only fourteen years, and she didn't want it known that the child was born twenty-three years ago.

Mrs. Newton says this is cruel and baseless slander.

"It is just a neighborhood row," she says. "They feel bitter toward me—these Owens—because I organized a chapter of Pocahontas and did not ask them to become members. There was also some trouble about rent."

"They say you beat the child cruelly," she was reminded.

"It is not true. I have spanked her. She often needed it."

"They say you beat her black and blue."

"I can explain that. Once Irma neglected her dishes and was impudent, and I corrected her. Like any mother, I became angry and chased her around the table. She ran into a closet and hit her head. We both laughed about it."

Mrs. Newton was reminded that the child was found crying in the dark on Miss Owen's porch one night, looking for her parents, to whom she had been sent from her grandparents in Michigan, where she had been staying. Miss Owen took her in and brought her to the attention of the Juvenile Court, she being turned over to Mrs. Boyd and by her placed in a home for friendless children.

"I didn't desert her," said Mrs. Newton. "I didn't know she was coming at all. She had been with her grandparents. We had moved from the house at No. 739, where we lived in the same house with the Owens. Irma came there. The Owens knew where I worked in the New Method Laundry. She used to send people with bills there, but did not let us know Irma had come."

"Why did you say that she was only thirteen years old?"

"I tell you why that was," said Mrs. Newton. "I knew she had never been to school and was as ignorant as a little child. I knew she would not be admitted into the schools if I gave her real age."

"They say you told them you were only married fourteen years ago."

"Oh, they'll say anything."

"Well, were you?"

"I was carried in 1879, when I was 17 years old, and I have the certificate to show it. Irma was born the next year."

"Is it a fact you sent her away to be rid of her?"

"We left her with my parents when she was a little more than a year old. I went back four times to get her, but they would not give her up."

In court yesterday the child cried and clung to her mother, although she is said before to have refused to leave the Josephine Home to go back home. She said her parents would kill her if she did. The child said yesterday, when someone inadvertently called her mother "Mrs. Owen": "Don't you call my mother for that Miss Owen."

Still there is this letter which Miss Owen produced yesterday. It is a child's scrawl from Irma to her father:

"Dear papa. I Wont just tell this one thing and Dont Want you to get Mad at this—if you will let me Come and let me live with you I will be better than i was befor I have stop talking to myself I get so lonesome."

Mrs. Newton admits that she used to punish the child for talking to herself.

If the Newtons mistreat the childwoman, it is the intention of those interested in the case to prove her an incompetent and have a guardian appointed.

THE INFERIOR COURTS.

FOREMAN PATTON'S DIRECT METHODS.

"SEGAR" CREATED SMOKE AND WAS SNUFFED OUT.

Tamale Man With High-sounding Name Acknowledged He Stole Eggs. Arizona Miner Came in to Have a Time—The Reese Drunk Case.

L. Patton, a husky foreman on the Hellman building, did a disciplining yesterday and the tattered remnants of one of his workmen had him arrested for battery. The name of the remains is F. Segar.

Patton pleaded guilty before Justice Chambers yesterday.

He said that Segar had been making trouble among the workmen and got up a conspiracy to have the boss "fired."

Patton, being a gentleman of direct methods, went up to Segar and asked him what the trouble was. Segar said: "I don't consider it any of your business."

Patton explained to the court: "I thought he was going to pick up a board on me, so I hit him."

Patton will be sentenced today.

REESE DRUNK CASE.

JURY UNABLE TO AGREE.

E. Reese, the young paper-hanger, who lodged a charge before the Police Commission charging Officer Baker with assault, was on trial in Justice Chambers's court yesterday, before a jury, on a charge of drunkenness.

During the afternoon a dozen or more witnesses testified that Reese was drunk, and at a night session of the court probably half as many more testified on behalf of the defendant that he was not drunk. The case was given to the jury at 10:30 p.m., and at midnight, it was unable to agree on a verdict, standing nine for conviction and three for acquittal.

Cribbed Eggs.

Julius von Haacht is a painfully aristocratic name to appear on the Police Court docket, opposite a charge of stealing eggs, but it was to be seen in Justice Chambers's court yesterday.

The foreign "nobleman" is the proprietor of several nocturnal tamale stands, which have their holding-up place during the day in Mott Alley, near Curry & Smith's barrel-house. The latter establishment has for some time been missing eggs, which were stolen from the rear of the saloon, and set a watch; with the result that Von Haacht was caught in the act.

"I took them eggs; yes, I did; I took them, but I don't know what I took them for. There's one thing I know, Judge; I've got to quit drinking or I'll get into trouble yet," said Von Haacht.

He was fined $15, or fifteen days, if he liked that better, but he didn't.

Airy Arizonian.

Jack Rockton, an Arizona miner, blew into town on Wednesday, and the first soft zephyr from the sea sent him sailing down the trail into the "red-light" district, where he proceeded to blow in his hard-earned cash.

He met a Chinaman named Sing Lee on one of the narrow sidewalks, and knocked him down just to exercise his Arizona nerve.

Rockton pleaded guilty and paid $10 fine, but he first tried to soften the judgment of the court by making a statement. He said:

"I'm a peaceable citizen, Yer Honor, but I won't let nobody throw rocks at me. 'I'll go up there,' sez I, 'and I'll slap 'im in the face,' sez I, an' I done it, Yer Honor."

Embezzlement Charged.

H. A. Campbell, who just completed a twenty-day sentence upon a conviction of embezzling funds from G. L. Dennison, was yesterday arraigned on another charge preferred by the same party. He was given until Tuesday to plead. Among the spectators in court was his wife, with whom he does not live. Her presence created some comment, but the object of her presence did not become evident.

The claim of Mr. Dennison is that he was systematically robbed by Campbell for a long time, who was engaged in collecting payments on pictures sold.

Japanese Curios.

William Sorter was on examination in the Police Court yesterday, charged with the larceny of a large quantity of goods belonging to a Japanese firm.

It is alleged the goods were taken from the rear of the Jap store after a fire and sheereted by Sorter, who after a time began to give the articles away to his friends. The case was not completed and will be taken up again next Friday.

NAPLES MUSEUM ROBBED.

ROME, Sept. 4.—The museum of Naples has sustained a robbery, which, while not important in itself, illustrated the ease with which an object of great value might be stolen from the institution. The thief or thieves boldly pried open the door of the museum, went upstairs to the room where stands the celebrated Farnese cup, and carried away bodily two snakes which encircled the cup. The snakes, which were of gilded bronze, were of no great artistic value. The cup itself, fortunately, was uninjured. The cup stands on a pillar under a glass case, which revolves in order to better display the cup. The marvel is that one or more of the objects of incalculable value with which the room is filled were not carried off by the thieves.

BANK CLEARINGS. The credits exchanged at the Los Angeles clearinghouse today were $818,780.18. For the corresponding date last year they were $806,147.62. Same date in 1901, $914,947.30.

HELP NOT YET NEEDED. That Secretary Shaw will act with promptness to relieve the money market in case any grave emergency should arise is certain. What he did last fall, he is prepared to do this fall, so far as his ability will permit. There will be no hesitation on his part. He will anticipate the payment of soon-maturing bonds, he will anticipate the payment of interest, and he will increase the government deposits in the banks upon security of State and municipal bonds. We say that he will do these things, for they are in accord with his policy last fall; and, moreover, the Treasury Department, from the time when Secretary Hamilton, in 1792, bought bonds to relieve a congested money market, has always acted so as to prevent or check panic.

But will it be necessary for the Secretary to come to the relief of the money market this fall? He is quoted in a Washington dispatch as saying that he feels satisfied with the financial conditions of the country, and anticipates no serious monetary stringency this fall. This view is shared by many of our bankers, who feel that as a result of the liquidation that the stock market has passed through and the preparation which conservative business men have made, there will be no grave disturbance of credits this fall. Moreover, the banks are in much stronger position than they were last year. They hold a sufficient surplus reserve to make them face the crop demand for currency with larger confidence, notwithstanding that the high price of cotton will make it more difficult to move the cotton crop. There is no danger of a revival of excessive speculation during the harvest period. So it is not improbable that the situation will not require action on the part of the Secretary.—[Wall Street Journal.

COMMERCIAL.

DRY-GOODS MARKET. There has been a large attendance of buyers in the market this week, but the great majority of them have confined their operations to the jobbing houses. With the latter business has been good, and reports from other jobbing centers also report a good business. Only a slight reflection of this is to be seen in the market at first hands, where the demand has not grown during the week to an appreciable extent, nor have other conditions materially changed. It is evident that even replenishing is being conducted conservatively by buyers, but that the volume of imperative needs is gradually increasing. It is said in some quarters that the financial situation, in addition to other influences, is inducing caution, but against this must be placed the fact that collections are on the whole satisfactory and no sign of scarcity of money for legitimate trading purposes. The tone of the primary market continues strong, and open additions of ¼c per yard have been refused in some staple lines of prints, while print cloths sold at ⅛c advance over the quotation which ruled unchanged for several months. Conditions in men's wear woolens and worsteds are without change of moment. In the silk goods division the chief feature was an auction sale of some 1000 pieces, at which a decidedly low price level generally prevailed.

Business in bleached muslins and cambrics is restricted in medium and better grades by scarcity of ready supplies, and numerous complaints are heard of sellers being backward on deliveries. Prices are very firm. The market for wide sheetings, sheets and pillow cases, cotton flannels and blankets is without new feature. Export business in heavy brown sheetings and drills is still inactive and home buying confined to limited quantities. Prices are without quotable change. Ducks and brown osnaburgs the interest is moderate at full prices. Buyers find no relief in the market for denims, ticks or plaids, very few of these goods being available for prompt deliveries even where extreme prices are bid. Cheviots, cottonades and cassimeres and stripes are very firm. Kid-finished cambrics are firmer in sympathy with print cloths. The following is an approximate range of quotations: Standard sheetings, Eastern standards, 6¾c to 8¼c; Southern standards, 5¾c to 6c; 5-yards, 8½c to 9¼c; 4-yards, 9½c to 9¾c. Bleached muslins, standards, 4-4, 7¾c to 7¾c. Kid-finished cambrics, 9¼c.

Regular print cloths have sold to a limited extent at 2¾c, an advance of ⅛c per yard. Narrow odds are very strong and relatively higher than regulars. Wide odds are firm but dull. Advances of ¼c are reported in fancy dress goods and several other styles of printed prints. Fancy prints continue firm at previous prices. Business in the grades of cotton wash fabrics is quiet.—[Dunn's Review.

GENERAL BUSINESS TOPICS.

CITRUS-FRUIT SHIPMENTS. Shipments of citrus fruits from Southern California on Monday were 11 carloads of oranges and 2 of lemons. The total for the season, from November 1, 1902, to date, are 21,899 carloads, of which number 2585 carloads are lemons.

MANUFACTURERS UNDER BOND. The Philadelphia Retail Grocers' Association has had a new bonds of indemnity drawn for the protection of its members against prosecution under the pure food laws. As the various manufacturers sign it, their names will be supplied to the various members of the association, so that the latter can be at all times posted as to which manufacturers feel confidence in the purity of their goods and which do not. The new bond is given to the association for the use of any of its members who may be arrested and prosecuted under the food laws, provided the goods of the manufacturer giving the bond are found to be adulterated. Under the terms of the bond the manufacturer agrees to pay all expenses of such prosecution, including fines, costs, attorney's fees, etc. The bond is given for a term of five years.—[Grocery World.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKETS.

Quiet still reigns in the fruit and vegetable markets. Receipts of fruit are somewhat lighter, but still enough for the markets' needs. The day continues firm and in active demand. The largest dealers report August sales in excess of January, a surprising fact. Grain is also firm at quotations.

Potatoes are lower, fancy Salinas being generally quoted at 1.65@1.75.

Butter, Eggs and Cheese.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

OFFICE OF THE TIMES,
Los Angeles, Sept. 4, 1903.

FINANCIAL.

BANK CLEARINGS. The credits exchanged at the Los Angeles clearing-house today were $818,780.18. For the corresponding date last year they were $966,147.62. Same date in 1901, $1,047.37.

HELP NOT YET NEEDED. That Secretary Shaw will act with promptness to relieve the money market in case any grave emergency should arise is certain. What he did last fall, he is prepared to do this fall, so far as his ability will permit. There will be no hesitation on his part. He will anticipate the payment of soon-maturing bonds, he will anticipate the payment of interest, and he will increase the government deposits in the banks upon security of State and municipal bonds. We say that he will do these things, for they are in accord with his policy last fall; and, moreover, the Treasury Department, from the time when Secretary Hamilton, in 1792, bought bonds to relieve a congested money market, has always acted so as to prevent or check panic.

But will it be necessary for the Secretary to come to the relief of the money market this fall? He is quoted in a Washington dispatch as saying that he feels satisfied with the financial conditions of the country, and anticipates no serious monetary stringency this fall. This view is shared by many of our bankers, who feel that as a result of the liquidation that the stock market has passed through and the preparation which conservative business men have made, there will be no grave disturbance of credits this fall. Moreover, the banks are in much better position than they were last year. They hold a sufficient surplus reserve to make them face the crop demand for currency with larger confidence, notwithstanding that the high price of cotton will make it more difficult to move the cotton crop. There is no danger of a revival of excessive speculation during the harvest period, for it is not impossible that the situation will not require action on the part of the Secretary.—[Wall Street Journal.

COMMERCIAL.

DRY-GOODS MARKET. There has been a large attendance of buyers in the market this week, but the great majority of them have confined their operations to the jobbing trade. With the latter business has been good, and reports from other jobbing centers also report a good business. Only a slight reflection of this is seen in the market as first hands, for the demand has not grown during the week to an appreciable extent, or have other conditions materially changed. It is evident that even re-stocking is being conducted conservatively by buyers, but that the volume of seasonable needs is gradually increasing. It is said in some quarters that the financial situation, in addition to other influences, is inducing this, but against this must be placed the fact that collections are on the whole satisfactory and no sign of scarcity of money for legitimate trade purposes. The tone of the primary market continues strong, and open advances of ¼c per yard have been realized in some staple lines of prints. Print cloths sold at ⅛c advance over the quotation which ruled unchanged for several months. Conditions in men's wear woolens and worsteds are without change of moment. In the silk goods division the chief feature was an auction sale of some 5000 pieces, at which a decidedly low price level generally prevailed.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

SHARES AND MONEY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Today's stock market was again excessively dull, but distinctly strong. The three days which will intervene before trading will be resumed prompted the closing-up of speculative accounts, and the fact that tomorrow is also a holiday in London emphasized this disposition. It is evident that the majority of the outstandings account was on the short side. There was no other apparent reason for the strength of the market, as the bulls were as usual willing to put out fresh commitments on the eve of those holidays. Atchison was the feature of the market both as to the volume of dealings and its extreme advance of 3¼, which easily distances all other stocks. There were some very heavy bear accounts, covered on the advance which helped the upward movement and gave grounds for the supposition that they were the subject of the movement. But the movement gave rise to some surmises of an accumulation on a large scale possibly for purposes of control. Rock Island interests were pointed to by the current rumors and there seemed to be an effort to convey the impression that Pennsylvania and Harriman interests were opposing or competing with this accumulation. The Atchison movement had some sympathetic effect on the general list, but the largest response was confined to the southern and southwestern corn and cotton carriers. The movement may have been in part a reflection of the government report on cotton which had a continued effect also in inducing liquidation in cotton. The corn market did not reflect any excess of confidence in that crop and the reports of frost in the Northwest gave rise to some fears that the cold would extend into the corn belt. But the news of the condition of that crop in the lower portions of the belt conduced to a growth of confidence in the safety of that portion of the crop and may have been an influence in the strength of Southwestern railway stocks. The tone of the recently reported utterances of the Secretary of the Treasury on the general business and financial outlook had an encouraging effect on sentiment, and his advocacy of an emergency circulation fosters the hopes of the financial district for such a measure. But the emphasis by the Secretary in his published statement of the deposits being made of government money in the agricultural districts had somewhat the effect of an admonition against speculative uses of these funds. The forecasts of the current movement of the week indicate a slight improvement in favor of the interior, which, with the week's losses to the subtreasury, show a probable decrease in reserve held by the banks of $2,500,000. There have been several shipments to the South in connection with the cotton-crop moving, but the movement on balance would have been in favor of New York had it not been for the large movement to Boston, which seems to have amounted to more than $2,000,000, and is attributed to a New York interest in copper affairs. The complexion of the loan item is shrouded in the usual debt. The closing was steady and was very dull. Bonds were dull and very firm, and government bonds continued to advance. Total sales, par value, $755,000.

Bradstreet's Review.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say that crop developments have been mostly favorable, fall jobbing trade reports indicate improvement, and money conditions show less tension. The tone of general business is conservative, and the tendency is to eliminate anything in the nature of speculation or over-extension from business. Manufacturing industry shows continued activity, except in iron lines, where tin and silk production will note the influence of special conditions and some lines of iron and steel. Evidence of an approaching slackening in the output of anthracite coal is to be seen. Some improvement is noted in the car-scarcity trouble, and gross earnings of railways continue large, but increased cost of operations and heavy improvement limit net receipts. Failures show only the usual midsummer volume, so far as number is concerned, but average suspensions foot up a larger total of liabilities, particularly of small financial institutions and manufacturers. Wool is firm on demand sufficient to cover sales of goods. Lumber is active and firm at the West, but leather is slow and dragging at the East, where labor conditions are not altogether settled. Wheat, including flour exports for the week ending September 3, aggregate 2,131,324 bushels, against 3,245,054 bushels last week. Business failures in the United States for the week ending September 3 were 165, against 142 last week. In Canada, failures for the week number 18, against 30 last week.

GENERAL EASTERN MARKETS.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Although advices generally were favorable to lower wheat values, a rush of shorts early in the session incident to the three-days' adjournment of the board caused a bullish tone and rushed prices up. December going from the opening, 82¾ to 83⅞, to strong at the 83c mark. Foreign advices were weak Northwestern markets, despite the fact that the weather map was not considered favorable, and free offerings from the Southwest, but leather is slow and dragging at the East, where labor conditions are not altogether settled. Wheat, including flour exports for the week ending September 3, aggregate 2,131,324 bushels, against 3,245,054 bushels last week. Business failures in the United States for the week ending September 3 were 165, against 142 last week. In Canada, failures for the week number 18, against 30 last week.

[NEWS REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.]

SAN BERNARDINO.

NEGRESS MUST SERVE TIME.

SAN BERNARDINO, Sept. 4.—Judge Bledsoe yesterday denied the petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Arndie Hill, the colored woman who was sent from Needles to serve ninety days in the County Jail. The petition was based on the ground of an alleged technical miswording of the complaint, but the court held that the complaint was properly worded. So Arndie went back to jail. She was convicted of frequenting houses of ill-repute.

ON THE SIDE.

The members of the Mt. Vernon District Improvement Association last night adopted resolutions protesting against certain features of the proposed subdivision of J. N. Victor's acreage, which, it is alleged, will throw the rear of one tier of lots into what should be the center line of Central avenue, barns, cesspools and outhouses being located on the rear of said lots. Such subdivision, it is claimed, will result in great injury to the residents and property-owners on Central avenue.

Walter Young today assumed the duties of local passenger agent of the Santa Fé, which position he will fill for a month or more, during the absence from town of Agent J. B. Mullen, who is off on an outing with his wife and son.

The mysterious man, who gives his name as M. J. Reilly and who was brought to the County Hospital a few days ago from Barstow, with his head badly battered up, is slowly recovering from his injuries, which it was at first thought would prove fatal. He refuses to talk about his past or to give any explanation as to how he was injured. From a circular, received yesterday at the Sheriff's office, giving a description of Henry West or Wise, who is wanted at Auburn, Placer county, it seems improbable that Reilly is the same man.

Developments today show that the two suspects arrested and released are not the Los Angeles car robbers, strongly as they tallied with the meager description possessed of the desperadoes.

Mr. and Mrs. James Flemming and family have returned from a summer outing at Squirrel Inn.

Jennie Glaser has been granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from Ervin J. Glaser.

County Clerk Pfeiffer paid a visit to friends in Riverside yesterday afternoon.

A. E. Eldridge, formerly employed at the Santa Fé offices in Needles, and who is charged with carrying straw men on the company's pay-rolls, was brought to the County Jail yesterday. The date of his trial in the Superior Court has not yet been set.

Long and short-felt wants or any old wants promptly filled by putting a "Liner" in The Times. Rate 1 cent a word each insertion. Telephone your wants to Red 414 and our San Bernardino agency will take your ad. and send it to the main office.

COLTON.

NEWS NOTES.

COLTON, Sept. 4.—Bert McLean, a Colton High School graduate, has given up his position with the Santa Fé, to enter Stanford University. Miss Ellen Young of this year's graduating class has entered the University of California. Everett Beach left this week for Baltimore, where he will enter the Medical College. Tesse Beach has returned to Stanford. Wilson Hanna, who has been with the Southern Pacific surveying, has returned from Nevada, and is taking a rest in the mountains before entering Pomona College.

Miss Bertha Platt and John Atkinson, night operator at the Southern Pacific Depot, were married Wednesday. They are passing their honeymoon at Long Beach. They will reside in Colton, where both have many friends.

Mrs. Earl Van Luven and children, and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Shepherdson have returned from their summer outing at Santa Monica.

Miss Edna Spring, has gone to San Diego for a two-weeks' vacation.

D. Johnston left today to join his family at Long Beach.

Mr. S. F. Brooks has gone to Everett, Wash., to visit relatives.

RIVERSIDE.

LITTLE LOCALS.

RIVERSIDE, Sept. 4.—A dozen or more members of the Magnolia Gun Club shot at the Arlington traps this afternoon. Special interest attaches to the result, as the five men making the best all-around scores will be chosen to represent the club in the first team shoot to be held here on September 18, in which teams from the San Bernardino and Redlands Gun clubs will participate.

More men than ever are at work on Mr. Huntington's electric-road improvements, notwithstanding the fact that some sixty cholos foolishly went out on a strike Monday morning. Not a single striker has been taken back to work.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Tibbet left yesterday on an extended northern trip.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Waldman and family are at Newport Beach.

Frank Reed of Ocean Park and Miss Otella Sinder of this city were united in marriage at the home of the groom's uncle, C. W. Ekins, yesterday afternoon, Rev. Benjamin S. Haywood officiating.

"All roads lead to Rome," and all telephone wires to The Times' office. Telephone your wants to Red 661 and our Riverside Agency will take your ad. and send it to the main office.

ELSINORE.

LIMIT DEER SHOOTER.

ELSINORE, Sept. 4.—Gus Gehering, who resides on North Main street, went hunting in the hills several miles northwest of town in the evening and returned next day with three bucks—a large one with handsome two-pronged antlers, another with three prongs and the third a small buck. There were five deer in the herd, three bucks and two does. When Gehering shot the first it dropped, but in a moment a deer jumped up at the same place. Thinking he had only wounded it the first shot, he fired again. Again a deer fell, and just then another and much larger buck started up and also dropped at the crack of the rifle. Gehering had not moved out of his tracks. He knew he had two deer, but didn't know he had three of a kind until he went to the spot.

IN BRIEF.

Prune drying will be begun in a few days. The crop is large and of good size and quality.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whitacre returned Wednesday from a horseback trip to the coast; the rest of the party, consisting of Misses Blanche Perry and Esther Gooche, Bert Townsend and Josh Honawaut, returned next day.

Miss Miriam Leach is here from Riverside.

A. Flint and H. Flint are here from Oceanside.

Prof. B. F. Potter of Los Angeles is a guest at the Elsinore Hotel.

S. K. Adams and William Bryant, both of Los Angeles, registered Wednesday at the Elsinore Hotel.

SANTA ANA.

FREAK CONVICTED.

SANTA ANA, Sept. 4.—"Dick" Covington, who was arrested yesterday for frightening women and children and acting "looney" generally, was convicted in Justice Smithwick's court this morning on a charge of disturbing the peace. He was sentenced to ninety days "on the hill."

MURDER CHARGED.

An information filed today in the Superior Court charges Ramon P. Cooper with murder in the first degree. The trial was set for September 17. Cooper and his cousin, both living at Yorba, were scuffling, several weeks ago, and the cousin died immediately after the scuffle as a result, so it appears, of injuries received in the tussle.

HERE AND THERE.

J. W. Harris and wife left today to spend a week in Santa Barbara.

The Farmers' Club will meet tomorrow at the home of D. F. Campbell.

The monthly report of the Public Library for August shows that 1942 books were in circulation. Fines of $9 were collected, and 87 new cards issued.

Henry Sears, who has been assistant in the local Southern Pacific office several years, has been promoted to the position of ticket clerk at the Arcade Depot, Los Angeles.

A. K. Daniells, publisher of the Co-Operative Magazine, Chicago, arrived in town today on a visit.

J. A. Wright, father of Councilman Wright, is in a precarious condition from a stroke of paralysis. Mr. Wright's daughter and his sister, Mrs. Gray, who were to have started today for Otsego, Ia., have postponed their departure a week.

G. D. Streeter and daughter and Miss Margaret Wakeham of Tustin have returned home after an outing at Coronado and vicinity.

Work on the Masonic Temple is delayed on account of a lack of masons.

There was born to the wife of P. G. Grundt, at Sherman, a daughter, September 1. Mrs. Grundt was Miss Maude Wilkes of this city.

Official notice has been given that the city schools will open the 21st inst.

W. S. Melick of the State Board of Examiners was in Santa Ana today on official business.

The exhibit of Lily Brand Condensed Cream, manufactured by the Pacific Creamery Company at Buena Park, was placed in the Chamber of Commerce this morning.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Villele died yesterday. The funeral will be held this afternoon.

Miss Grace Coad left Santa Ana today for Danville, Ia.

"Ask and ye shall receive." If you put a "Liner" in The Times. Telephone your wants to Main 28 and our Santa Ana agency will take your ad. and send it to the main office.

FULLERTON.

VALLEY EVENTS.

FULLERTON, Sept. 4.—Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss Daisy Wester of La Habra and Dalton C. Olmstead of Idaho. The event will be celebrated at the home of the bride's parents in La Habra, next Thursday evening.

The Baptist Young People's Society will give a reception to the pupils of the high school in Bank Hall Monday evening.

Mr. Roeden of Placentia will at once erect a neat six-room residence.

The H. H. Hale and C. C. Wagner families have returned from a month's outing in San Antonio Cañon.

Mrs. Margaret Strain of Placentia went to Los Angeles yesterday to have an injured heel examined by the X-ray.

A very enjoyable family reunion was held at the home of Mrs. Hiltscher in Orangethorpe this week.

Judge and Mrs. A. L. Roach of La Habra are visiting in Alhambra this week.

La Habra Ladies' Improvement Club will meet September 10 to arrange for the annual valley picnic.

Miss Mary B. Richards has arrived from Washington, D. C., to make an extended visit with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Van Alstyne.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hoge have moved to Los Angeles.

THE MOST AMBITIOUS WOMAN'S CLUB PLANS.

NOW that the summer vacation is drawing to a close and the beaches are being rapidly depopulated, a more general activity is apparent in the homes of the city.

The school children and college students are getting ready for another year's study, and the teachers are returning from their summer outings.

Not less active among those who are making extensive preparations in anticipation of a very busy season are the club women of Los Angeles.

Much credit is due to the committees of the various clubs for the thorough and admirable manner in which they have outlined their work for next year.

The Times is able to present the plans of campaign in advance of the soon-to-be-issued year-books. It will be the most ambitious season of woman's clubdom in Los Angeles.

The Ebell.

The Ebell Club will hold its first general meeting in Cumnock Hall Monday afternoon, October 5.

The officers for the coming year are: Mrs. Sumner P. Hunt, president; Mrs. Williamson Dunn, Mrs. R. H. F. Variel and Mrs. William Miles, vice-presidents; Mrs. Matthew S. Robertson, recording secretary; Mrs. William F. Fleas, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Chester C. Ashley, general curator. The directors are: Mrs. Sumner P. Hunt, Mrs. L. W. Blinn, Mrs. P. A. Demens, Mrs. T. T. Knight, Mrs. Frank W. King, Mrs. A. L. Danskin and Mrs. T. J. Cochrane.

The work as outlined in the new year-book, which will be out in about two weeks, presents a very attractive and instructive plan of study.

The travel section, which meets on the first and third Mondays of each month, will be conducted by Mrs. Philip G. Hubert, assisted by Mrs. Horace A. Brown.

Mrs. Hubert will take up the principal points of interest of an extensive tour which she recently made in America. Starting from New York and going down through the Isthmus of Panama and up through the Golden Gate to San Francisco, they will then visit Alaska and various places in Canada.

There will be three divisions in the literary section.

Mrs. Emma M. Greenleaf will give two lectures each month on Shakespearean historical plays, which will include Richard II, Richard III, Henry IV, Henry V, King John and Henry VIII.

Mrs. Elizabeth Tupper Wilkes will give lectures on Bible literature each month.

Current literature will also be given a day each month

There will be two classes in French on Wednesday mornings under the instruction of Mme. J. A. Donato and a French play will be presented later in the year.

The music section will be in charge of Mrs. William H. Jamison. Each programme will consist of six regular numbers, together with discussions of salient points of interest relating to their composers or the general subject of the afternoon.

This section will meet every third Thursday at 2 o'clock.

For the section in forensics, Mrs. M. E. Robertson has been assigned curator. The second and fourth Tuesdays at 2 p.m. will be given to this study and parliamentary usages for woman's clubs will be the standard text-book.

Discussions of questions of the day will be so conducted as to teach the leading rules of parliamentary law.

The section in social economics, in which Miss Mary E. Warren will be the curator, will meet on the first and third Tuesdays at 2 p.m.

The topics which will be discussed in this branch of the work will be land, work, wages, public ownership, single tax, direct legislature, cooperative stores, railroads, police systems, labor unions, and the woman question.

There will also be lectures by the students in economics.

The physical-culture section will have a drill each week under the supervision of one of the faculty from the Cumnock School of Oratory. In addition to this Mrs. Addie Murphy Grigg will give a lecture each month.

The Ruskin Art Club.

The Ruskin Art Club will hold their first meeting the morning of October 7 in the Blanchard building, and will continue their studies of art and its environment, after the system pursued during the past two years.

Beginning with the age of Justinian in the sixth century, and leading up to the death of Michel Angelo, which closed last year's work, they will now begin with the transition and early renaissance in France.

The club will study the architecture, literature and history of that period which was during the reigns of Charles VIII, Louis XII and Francis I.

Those who will lead in these topics are Miss Victoria Witmer, Mrs. E. R. Smith, Mrs. Alexander Caldwell, Mrs. Reuben Shettler, Mrs. I. L. Hibbard, Mrs. N. H. Morrison, Mrs. J. A. Wallis and Miss Frances Clark.

The advanced renaissance in France during the time of Henry II, including the pottery of the time, will be considered by Mrs. D. C. Barber, Mrs. A. R. Newkirk, Mrs. L. N. Kimball and Mrs. E. E. C. Brown.

Miss Anna Chapman and Mrs. F. H. Teale will give the leading historical points connected with the classic period of Henry IV.

The architecture of the early renaissance in England, the resemblances and differences as compared with Italian and French building of the time, will be presented by Miss Emily Wing. Mrs. Randall Hutchinson, Mrs. W. S. Dunn and Mrs. William Pridham.

The late renaissance in Spain and Italy will be treated at some length by Miss Gertrude Drennan, Mrs. L. J. McQuade, Mrs. F. H. Snowden, Mrs. W. B. Brown, Mrs. I. B. Huber and Miss Edith Alderson.

The German, Belgian and Dutch renaissance will also come in for their share of the year's work. Rubens, Van Dyck, Rembrandt and other famous painters, with their works, will be discussed.

The history of the Netherlands relative to its influence upon art will also receive attention.

The leaders of these subjects will be Miss Lora Hubbell, Miss Frances Sibley, Mrs. H. G. Brainerd, Mrs. H. W. R. Strong, Mrs. G. L. Hutchinson, Mrs. J. F. Kanst, Mrs. Morris Albee, Mrs. Dana Weller, Mrs. J. O. Koepfli, Miss Marie Schwalbe, Mrs. A. J. Crookshank, Miss Margaret Fette, Mrs. W. R. Bradley, Mrs. James Koyer, Miss Elizabeth Marble and Mrs. L. R. Garrett.

Following this will be the fully-developed classic period of France, continuing through the reign of Louis XIV. This interesting history will be led by Mrs. W. W. Stilson, Mrs. A. S. Gibson, Mrs. John E. Marble, Miss A. M. Donovan, Mrs. Marie C. Childs, Miss Belle Smith, Miss Mary Hawkes, Mrs. T. F. Carhart, Miss Letha Lewis, and Mrs. W. H. Anderson.

The last period will be the fully-developed renaissance in England and the United States, under the direction of Mrs. W. T. McFie and Mrs. R. B. Ashley.

A pleasing and interesting departure from the regular routine study sessions will be the days for special art topics, which will occur frequently during the year.

The purpose of this is to give an opportunity for introducing modern art, and although subjects are suggested in the year-book, the programmes will be left to the discretion of the leaders.

One of the special days will be given to the display of the Ruskin Art Club's treasures, of which the members are justly proud, having in their possession many rare and interesting objects of art by masters of high repute.

The last of these special days, May 26, is to be occupied by an exhibition of work by California artists.

Wednesday Morning Club.

It is the intention of the Wednesday Morning Club to hold an informal reception, previous to their opening day the first week in October, in order to give the members an opportunity for coming together in a social way before commencing their year's work.

Mrs. Henry E. Brett will again hold the presidency and the secretary, Miss Annie E. Pierce, and financial secretary, Mrs. F. M. Nickell, have been retained. The new vice-presidents are Mrs. J. E. Brown and Mrs. M. A. Kinney, and the treasurer is Mrs. R. J. Adcock.

It has been arranged for the directors, who are Mrs. G. T. Hanley, Mrs. H. C. Gower, Mrs. W. H. Harrison, Miss Isabel J. Finney Mrs. J. B. Foster, Mrs. L. V. J. Kimball and Mrs. E. C. Hayward, to be the chairmen of the standing committees. These will include membership, printing, social, lecture, finance, press, house and programme.

It has also been decided by the board of directors to arrange monthly programmes instead of for the entire year.

The general club is divided into three sections. The first Wednesday of each month will be devoted to general subjects and business.

Mrs. W. E. Chapin will give lectures once a month on current topics which will be principally along the line of the State federation work.

The following three Wednesdays will be given to Shakespearean work, which takes up the greater part of the attention of the club.

Mrs. Emma M. Greenleaf will have charges of this section and will take up the historical plays beginning with Henry VI.

The musical section will continue under the direction of Mrs. E. D. Park, who has led the work for several years, and will be held at Mrs. Park's residence, No. 155 North Hancock street, every Thursday.

Special attention will be given to the social feature of the club and in welcoming strangers who are in the city. Occasionally a departure will be made from the regular study sessions in the way of social functions and musical programmes.

The meetings will be held this year in the assembly hall of the East Side Congregational Church on North Daly street.

Friday Morning Club.

The Friday Morning Club, which is the senior club of this city, will hold their first meeting on the first Friday of October, which will probably be exclusively for members.

As is usual on this occasion, the president will give an address of welcome to the club members, followed by responses and other pleasing features. After a short session, the remainder of the morning will be given over to an informal social time.

A new president, Mrs. Roy Jones, will preside, this year, but otherwise the officers will remain about the same as last year. Mrs. E. K. Foster and Mrs. J. E. Collier are first and second vice-presidents; Mrs. Morris Cohn is secretary and Mrs. W. F. Callender treasurer.

The directors are Mrs. Roy Jones, Mrs. George H. Wadleigh, Mrs. Donn P. Harrison, Mrs. Randall Hutchinson, Mrs. T. W. Brown, Miss E. C. McCullough and Mrs. Frances A. Clarke.

The committees will remain the same and possibly some new ones will be added later.

The chairman of the House Committee for the coming year is Mrs. Donn P. Harrison; for Hospitality Committee, Mrs. Randall Hutchinson; for Programme Committee, Mrs. E. K. Foster and for Book Committee, Mrs. Margaret Collier Graham.

The plan of issuing the programmes at the beginning of each month will again be followed out, as it has proved highly satisfactory in the past.

Prominent lecturers and speakers will be secured to speak upon interesting and instructive subjects, and a number of sessions will be given over to social functions.

The club, though always very cordial to out-of-town guests, and gentlemen, will be obliged to adhere more strictly than heretofore to the rules in regard to the guest privileges extended to those who are eligible to membership.

It is the purpose of the club to not limit their membership, so that residents may join at any time under certain qualifications.

Monday Study Club.

The Monday Study Club will meet this year at No. 1635 Rockwood street, the residence of the president and lecturer, Mrs. Anna S. Averill, who is a pioneer in club work, having organized the first study classes in Los Angeles.

Current events and literature will furnish the leading topics during the first part of the year, in which there will be an opportunity for discussing the present status of Turkey in regard to other nations, as well as other subjects of public interest.

Though not fully outlined, the club will take up, in a general way, subjects relating to social economics which will be arranged by the president.

Mrs. Anna Smith is treasurer and Mrs. J. B. Foster, secretary.

The first meeting will be held October 5, at 2 p.m., and will be an open session.

NEW CHURCH ORGANIZED.

Formal Recognition Services to be Held at Ocean Park Next Monday. Local Clergy Will Participate.

The Baptists of Santa Monica and Ocean Park have planned an interesting series of services for Monday next, the first to be held at 10 a.m. in the building of the new organization at Ocean Park.

The recognition of this church is the object of the council, the infant body now numbering twenty-eight communicants, with the Rev. Louis A. Gould as pastor.

The afternoon will be given to the formal recognition services, the Rev. C. T. Douglas, district secretary for the American Baptist Home Mission Society, presiding. A number of the pastors of the Los Angeles association will take part in the programme. Rev. C. C. Willett of the Orchard-avenue Church, Los Angeles, will preach the sermon; Rev. George Taylor of the Sawtelle Church will give the charge to the church, and Rev. Robert J. Burdette of the Temple Church, Los Angeles, the charge to the pastor, and Rev. C. C. Pierce of the Memorial Church, Los Angeles, will extend the hand of fellowship for the organizations represented in the council.

The exercises, both morning and afternoon, will be open to the public.

BOOZE WILL TRICKLE IN PASADENA STREETS.

OT OF ILLICIT INTOXICANTS TO BE DUMPED THERE.

Chief Holds Auction of Stuff that Can't be Carted to New City Hall, and Refuses to Sell Liquor—Department Heads Move.

PASADENA, Office of The Times, No. 1 South Raymond Avenue, Sept. 5.—There was house-cleaning day with the police department yesterday and there was a sale of articles that have been piled up from time to time and never claimed by the owners. Perhaps the most interesting thing about the sale that wasn't sold, namely a lot of booze that pertains to a deposit of stuff that was confiscated at the New York kitchen several months ago, when W. J. Welch was raided. This stuff consists of half a barrel of whiskey, about a dozen cases of bottled beer, a quantity of beer on draft and a goodly portion of wines.

When the Chief of Police announced that there was to be a sale of the contents of his storeroom, several thirsty persons who had gotten a tip somewhere as to what the storeroom contained, were on hand, bringing their grips with them. They were willing to pay most anything reasonable for the booze, but the Chief wouldn't sell. It wouldn't do, he said, for a police official to break the law that he is paid to uphold. He would be immortalized in a jiffy and thrown out of office and into jail. The booze will therefore have to be dumped into the sewer, because the old City Hall will be deserted next week, and the new quarters don't drink. There is also no room in the new City Hall that should be defiled with the illicit stuff. But pretty nearly broke the would-be purchasers' hearts to learn that the object of their desire is to be used as paint or oil to lay the dust.

However, there were other things in the storeroom that have a monetary value, and which may be legitimately sold. Chief Freeman was auctioneer, Mr. Austin cashier and Officer Reynolds brought the goods down stairs. Numerous were the buyers. The sale netted $61.25, which will go into the Commissioners' funds.

A man hitching post seven feet long was sold to J. W. German for 35 cents. A. Harris bought a horse blanket and a similar price, and a saddle blanket and a bunch of coat-hangers went to Tom Toma all for a dime. Toma also bought a laundry package for 50 cents and found that it contained an old shirt, a pair of white socks and a bath towel. George Dansby secured a rubber cape for 30 cents, and a man's old overcoat for $2.85. J. W. German bought a child's overcoat for $1.75. City Councilman Cambell was made happy over a lady's plaid shawl at $2.30. Seven bicycles that have never been claimed, brought the best prices, ranging from $2 to $9.25 each.

ASSEMBLY ALL MOVED.

The heads of municipal departments have already moved into the new hall with the exception of the Chief and the Chief of Police. The latter will move into the Council room when passes the ordinance of acceptance and makes the business of animal nature in the new building. The police department will move across the street today. My opinion is to the effect that it will be held in the new courtroom a few days announcement by the judges will be sufficient to make it lawful. When the new quarters are occupied it is said that a night man will be kept in the office, and the members of the force are each praying that they won't be chosen for the lonely job of "doing time."

OF LESSER IMPORT.

Albert Barnhart of the firm of Barnhart & Spindler, Chicago type founders, is visiting his son, Willard Barnhart, on South Madison avenue, several weeks. He says that the printers are driving the leading type firms out of Chicago, but that his firm has kept out of their clutches.

F. Lukens, the indefatigable forest worker, says he wishes he could spend five acres of land, with water, near the foothills, for the purpose of nurturing the young pine trees that are to be planted in the mountains by the government.

The work of placing the wires and the cars and tracks into the new car barns on North Fair Oaks and Raymond avenues has been so far finished that a few cars are already being kept in the barns will soon be all finished.

It is reported that the G.A.R. people are not pleased with lengthy faces in that Commander-in-Chief John C. Black has been in Pasadena off his itinerary. They have treated us down in order to see him while in this part of the country.

Mr. Cassell has announced that the position of janitor of the new City Hall will be awarded to the lowest bidder. Mr. Dansby, incumbent, will not enter the race on that score. Other ambitious colored gentlemen are waiting to see what they can do with the plum has hitherto been allotted to the negroes. A large attendance is looked for at the meeting to be given Chief Forester Pinchot at Hotel Maryland this evening.

FRUIT EXCHANGE ANNUAL.

POMONA, Sept. 4.—The stockholders of the Pomona Fruit Exchange held their annual meeting yesterday at the large packing-house, about one hundred and fifty members being present. A number of interesting reports were listened to, that of Manager F. Stevens showing that 407 cars of fruit had been shipped during the season and that $110,000 had been paid to growers. P. J. Dreher, manager of the San Antonio Fruit Exchange, made some remarks on exchange methods. The following officers elected the following directors for the ensuing year: F. E. Kennedy, H. J. Nicholls, Campbell, Gray, Low and Hood. The matter of the advisability of building a packing-house and locating it on the line of the Salt Lake road was brought up and after discussion was referred to the Board of Directors to do as they saw fit with regard to time and location.

STRANGE SEA CREATURE CAUGHT AT CATALINA.

NINE FEET LONG AND MUCH LIKE A SWORDFISH.

Taken With Hook and Line After Fierce Fight by Edward Llewellyn, Who Holds Jewfish Record—Freak to be Mounted.

AVALON, Sept. 4.—Edward Llewellyn, a cornet soloist of the Catalina Island Band, is proving one of the most enthusiastic and picturesque anglers this season. Last week he made the record Jewfish catch, one weighing 425 pounds; this morning he thought he would inscribe the tuna record also on his diadem, and taking the Catalina, hiked out after the biggest specimens of the tiger-fish to be taken. He had uncorked but a small portion of his stock of patience when his reel began to whizz. And then it whizzed. By consummate skill Llewellyn prevented the fish from getting away in the first grand rushes, and then he began on the aggressive. For an hour and twenty-one minutes a fierce fight lasted. It was a formidable looking creature that was at length brought alongside the boat, and there was debate, after it was gaffed, as to whether it would be a welcome addition to the crew.

Hung up on the rack here, the creature began to excite comment. To the casual observer it was but a moon-fish, a rather unusual catch, but occasionally caught and brought in by being entangled in the fishermen's nets. This, however, was caught with a hook on rod and reel, something unknown to fishermen hitherto. A glance at the fish also showed a radical difference between this and the sword-fish. Its sword is not so long as that of the genuine sword-fish of this length; the lower jaw in unduly elongated; it has on its back a collapsible fin, which when extended stands up fifteen inches above the fish, but folds down into a groove, until it is unnoticeable, the tail is like the screw of a propeller, and very similar in appearance to that of the tuna. The fish sharps are all guessing. The like of this has not been seen here before, nor can any enlightenment be had from any books on the subject to be had here.

The strange creature is nine feet long and weighs 125 pounds. The sword is twenty-four inches long and the tail is thirty-nine inches across.

Arrangements have been made for the mounting of the fish, and it will be preserved to posterity.

DOTS AND DASHES.

Ed Stanton, for many years superintendent of the island affairs, and managing the improvements in progress at the isthmus and beyond, drove here from Middle Ranch for supplies today. He and his little party are surveying another route from Eagle's Nest to Little Harbor, which will follow the coast and will be an improvement both as to grades and scenery over the present road.

The U.S. training ship Alert came into the bay at noon.

Harry Bales gave a little spread yesterday afternoon at the Alaska tamale grotto to his friends. Dan Jerrue, his principal, having gone on a bear hunt, sent a large turkey to his employés, with the kindly expression that he wished others to enjoy life as well as he, and Harry took occasion to distribute joy all around among his friends.

C. H. White, his two daughters, Mrs. McNeil and Mrs. McCauley, and two Germans who are touring the world, C. von Lowenstein and A. Munchemeyer, were out fishing with Mexican Joe this morning and made a banner catch, bringing in fifteen yellowtail and a half dozen rock bass.

Miss Maude Elizabeth Richards this morning caught an eel a yard long.

Mrs. Charles Nye returned to the island yesterday after a week on the mainland.

Mrs. Josie Small, pianiste, who has spent six weeks on the island, left for her home in Los Angeles today.

Mrs. T. B. Brown and daughter, Miss Adelaide Brown, went over yesterday, having spent several weeks here.

M. Ordogul of Los Angeles is enjoying an outing here.

Mrs. Moore Richardson and Carroll Gates of Chicago, out with the Nick yesterday, made an unusual catch, taking a 15-pound white sea bass. The season for white sea bass is supposed to end with July, and it is rarely that they are taken after that time.

PRESIDENT TOUCHED BY VETERANS' HONOR.

HIS BEST GREETINGS WIRED TO ALL AT CAMP ROOSEVELT.

Children Give Patriotic Demonstration at Long Beach Encampment, With Speaking and Music — Registration Shows Former Attendance Records Broken.

LONG BEACH, Sept. 4.—The President's reply to Commander Thomas McE. Brady's notification that the G.A.R. veterans here had named their headquarters at Long Beach, "Camp Theodore Roosevelt," reads as follows:

OYSTER BAY, (L. I.) Sept. 4, 1903.

Commander McE. Brady, Southern California Veterans' Association, Long Beach, Cal.: Am much touched by your telegram, and appreciate your naming the camp after me. Best greetings to all. Respectfully, [Signed] THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Commander Brady's dispatch to the President was:

LONG BEACH, Sept. 3, 1903.

To the President of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt, Oyster Bay, Long Island, N. Y. Dear Sir: The Southern California Veteran's Association have authorized me to tender to you an invitation to meet with us, the old boys of '61 to '65, at our annual encampment which meets September 1, and ends September 10, 1903.

I have presumed to give to our camp a name that we, the veterans, sons of veterans, and ladies' auxiliaries, who compose the encampment of Southern California, love very dearly. Not because you are the President of the United States do we name our camp, Theodore Roosevelt, but because you are President of all the people, regardless of position, and dare to stand boldly for liberty and the right. Very respectfully yours, [Signed] THOMAS M'E. BRADY, Commander.

Life at Camp Roosevelt was more than usually quiet today, most of the "boys" spending the morning in resting from the fatigues of their trip to the Soldiers' Home yesterday. This afternoon the camp was turned over to the children, and they furnished one of the prettiest entertainments of the week under the direction of Mrs. Lizzie Belle Cross of Los Angeles. First the little people were assembled in headquarters tent, and each one was provided with a flag by the ladies of the W.R.C. They then marched through the camp and into the ten when a number of beautiful evolutions and drills were performed. Mrs. Cross then called the assembly to order, and all united in singing "America." Comrade E. W. Gilbert and Dr. L. A. Pierce gave short patriotic addresses. Agnes and Ethel Owens followed with a duet and the audience united in singing "The Red, White and Blue." After that there were addresses by Mrs. Mary E. Hattery, president of the auxiliary, and by Capt. Hyatt. Miss Phillips gave a reading. Mrs. Brunson an original poem and Charlie Sebastian and Mattie Youel recited, all most acceptably. The music consisted of piano solos by Glen Anders, and Miss Swain, several selections by the drum corps and the singing of patriotic airs by the audience. One of the purposes of the organization is to teach the right sort of patriotism to the young and the old boys, turned out their old all in their power to make the afternoon and its occasion memorable to every one of the little people present.

Tonight's entertainment in the big tent was the battle of Vicksburg Post and Corps of Pomona, and it was greeted by the usual crowded house. They have furnished programmes for former encampments, which were heartily applauded, but this was pronounced one of their best. Mrs. Emily C. Brady, president of the corps, presided. Interesting talks were made by C. P. Wilson, Commander of Vicksburg Post; Mrs. Mary L. Carr of Longmont, Colo., Past President of the National W.R.C.; Judge Pierce of Los Angeles; Mrs. Florence McClelland, Past President of the Department of Illinois and by a number of the other visitors. The music for the evening was furnished by such popular singers as J. W. Patterson, known to the veterans as "Sister Jimmy," and Mrs. Princess Long. In addition the Drum Corps gave a number of selections and Eugene Trincher captured the crowd with a cornet solo.

Through the forethought of Quartermaster Summons, many of the veterans have been able to take in all the encampment this year instead of being obliged to wait at home until after the 4th in order to have their pension papers made out. Being a notary, he sent them word some time since that he would look after this work for them free of charge, and ninety-one had taken advantage of his generosity up to noon today.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon the registration of veterans had reached a total of 680. This is the record for the time, and is another indication that the attendance will be larger this year than ever before.

For tomorrow the programme includes the annual bath at 10 a.m.; Confederate's reception in the afternoon and a programme in the evening by Bartlett Logan W.R.C. of Los Angeles.

Late this afternon, I. W. Eaton, proprietor of the People's Fruit stand and one of the Illinois veterans, created something of a flutter by inviting the camp to his place for a watermelon feast. About 250 responded and when they had put away all the melon they could handle, separated with three rousing cheers for their generous host.

TOM O'BRIEN IN JAIL.

Tom O'Brien was bound over to the Superior Court here today on a charge of attempted criminal assault, and in default of bail in the sum of $2000 was lodged in the County Jail at Los Angeles. O'Brien has been wanted since August 2, the date of his alleged crime, and he was nabbed late this afternoon by Deputy Constable Fred Phillips as he was entering a restaurant on Third street. O'Brien is charged with brutally choking and beating Miss Emma Ramsted, in his attempt at a criminal assault. He was escorting the girl home from a dance the night of August 2, and forced her into the alley by the Riviera Hotel.

REDONDO.

EARNINGS STOLEN.

REDONDO, Sept. 4.—The residence of C. Baker was burglarized last evening, a purse containing all Baker's earnings for the past two months being taken. The purse was placed under a pillow and it is thought that the theft was committed by someone who was familiar with the house and the habits of Mr. Baker. Nothing else was disturbed.

BEACH WISPS.

Great preparations are being made by the younger set at the Redondo Hotel for a darky social tomorrow evening. Yards upon yards of bright-colored goods have been taken to the hotel during the past week, which are being converted into costumes.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wagner returned home today, after an extended tour of five months to their old home in Germany.

Mrs. C. Grassel and children returned yesterday after an outing for the past week at Catalina Island.

The barkentine Mary Winkleman arrived yesterday from Eureka with a cargo of lumber for Montgomery & Mullen.

The schooner Azelia departed for Eureka yesterday after discharging a cargo for Ganahl Lumber Company.

The steamer Coquelle River sailed yesterday for Cayucos after discharging 250,000 feet of lumber for Norsiger Bros.

The steamer Marsfield sailed Thursday for the north after leaving 4000 ties for the Pacific Electric Railroad.

The barkentine Gardner City departed Thursday for Eureka after discharging lumber for Pasadena and Los Angeles Lumber Company.

WHITTIER.

SCALE DESTROYERS PLACED.

WHITTIER, Sept. 4.—Horticultural Commissioner William Wood has just placed in this city nearly a dozen colonies of the scutellista or South African fly, which eradicates the black scale. The colonies came from the horticultural station at Pasadena and were placed in widely-separated localities, two colonies each finding their way to the pepper trees on the Bailey-street and Evergreen-street school grounds, and to the city park and grounds of the State School.

Charlie Cole, the eighteen-year-old son of John Cole of the Whittier Brick Company, was badly injured yesterday while at work under a fifteen-foot clay bank. A mass of the earth became loosened and struck the boy, who, besides being badly bruised, sustained a bad compound fracture of one leg.

A pretty lawn fete or Japanese social was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Jones of Bright avenue last evening, the proceeds from the Japanese supper going to swell the funds for the annual sale which the benevolent society of Plymouth Church are planning to give in about two months.

A daughter was born the first of this week to the wife of W. Price.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Parr and daughter Nora and Mrs. Parr's mother are recent arrivals from Stockton who plan to locate here.

True Taggart and little daughter Elizabeth of Fresno are guests of S. St. Johns and family.

Dr. W. H. Stokes of Oakland is a guest of F. M. Myers.

SAN DIMAS.

PROSPEROUS CITRUS UNION.

SAN DIMAS, Sept. 4.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the San Dimas Citrus Union was held today in the packing-house. Every orange grower in San Dimas, with one exception, is a member of this citrus union, which is a member of the Southern California Fruit Exchange. Reports of officers showed that the affairs of this association are on a stronger basis than ever before. During the past year 87,384 boxes of oranges were shipped, and while the market conditions were very unsatisfactory, the amount realized was $64,067, the average price being $1.46 per hundred pounds for all oranges brought into the packing-house. No fruit was sold at a loss, which is attributed to the special topographical advantages this district enjoys, it being a fact that the severest frost has never been known to touch the tenderest growth on any citrus trees owned by any member of the San Dimas Citrus Union.

The expenses of handling this product were less per box than any other packing-house in the San Antonio Fruit Exchange. D. C. Teague, L. C. Mere-dith, E. O. Thompson, W. A. Johnstone and E. W. Hart were elected directors. Adjournment was taken to the basement of the large packing-house, where tables had been laid and 487 guests sat down to a fine dinner.

At the afternoon meeting P. J. Dreher, manager of the san Antonio Fruit Exchange, addressed the meeting and explained the modus operandi of his office. He mentioned the various sources of competition which orange growers have to contend with, as well as the prospect of competition in the future from other quarters, and urged the grower to produce only the very best fruit. The survival of the fittest, he said, will eventually regulate the business. The business of the association has grown to such an extent that it was decided to enlarge the present packing-house with an additional building.

ASTORIA (Or.) Sept. 4.—Arrived: Schooner Irene, San Diego.

Young girls at this period of life, or their mothers, are earnestly invited to write Mrs. Pinkham for advice; all such letters are strictly confidential; she has guided in a motherly way hundreds of young women; and her advice is freely and cheerfully given.

School days are danger days for American girls.

Often physical collapse follows, and it takes years to recover the lost vitality. Sometimes it is never recovered.

Perhaps they are not over-careful about keeping their feet dry; through carelessness in this respect the monthly sickness is usually rendered very severe.

Then begin ailments which should be removed at once, or they will produce constant suffering. Headache, faintness, slight vertigo, pains in the back and loins, irregularity, loss of sleep and appetite, a tendency to avoid the society of others, are symptoms all indicating that woman's arch-enemy is at hand.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped many a young girl over this critical period. With it they have gone through their trials with courage and safety. With its proper use the young girl is safe from the peculiar dangers of school years and prepared for hearty womanhood.

A Young Chicago Girl "Studied Too Hard."

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to thank you for the help and benefit I have received through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills. When I was about seventeen years old I suddenly seemed to lose my usual good health and vitality. Father said I studied too hard, but the doctor thought different and prescribed tonics, which I took by the quart without relief. Reading one day in the paper of Mrs. Pinkham's great cures, and finding the symptoms described answered mine, I decided I would give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. I did not say a word to the doctor; I bought it myself, and took it according to directions regularly for two months, and I found that I gradually improved, and that all pains left me, and I was my old self once more.—LILLIE E. SINCLAIR, 17 E. 22d St., Chicago Ill."

"Miss Pratt Unable to Attend School."

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to tell all young women how much Lydia E. Pinkham's wonderful Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was completely run down, unable to attend school, and did not care for any kind of society, but now I feel like a new person, and have gained seven pounds of flesh in three months.

I recommend it to all young women who suffer from female weakness."—MISS ALMA PRATT, Holly, Mich.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the one sure remedy to be relied upon at this important period in a young girl's life.

Notice to Contractors.

OFFICE OF THE AGNEWS STATE HOSPITAL, CALIFORNIA.

UNDER AND IN PURSUANCE OF AN ACT entitled, "An act making an appropriation for the erection of water towers and tanks on the grounds of the Agnews State Hospital, and appropriating money therefor," (approved March 16th, 1903,) and in accordance with the resolution of the Board of Managers of the said Agnews State Hospital (adopted August 11th, 1903,) the Board of Managers of the Agnews State Hospital hereby invites and advertises for sealed proposals for furnishing the material and performing the labor for the erection and construction of a water tower and tanks, on the grounds of the said Agnews State Hospital, Santa Clara county, California, in accordance with the plans, descriptions, bills and specifications prepared therefor by A. H. Markwart, architect and engineer; and that contracts based upon said sealed proposals will be let, made and entered into; said plans, descriptions, bills and specifications can be seen and examined between the hours of 9 o'clock a.m. and 4 o'clock p.m. of each and every business day from the date hereof, to the date of said contract or contracts, at the office of T. S. Montgomery, Treasurer of the Board of Managers of the Agnews State Hospital, at No. 7 West Santa Clara street, San Jose, California. Separate bids will be received and separate contracts let and entered into as hereinbefore set forth, for each of the following parts of said building, erection or structure, including the furnishing of labor and materials necessary therefor, as required by an act entitled, "An act to regulate contracts on behalf of the State in relation to the erection of buildings," approved March 21, 1878, Statutes 1877-8, page 467) and the acts amendatory thereof, that is to say, for the following parts, namely: First: For the masonry work, including all brick, stone, terra cotta, and concrete work, and all necessary excavations and filling therefor; Second: For the iron and steel work; Third: For the carpenter work, including setting of tanks, roofing and other incidental wood work; Fourth: For the painting; Fifth: For the plumbing work. Said work is provided for comprising the water tower and tanks as shown on said plans, specifications, bills and specifications, including the furnishing of materials and necessary labor therefor. The work is to be done under the supervision and direction of the Commissioners of the Board of Managers of the Agnews State Hospital, acting for and on behalf of the said Board of Managers of said State Hospital.

A separate contract will be let for as many different kinds of work as are hereinbefore specified.

No bid or proposal will be received or considered unless accompanied with a good and sufficient bond of said bidder or proposer equal to 10 per cent. of his proposal or bid, with sufficient sureties, conditioned that if said proposal or bid shall be accepted the party proposing or bidding will duly enter into a proper contract and faithfully perform the same; that contract or contracts in accordance with said proposal or bid, and the said plans, descriptions, bills, and specifications, which are hereby made a part of this notice, and of any contract to be let hereafter. Said sealed bids or proposals must be delivered to the said Board of Managers of said Agnews State Hospital, or to the secretary thereof, at the office of the said Board of Managers, at No. 7 West Santa Clara street, San Jose, Santa Clara county, California, on or before the hour of 2 o'clock p.m. of 8th day of September, 1903, which is hereby designated as the time and place when said bids will be opened, and will be opened by said Board of Managers of said Agnews State Hospital, and said contracts let and made, if, in the judgment of the said Board of Managers of the said Agnews State Hospital, the acceptance of the lowest bid and sealed bids or proposals shall not be for the best interests of the State, said Board of Managers hereby reserves the right to accept any or reject any and all bids, as in their opinion may be for the best interests of the State, under and in accordance with and as provided by an act entitled "An act to amend section 4 of the said act entitled "An act to regulate contracts on behalf of the State in relation to erection of buildings," (approved March 23, 1878, Statutes 1877-8, page 467,) or to reject any or all of said sealed bids or proposals.

For further information and particulars bidding contractors are hereby referred to the Secretary of the Board of Managers of the Agnews State Hospital, at the office of the said Secretary, as hereinbefore set forth, or order of the Board of Managers of the Agnews State Hospital.

T. S. MONTGOMERY, Secretary.

Stylish Clothing for Men and Boys.

Did you ever think it out that an exclusive clothing store must pay its entire running expenses from clothing profits, and consequently must ask more for the same grades of goods than a department store where the clothing stands but a proportionate part of the entire expenses. Another thing is that with our facilities for handling enormous quantities we get the best price concessions from the manufacturers. Now in selecting our clothing stock we specially insist that the goods be made under sanitary conditions and by skilled union labor, for it is recognized that these workingmen make equally as good garments as can be put up by the most skilled tailor. It is a business policy with us to carry only such goods for we wish our patrons to be thoroughly satisfied that whatever clothing they buy here is correct in fit, style and finish. As school begins in a week or so, get the boys' school clothes ready and we can assure you that you will find some very good bargains in the subjoined list.

LABOR MASSES DETERIORATING.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—The government has appointed a commission to inquire into the alleged physical deterioration of the lower classes in the United Kingdom. The subject was brought up in the House of Commons by Sir William Abbott, parliamentary secretary of the Board of Education, declaring that 20,000 children now attending schools were physically unfit for institutions. The director of the army medical service reports that one man in every three examined for recruits had to be rejected.

RUMOR THAT TURKS HAVE CROSSED BORDER.

Berlin Newspaper Says That War With Bulgaria is in Sight.

The Porte's Council of War Recommends Sending an Ultimatum, but the Sultan Decides to Wait—Conditions Forcing the Hand of the Powers—Legations at Constantinople Warned to Provide for Their Own Protection.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BERLIN, Sept. 5.—[By Atlantic Cable.] A dispatch to the Tageblatt from Constantinople, dated today says: "War with Bulgaria is in sight. The Council of War has recommended sending an amended ultimatum to Bulgaria, but the Sultan has decided to wait. It is rumored that Turkish troops have already crossed the Bulgarian frontier, without a declaration of war.

"The members of the Council of War were up all last night at the Yildiz Kiosk, and designated Edhim Pasha as commander-in-chief.

"The Turkish press is printing inflammatory articles against Bulgaria."

FORCING POWERS' HAND.

INTERVENTION COMING SOON.
[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 5.—[By Atlantic Cable.] So threatening is the Macedonian situation that the powers are being forced to take action sooner than expected, Emperor Francis Joseph, it is now learned, has brought the powers to a stage where a decision is about to be reached regarding the character of the intervention, which should be adopted. It is authoritatively denied that the intervention contemplated the occupation of Macedonia by Austria and Russia.

"You may reiterate," said a diplomat who is participating in the negotiations, to a representative of the Associated Press, "that the powers continue to act in harmony. It is not true that Russia has entered into a secret alliance with Bulgaria. Roumania is quiescent, but there is an element of doubt in Servia, in consequence of the predominance of the military in that country."

SAFETY OF LEGATIONS.

NO GUARANTEE FROM TURKEY.
[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BERLIN, Sept. 5.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Turkish government, according to information received from the Foreign Office by the Associated Press, has notified the powers that the Porte cannot guarantee the safety of the legations at Constantinople.

This extraordinary statement was communicated without explanation or qualifying details in response to inquiries as to whether German marines were among those reported by United States Minister Leishman as having landed at Constantinople. It is inferred, however, that the conditions at the Turkish capital are not so bad as the Sultan's notification would imply, but that the legations have been warned to look out for their own safety, the Porte disclaiming in advance responsibility for any disorderly act.

The foreign officials added that the German embassy at Constantinople had not reported whether German marines had been landed, nor whether marines of any other power had been landed.

Complete official reserve is maintained on this point.

The Associated Press correspondent learned from sources outside the Foreign Office that the German government regards Turkish Balkan affairs as having entered on an acute phase.

The Porte's ability to take energetic hold of the Macedonian insurrection is the worst feature of the situation.

NO FEAR IN WASHINGTON.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—It is evident the United States government does not share any apprehension that may be felt in some quarters that there is danger for the legations in Constantinople. Minister Leishman has not asked for marines, nor has he given any indication that they will be needed.

While Admiral Cotton has reported his arrival at Beirut, he has not sent any communication as to the condition existing there, and the further movement of the squadron depends entirely upon reports which Minister Leishman and Admiral Cotton make to their respective departments.

EMBASSIES IN DANGER.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

PARIS, Sept. 5.—Ambassador Constans' latest report from Constantinople says the embassies are constantly in danger of being attacked by agitators or fanatics, but it does not mention the landing of marines. The officials here say that if marines were landed they would be from the small guardships maintained at Constantinople for police purposes, but which do not form a part of the regular fleets; that the landing of marines, if it has taken place, would not be considered a naval disembarkment in its serious sense or a preliminary war measure.

By agreement with Turkey, each of the powers maintains two guardships at Constantinople, France having two small gunboats. It is said that if the United States desires the gunboat Machias to go to Constantinople for guard duty it will be wholly a question between Turkey and the United States, as certainly France, and probably the other powers, will interpose no objection to the Machias passing the Dardinelles.

BATTLES WITH TURKS.

REPORTS FROM SOFIA.
[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

SOFIA (Bulgaria) Sept. 5.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Reports of the proceedings of the ministerial council at Varna indicate that there has been no change in the attitude of the government of the Macedonian question. For the moment the dissolution of the Sobranje forms the chief subject of discussion. The council is supposed to be devoting itself chiefly to internal affairs. The coming elections will probably afford quite as much excitement as the proceedings of the insurgents.

Bands of revolutionaries continue to cross the frontier, but scanty news of fighting in Northern Macedonia is received here. The insurgents are believed to be waiting until a larger force shall have assembled.

The latest reports from Sirbino state that three insurgent bands, assisted by peasants, were engaged with a battalion of Turkish troops. It is reported that 200 of the Turks were killed.

In a three hours' fight at Kerkikkoi, near Malkoternovo, between two companies of Turkish soldiers and a revolutionary band, the former lost twenty-five men and two officers. The insurgent loss was slight.

The Turkish forces are reported to have entirely devastated the district of Kostear, in the vilayet of Monastir, and to have burned every village in the district.

The Autonomye states that the inhabitants of fourteen villages around Prospan and Okrida have joined the revolutionaries, and that bands of insurgents, numbering 1500, are occupying strong positions in the mountains.

The numerous rumors of the mobilization of the Bulgarian army, which have been in circulation here are declared to be absolutely false. The government is sending troops to strengthen the frontier guard, which action, according to a dispatch from Rila, is likely to cause trouble between the troops and the insurgents.

DENOUNCES BULGARIANS.

WORSE THAN BASHI BAZONKS.
[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Sept. 5.—[By Atlantic Cable.] "The alliance between Greece and Turkey is solely for the purpose of reëstablishment of peace and the protection of the Greeks. We have no political alliance, but we are doing everything possible to maintain neutrality." D. G. Metaxas, the Greek Minister to the court of St. James, thus outlined the Greek view of the situation.

He also said: "The attitude of Greece is entirely misunderstood. What m ygovernment desires is the reëstablishment of Greece in Macedonia. The Greek population in that province is subjected to atrocities by the Bulgarian revolutionists. Bulgarians are worse than the Bashi Bazouks. They pose as liberators, but they really aim to Bulgarianize Macedonia. Greece seeks the welfare of the whole Christian population."

FIERCE INTENTIONS.

PLANS OF MACEDONIANS.
[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BERLIN, Sept. 5.]The Cologne Gazette publishes the report of an interview with one of the Macedonian leaders, who is quoted as saying that the Macedonian Committee controls an enormous quantity of dynamite, many guns and much ammunition, and a large sum of money, and is firmly resolved that, unless its efforts result in a war between Bulgaria and Turkey or in European intervention, to destroy the Macedonian cities with dynamite, burn the villages, and contaminate the fountains and water systems throughout the country.

Placed face to face with such an alternative, Bulgaria would prefer war, and upon this result Macedonian hopes are also based.

INFLAMING MUSSULMANS.

CONSTANTINOPLE PAPERS.
[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 5.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Although in high Turkish official circles the tendency is decidedly against war, the unrest among the military element and in certain sections of the Mussulman civil population has markedly increased during the last few days.

Considerable significance is attached to the Sultan's gift of woolen coats to the troops, and the appeal to the public for similar contributions. The local papers are further inflaming the Mussulmans by publishing highly colored accounts of ill-treatment of Mussulmans by "Bulgarian brigand bands."

The opinoin of the foreign diplomats here is divided regarding the issue. Great importance is attached to the coming meeting between the Czar and Emperor Francis Joseph, which is expected to be followed by decisive steps in the direction of guaranteeing the Macedonian radical reforms. Minister Leishman has received a telegram from United States Consul Ravndal, at Beirut, saying that the authorities at that place apparently have not yet secured the man who fired at Vice-Consul Megelssen, and adding that the arrest among others of a fifteen-year-old boy seems to indicate that they do not realize the gravity of the situation. Ravndal also refers to the general state of insecurity at Beirut and suggests that the assailant of Vice-Consul Megelssen was the same individual who attacked Megelssen one night about a year ago, with the object of robbing him. The man was imprisoned and recently liberated.

BRITISH LOSING CUBAN TRADE.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—The report of the British Minister at Havana, Mr. Cardon, on the trade of Cuba for 1902, was issued today. He says: "The prospect of the reciprocity convention between Cuba and the United States being eventually sanctioned by Congress has not failed to affect British trade by deterring Cuban merchants from accepting proposals to open up business relations with British manufacturers. There can be no doubt that with or without the reciprocity convention British merchants will have to bestir themselves if they wish to retain their present share of Cuban trade. Combination alone is likely to prove effective in maintaining our commercial position in this part of the world."

THREATENED HAY.

Crank With Alleged Grievance Against Government Placed Under Arrest—Attack on President Was Feared by Authorities.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Francis N. Beuque, 46 years of age, a photographer, was committed to Bellevue Hospital today to be examined as to his sanity. Beuque had been arrested for writing a letter to Secretary of State Hay in which he threatened the Secretary, if a claim of $41,000 was not paid. Beuque has written letters on the subject to the various Presidents and Secretaries of State since the administration of Harrison, none, however, threatening until this letter to Secretary Hay in which he declared if Mr. Hay did not attend to his claim, he would attend to Hay. Magistrate Cornell declared that he did not believe Beuque was in his right mind, and committed him to Bellevue for examination.

The Washington police state that the amount demanded by Beuque from the authorities of Hamburg, Germany, was 10,000 marks. This sum, he says, was invested in 1889 in a photographic gallery in that city and he claims to have lost it when he was expelled because he refused to perform military duty on the ground that he was an American. He was given three days to leave Germany, but through Secretary of State Blaine had the time extended to three months. The alleged threat in his recent letter to Secretary Hay was in the statement that he had written eight letters to the government to have his claim enforced and the present one would be the last. He said he would take up the matter then himself, and whatever he did would be "in self-defense." The letter, like its predecessors, was long and rambling.

AUTHORIZED STATEMENT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The following authorized statement was given to the Associated Press tonight:

"It is understood that the action in the case of Beuque, the writer of the threatening letters, was not reported at the instance of the Secretary of State. Mr. Hay received a good many such letters, and as a rule pays no attention to them. In this case the letter came into the hands of officials of the State Department, who thought it showed a disposition which might lead to mischief. Beuque's threats were not aimed especially at the Secretary of State, and it was thought probable that he would make a journey to Washington to carry them out, but being so much nearer to Oyster Bay, it was feared his disorder of mind might lead him there. For this reason it was suggested to the proper officers that the matter should be looked into.

"It was learned that Beuque had written Secretary Hay no less than 100 letters in reference to his alleged claim against Germany, and in this last communication, which hastened the determination of the officials of the department to cause his arrest, he notified Mr. Hay that he would allow him just three days to pay heed to his demands, at the end of which time he would make his move."

When asked about it tonight Secretary Hay would not say that the writer of the letter also threatened the President, but the fear expressed in the statement above that the man's state of mind might take him to Oyster Bay, would lead to the belief that he had communicated such a threat. Beuque's capture was made possible by the fact that he made no effort to conceal either his name or address, both being plainly given.

Secretary Hay has received letters from at least twenty persons, and he has heretofore paid no attention to them, but in view of the recent episode at Oyster Bay and the present case, the determination has been reached to place all such communications hereafter received in the hands of the police, in the hope of locating the writers and placing them in custody.

WASHINGTON.

COLOMBIA GETS GAY.

It is Given Calling Down by Hay.

Has Had the Temerity to Suppress Dispatches to Our Minister at Bogota.

Senators from Isthmus Said to be Ready to Return Home and Senate is Dissolving.

Revolutionary Spirit in the Air and Early Outbreak is Thought Probable.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Cablegrams from the State Department to Minister Beaupre at Bogota, and from Minister Beaupre to the department are being held up by the Colombian government. The State Department has, for some days, been absolutely without information concerning important proceedings at Bogota and finding beyond question that its dispatches were held up, has taken steps to remedy state of affairs.

Secretary Hay today formally called the attention of Dr. Herran, the Colombian charge d'affaires, to the fact that communications between the department and the American Minister has been cut off, and asking for an explanation, Mr. Hay it is said, made his communication very pointed, and suggested that regrettable consequences for both countries would result if the suppression of dispatches were persisted in.

Proof of the duplicity of Colombia, or its agents, in the suppression of official communications between the department and Minister Beaupre is obtained by the department through a dispatch from Beaupre, which accidentally, or otherwise, found its way to the department. Beaupre, in this dispatch, mentioned cablegrams he has received, some of them of much later date than those that were suppressed. The department then traced its dispatches from the telegraph office in Washington to Buena Ventura, Colombia, where the cable ends, and the telegraph line controlled by the Colombian government begins. There all trace of dispatches was lost, and inquiry on the part of the cable company in the form of a tracer brought no satisfaction.

The State Department has learned unofficially that the Colombian Senate is dissolving, and that Senators from Panama and other Isthmian States are about to return home, and perhaps join in a revolutionary movement against the government at Bogota. The news is regarded as credible by department officials, though, as usual, they are unable to speak with authority on account of the embargo placed upon Minister Beaupre's dispatches.

The patience of Secretary Hay has been exhausted by the furtive methods employed by Colombia in attempting to manipulate the canal negotiations. While not directly charging the Colombian government with holding up the official dispatches, his communication to Dr. Herran today called for a frank explanation, which if not forthcoming, will lead to further and more emphatic action on the part of this government.

Dr. Herran said tonight that he received Secretary Hay's note, and that within half an hour he had called to the Director of Posts of Colombia, who is also in charge of the telegraph lines, requesting him to look into the matter of the suppressed cablegrams, and report at once.

FIRST WINE KEPT OUT.

FRENCH ADULTERATIONS.
[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The first instance of the government's refusal to admit to this country adulterated wines under the Pure Food Act, took place today when entry was refused a shipment of white wine from Bordeaux, France. Upon analysis the wine was found to contain acid.

PAY FOR MILITIA.

IMPORTANT NEW DECISION.
[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The War Department has published a decision of the Treasurer in which he holds that any portion of the organized militia that shall engage in actual field or camp service for instruction and the organized militia of any State or Territory that shall participate in any encampment, maneuvers and field instruction of any part of the regular army, at or near any post or camp on lake or seacoast defenses of the United States, are entitled to pay, subsistence and transportation allowances for the entire period from the time when such militia start from their home rendezvous to the time of their return to their home rendezvous.

FAST FIGHTING SHIPS.

MAKING TESTS OF MODELS.
[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Tests of experimental models are being made in the model tank at the Washington navy yard for the purpose of developing the fastest fighting ship ever built for the American navy.

Some months ago the General Board of the Navy, of which Admiral Dewey is chairman, decided that the navy ought to have some scout ships. After a great amount of discussion it was concluded that some vessels of great speed, yet large enough to carry a good battery so as to put up a good fight, if necessary, were wanted. But speed was to be the primary requisite, for it was proposed that the ships should be sent out as scouts to locate the enemy, and must therefore be fast enough to get back to the home fleet with news before the enemy could arrive.

A variety of models have been built and are now being tested in the model tank here. The scouts will be about twice as large as torpedo-boat destroyers, and will have speed in the neighborhood of twenty-five knots an hour.

WRECK ON THE BURLINGTON.

OREGON (Ill.) Sept. 5.—The St. Paul and Minneapolis Limited, which left Chicago last night at 6:30 on the Burlington road, was wrecked early today half a mile east of Chana, near this city. The fireman was thrown from his engine and instantly killed. The passengers received a severe shaking up, but none of them was seriously injured. Most of those in the sleeping cars climbed out of the wreckage through the windows. The engineer jumped and escaped with slight hurts.

Spreading rails were responsible for the accident.

HARRIMAN IS AGAIN WELL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—E. H. Harriman was a passenger on the Cedric, which arrived today. Mr. Harriman was accompanied by his family. Just before sailing for Europe he underwent an operation for appendicitis and the trip abroad was for the purpose of recuperating his health. He said that he came back much improved and confident that he had fully recovered from the effects of the operation.

CRIME OF STEP-MOTHER.

SPRINGFIELD (Mo.) Sept. 5.—Mrs. Anna Bellew, aged 33 years old, today shot and killed her 15-year-old stepdaughter, and then killed herself. She left a note saying that she family into which she had married had wrecked her life, and giving directions for her burial. The woman's husband, Thomas Bellew, is an employé in the ice house of the Frisco system here.

BOY MILLINER WON PRIZE.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Earl A. Hodge, a nineteen-year-old boy, has won the prize for the best dress hat at the milliners' convention which has just ended here. He has been in Chicago a year as a hat designer. It was through the interest of a woman milliner who recently "discovered" his work that the boy milliner was persuaded to enter at the convention. Hodge sent the convention a shirred toque of velvet in two tones of the new prune shades. The lines were long and French, and at the left front of the hat two purple military pompons rose jauntily.

LABOR

ASSASSINATION IS THREATENED.

Abusive Letter is Sent to Gov. Peabody of Colorado.

Lawless Union Miners Opposed Calling of Troops.

One Thousand Soldiers in Cripple Creek District—Enemy's Cabin Dynamited.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

DENVER, Sept. 5.—The Republican today says:

"Gov. Peabody was yesterday threatened with assassination.

"On arriving at his office he received an anonymous letter threatening to kill him if he dared to call out the troops of the State in order to restore law and order in the Cripple Creek district.

"The letter was abusive in the extreme, alleging that troops were not needed."

CABIN DYNAMITED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CRIPPLE CREEK (Colo.) Sept. 5.—Giant powder was exploded last night in the rear of Samuel Lack's cabin on Bull Hill, wrecking the building. Nobody was injured. Lack has been active in prosecuting thieves, and it is believed that for this reason his enemies are striving to drive him out of the camp.

No other violence has occurred in the Cripple Creek district since the arrival of the military forces. It is thought that the mere presence of the guard will serve to quell the spirit of lawlessness which has prevailed throughout the great mining district since the early part of the week. Last night military picket posts were stationed all along the line of the Colorado Midland Railroad from Divide to Cripple Creek as a precautionary measure against any attempt that might be made to blow up the trains carrying arms and supplies to the forces. No trouble was experienced.

ONE THOUSAND SOLDIERS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

COLORADO SPRINGS Colo.) Sept. 5.—The State military forces which were ordered to the Cripple Creek district yesterday afternoon by Gov. Peabody, under the command of Gen. Chase and Adjt.-Gen. Bell, as a result of an investigation made of the labor trouble in the old camp by a special committee dispatched to the district on Thursday by the Governor, pitched camp about three-quarters of a mile from Victor at daylight this morning near the Stratton Independence mine. In the detachment are Cos. A, B and K of the First Regiment; Troops B and C of the First squadron of cavalry, the State Signal Corps, the State Hospital Corps, the Chaffee Light Artillery, all of Denver, and Cos. D and I of Colorado Springs. In all there are now about 1000 equipped militiamen in camp, and others have been ordered to the scene of the trouble by Gen. Chase, including one troop of cowboy cavalry from Meeker, Colo. By tomorrow morning the military forces will have been increased to upward of 1200 men.

TO START THE MINES.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

DENVER (Colo.) Sept. 5.—A special to the News from Cripple Creek says the usual Saturday night crowds were on the streets tonight and it was as peaceable as usual. A member of the Mine Owners' Association said tonight:

"The miners will now be given an opportunity to work and in the event of their refusal miners will be imported into the camps. The mine owners are determined to start up their mines and they will do so. Union or non-union men will not be discriminated against. They will have to go back under the agreement of 1894."

Labor Day will be celebrated by the miners on Monday as usual, notwithstanding the presence of the troops.

DENOUNCED GOVERNOR.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

VICTOR (Colo.) Sept. 5.—A mass meeting attended by several thousand citizens of Victor was held this afternoon. The speakers were strong in their denunciation of Gov. Peabody's action in sending troops to the district but counselled their hearers to treat the soldiers with consideration and respect.

BREAK AT SPOKANE.

FIVE LINEMEN GO BACK.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SPOKANE (Wash.) Sept. 5.—The first serious break here in the strike of the linemen of the Pacific States Telephone and Telegraph Company here came this morning when five strikers, after holding out two months, went back to work. All are said to be married men with families. The strikers who remain out have issued a statement stating that they are prepared to stay out two years, if necessary. The telephone girls are also still on strike.

LA JUNTA SHOPMEN OUT.

DICTATED TO THE SANTA FE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

TOPEKA (Kan.) Sept. 5.—It was announced at the Santa Fé general offices here today that the Santa Fé shopmen at La Junta had again gone on a strike. This time they made a demand that the company reinstated a union man who had been discharged, and when this was refused they walked out. It is probable that General Manager Mudge will go to La Junta in a few days to make an effort to settle the trouble.

Shaffer is Missing.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 5.—The Dispatch says that Theodore J. Shaffer, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, is missing. He dropped mysteriously out of sight and for several weeks neither his fellow-officers at the local office nor the members of his family have been able to locate him.

BISHOP HENDRICK'S HOPE.

Leaves Rome Much Encouraged With Prospect of Success for Catholic Church In Philippines.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

ROME, Sept. 5.—[BY Atlantic Cable.] Bishop Hendrick of Cebu, Philippine Islands, and Mgr. Hendrick will leave tomorrow for Venice, Switzerland, Paris and London. They will spend ten days in Ireland, and will sail from Queenstown September 22. The bishop, speaking to a representative of the Associated Press, said:

"I am most satisfied with my reception here by all the authorities, beginning with the Pope himself, as showing the high estimation in which the American clergy are held and the interest taken in Philippine affairs. The African appreciates the difficulties confronting the bishops in the Philippines, and a strong desire is felt on the part of all the bishops, spiritually and financially, in their missionary efforts.

"I feel very much encouraged by my visit to Rome. Although the difficulties are great, I have much more hope for success than when I left the United States. I think it will take a number of years to bring affairs in the Philippine dioceses into formal working condition."

By a letter dated today, Bishop Hendrick has confirmed Mgr. Pablo Zinollon as vicar general of the dioceses of Cebu, Mgr. Zinollon, who was one of the native prelates, proposed by Archbishop Guidi as bishop for the Philippines, is considered to be the best of the native priests.

FAMILY AGREED TO DIE.

Philadelphia Woman and Two Children Commit Suicide Through Fear of Woman's Divorced Husband.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]

PHILADELPHIA (Pa.) Sept. 5.—The bodies of Mrs. Rose Lebey, 35 years of age, and of her two children, Gottfried, aged 16, and Mary, 13 years, were found by the police today in their home on Germantown avenue. The mother and son lay on a couch, clasped in each others arms, and the daughter's body was lying on three chairs at the foot of the couch. The bodies were decomposed.

The police and Coroner's investigation developed the fact that the woman and her children had died from poisoning. It is believed that the family agreed to end their lives together. Charles Lebey, a brother of the dead woman, expressed the opinion that fear of her husband, Fred Linegar, from whom she was divorced, was the cause of the act.

WONDERS OF RADIUM.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—A quantity of radium of the activity of 300,000, the first of its kind seen here, will be placed on exhibition at the American Museum of Natural History, Monday. This radium, with some of 700,000 activity, has been used in connection with the Roentgen and Ultra violet rays in an investigation of the interesting properties developed in many substances, including the Dean Morgan collections of gems, several thousand in number, and some thousands of other diamonds and other gems and other minerals. Certain diamonds, it was found, exhibit and retain a wonderful phosphorescence when exposed to the radium rays, the glow of some small diamonds being clearly visible through six layers of paper. The new gem, kunzite, is one of those most phosphorescent of all the substances examined, the entire gem assuming under the radium ray a rich orange glow.

PORRIDGE FOR KENTUCKY DEMS.

WINCHESTER (Ky.) Sept. 5.—A crowd estimated from 7000 to 10,000 was present at the opening of the Democratic State campaign today. Speeches were made by Gov. Beckham, Senators McCreary and Blackburn, and Congressman Ollie James. Thousands of gallons of burgoo, a porridge, was dispensed.

CUBA.

FARCICAL "REVOLUTION."

Four Men Participated and Three Soon Died.

Little Talk Now of Annexation to United States.

Road Making Necessary—Secretary Hay May Soon Have Unpleasant Duty.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Louis Garthe of this city, who has been a frequent visitor in Cuba during the past few years, has just returned from four months' sojourn in the islands, during which he observed existing conditions there.

Mr. Garthe says the "revolution" recently reported in the eastern end of the island was started by a man who had served in the army, and who expected to organize his compatriots in a movement to force pay for their services. Three others joined the movement, which was suppressed by the rural guards, a body of men organized on the plan of the old Texas Rangers, men who shoot straight and ride hard.

Three of the four revolutionists were brought into town by the rural guards and the fourth surrendered. The three captives were dead. The revolution died with them.

There is very little talk now, according to Mr. Garthe, about annexation to the United States. The people have come to the conclusion that they can govern themselves, and even the few who favor annexation declare they would only become a part of the United States on the same terms that were granted Texas when admitted, that is, as an independent State.

Speaking of opportunities that are alleged to be found in Cuba for the small farmer, and of appeals Mr. Garthe made to the people in this country to form colonies, he said: "I have no doubt a man can raise on Cuban soil all that the circulars distributed in this country claim he can raise, but until there are some roads in Cuba, so that a man can get his product to market after he has raised it, I don't think the average American is wise to undertake farming on a small scale in Cuba. I don't see how it can profit a farmer if he raises 1000 barrels of sweet potatoes on his farm, if he cannot get his stuff to market after he has raised it, and that is the trouble now in too many cases.

"By the way, I greatly fear that before long Secretary Hay will be compelled to invite the attention of the Cuban government to that article of the Platt amendment which relates to sanitation. Havana, Matanzas and some other cities in the west and on the north coast are scrupulously clean; cleaner, indeed, than Washington and some other American cities, but down in the east municipal sanitation is little better than a farce, and sooner or later our government will be compelled to take official cognisance of their failure to carry out their obligations in this regard."

OBITUARY.

Michael O'Connor.

SAN RAFAEL, Sept. 5.—Michael O'Connor, a pioneer resident of Marin county and well known throughout the State as a successful hotel manager, is dead, aged 76. The deceased was born in Limerick, Ireland, in 1827, and came to California in 1854, after a six years' residence in Canada.

Col. José Perez.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Col. José Urioste y Perez, who took a prominent part in the war in Cuba, is dead from cancer in a new York hospital after an illness of five weeks. While visiting the island of St. Thomas several weeks ago he complained of a soreness in his throat, and was brought to this city for treatment. An operation was performed, but failed to save him.

Edward M. Collins.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 5.—Edward M. Collins, general superintendent of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad, is dead at his home here as the result of a seemingly slight accident. Several weeks ago, in descending from a car, he ran a nail into his foot, fever resulting from the injury. Collins was a native of Iowa and was well known in railroad circles.

Edward Ford.

DUTCH FLAT STATION, Sept. 5.—Edward Ford, a pioneer mining man, dropped dead at his home at Euchre Bar, North Fork of American River, near here, this afternoon.

Leon Carteri.

SAN JOSE, Sept. 5.—Leon Carteri, the capitalist, who was seriously injured in a runaway accident here July 30, died at noon today. He was a native of France, and 70 years of age. He made a fortune in stock raising in Santa Barbara and other southern counties, and came here to get the benefit of the schools for his children.

YANKEE SKIPPER WON.

Japanese Gunboat's Effort to Prevent the Stanley Dollar from Entering the Yalu Was a Failure.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

PEKING, Sept. 5.—[By Asiatic Cable.] Telegrams received here from Port Arthur give details of the reported recent stopping of the steamer Stanley Dollar, owned by an American, by a Japanese gunboat as the steamer was attempting to enter Yongampho, at the mouth of the Yalu River, Corea, to load lumber from the Russian concession on that river. The Japanese did not forcibly oppose the vessel's entering the port, but they protested strongly against her taking lumber on board.

The captain of the Stanley Dollar telegraphed to the Russian company at Tien Tsin, which had chartered the steamer, that the Japanese were preventing him from loading, and he ultimately loaded and the vessel is now supposed to be on her way to Dalny.

The Japanese Legation here is without information regarding the Japanese commander on his own responsibility or instructions from his government. If his action was due to orders from the government there is much curiosity to know how Japan intends to support her protest.

PEARY WILL AGAIN TRY TO REACH POLE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Commander Robert E. Peary, United States Navy, the well-known Arctic explorer, will make another dash for the North Pole. Leave of absence for three years has been granted him with the permission of the President, by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Darling, and he has been assured of the hearty sympathy of both these officials.

In his letter of application for leave of absence Commander Peary briefly outlines his plans of action. In a suitable ship built in one of our best ship yards, reinforced and strengthened to the maximum degree and fitted with American engines, "so that she may go North as an exponent of American skill and mechanical ability," Commander Peary hopes to start with his expedition about the first of July, next.

Upon arriving at the whale sound region, he will take on board a large number of Eskimos and establish a permanent base at Cape Sabine. Thence, he will force his way northward to Grand Island, where he hopes to establish winter quarters on the north shore. As far as practicable along the route he will establish caches. The following February, with the earliest returning light, he will start due north over the polar pack with a small light pioneer party, and following by a large main party.

In his letter of application to Acting Secretary Darling for leave of absence, Commander Peary, said:

"I should expect to accomplish the distance of the pole, and return in about 100 days, or a little more, averaging at the rate of ten miles a day. Returning I should bring the ship out late in the season and return home.

"If ice conditions this year were such as to prevent reaching the northern shore of Grand Island, I should winter as far north as practicable, and force the ship to the desired location the following year. In this event the expedition would be gone two years."

The distinctive features of Commander Peary's plan are the use of individual sledges with comparatively little loads drawn by dogs; the adoption of Eskimo methods and costumes and the fullest utilization of Eskimos.

Commander Peary believes the advantages of his plan and route are a fixed land base 700 miles nearer the pole than any other route; a more direct ice pack extending further poleward than is found on the opposite side of the pole, a wider land base on which to retreat, and a well beaten line of communication and retreat from winter quarters to comparatively low latitudes, which is practicable at any season of the year.

Acting Secretary Darling of the navy, who is a close student of Arctic work and an enthusiastic believer in the ability of American pluck and daring to find the pole, says in his letter to Commander Peary, granting him three years' leave of absence from April 1 next, that he thinks he is better equipped than any other person in the country to undertake this work. He pays a high compliment to Mr. Peary's courage and ability, and concludes his letter with this admonition:

"The attainment of the pole should be your main object. Nothing short will suffice. The discovery of the pole is all that remains to complete the map of the world. That map should be completed in our generation, and by our countrymen. If it is claimed that the enterprise is fraught with danger and privation the answer is that geographical discovery in all ages has been purchased at the price of heroic courage and noble sacrifices. Our national pride is involved in the undertaking, and this department expects that you will accomplish your purpose and bring further distinction to a service of illustrious traditions."

"In conclusion, I am pleased to inform you that the President of the United States sympathizes with your cause and approves the enterprise."

INTERESTING DETAILS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Lieut. Peary, who was granted leave of absence today by Acting Secretary Darling to make another Polar expedition, gave more information concerning his plans when seen today:

"The expedition will be financed," he said, "by the Peary Arctic Club of New York, which has raised the money for past explorations made by me. The vessel which will be used will be a wooden ship specially strengthened and powerfully reinforced, both in structure and engine power, to force her way through the ice pack and withstand enormous pressure. Heretofore the vessels used in Arctic exploration have been auxiliary sailing ships. In mine machinery will be the sole motive power.

"The Whale Sound Eskimos, who have been called Arctic highlanders number less than 200 in the entire tribe. I have lived with them four years. There are men among them with whom I would trust myself anywhere. As Many Eskimos as I can get to go with me will be in the expedition. I shall take the women and children along and establish a colony at the northern end of Grant Island, the most northerly colony in existence from which to begin my dash for the pole. Years of study have demonstrated to me the only practical way in which the pole can be reached, and this plan I have outlined in my letter to the Secretary of the Navy."

REVOLUTIONARY WAR FOR ORE TRAFFIC.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Wisconsin & Michigan Railroad and the Lake Michigan Car Ferry & Transportation Company are preparing to make a bid for the lion's share of the ore traffic of the Northwest. The railroad company has lines from Peshtigo Harbor to Norway, Mich., a distance of about seventy miles, and has made a survey for extensions north and west into the Gogebic and Menominee iron districts, which produce about eight million tons of ore yearly. To carry this ore across the lake from Peshtigo Harbor to Chicago, and ultimately to other ports, the car ferry has given orders for the construction of two mammoth ferries, capable of delivering entire trainloads of ore. When arrangements are completed the struggle will be on between the Rockefeller interests, represented by the St. Paul Railroad, and the Vanderbilt interests, represented by the Northwestern on one hand and the Wisconsin & Michigan Railroad on the other.

The prize in the contest will be over $1,000,000 annual revenue now enjoyed by Detroit controlling the ore traffic. The Wisconsin & Michigan, with the Car Ferry Company, are controlled by a close syndicate at the head of which stands John R. Walsh of Chicago. This syndicate is spending several million dollars preparatory for the struggle, and confidently expects to revolutionize the ore traffic. This feat will be accomplished, it is claimed, by the use of a car ferry which can be built at about the same cost as the ore docks necessary in the present method of handling ore

Awful Effect of Strikes in Amador County.

Barnie Terry and Frank West Engaged—No Prize Fighting For Portland.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 5.—Amador county was represented by Assessor John Marshant and other county officials before the State Board of Equalization today. The Assessor said the condition of the mining industry in Amador county is not encouraging. There is only one dividend-paying mine in operation. The Kennedy mine has not paid any dividends in the last three or four years. Last year the mine was assessed for $114,000. This year it is assessed for $138,000. The Argonaut mine has been idle since its litigation with the Kennedy mine, although it won the suit. The Argonaut mine is assessed for between $50,000 and $60,000. Labor conditions are much disturbed on account of the strikes among the miners. The town of Jackson is dependent on the mines. Whenever a strike occurs business becomes paralyzed. The dispute between the Western Federation of Miners and the American Federation of Labor has had something to do with the unsettled state of affairs in Amador county. Should any more strikes occur, the affected mines will close down permanently. There has been a decrease of 400 in the school census. Timber land is almost inaccessible. There are seventy vacant houses in Sutter Creek on account of the closing down of some of the mines. Amador's assessment roll was $4,468,890. The assessment for this year is $4,796,522.

Supervisor John Fritz was the only representative of Modoc county to appear. Modoc is a stock-raising county, although the price of stock is depreciating. The principal grain grown is wheat, twenty bushels to the acre. This year the yield was not up to that of former years. There has not been much new property added to the assessment roll. The assessment on all town property was increased and an increase on every class of property. In 1902 the assessed valuation of Modoc county, was $3,216,422. This year it is $4,674,980. Generally speaking the county is in a prosperous condition.

Calaveras county was represented by Assessor W. M. Nunner, Jr., and other officials. Its assessment last year was $3,157,980; this year it is $4,972,125. The Assessor said that some assessors claim, judging from the newspaper reports, that over 25 per cent. of the mortgages are assessed for less than their face value. In such is the case, said Assessor Nunner, the money lenders are surely not good business men, for they would not loan more than the market value to the holders of property, nor can they collect more than 10 per cent. of the mortgages are assessed for less than their face value. If such is the case only five mortgages assessed at more than the face value, and they are mortgages given under peculiar circumstances. For instance, the shares held by the State Trust Company against the Malones Mining Company for $400,000 is assessed for only $116,000. The reason that the mortgage was given in order to raise money for the purpose of prospecting and developing the mine, and if possible to put the property on a dividend-paying basis. Assessor Nunner called attention to the mortgage held by F. J. Bullock and others as trustee against the Royal Consolidated Mines of California, for $50,000, which was assessed for only $500, for the reason that the money was raised for the purpose of purchasing machinery and improving the mine. When the money has been invested in equipping the mine, besides new machinery, with a 120-stamp quartz mill, the finest in the State, if not the finest in the world. The total gain in valuation in five years was $1,344,944 was 8 per cent. In the next five years the increase was 20 per cent. The Utica mine reduced $150,000 during the year of the present Assessor's fifth assessment. Possession and title of homestead entries are assessed at $1 per acre, while agricultural and grazing land are assessed at $2 50 per acre. Average farming land is assessed at $10 per acre, and the better grade at from $15 to $20 per acre. Timber lands are assessed at from $10 to $50 per acre, while alfalfa land, $50 per acre, and bottom land $50 per acre. Water, irrigation and use of gravel ground is assessed for $2.50 per acre; quartz mines, $100 per claim; patented mineral ground, undeveloped, $10 per acre; patented quartz, undeveloped, $100 per claim; patented gravel ground, undeveloped, $10 per acre; quartz mines, $100 per claim; patented mineral ground, undeveloped, $10 per acre; patented quartz, undeveloped, from $5 to $5000. Timber lands are assessed from $3 to $10 per acre, the average price being from $4 to $5, although the Sequoia group of forty acres is assessed at $700 per acre.

MISS TERRY ENGAGED.

TO FRANK ALLEN WEST.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The announcement today of the engagement of Miss Bernie Terry, only daughter of the late Reel B. Terry, and Frank Allen West, the well-known viticulturist of the firm of George West & Son, created quite a flurry in society, as it was a complete surprise even to the intimate friends of the principals. A charming tea was given today at the home of Miss Terry, and not even a hint of what was to occur reached the guests before their arrival. Mrs. George West, Mrs. F. E. Lane, Miss West, Miss Wilhoit, Miss Ferguson and Miss Ethel Clary assisted Mrs. Terry.

Miss Terry, who is the only child of the late Reel B. Terry, one of the well-known attorneys in the State during his day, is one of the prettiest girls and the younger set of this city. Most of her life has been spent in Fresno, San Francisco and at an eastern seminary. She is a demi-blonde of numerous accomplishments.

West is one of the wealthiest business men in Stockton and is largely interested in grape culture and wine-making. Recently he returned from an extended journey to Japan and the Orient.

END OF PRIZE FIGHTING.

PORTLAND CITIZENS' CRUSADE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Sept. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Dist.-Atty. John Manning at the urgent request of the Portland Municipal Association, has decided to put an end to prize fighting in this city, and has notified the officials of the Pastime Athletic Club that they will not be allowed to pull off the Herrera-McClelland bout scheduled for Friday evening. The Municipal Association is an organization recently formed for the suppression of gambling and prize fighting, and has notified the District Attorney that its members are willing to swear to complaints on which to arrest the boxing promoters, if necessary.

Jack Day, manager of the club, was given to understand when he first arranged the bout that no objections would be raised, but the appearance of the Municipal Association, composed of business men of the city, puts a new light on the matter. It is not believed the Pastime club will persist in going ahead with arrangements for the match, although Herrera has been here from San Francisco for a week, and Jack McClelland arrived from the East tonight.

AGED LIBELER MUST SUFFER.

GOVERNOR DENIES PARDON.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 5.—Gov. Pardee today denied the application for pardon of J. B. Seeley, sentenced to six months' imprisonment in the Tulare County Jail for criminal libel. Seeley is an old man and he was given a light sentence on account of his age. He had a quarrel with a merchant in that county and distributed printed circulars, accusing the merchant of robbing widows, altering his books and doing other wrongful acts. Gov. Pardee refused to interfere, holding that as Seeley had received a light sentence for the crime of which he was convicted, he is not entitled to executive clemency.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 5.—Gov. Pardee has appointed the following directors of the Los Angeles Agricultural District: J. T. Jones, J. H. Reynolds, George R. Murdock and H. M. Dobbins. These men will take the places of others whose terms have expired.

The Governor today appointed as Supervisors for Mendocino county, A. J. Fairbanks, vice Thomas G. Long, deceased.

NEVADA OFFICERS IN CHARGE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 5.—Gov. Sparks of Nevada has acquiesced in Gov. Pardee's suggestion and Nevada officers will deliver the prisoners at Folsom. They will then present their claims for rewards to the California State Board of Examiners, but it is a disputed point whether they will be paid their expenses. If California officers brought the men their expenses would be paid. The requisition will be forwarded tonight. Convicts Murphy and Wood are in the Reno jail.

THIS YEAR'S VINTAGE.

SEASON IS NOW OPENED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—The California vintage of 1903 has commenced. From now until the advent of the heavy rains it will be in progress. The climatic conditions this year have rather tended to retard the picking of the grapes. Owing to cool weather the grapes have been slow in ripening, but with the continuance of the warm weather of the last week or so the grapes will mature rapidly and produce the requisite amount of saccharine matter.

It is agreed, that generally the crop will be of generous proportions, but even the best informed wine men hesitate to place an exact estimate of the size of the crop.

Last season was an exceptional one in this respect, 250,000 tons of grapes having been crushed, from which 25,000,000 gallons of dry wine and 15,000,000 gallons of sweet wine were obtained, a total of 40,000,000 gallons, exclusive of the brandy production. It is not thought that this vintage will be equal in quantity, but it is believed it will not be far in the rear, though owing to the condition of the market the manufacture of sweet wines will be less.

SUICIDE OF DEFAULTER.

PREFERRED DEATH TO JAIL.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) Sept. 5.—Charles H. Murfin, a local book-keeper, was accused by his employers a few days ago, of being short in his accounts. He left the office with the promise that he would make good the shortage. He disappeared, and today his dead body, with a bullet hole in the head, was found by a detective on the shores of Lake Washington. On his person was a life-insurance policy for $2000, taken out after the shortage was discovered. In a letter to his employer found on the dead man's clothes, he stated that the insurance will cover the shortage.

Murfin's wife has just ascertained that she was not legally married to the man, having been induced by him to go through what proves to have been a mock marriage.

WORLD'S FAIR.

CALIFORNIA EXHIBIT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—The St. Louis Fair Commissioners at their meeting today decided to advertise the State at the fair by a liberal display of its resources. Among other features in the California exhibit will be a fine showing of fish. One sea bass which is to be exhibited tips the scales at 450 pounds. A cheese that weighs a ton and required 22,000 gallons of milk to make it, will occupy a central position in the State building, and will be supported by a sugar pine plank four feet thick, and eleven by sixty feet.

The commissioners feel assured that California will have at St. Louis the finest forestry, horticultural and agricultural exhibit ever sent out of this State.

CREDITORS TAKE CONTROL.

OF PORTER BROTHERS COMPANY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—The California Creditors of the bankrupt fruit firm of Porter Brothers Fruit Company, which failed last spring for about $1,700,000, have finally come into active control of the affairs of the firm, and the Federal court at Chicago has given them discretionary powers for winding up its affairs or continuing the business for several years. The business will be carried on under the new name of the new Porter Brothers Company liquidation. Eleven directors have been selected, six of whom live in the East and five in this city. Of the total debts of the firm, $646,900 is owing California creditors.

SHAMROCK OIL SCANDAL.

SUIT ALLEGES CONSPIRACY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—W. S. Porter, B. E. Green and M. H. Whittier of the Green-Whittier Oil Company, each of whom owns ten shares of stock in the Shamrock Oil Company, consolidated, are dissatisfied with the action of the directors of the last-named company, and have filed a suit for an injunction restraining them from proceeding with the carrying out of certain alleged schemes, and for an order of court declaring their election as directors of the company null and void.

In the complaint for the injunction they allege that the defendants have entered into a conspiracy to injure the plaintiffs and to deprive them of their interests in the corporation. The defendants are Edward Lynch, president of the Shamrock Oil Company, consolidated; B. M. Birdsall, secretary, and E. P. Vandercook, John Treadwell and P. A. Bergerot, directors of the corporation.

EUREKA'S LIVELY FIRE.

HEAVY LOSS SUFFERED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

EUREKA, Sept. 5.—A lively fire tonight caused the department an hour's fight and caused a loss of $25,000. The flames broke out in the building at the corner of California and Cedar streets, owned by Thomas Hlitch and occupied as a wholesale and retail grocery by Salmon & Walsh. The loss on the building is $7000, and on the stock $1.50; insurance $2000.

A dwelling and barn adjoining owned by Mr. Hintchmers destroyed; loss $2500. The residence of J. Blanchard and two barns were also consumed; loss $2000. A fierce wind was blowing, and the flying sparks set fire to a barn five blocks distant from the main blaze.

WINE GROWERS WROTH.

ASSOCIATION IS DENOUNCED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

STOCKTON, Sept. 5.—There was a small attendance this morning at the meeting of the wine growers of this county to take action against the proposed putting of the wine industry under revenue laws by placing a tax on wines. After a short discussion a committee of three was named to name a committee of nine who will act as directors of the organization. A recess was then taken.

The afternoon session was largely attended and the proposition of the Wine Makers' Association to pay their price for grapes and upon their own terms was discussed at length.

The following resolution passed unanimously indicates the tenor of the feeling: "Resolved, that it is the sense of this meeting that the prices offered for grapes by the California Wine Growers' Association and the terms with regard to the deferred payments, are both unsatisfactory and unfair."

Resolutions referring sarcastically to the "kindly" submission by the Wine Growers' Association of the prices and methods of payment, together with information regarding the large acreage of grapes and the large amount of wine on hand, were also passed, and it was pointed out that the two latter points had no connection unless it was proposed to reduce the price of wines.

A committee was appointed to confer with the association to investigate the prices further, and money was subscribed to start an agent out Monday to search for important markets for wine grapes.

VICTIM OF CONVICTS.

MUST STAND HIS DAMAGES.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—When the convicts escaped from Folsom prison on July 27, they forcibly took the team of Joseph F. Silvera. Silvera presented a claim for $600 damages to the board of prison directors. The claim was submitted to the Attorney-General, who has advised the board that there is no statute authorizing the payment of such claims.

Silvera was hauling wood when the convicts suddenly pounced down on him and made him drive them up the road to Pilot Hill, where the battle took place. In the wagon were the thirteen convicts, the six guards and Silvera, who drove the team, four horses comprising it. When the posse's sheriffs and guards arrived at Pilot Hill they attempted to surround the convicts, but the escapes ordered Silvera to drive them into the timber adjacent. In order to stop that move the posse shot the horse, killing one instantly. One was afterward killed by the guards.

SLOPE BRIEFS.

PORTLAND (Or.) Sept. 5.—A coaching letter concealed in the inside of a cake was the undoing of Gee Fook, a Chinese lad, who endeavored to establish his right to remain in the United States, on the ground that he was native born. The boy's father tried to present his son with a quantity of cakes. The inspector ordered the cakes dissected, and in the center of one was discovered a thin sheet with instructions to Gee Fook written in Chinese characters.

RHEUMATISM AND TRUSTS TROUBLE JIM BUDD.

SAYS PEOPLE WERE DECEIVED BY FICTITIOUS PROSPERITY.

Former Governor is Happy, However, in the Belief That the Recent Collapse In Wall Street Has Opened the Eyes of Long-suffering Public.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Sept. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Former Gov. J. H. Budd of California, before starting for Carlsbad to take treatment for an attack of rheumatism, said today:

"The question upon which American people will be called to pass judgment next year is trusts. All other planks in the two party platforms will, I think, be secondary. Both parties will adopt an anti-trust plank. The Democrats will do it in intense earnestness. The Republicans will not fight trusts seriously. How can they? All leading Republicans are financially in trusts. Their attitude is to pretend to do something against trusts. In reality they will do nothing.

"President Roosevelt's anti-trust declarations are hollow. He has done absolutely nothing. He has not even applied the existing machinery of law. He is simply a man on horseback—an American Boulanger. The people are growing tired of spectacular ostentation. They don't like to see the President adopting the aristocratic habits of the Czar.

"It is a fictitious prosperity. Inflated values deceive them. Trusts are responsible for these deceptions. Congressional legislation can and will find a remedy. The recent collapse in Wall street opened the eyes of the long-suffering public; our producers, especially farmers, suffer from trusts, but they have reached the limit of their patience.

"Trust manipulators say to producer: 'The economic law of supply and demand must not be applied to your products; you must accept our law which will regulate the market for you.'

"The trusts don't brook competition. The moment any commodity becomes a monopoly it should be deprived of the benefit of the protective tariff. This would save the people from being plundered by trust monopolists.

NEW EXPRESS COMPANY COMING.

DENVER, Sept. 5.—The Globe Express Company, with general quarters in Denver and with a capital stock of $5,000,000, will begin active operations on October 1, succeeding to the business of the Denver and Rio Grande Express Company and the Western Express Company, and taking over all their contracts, stock and operating equipments. The company will enter the field wherever contracts can be made with railroads, and negotiations are now under way for an entrance into the Pacific Coast territory.

UNEQUALED BEAUTY OF TONE

The difference between the Chickering Pianos and all others lies principally in the superlative and unapproachable beauty of their tone. The Chickering tone is unique. No other maker has succeeded in producing it, although probably all have tried to do so.

The Chickering Piano

is recognized as the best because, from a musical point of view, it is superior to all others in the beautiful, pure, liquid tone, the perfectly balanced and responsive action, the chaste style and beautiful finish of their furniture, and their wonderful capacity for standing in tune and resisting forever, almost, the effects of constant use.

We are exclusive agents for the genuine Chickering Piano—made in Boston. Beware of imitations.

KOREAN BOY GETS HIS SCHOLARSHIP.

SOH SANG NAN, the Korean boy who won distinction in The Times scholarship contest, by winning nineteenth prize, has been made happy by being awarded a scholarship exactly to his liking.

Soh Sang Nan is a member of the Baptist Church and his ambition is to gain an education and return to Korea as a missionary. It was through the friendly offices of Rev. R. A. Henck, pastor of Bethel Baptist Church, that the Korean lad was entered in the scholarship contest. The Baptist people of Southern California rallied to his support, as did members of other religious denominations. The result was a vote so large, that The Times felt obliged to award Soh Sang Nan a valuable scholarship. He preferred a Baptist college to any other, and as there is no school of that sect in Southern California, The Times sought one out and found it in Oakland. California College is the name of the institution, and its doors have been opened to Soh Sang Nan. The president of the college, Rev. Dr. T. C. Brownson, in response to an inquiry as to the chances of obtaining a suitable scholarship for the Korean proceeds, replied as follows:

"We agree to give Mr. Soh Sang Nan a scholarship valued at $100 at least, said scholarship to include free tuition in all regular work in this college for one year, and free use of a furnished room and in addition, $7 a month for incidental expenses—the whole amounting to about $110—on condition that he enters the college and remains during the year. In addition I have secured for him a chance to earn his board by doing kitchen work."

Soh Sang Nan has accepted the terms of this scholarship and will start for Oakland some time this week to enter the college.

California College is the only school of note conducted under the auspices of the Baptist Church on the Pacific Coast. It is pleasantly situated in the outskirts of Oakland, has good buildings, an able faculty, collegiate, academic and musical department, etc. The fall term of twenty weeks begun on the second Tuesday of August, but Soh Sang Nan will be admitted whenever it suits his convenience. Readers of The Times will be interested in noting his progress, and the fortunate Korean youth has promised to let The Times know occasionally how he is getting along.

Soh Sang Nan acknowledged the award of the scholarship to him by Gen. Otis, with a neat little speech expressing his gratitude to The Times and all the people who so generously assisted him.

MISS CALLENDER'S CHOICE.

One of the most fortunate of the talented contestants is sweet-voiced Stella Callender. This charming little song bird has for some time earnestly coveted the proper development of her voice. With this hope triumphant, Miss Callender has labored assiduously and ranks among those who are to experience hope's fruition. But the question of a qualified instructor was considered of serious moment by this little vocalist, her experience in past years not encouraging her to hope for the accomplishment of her desire here. But fortune favored her.

Mrs. Lillian Jones-Simmons, a recent acquisition to local musical circles, chanced to hear Miss Callender one evening at the Murphy meetings, became interested, sought her out, and without knowledge of The Times contest, so captivated Miss Callender that she asked to be permitted to choose Mrs. Jones-Simmons as her instructor.

Mrs. Jones-Simmons came to Los Angeles but a few weeks ago, and without thought of making this her home. Conditions here, however, were so inviting she has determined to remain. Mrs. Jones-Simmons, by those who are fully acquainted with her career as a teacher of music, is regarded as without a peer in voice building, her success in voice development having been exceptional. She is a most enthusiastic musician, and a thoroughly conscientious exponent of the Lamperti method of voice culture as interpreted by William Shakespeare, of London, Eng., a master who has recognized her work as evidenced in voices coming to him after a period of instruction at her hands.

Apart from her professional ability Mrs. Jones-Simmons has a charming personality and a faculty of gaining the confidence of her pupils by evidencing a deep interest in each, refusing to continue instruction where this interest is not reciprocated, and conscientious work done.

When Miss Callender was handed her scholarship she responded to the presentation by singing "Laugh and the World Laughs With You," words by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, music by S. Seiler of San Francisco. Miss Callender has a very sweet and powerful contralto voice, and was so heartily applauded that she responded to the encore.

Mrs. Jones-Simmons was introduced to the audience, but refrained from making a speech.

TENT CITY IS JARRED BY DYNAMITE BOMB.

INTENDED FOR THE BREAKERS BUT FELL ON SAND.

Mishap Results from Use of Deadly Explosive to Drive Off Dreaded Stingarees. Former Chief of Police of San Diego Killed.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Over at Tent City dynamite is used for putting to flight stingarees, the creatures so much dreaded by bathers. The method of application is to light the fuse and then toss the explosive far out into the breakers. Today was the first time that Operator Billy Smith failed to make a go of it. His strong right arm went back on him and the stick lighted on the sand. Smith ran for his life and was fifty yards away when the thing exploded. One of his hands was mutilated by a flying object. The dynamite caused a great upheaval in the sand, and numerous panes of glass in the library, bath-house and other buildings were shattered, while the whole of Tent City was severely jarred.

EDITORIAL SPREAD.

The closing feature of the second day of the summer outing of the Southern California Editorial Association at Coronado was a banquet at the café this evening, under the auspices of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce. The café was brilliantly decorated in honor of the occasion. Covers were laid for 180 people, the gentlemen occupying the side of the table opposite the ladies.

The speech-making was commenced at 10 o'clock, an hour having been occupied with the feast. Winfield Hogaboom of Los Angeles was toastmaster, and the toasts included: Address of welcome, Mayor Frary; response, President Edgar Johnson, Fullerton; "The Chamber of Commerce," William E. Smythe; "Our Guests," Sam P. Smith; "Newspaper English," Sam T. Clover, Los Angeles; "Newspaper Men in Politics," Hon. Walter R. Melick, Pasadena; "Bay and Climate," Dr. Walter Lindley, Los Angeles; "San Diego," Patterson Spring; "Hit and Miss," Mr. Hogaboom, Los Angeles; "The National Editorial Association," J. F. Baumgartner, Pasadena; "The Free Press," Harold Hart Moore, Santa Fe; "San Diego Press," E. R. Buck, San Diego; "The Ladies," Will H. Holcomb.

This forenoon the newspaper people were taken down the bay in the government launch, Gen. DeRussey, and the quarantine boat Alert. This afternoon they saw San Diego and Coronado by trolley. Tomorrow they will attend services at the Christ Episcopal Church, Coronado, and make a pilgrimage to the caves at La Jolla.

At tonight's business meeting of the association, resolutions of thanks for many blessings were adopted.

FORMER POLICE CHIEF KILLED.

J. E. Harris, who was shot and killed last night at Selma by W. H. Shafer, was formerly Chief of Police here. He had been here from Alaska for a visit and was returning north.

NEW IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.

An enthusiastic meeting of citizens in South Los Angeles was held last night and the "South Maple-avenue Improvement Association" was formed, with twenty-four members. The new association will work for better school facilities for that neighborhood, the prompt collection of garbage, clearing up of vacant lots, the better sprinkling of streets, and a strict enforcement of the building restrictions. T. L. O'Brien was elected secretary, and the other officers will be elected at a meeting to be held next Thursday evening at the corner of Trinity and Jefferson streets.

ASSISTANT CASHIER.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Merchants' National Bank in this city the resignation of Newman Essick as assistant cashier was accepted and Henry Anderson was elected to fill the vacancy. Mr. Anderson has served the bank in the same capacity before for several years and he has had over twenty-five years of experience in the banking business.

SUSPECT CAPTURED.

Patrolman Richards made an arrest at 11 o'clock last night near Wilshire Boulevard and Park View avenue. While passing a house being erected there, he heard a noise, and upon investigation saw a man standing at a tool bench apparently searching for something. When the man saw the officer he dropped to the floor and pretended to be asleep. He was placed under arrest and gave the name of George Armstrong, saying that his home is in Redondo, but that he had come to Los Angeles four days ago. He stated that he had missed the last car, but when told that the cars were still running changed his story, and said he had just lost his way. He was locked up and an investigation will be made by the detectives.

PITH OF NEWS FROM THE MIDDLE WEST.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Fair and cool weather made up the conditions in Chicago today, the temperature varying only 2 deg., from 62 to 64. The weather map for the entire Middle West was clear, and the temperature ruled at 70 or below, except in the lower Ohio Valley, where Cairo reported a maximum of 90.

FREIGHT TUNNELS UNDER CITY.

The Illinois Telephone and Telegraph Company today announced details of its plan for handling the freight traffic in the heart of the city through its system of tunnels. Contracts have been awarded for fifty motor cars and 1500 freight cars, the equipment to be installed not later than July 1, next year. The tunnels, which are 6 feet high and 7 feet wide, are to be connected with freight yards, factories and office buildings. The work has already cost $5,000,000, and the plans, including extension of the telephone system, contemplate an expenditure of $20,000,000.

FALL OF HANKINS.

The real estate holdings of George V. Hankins, once called the "king of Chicago gamblers," when his fortune was estimated at $4,000,000, was today transfetred to John W. Mitchell, Hankins being unable to retain it. A year ago he was declared a bankrupt.

D. N. Hazen of Los Angeles is at the Palmer House.

MRS. HITT DIVORCED.

Mrs. Marion Burnham Hitt, daughter of S. W. Burnham, former clerk of the United States Circuit Court, and a noted astronomer, was granted a decree of divorce today from Addison W. Hitt, on desertion and statutory charges. Mrs. Hitt was given the custody of her two children.

DOROTHY YATES BETTER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Gov. Yates received a dispatch today from Mrs. Yates, who is at Harbor Springs, Mich., stating that Dorothy, their daughter, who is ill, is better, and that she thinks she can bring her home Monday or Tuesday.

HUNTING HIS RELATIVES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PEORIA (Ill.) Sept. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] R. Hovenden of Croydon, Eng., is in Peoria for the purpose of establishing the authenticity of the relationship which he suspects to exist between his family and the bearers of that name in Peoria. Hovenden is a retired manufacturer, and for fifteen years has been tracing the various ramifications of the family, in view, it is intimated, of the ultimate disposition of his fortune.

THEY BEAT ALL RECORDS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

KOKOMO (Ind.) Sept. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Henry Pohlman, who has been sued for divorce by Mrs. Sarah Pohlman, declares in a cross bill that his wife is a matrimonial trust. He says she has married fourteen husbands, thirteen of whom are living. On the other hand, the woman declares that before she married Pohlman, he had been married nineteen times, and that he had married and divorced one woman fourteen times.

SHEVLIN SEEKS FREEDOM.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RACINE (Wis.) Sept. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Charles Edward Shevlin, the millionaire lumberman of Minneapolis, who is under surveillance because of doubt regarding his sanity, today applied to Judge Beiden in the Circuit Court for a writ of habeas corpus, requiring those who hold him to show cause why he should not be set free.

FRANCIS WILSON'S WOES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SIOUX CITY (Iowa) Sept. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It was announced here today that suit for legal separation would be instituted at once in New York by Francis Wilson and his wife, known on the stage as June Van Buskirk. Their little boy, who was spirited away to Europe by its mother and returned only after a long chase by the father, is now at the home of the child's grandparents here. The parents have agreed to secure an order of court giving the grandparents the custody of the child.

WANT NO LEGISLATION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Interviews with bankers in thirty cities of the State and representing about seventy-five banking institutions show that there is practical unanimity in the opposition in Indiana to the Fowler Asset Currency bill, which it is proposed to reintroduce in Congress this winter. The bankers all say that conditions are good enough as they are, and that they ought to be let alone.

GEN. BALDWIN'S GREAT RIDE.

DENVER (Colo.) Sept. 5.—Gen. Frank Baldwin, commander of the Department of Colorado, with seventy-five troopers from Fort D. A. Russell, has just returned from a practical field ride in an unsettled country. The general and the troops rode 190 miles in the Medicine Bow forest reservation in less than six days, establishing a new record. Gen. Baldwin rode the horse which was ridden by President Roosevelt from Laramie to Cheyenne and which he pronounced the best horse he had ever ridden. Gen. Baldwin is over 60 years of age.

MASHERS NUMEROUS IN BERLIN.

BERLIN, Sept. 5.—The Minister of the Interior has directed the police president to organize special police in plain clothes to protect women and girls from the attentions of men on the streets. These daylight insults are probably practiced more in Berlin than in any other continental city.

SMALL BOY BOILED.

SALT LAKE (Utah) Sept. 5.—While watching the employés at work in a local slaughter-house yesterday, Ulysses Stokes, a ten-year-old boy, accidentally fell into a vat of boiling water and was so badly scalded that he died a few hours afterward.

CATARRH DESTROYS THE KIDNEYS.

GRANVILLE M. HOY, Sheridan, Ind., Past Grand, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Lodge 691, in a recent letter says:

"I suffered for years with liver complaint, causing me severe pains and a peculiar weakness across the small of the back, so that it was hard to stoop and sometimes very painful to walk or sit down. I had used so much medicine without deriving any help that I just let it go, until a neighbor was cured of Bright's disease by Peruna. That led to my using it, and before I had used ten bottles I was cured. I consider it almost miraculous."—Granville M. Hoy.

Hon. Louis E. Johnson, son of the late Reverdy Johnson, who was United States Senator from Maryland, also Attorney General under President Johnson, and U. S. Minister to England, and was regarded as the greatest constitutional lawyer that ever lived. In a recent letter from 1006 F street, N. W., Washington, D. C., Mr. Johnson says:

"No one should longer suffer from Catarrh when Peruna is accessible. To my knowledge it has caused relief to so many of my friends and acquaintances that it is humanity to commend its use to all persons suffering with this distressing disorder of the human system."—Louis E. Johnson.

Hundreds of Dollars Spent in Vain.

Mr. Cyrus Hershman, Sheridan, Ind., writes:

"Two years ago I was a sick man. Catarrh had settled in the pelvic organs, making life a burden and giving me little hope of recovery. I spent hundreds of dollars in medicine which did me no good. I was persuaded by a friend to try Peruna. I took it two weeks without much improvement, but I kept on with it and soon began to get well and strong very fast. Within two months I was cured, and have been well ever since. I am a strong advocate of Peruna."—C. Hershman.

Peruna cures catarrh of the kidneys, liver and other pelvic organs, simply because it cures catarrh wherever located. No other systemic catarrh remedy has as yet been devised. Insist upon having Peruna. There are no medicin e that can be substituted.

The claim of Peruna to being the standard catarrh remedy of the world is based upon the following facts:

It has the endorsement of innumerable hospitals.

A great number of physicians.

Over fifty United States congressmen and senators.

Tens of thousands of the masses and classes.

Peruna is not a cure-all. It cures just one disease—catarrh. It cures catarrh wherever located.

It cures catarrh of whatever kind. It cures catarrh in whatever stage or phase.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

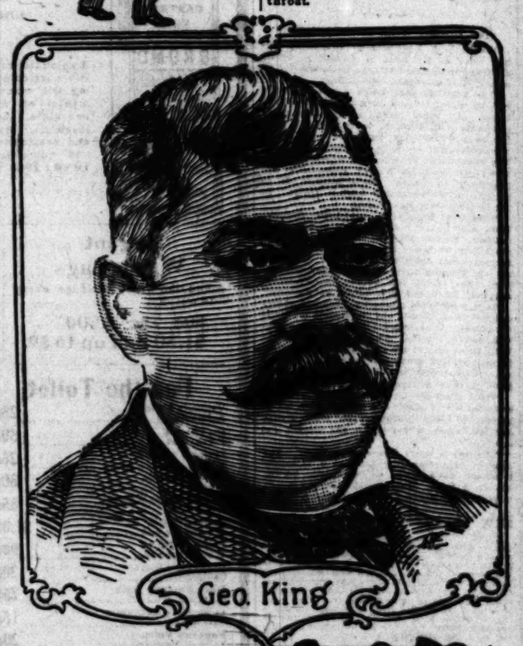
Pe-ru-na Cures Catarrh of the Kidneys.

Men of Dignity and Prominence Endorse Peruna.

Major T. H. Mara, of the First Wisconsin Cavalry Regiment, writes from 1429 Dunning St., Chicago, Ill., the following letter:

"For years I suffered with catarrh of the kidneys. I took Peruna for four months, and am now well and streng and feel better than I have done for the past twenty years, thanks to Peruna."—T. H. Mara.

Peruna cures catarrh of the kidneys with the same surety and promptness that it cures catarrh of the nose or throat.



Mr Geo. King, Deputy Sheriff of Rensellaer Co., N. Y., for years was a well known merchant of Troy. In a letter from No. 45 King St., Troy, N. Y., he writes:

"Peruna cured me from what the doctors were afraid would turn into Bright's Disease, and after you have gone through the suffering that I have with catarrh of the bladder and kidney trouble, and have been cured you are pretty apt to remember the medicine that did the work.

"Peruna is a blessing to a sick man. Eight bottles made me a well man and were worth more than a thousand dollars to me. I cannot speak too highly of it. It is now four years since I was troubled, and I have enjoyed perfect health since. Every spring and fall I take a bottle of it and it keeps me well. I freely recommend Peruna."—George King.

Of Special Interest to Tourists and Those Having Eastern Visitors.

Cut Price Sale of Souvenirs at Store No. 1, Second and Broadway.

The announcement of our special sale of souvenirs which began last Friday brought many people here who were looking for suitable gifts to send to Eastern friends. This stock of novelties includes thousands of pieces of genuine Mexican hand carved leather—a great variety of novelties made from kelp and seaweed, orange wood novelties, burnt wood novelties, burnt leather pillow covers and many other articles suggestive of California. We have made the prices very attractive, so you will have just as little trouble in finding a price to fit your purse as you will a gift to suit your fancy. The prices have been cut very low to move them out quickly. We will be pleased to have you see these goods whether you wish to buy or not.

Utopian and Bisque Ware

Beautiful assortment of Utopian and Bisque ware novelties that are particularly suitable to decorate the den, library, or parlor. We want you to see these especially because they are so pretty and the prices are so low you cannot resist buying them.

Silver Deposit Ware

Because we have decided to discontinue this line, this week we will offer you your choice of a large showing of beautiful silver deposit colognes and extract bottles at a reduction of one-third from our already popular prices. These should interest everyone. Don't fail to see this display.

Chatelaine Bags and Wrist Bags 10 Per Cent. Reduction.

We desire to call your especial attention to our leather goods department which, without doubt, is the largest of any in the city. Beautiful articles in Mexican hand carved leather at a less 10 per cent. Special display of wrist bags, which for this week will be sold at radical reductions from regular prices. Purses, bill books, match safes and other things for men at an equal saving.

Kelp, Orange Wood and Leather Novelties.

Everyone admires our collection of kelp, seaweed and burnt wood novelties. The beautiful burnt leather pillows. To add attraction to this sale, prices have been radically reduced to sell a lot of them and make room for new goods. Something in this display is sure to catch your eye, so don't fail to call and examine it. Remember, these cost you and other you nothing.

NOTICE!

The patrons of Store No. 3 at Fourth and Spring are hereby notified that this store has been consolidated with Store No. 2, at 231 South Broadway. The prescription files of Store No. 3 are now located at Store No. 2. Customers will receive the same courteous treatment and low prices at Store No. 2, that was characteristic of the Sun Store at Fourth and Spring. We hope to see all the old No. 3 patrons make their headquarters

TO WIPE OUT REFINERIES.

Standard Oil Company Seeking to Crush Opposition—Systematic Cutting of Prices the Method Employed.

With a purpose that can but be characterized as fiendish, the Standard Oil Company has inaugurated a crusade against the small refineries of the Coast.

The Standard's evident aim, in the light of past operations, is to wipe the "little fellows" from off the face of the earth.

For some time the smaller operators of the Coast have been securing considerable business at living prices, a fact that has aroused the Standard people to action. Consequent cuts in prices have of late been frequent, reducing the price of the engine distillate grade down to 10 and then to 9 cents per gallon. This reduction last week was announced to 8 cents, and 6½ cents per gallon. It is also given out that, if necessary, a decrease in the price of 1 gallon of ½ cent to 1 cent each week will be made until all opposition has been crushed out. The following speaks for itself:

STANDARD OIL COMPANY.
PETROLEUM AND ITS PRODUCTS
Los Angeles Agency, [illegible]
P. O. Address, Station A, Los Angeles, Aug. 31st, 1903.

Dear Sir: The Standard Oil Company has for some time been experimenting on the possibility of making a superior engine distillate. Their researches have succeeded beyond their expectations and are now putting out two grades of distillate—No. 1 engine distillate and No. 2 engine distillate. The prices we are quoting are very low. We quote you for Los Angeles [illegible] from barrels or drums:

No. 1 engine distillate, 8½ per gallon.
No. 2 engine distillate, 6½c per gallon.

We believe that this distillate is superior to anything that has been offered on the market, and in addition to its superior quality it will be absolutely free from [illegible]. We are in the market for distillates and will be pleased to hear from you. Kindly let us receive your valued orders, which will have our prompt and careful attention.

Yours truly,
STANDARD OIL CO.

This is but a repetition of former experiments made by the Standard. It would be difficult to find a man sufficiently credulous to assert that the Standard people are aiming to furnish the trade with oil at the lowest possible cost of production. Nor can it be contended that this great Pacific Octopus is forced to increase its volume of business. There can be but one conclusion and that is that the oil monopoly has determined upon a war of extermination for opposing interests, whether or not the refineries affected will be able to stand out against the attempt at annihilation remains to be seen, but something can be accomplished by a union of interests and concert of action.

For a time the reduction of prices by the Standard company may mislead dealers, but once their purpose is effected the former prices will be restored and, history will repeat itself and prices will take a jump.

The discovery of the body of M. A. Goldberg in the Narrows yesterday seems to all about the death of young Goldberg and his friend Charles Heinrichs of Brooklyn, who left here together on the steamer Yosemite on the morning of August 19. Heinrichs is a twenty-four launch boat behind the steamer a week ago. The missing man did not return to the steamer and the launch was found adrift. Goldberg's body was identified by his clothes on the clothing.

The discovery of the body of M. A. Bedford in the Narrows yesterday seems to end all doubt about the death of young Bedford, a friend of Charles Heinrichs of Brooklyn, who turned out from the Brooklyn Yacht Club a twenty-foot launch just before the start a week ago. The young man did not leave the stranded launch when it was found, but the stripped body was identified by letters on the clothing.

SEE TOMORROW'S

Don't Judge Clothes

By the man, but judge a man by his clothes and you're right, nine out of ten.

If his hat is two miles behind the times, there's something wrong somewhere (unless he got in the wrong store.)

If his shirt looks like an old fashioned flower garden, don't expect the man to be a sparkling genius.

If his suit hangs like a line full of washing—look out.

A man to be well dressed needn't lie awake nights figuring out how many inches his trousers should measure around the bottom.

It's our business to keep posted.

What we have here, is right. The easy way to be properly stirred is to let us help you with your wardrobe.

Any day, we'd rather burn up an article that wasn't up to snuff than to let it escape.

To the Investor:-

The brilliant record of New York City in 240 years stands as a municipal marvel unsurpassed.

In the beginning she had an undeveloped and a hostile wilderness in front of her; and, bequeathed as a legacy, an inhospitable unfriendly watery waste in the rear, yet to-day New York stands proudly three and a half millions strong, the king pin on the Knickerbocker Alleys, and the golden ball of progress thrown by the hand of time has driven her a hundred miles inland and scattered her nine sister cities about her in rich profusion---while the Rip Van Winkles were bowling in the Adirondacks.

We, Los Angeles, today on the west coast "the nation back of us, the world in front." We have the advantage of the steam ship and the limited train, the electric line and the clearing houses, the telephone and the telegraph and all the other modern inventions and facilities to focus the culmination of a similar record of growth for our city into one-tenth that period.

With this start and this impetus to become a great city shall not Los Angeles, which has outstripped in rapidity of growth and accumulation of wealth year by year every city that was its size twenty years ago, then continue to carry the banner in the onward march to greatness, and surpass all previous records?

Realty holdings here are practically a guaranteed income producing and naturally accumulative investment.

GRIFFITH ARRESTED AND UNDER BIG BOND.

Wife Makes Statement to District Attorney and Warrant is Issued.

Respondent Found at the Home of a Friend, After Long Chase—His Strange Fear That Somebody Was Going to Poison Him—Indications of Insanity from Effects of Tippling—Victim Will Recover.

STATEMENT OF MRS. CHRISTINA GRIFFITH TO ACTING DIST.-ATTY. W. P. JAMES. SEPT. 5 ABOUT 4 P. M.

"ON THURSDAY afternoon Mr. Griffith came down to the beach as he was in the habit of doing about 3 or 4 o'clock; he usually came down at that time and we went out driving for the purpose of exercising the horses. As we were to return to the city on Friday morning Mr. Griffith said that he would not take the horses out that evening and we went for a walk. We walked to the plunge and sat there a while and then went out. At a curio store we stopped and bought some souvenir postal cards and Mr. Griffith remarked that he would mail one to an uncle. After coming out of the bathhouse I had said it's warm, let us get into the air—Mr. Griffith remarked that I had better go up and commence packing, and he would go over and call on Wiley Wells. I went on to our room at the hotel and began to pack. After a while Mr. Griffith came in and said he would help me. He folded up a coat and pair of trousers of his, and I told him not to mind the little things in the dresser drawers, as I would attend to them.

"Up to this time on that day nothing of an unkind or quarrelsome character had passed between us. Mr. Griffith had been pleasant in all his actions toward me on that day. As we were packing he picked up my prayer book and came to where I was; I noticed that he looked peculiarly as he asked me the question: 'Would you swear on this prayer book the same as you would on a Bible?' I looked at him and answered, "Why, certainly.' He then said 'Get down on your knees and answer these questions.' He also told me to close my eyes. I then noticed the revolver which he was holding in his right hand and behind him. I said, 'Griffith put down that revolver; why do you hold it?' He said, 'You don't think I would hurt you with it, do you?' I again asked him to put it down, but he did not do so. He told me to close my eyes, but I was frightened and only partially closed them. He told me to answer his questions. I asked: 'Did you ever hear or know anything about Briswalter being poisoned?' I said, 'Why, no; I know that he had a sore foot and blood poisoning from that and nothing else.' He then asked: 'Have you been implicated with or do you know of any one giving me poison?' I replied, 'Why, certainly not; you surely know I have not.' His third question was: 'Have you always been faithful to your marriage vows?' I said, 'As God is my judge I have, and you know that I have.' As I answered the last question he shot me. I was on my knees, and I jumped up and rushed for the window; it was closed, but I managed to raise it and get out; I sprang out and fell to the roof below.

"For a number of years Mr. Griffith has acted as though he was afraid of being poisoned; he seemed to try to conceal that fear, but I noticed it. Even at the hotel I had to order the meal for the family as a whole, for if it came in individual orders he would exchange portions with us. Some time ago he acted peculiarly; one night he stood in the room and said sternly: 'Come in here, I want to speak to you.' His look and manner so frightened me that I ran out of the house and away to my sister's place."

A COMPLAINT charging Col. Griffith J. Griffith with the crime of assault to murder his wife was filed in Police Justice Chambers's court at 5:30 o'clock last evening, and a warrant was immediately issued for the arrest of the accused. The complaint is sworn to by Detective George Longfellow of the District Attorney's office, and the warrant was placed in the hands of a city detective for serving.

Upon request of Acting District Attorney James, Judge Chambers fixed the amount of bail at $15,000, cash or bonds.

Col. Griffith's attorney, Judge Edward D. Silent, called up the District Attorney's office and asked that no attempt to serve the warrant be made until Monday, giving as his reason that it would be practically impossible for his client to furnish the large bail Saturday night or Sunday, and that therefore Col. Griffith, if arrested, would be compelled to spend the night and Sunday in jail.

Mr. James replied that the nature of the crime charged is so serious that no delay in the serving of the warrant could be granted with propriety and added that Col. Griffith would be arrested as soon as found.

Under the circumstances, it was thought likely last night that Col. Griffith's friends would hide him away and keep him in seclusion until Monday, when he could submit to arrest and furnish the required bonds without difficulty.

The complaint charging Col. Griffith with assault to murder was filed, and the warrant issued, on the strength of the above printed sworn statement, dictated yesterday afternoon to Acting District Attorney James by Mrs. Griffith at the California Hospital. While this statement does not conflict materially with the earlier statement made by the wounded woman to her sister, and published in yesterday's Times, it is far more explicit, and is sensational in the extreme.

Mr. James says that in dictating the statement to him Mrs. Griffith's manner was composed, quiet and earnest; that she spoke without great physical effort, and seemed to wish to make the dreadful charge against her husband no harder than the actual facts required.

HUNTING AN OFFICER.

ARREST OF COL. GRIFFITH.

Last evening Judge Edward D. Silent, Col. Griffith's attorney, and William H. Knight, Col. Griffith's private secretary, called at The Times office and stated that if the officer having the warrant could be located they would tell him where to find Col. Griffith; that they had been hunting the law, instead of the law hunting the Colonel, and that the latter had in his possession a $15,000 bail bond, signed by J. S. Slauson and Robert Hale and approved by Superior Judge B. N. Smith, and would deliver it to the arresting officer upon appearance.

The City Editor of The Times telephoned this information to the District Attorney's office, and Detective Longfellow at once came to The Times office, where Judge Silent and Mr. Knight informed him that by their advice Col. Griffith was spending the evening at the home of his friend, Dr. E. N. Griffith (no relation,) at Sixteenth and Valencia streets, and there was awaiting the arrival of the arresting officer.

"We," said Judge Silent to the officer, "have been hunting somebody to serve the warrant on Col. Griffith, instead of keeping him out of the way. If you and Mr. Knight will drive to Dr. Griffith's I will pay for the carriage."

This proposal was accepted, and Mr. Knight, the officer and a Times reporter drove from The Times office to Dr. Griffith's residence.

Upon arrival at the house, at 11 o'clock, Dr. Griffith's wife stated that Dr. Griffith and the Colonel had gone out for a short walk in the hope that the stroll would quiet the latter's nerves. After a wait of about thirty minutes the two men were seen approaching on Sixteenth street, and after an introduction in which the accused man showed the greatest composure and extreme cordiality, the party entered the house.

BOND WAS READY.

"Come right in, gentlemen, you are all welcome. I have nothing to hide," said Col. Griffith, and motioned that the others should proceed him into the house. While, he said: "The warrant is hardly necessary—merely a matter of form. The bond is ready," and he handed the latter to Longfellow in exchange for the warrant which he did not open, but handed back.

There was nothing spectacular. Col. Griffith chatted in a cheerful manner, about the fig trees in the back yard, the days when he was a newspaper reporter, and the pleasantness of meeting newspaper men at any time. "Even under the unpleasant circumstances," he said, "it is a pleasure to meet you all, and I trust we will all meet again. And I hope the case will be given fair treatment." He was the last to call "Good night" from the doorway.

Perhaps no one feels the ignominy of this affair more than Col. Griffith's secretary, W. H. Knight. Both on the way out and on the return trip, he protested against the action which has been taken by the relatives of Mrs. Griffith and against the expression of public opinion. "I can not describe my feelings," he said. "Do you know how it feels when an elevator drops suddenly from under you, that feeling of dread or fear of what may happen? Well, that is the way I felt when I heard of this accusation. But it cannot be so, and I am confident that the relatives of Mrs. Griffith have influenced her to take the action which led to the arrest of Mr. Griffith. They are bullying her."

MRS. GRIFFITH CONSULTED.

The decision to swear to a warrant for the arrest of Griffith was not reached until about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when, through the action of Isidore Dockweiler, his brother J. H. Dockweiler, Mrs. L. C. Whipple, sister of the injured woman, District Attorney, W. P. James and Deputy Longfellow went to the California Hospital to consult with Mrs. Griffith, obtain her consent for the arrest of her husband, and procure a full statement from her of the shooting.

Mrs. Griffith was waited upon by the District Attorney, Mrs. Whipple and Isidore Dockweiler, J. H. Dockweiler and Deputy Longfellow waiting downstairs. The conference occupied about an hour, and was most satisfactory.

"Mrs. Griffith was very quiet and composed when we called upon her, and had already decided what course to pursue. Her mind was extremely clear, and she told her story without any agitation," said Isidore Dockweiler, when he came downstairs. "She feels that although she does not bear her husband any malice for his action, that it is best that his case should be submitted to the law. 'I fear him now,' she said. 'I believe that he was insane when he shot me, and that he is a danger to the other members of this family and the public in general. If he wishes to plead insanity as an excuse for his action, I am willing and hope that he will be placed in some private asylum.' She seems to realize that she has been under his influence in the past, but that the spell was broken when he asked her to shut her eyes and she refused to obey."

After the taking of the statement from Mrs. Griffith, the party went with all haste to the District Attorney's office, where the complaint was sworn to at a little after 4 o'clock.

SALOONS SEARCHED.

At 4:20 o'clock the warrant for the arrest was procured before Justice Chambers and then the search began. Perhaps there was a significance in the fact that every saloon in the center of the city was visited two or three times during the rest of the afternoon and it was after 7:30 o'clock before Deputy Longfellow paused in his chase to sit down to a hasty meal. It was not thought that Griffith would run from the warrant and there was no particular secrecy about the endeavor to find him. Several times the searching party was within ten minutes of its man, who had always "just left a little while before." Scores of people had seen him on the streets and he seemed to be wandering about covering the same ground. The Jonathan Club, of which he is a member, and the Hotel Fremont, where he boards, were visited several times, and although he had been in both places the trail was getting no hotter.

The fact that a warrant was out for the arrest of Griffith became generally known, and small groups gathered on the street corners and watched the passers-by for the familiar figure which they were all discussing. Griffith drank freely all afternoon and yet when the warrant was at last served upon him, he appeared sober, except for bleared eyes and a worn expression. He is said to be a man who can stand an almost unlimited amount of liquor. No less than ten miles was covered on foot by the searching party. "It wouldn't be so bad," said Longfellow, "if there was just a quail jumping up now and then at the roadside, but this peg, peg, peg, on the hard pavements is worse than laboring in a treadmill."

No more sensational hunt for a man was ever made in this city—a man so widely known, prominent in public matters and a man of large fortune.

VITAL WITNESS.

DR. CRAWFORD'S STATEMENT.

When the case comes to trial—and there are some who flout the idea that it ever will come to trial—it immense importance will be the testimony of Dr. J. H. Crawford, the Santa Monica physician, who was summoned to the Hotel Arcadia to attend Mrs. Griffith, and who was the first physician to reach her. In fact, upon the testimony to be given by Dr. Crawford and Dr. M. L. Moore, the Griffiths' family physician, who was summoned from Los Angeles and joined Dr. Crawford in the case, may hinge the result of the whole trial. These physicians will testify, if there be a trial, to the location and nature of the bullet wound, as bearing upon the hypothetical question, "Could such a wound be inflicted by a revolver held in a given position and at a given distance, with the two parties to the affair occupying certain relative positions?" In other and plainer words, "Was Mrs. Griffith shot by her husband deliberately, or was the discharge of the revolver accidental?"

Dr. Crawford gave the following statement, for publication, to a representative of The Times yesterday afternoon:

"Between 5:30 and 6 o'clock Thursday afternoon I was absent from home on a brief errand, when the telephone in my residence rang. My wife answered the 'phone, and was told by either Proprietor Wright or Clerk Smith, of the Arcadia, that Mrs. Griffith J. Griffith had met with an accident at that hotel and that my presence was desired immediately.

"I reached home a few minutes after the receipt of the message, and at once entered my carriage and drove rapidly to the Arcadia, about six blocks distant. I went at once to the room on the second floor of the hotel and was admitted. I found Mrs. Griffith partly reclining on a lounge. With her was Mr. Wright, the proprietor of the hotel. No one else was in the room. Mrs. Griffith was in a state bordering on a nervous chill. It was apparent that Mr. Wright had been engaged in doing what he could to relieve her pending the arrival of a physician.

"Mr. Wright soon afterward left the room, and I remained alone with Mrs. Griffith until the arrival some considerable time later of her sister, Mrs. Whipple of Los Angeles. I found that Mrs. Griffith's left shoulder was injured, but informed her that I would leave the examination of that injury for the family physician to make, deeming other attentions more important at the time. I, however, fastened her left arm to her body to prevent irritation by movement, and then did what else was required.

"I must absolutely decline to enter into a further description or discussion of Mrs. Griffith's injuries. You must see the impropriety of my doing otherwise. Aside from professional ethics, which ordinarily seal a physician's mouth, I may be called to testify in a criminal proceeding, and manifestly it would be entirely improper for me to enter into a discussion at this time.

"I remained with Mrs. Griffith for several hours, and after Dr. Moore had departed for Los Angeles, I remained temporary charge of the case at his request.

"You may say also that by request of Col. Griffith I arranged for an emergency alarm call in my house in case Mrs. Griffith should need medical attention during the night. Also that Col. Griffith made efforts to secure a special electric car to convey his wife to Los Angeles before morning, the physicians having advised him that Mrs. Griffith should be removed to a hospital with the least delay possible. Col. Griffith telephoned to Sherman, Playa del Rey and other stations, but did not succeed in getting the car. He appeared anxious to do all that would be natural for a husband to do in case of serious accident to his wife."

WHAT MR. WRIGHT SAYS.

Dr. Crawford's statement regarding Mr. Wright's being in the room with Mrs. Griffith when the physician arrived was repeated to Mr. Wright, and he said:

"That is entirely correct. I was with Mrs. Griffith when Dr. Crawford arrived, and had been for a brief time preceding his arrival."

"During the time that you were with her, Mr. Wright, did Mrs. Griffith make to you any statement regarding the shooting or her leaping out of the window?"

"You must excuse me from answering that question," was Mr. Wright's reply.

"Were you the first one to reach Mrs. Griffith after she had crawled from the veranda roof into the second-story vacant room?"

"That question, also, I must decline to answer. I would be pleased to tell you whatever I know regarding the unfortunate incident if I could do so with propriety, but I cannot. What I might say, or what I might not say, would or would not be prejudicial at this time, in view of a possible legal action.

"I can assure you, however, that so far as I have been able to ascertain, and I have, of course, made careful inquiry, none of the employes of the hotel heard a shot fired, and no one in the house or grounds saw Mrs. Griffith fall from the window. The published statement that one of the guests of the house witnessed from the window of her room the fall, is incorrect. The windows opening on the veranda are so situated that from only one of them—that of a room occupied by my son—could the fall have been witnessed; and no one was in my son's room at the time.

"A man, whose name I have not learned, came running to the hotel a moment after Mrs. Griffith fell. He said he had been standing across the street and had seen a woman fall from one of the hotel windows, and that immediately before the fall he had heard a pistol shot. Who this man is I do not know. His report to us and Col. Griffith's giving of the alarm were nearly simultaneous."

FIRED AT CLOSE RANGE.

Did Col. Griffith, as his wife declares in her sworn statement to the District Attorney, deliberately attempt her life, or was the revolver discharged during a scuffle between them for its possession? And if the latter version be true, as Col. Griffith declares it to be, did the wife grapple with the husband in order to save herself from his threat to murder her, or was it simply unreasoning alarm which caused her to try to gain possession of the weapon, he having picked it up or otherwise produced it casually?

On the determination of these points seem to rest the two theories of crime and accident.

It is apparent that the location and nature of the bullet wound in Mrs. Griffith's face are of vital importance in determining whether, as she says, her husband fired point blank at her while she was in a kneeling posture, or whether, as he declares, the weapon was discharged while he and she were struggling for its possession.

This fact, then, is highly important: That an examination of Mrs. Griffith's face immediately after the shooting showed as follows—the upper portion of the face was powder-burned, and powder marks were well scattered in and around her right eye; the bullet struck against the inner and upper portion of the bony wall of the orbital cavity; the bullet split as it struck the bard, sharp edge of the bone and one part of the lead passed downward and to the right, lodging behind the eyeball, while the other and smaller part passed upward, grooving the eyebrow and forehead and lodging under the scalp.

Mrs. Griffith's supporters claim that the foregoing facts show conclusively that the firing of the revolver was done by Col. Griffith exactly as described by his wife; while the husband's friends claim that the facts are proof that the weapon was discharged while its possession was struggled for by both. One point appears evident, viz., that the revolver was fired at very close range—otherwise there would have been no such powder marks.

ABSINTHE AND VERMOUTH.

Commenting upon portions of Mrs. Griffith's statement to the District Attorney, one of Mrs. Griffith's relatives has this to say:

"Putting two and two together, I am satisfied that Col. Griffith believed —or feared—that he was in danger of being poisoned by his wife. Several times recently he is known to have consulted an authority on toxicology, of whom he asked what effects certain poisons would have on the human system, and to whom he complained of indefinite symptoms, which he imagined were produced by poison having been given him in his food.

"Consider this action on Col. Griffith's part in conjunction with his questioning of his wife as described in her statement, and the natural conclusion is that he suspected her of having attempted his life by poison." did not succeed in getting the car. He appeared anxious to do all that would be natural for a husband to do in case of serious accident to his wife."

ABSINTHE AND VERMOUTH.

Commenting upon portions of Mrs. Griffith's statement to the District Attorney, one of Mrs. Griffith's relatives has this to say:

"Putting two and two together, I am satisfied that Col. Griffith believed absinthe and French vermouth, a concoction rather fatal to sanity if indulged in freely enough and long enough.

STRONG FOR PROSECUTION.

Commenting on the case, J. H. Dockweiler, a brother of Isidore B. Dockweiler, said: "I admit it has been a struggle to get some of the family to consent to the bringing of this action. Col. Griffith seems to be feared by them all. But Mrs. Griffith was so determined on the necessity of her husband's arrest that all of the relatives are now in harmony on this point.

"I am ashamed that the matter hung so long in the balance. A man of less prominence would have been jailed immediately. I wish to say that those persons who think that this case will be hushed up and that trouble will blow over do not understand the spirit of the prosecution. Col. Griffith has convicted himself out of his own mouth, and he will have to stand the consequences. I do not believe he was sane when he shot at his wife.

"We are sorry for the son. For his sake we wish that prosecution at the trial could be avoided. But the prosecution is extreme and justice will take its course. Col. and Mrs. Griffith will never again resume the relations of husband and wife. She is through with him, but her membership in the Catholic Church precludes her obtaining a divorce."

She: Do you love me as much when you are away from me?

He (fervently:) I love you more, darling.

She (sighing:) I wish I could be with you then.—[Life.

CRISIS TO COME FOR MRS. GRIFFITH.

ALTHOUGH the condition of Mrs. Griffith last night was as favorable as could reasonably be expected, it was not what her physicians considered entirely favorable. The danger point has not been passed—far from it. Upon the developments of the next forty-eight hours will doubtless depend the very life of the patient.

The ordeal of making a sworn statement to Asst. Dist.-Atty. James excited her especially, as the subject of that statement was the very one which no other persons have been permitted to even mention in her presence. As a result of this excitement a feverish condition developed, but later the fever subsided.

One of the physicians who is familiar with the case stated yesterday that symptoms of meningitis had developed and if this be true there may be grave danger to the patient. It can not be determined as yet what the effect of the loss of one eye will be upon the other.

At 2 o'clock this morning Mrs. Griffith was asleep and the hospital attendants stated that she had showed some improvement since dark last night. By tomorrow it will be known more definitely what her chances of recovery are, and while the physicians state that they believe she will recover they will not know until then what may develop.

ATTORNEY SPEAKS FOR HIS CLIENT.

AFTER the departure from The Times office of Mr. Knight and Detective Longfellow, Judge Silent dictated the following interview:

"Col. Griffith at present has no statement to make beyond what has already been given out from him. He has said that the occurrence was an accident, and as far as we are now advised he adheres to that statement.

"From my personal relations with both Col. and Mrs. Griffith I know that he has had the greatest attachment for his wife, and has at all times respected her religious preferences. On more than one occasion I have heard him say that he respected her greatly for the devotion she has shown to her church and that he felt she was a better wife and a better woman because of that devotion.

"With reference to the complaint issued this evening for the arrest of Col. Griffith on the charge of assault to murder, he heard of it for the first time at about 5 o'clock this evening. He at once instructed me to prepare a bond for $15,000, the amount required, and J. S. Slauson, a retired banker and one of the best-known and most highly-respected citizens of Los Angeles, and Robert Hale, a well-known banker of this city, became sureties.

"Judge B. N. Smith consented to come to his chambers in the Courthouse, where he approved the bond. Col. Griffith immediately went to the Sheriff's office to answer to any warrant that might be in the Sheriff's hands, he being ready to surrender the bond as soon as the warrant was produced. Not finding any one at that office, I advised Col. Griffith to retire for the night."

Only $70 Per Lot—$4 Down and $4 Per Month

We are selling quarter-acre Pasadena Villa Tract lots for $4 down and $4 per month until paid for; no interest, no taxes. Our lots are ultimately capably a good investment. We are now selling at $70, but the price will someon be raised to $100. The new Pasadena Short Line, the Monrovia and Alhambra Electric Railways now run from our tract to THE BUSINESS CENTER OF LOS ANGELES CITY IN ONLY 15 MINUTES. Such rapid transit is bound to make our quarter acre villa lots soon sell for over $100. Two more electric lines will soon run through the tract.

1000 MEN AT WORK ON HUNTINGTON SHORT LINE TO PASADENA

THEY ARE NOW WORKING AT NORTH PASADENA MAKING DIRT FLY.

The above descendants of the athletic Greeks of old have completed the Pasadena Short Line. The Greeks are not alone in the good work of development which Mr. Huntington is pushing through to completion, for they are ably seconded by the Japanese and Mexican contingents. By the timekeeper's reports over 1100 men constituted the broad-gauging into Pasadena. H. E. Huntington is entitled to the hearty co-operation of every public-spirited citizen in his great enterprise of building network of electric railways to all points in Southern California. Now is the time to buy lots in the coming residence suburb of Los Angeles—the Pasadena Villa Tract. A grand boulevard will run on both sides of the new Huntington double-tract electric railway. As the passengers sit in the luxurious cushioned seats, looking out through plate-glass windows, they will see the carriages of the wealthy rolling along over the grandest boulevard in America, starting from beautiful Eastlake Park and running to South Pasadena. It will then run through sweet-smelling orange groves and along avenues lined with palm trees, crossing the "Lucky" Baldwin Ranch and on to Monrovia. It will indeed be the "Kingsway" to the "Garden del Rey," which the famous padres of a century ago proposed they rode in on carts from Mission San Gabriel to the "City of the Queen of the Angels." It is coming. It cannot be stopped. The Hunting electric road is completed from Los Angeles to Monrovia. This grand boulevard will positively follow. People will come from all over the world to drive over it, for the beautiful Sierra Madre Mountains covered with snow, this grand boulevard will traverse a region of flowers, oranges and pretty homes of happy people, basking in the glorious sunshine of Southern California. The famous boulevards of Southern France will not equal it. The "King's Highway" from Los Angeles to Monrovia will be the finest boulevard in the world, and this region will always be the "Paradise of America." Your advantage thereof and buy lots in the coming residence suburb of Los Angeles.

WATER

Edward D. Silent & Co.,
216-18 W. Second St.,
City.

Gentlemen:—

Relative to your inquiry as to what kind of pumping machinery we are installing for the Strawberry Park Water Company, will say that our men are now engaged in erecting a 45 H.P. latest improved Lambert Gasoline and Distillate Engine with 10" drop vertical, water balanced, centrifugal pump, with all appurtenances to make it a complete and up-to-date plant with a capacity of 270 miner's inches.

This plant will be complete in about one week, and we suppose will be placed to work it one of the best plants in Southern California.

Very truly yours,

S.S.

LAND

The soil is a deep loam that will grow anything. Berries grow to perfection, as high as $800 worth of dewberries having been sold off a half-acre at Gardena, but half a mile south of this land.

All kinds of deciduous fruits grow to perfection; walnuts do well—in fact, there is no fruit that won't do well.

The location is first-class; splendid society, good schools, churches, stores, creamery; rapid transportation and frequent service.

Water supply unsurpassed (see letter herewith) and deeded with the land.

Prices $165 to $275 per acre, with water; terms satisfactory.

Call at this office for Maps, Price Lists, etc. Inspect the land and get in on the ground floor in the choicest piece of farming land offered for sale.

THREE LIVES CRUSHED OUT.

Westlake District Scene of Awful Tragedy.

Laborers Buried Alive in Veritable Death Trap.

Contractor Had Left a Six-foot Embankment Without Braces and it Gave Way.

In a veritable death trap, without a chance for their lives and without being protected by the usual means used to insure the safety of men engaged in such work, three men, all laborers, were caught yesterday afternoon under a caving sixteen-foot bank of earth at the site on which the new Hotel Leighton, is being erected at Sixth and San Joaquin streets, and buried alive under tons and tons of earth. Every possible effort was made to save them, but that was beyond human possibility. One of the men was partially uncovered, and it was found that his pulse was still beating. A physician was at hand and tried to restore the man, but while he stooped over him the poor fellow died. A moment later another section of the overhanging bank caved in and again buried him.

Much was the careless manner in which the contractor kept his records that it was impossible for him to fully identify the dead, because he had listed some of his employes only by their Christian names. As nearly as could be ascertained the names of the victims are:

MIKE JESSEY, aged 42, unmarried; roomed at the Terra Hauta House on East First street; body crushed above the hips; remains taken to Bresee Bros.' morgue.

JOHN KLANZ, aged 30, residence not ascertained even by the Coroner; broken and several ribs fractured; body taken to Bresee Bros.' morgue.

ERNEST E. SABIN, aged about 40, roomed at No. 3604 Omaha avenue, leaves a wife and family unprovided for.

Only a few feet of earth; body taken to morgue by Pierce Bros.

The only man injured, besides those who lost their lives, is John Bunch, who was in the wall of earth and barely had room to stand on the edge of the trench when he was almost buried. He managed to drag himself out of the loose mass of earth and his only injuries consisted of severe bruises about his legs and the lower portion of his body. The scene of the accident is directly on Sixth street from Westlake park, at the northeast corner of that park and San Joaquin street. There George A. Leighton is erecting a fine hotel. The contract for the work has been awarded to Charles Rahn. The contract for the excavation for foundations was sublet to C. McLain of No. 215 Lona Drive. From him, it would seem, must fall the responsibility for the death of the three men. Whether anything will be done about the matter by the authorities remains to be seen; but there is talk, which gives the coroner the right to order the arrest of any one whom he deems responsible for criminal carelessness, and it would not be surprising if Coroner Trout should exercise his authority in this direction. Deputy Coroner Roberts, upon the scene, which will be held this morning. The reason for holding them on today is that if they were held on Sunday the two scores of workmen who use the building would lose at least half a day, and by holding a Sunday inquest they will be saved that loss. The men who were caught in the bank-trap were engaged in digging the excavation for the foundation for the northern side of the building. As they started there was a hill about 16 feet high, but this hill had been cut down to the level of the sidewalk, leaving a bank about eight feet high on the side adjoining the next lot. Under this bank a ditch had been dug about eight feet in depth. The workmen found it necessary to go to such a depth, because they were working on made-ground, there having once been a deep gully there, which ran in when the street was graded. In this trench four workmen were employed at the time of the accident. On the side was about eight feet of earth, and, on the other side the wall of excavation towered above them seven feet.

NO BRACES.

Amazing as it may seem, Contractor Rahn had placed no braces against the towering wall of earth. It knew that the earth there was soft, that it was so easily worked that it was unnecessary for the workmen to use pick axes, and what excuse he could give for not placing sufficient braces against the bank to protect the men who were so far below that they had not hope to escape in the event that it caved, may be explained at the coroner's inquest.

Added to the danger and to increase the insecurity of that bank of earth, a driveway led to the top of it, and on the very edge of the pit in which the men were working, loads of dirt had been dumped, every load adding to increase the danger of the bank. It was the dumping of a load of brick that really caused the disaster.

A team had been driven to the top of the hill and the load of brick dumped on the very edge of the pit. The impact of the falling load was so great that it caused a large section of the sixteen-foot bank to break off along the entire line of the pit, and, in an instant, three lives were sacrificed to carelessness.

Fortunately, the colored laborer, who had seen the load of brick being hauled up the hill and had spoken to his fellow-workmen of the increased danger due to the additional weight upon the edge of the bank, had not been killed outright. Rather than take the chance of certain death if he remained in the trench, he began to climb out, but was not quick enough. The falling bank caught him just as he was at the edge of the trench. He shouted for assistance and other workmen at once pulled him out of the loose earth.

The poor fellows who had been left in the trench had no chance whatever for their lives. It is known that they were in the falling mass of earth completely covered, and it was found that his pulse was still beating. A physician was at hand and tried to restore the man, but while he stooped over him the poor fellow died. A moment later another section of the overhanging bank caved in and again buried him.

WILLIAM JESSEY, aged 42, unmarried; lived at the Terre Haute House on East First street; body crushed above waist; remains taken to Bresee Bros. morgue.

ANTON CRANZ, aged 39, residence not ascertained even by the Coroner; neck broken and several ribs fractured; body taken to Bresee Bros.

ERNEST E. SABIN, aged about 40, lived at No. 309 Omar avenue, leaves wife and family; suffocated under a foot of earth; body taken in charge by Pierce Bros.

The only man injured, besides those who lost their lives, is John Bunch. He saw the wall of earth caving and barely had time to scramble to the edge of the trench when he, too, was almost buried. He managed to drag himself out of the loose mass of earth and his only injuries consist of severe bruises about his legs and the lower portion of his body.

The scene of the accident is directly on Sixth street from Westlake avenue to the northeast corner of that thoroughfare and San Joaquin street. George A. Leighton is having built a fine hotel. The contract for the work has been awarded to Charles Walkie. The contract for the excavation for foundations was sub-let by Contractor McLain of No. 215 Loma Drive, and he, it would seem, must fall under responsibility for the death of the three men. Whether anything will be done about the matter by the authorities remains to be seen; but there is a law which gives the coroner the authority to order the arrest of any person whom he deems has been guilty of criminal carelessness, and it would not be surprising if Coroner Trout should exercise his authority in this case. That will depend, however, upon the evidence, which will be held this morning. The reason for holding them on Monday is that if they were held on Sunday the two scores of workmen who are engaged on the building would lose at least half a day's pay, and by holding a Sunday inquest they will be saved that loss. Many men who were caught in the death-trap were engaged in deepening the excavation for the foundation on the northern side of the building. When they started there was a hill there, but a part of this hill had been cut down to the level of the sidewalk, leaving a bank about eight feet high on the side adjoining the next lot. Under this bank a ditch had been dug about eight feet in depth. The men found it necessary to go to this depth, because they were working on made-ground, there having once been a deep gully there, which was filled in when the street was graded. The trench four workmen were employed at the time of the accident. On one side was about eight feet of sand, on the other, the wall of excavation towered above them many feet.

NO BRACES.

Strange as it may seem, Contractor McLain had placed no braces against the towering wall of earth. He knew that the earth there was soft, that it had so easily worked that it was necessary for the workmen to use their picks, and what excuse he will offer for not placing sufficient timbers against the bank to protect the men who were so far below that they had little hope to escape in the event of a cave-in, may be explained at the coroner's inquest.

Owing to the danger and to increase the security of that bank of earth, a stairway led to the top of it, and on every edge of the pit in which the men were working, loads of dirt had been dumped, every load helping to increase the danger of the men below. It was the dumping of a load of brick that really caused the disaster.

The men had been driven to the top of the hill and the load of brick dumped on the very edge of the bank. The impact of the falling brick was so great that it caused a portion of the sixteen-foot bank to break off along the entire line of the excavation, and, in an instant, three lives were sacrificed to carelessness.

Some of the colored laborers had seen a load of brick being hauled up the hill and had spoken to his fellow-workmen of the increased danger due to the additional weight upon the edge of the bank. Rather than take the chance of certain death if he remained in the trench, he began to climb out, but was not quick enough. The falling bank caught him just as he was at the edge of the trench. He shouted for assistance and other workmen at once pulled him out of the loose earth.

The three poor fellows who had been left in the trench had no chance whatever to save their lives. It is known that they were caught by the falling mass of earth coming down on them. Crans and Sabin ran toward the end of the trench while Jessey ran toward the other. The suddenness with which they were caught may be realized when it is stated that before they had gone six feet, they were almost to the bottom of the trench under many tons of earth.

DUG IN VAIN.

The work of rescue began instantly and within three minutes two score men were desperately digging to reach the men who had been buried before their eyes. They knew about where to look for the mass of earth which had fallen from the embankment had been dug and the hole, it had filled in so deep that it was impossible for them by the time it reached the place it was known that all the men were dead.

Forty minutes after the accident, the workers, who were relieved by fresh men every ten minutes, uncovered a human arm and a moment later a man's head. They had reached the body of poor Jessey. Dr. Hitt was among those who were watching the operations and when a cry went up that the man's pulse was still beating the physician instantly went into the trench and tried to revive him. The poor fellow was unconscious and there was only a faint beat of the pulse. Ten minutes sooner and his life might have been saved; but in less than five minutes after his head was uncovered, the physician pronounced him dead.

Hardly had the doctor stepped from the trench when another section of the embankment fell in, and again covered the body of the unfortunate man. It took half an hour to remove the earth sufficiently to take his body out of the trench, and then it was placed in a casket, which had been brought to the scene in Bresee Bros.' delivery wagon. Coroner Trout was on the spot, and knowing that the men were dead, he had summoned the wagons of Bresee Bros. and Pierce Bros. It was a gruesome sight. Side by side lay two caskets waiting to receive the bodies of men who were known to be buried only a few feet away. Near by in another casket in a wagon was the body of the man which had already been taken from that death pit.

For more than an hour the laborers worked before they came upon the other bodies. In order to protect them from the fate which had snuffed out the lives of their fellows, the contractor placed numerous braces against the overhanging embankment. The bodies of Crans and Sabin were found lying together, that of Sabin being underneath, and his discolored, almost blackened, face showed that he had died of suffocation. Crans's neck was broken and he must have died instantly. The bodies were lifted out of the hole and placed in the caskets, and then the laborers dispersed.

Among those who had watched the efforts to rescue the victims of the accident were a number of other contractors, and all of them expressed amazement that no precautions had been taken to protect the men against just what had happened. Coroner Trout himself declared that the death of the three men was due to somebody's carelessness, and stated that he proposed to place the blame where it belongs. Contractor McLain was too worried to make a statement, although after the accident had happened he did all that man could do to rescue his men.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much-improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

FREIGHT DEPOT LOOTED.

The police received information yesterday that during Friday night burglars had forced an entrance into the Santa Fé freight depot at Santa Anita and had stolen therefrom a large quantity of harness. There is no clew to the identity of the thieves.

Scientific Treatment CURES

DR. O. C. JOSLEN
THE LEADING SPECIALIST.

WEAKNESS
VARICOCELE
STRICTURE

I claim and prove, daily, that my special, scientific, painless and safe procedures which I evolved from modern science, surpass all other known methods for the cure of men's private ailments. They give the most speedy and satisfactory results without subjecting patients to needless suffering or jeopardizing their lives in any manner whatsoever.

I am always willing to Wait for my Fee until a Cure is Effected.

WEAKNESS.

This disorder of the functions by no means indicates general nervous debility, but is a direct result of inflammation, enlargement or excessive sensitiveness of the prostate gland brought on by early dissipation or resulting from some improperly treated contracted disorder. These conditions cannot possibly be removed by internal medicines, and any tonic system of treatment that stimulates activity of the functions can but result in aggravation of the real ailment. I dress by local methods exclusively, and my success in curing even those cases that others have failed to temporarily relieve with their tonics is conclusive evidence that my method affords the only possible means of a complete and radical cure.

VARICOCELE.

Varicocele impairs and destroys the elements of manhood. Surgery won't cure it, but always weakens the parts. I daily demonstrate that Varicocele can be positively cured without cutting, pain or detaining the patient from his business.

CONTRACTED DISORDERS.

You can depend upon a quick and thorough cure by my treatment. A quick cure is desirable, because a slow cure is apt to be no cure at all, and a chronic development will come later.

Stricture, Spermatorrhoea, Lost Vigor, Organic Weakness, Specific Blood Poison, Piles and Reflex Ailments are cured by Dr. O. C. Joslen in the shortest time and in the most thorough manner.

MY HOME CURE.

If you cannot visit me personally, write symptoms that trouble you most. You can be cured by my system of home treatment, which is the most successful system ever devised.

I make no charge for advice or personal consultation. My office hours are daily from 9 to 4. Sundays from 10 to 12—and evening 7 to 8.

HOUSE AND LOT.

The land is to be used as a site for a water reservoir, to replace that heretofore in use on Angeleno Heights. The high elevation of the lot makes it especially suitable for this purpose. The improvements to be made in connection with the new reservoir will cost about $30,000.

Buys Ranch.

John Legroa, a recent arrival from Maine, has purchased of Luke Craig, through R. E. Ibbetson & Co., fourteen acres one mile southeast of Burbank, with small ranch dwelling and barn, and eleven acres planted in alfalfa; consideration named, $4000. Purchaser will erect a substantial dwelling upon the property, and make the place his home.

Church Buys and Sells.

The lot, 100x157 feet, to a twenty-foot alley, on the east side of Hope street, between Ninth and Tenth streets, that was purchased last week of Milo Baker by the Second Church of Christ Scientist; consideration named, $13,500, is a fairly good bargain at the price quoted. A small cottage of moderate value as compared with the ground, is on the premises. The property is ultimately to be improved with a handsome brick and stone church building. As a preliminary to its recent purchase the church sold its lot, 160x150 feet, to an alley, on the west side of Beacon street, midway between Seventh and Eighth streets, unimproved, to George W. Stimson; consideration estimated, between $7000 and $8000.

For a Stock Farm.

The eighty acres, unimproved, on the north side of Vernon avenue about a quarter of a mile west of Western avenue, which was sold last week by the Davidson estate to a local investor, through Lee A. McConnell & Co., consideration named, about $22,000, is to be improved as a fine stock farm. It is well located for this purpose.

Temple Near New High.

Among the sales of the week that whereby Gen. A. S. Kimball conveyed to J. A. Kiel, through S. K. Lindley & Co., the west twenty feet of the lot 76x80 feet, on the north side of Temple street, seventy-five feet west of New High street, consideration named, $8000, is strongly indicative of an upward tendency in values in the northern portion of the business district. The lot is covered by a two-story brick building with storeroom on the first floor and offices above. The former is rented as a whole for $100 per month. The offices are rented separately. The east thirty feet of the lot is owned by an estate, and the adjoining twenty-six feet by Judge A. M. Stephens. At the rate quoted in this deal the entire property would be valued at $30,400, and the total rents received amount to more than 8 per cent. thereon. A fair interest on the estimate is thus shown, and the prospect of still further stiffening of values is clearly deducible from the figures. Thus this, as well as other portions of the city, is experiencing a share of that increase in prices which is based on increasing business, and an increasing appreciation of the future prospects of this municipality.

Vernon Park Tract.

Both home seekers and investors seem eager to secure lots in the Vernon Park tract. Grider & Hamilton report the sale of twenty-four unimproved lots during the last four days of the past week, at prices ranging from $400 to $600, and aggregating $11,-300. The lots are mostly 40x134 feet to alleys, and in subdivision 2, located about a block east of Central avenue and south of Vernon avenue. Among the sales deported are the following: To W. E. Carlson, one lot, on the north side of Forty-fifth street, between Ramona and Whitney avenues, $500; to E. S. Merrill, two lots, northeast corner Forty-sixth street and Zamora avenue, $1000; to C. E. Walker (opa), south side Forty-fifth, between Zamora and Whitney, $500; to T. N. Sherman, three, southeast corner Forty-fifth and Zamora, $1500; to V. H. Hursh one, southeast corner Vernon and Zamora, $600; to W. D. Thompson, three, southeast corner Forty-sixth and Zamora, $1400; to Dr. W. B. Woods, five, fronting on Vernon avenue between Zamora and Whitney avenues, and extending through to Forty-fifth street, $2700; to H. A. Moore, four, southwest corner Forty-eighth street and Compton avenue, $2200; to A. L. Whitney, two, south side Vernon, between Zamora and Whitney $1200, and two, northwest corner Whitney and Forty-fifth, $950. E. S. Merrill, who is one of the purchasers of property in this tract, was many years ago a resident of California, but went to Kansas City, where he had nine houses, with their contents, swept away in the recent floods. He lost no time, but sold out the land on which his houses had stood, and came back to his old stamping ground, which he is not likely to leave again.

Bought for Homes.

The large number of small but comfortable residence properties that are bought for homes is one of the strongly encouraging features of the market. It shows not merely that many people are so well pleased with this locality and the conditions surrounding it that they are desirous of taking up their permanent abode in this city, but it demonstrates also that the industrial conditions prevailing here are on such a basis as to permit an increasing number of persons of relatively modest means to be acquiring homes of their own. The following memorandum of such purchases, selected from a report of recent sales by Schenck, Tatum & Schenck, tends also to confirm the idea that the demand for small dwellings is not confined to one particular portion of the city. It includes: 50x142 feet, northwest corner Twenty-third and Oak streets, with an eight-room frame dwelling, from Leon Escallier to Anna L. Avery, $4500; 50x135 feet, west side Monmouth avenue, between Adams and Twenty-seventh streets, with an eight-room frame dwelling, from Mrs. Fannie F. Shanks to Miss Helen Davie, $3750; 50x150 feet, with six-room cottage, No. 1125 East Twenty-first street, from Harriet Mercer to Henry Timmerman, $3000; 40x134 feet, with six-room cottage, No. 1734 Dixon avenue, from Tyler & Co. to Miss Lillie Careres, $2700. Each place was bought for a home.

At South Ocean Park.

Lots in the Short Line Beach tract at South Ocean Park seem to be in demand. During the last week in August the sales of unimproved lots in that locality reported by Robert Marsh & Co., and Strong & Dickinson, aggregate about $20,000. On the first of the month prices were raised 20 per cent., but this does not seem to have scared purchasers off to any considerable extent.

The firms named report sales during the first four days of September of twenty-five unimproved lots in this locality at prices ranging from $450 to $1000, and aggregating about $14,000. Among the purchasers are: Miss M. F. Johnson, Mrs. Zena Wales, Edwin H. Voight, Dr. A. F. Schiffman, Ad Frese and Mrs. A. F. Preston.

The developing firms originally secured frontage on the ocean just south of Ocean Park of 1750 feet, and had it platted into lots and designated as Short Line Beach. More recently they acquired an additional beach frontage of 2400 feet lying just south, and the two tracts are now to be known as South Ocean Park. When the short line of the Los Angeles-Pacific Railroad Company to Ocean Park is straightened, the run to this new tract can be made, it is said, in about thirty-five minutes. The location of South Ocean Park is good. The tract is well laid out into lots averaging 50x 90 feet, and substantial improvements are provided.

In the Aiken & Cass Tract.

A fairly good demand for recently-improved residence property is noted in the Aiken & Cass subdivision. E. L. Hopper & Son, who are developing that tract, report the sale during the past week of the two dwellings last finished in that locality. One to Mrs. Flora E. Crippen, a nine-room frame house of modern design, with lot, 50x 123 feet, on the east side of Kenwood avenue, between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-ninth streets, $5500; one to Mrs. Nettie Symmes, an eight-room frame dwelling with lot of same size, in same block, 150 feet south of that last described, $5400. Both properties were bought for homes. The firm named has sold about fourteen other handsome modern dwellings in this tract during the present year, and is now putting the finishing touches on five other modern homes in the same locality. The general improvements of the new tracts in this portion of the city are of a substantial character.

Other Sales.

Other sales, some of which have already been reported in The Times, include the following:

E. E. Squires to J. M. Hunley, through Schenck, Tatum & Schenck, 50x186 feet, south side Dana street, between Romeo Place and Vermont avenue, with eight-room frame dwelling, new and modern; consideration named, $5300; fair price. For a home.

Frank Sauer to Jacob Dorn, through Althouse Bros., 50x150 feet, west side Sunbury street, 160 feet north of Tenth street, with ten-room frame dwelling, furnished, and good stable; consideration named, $7000. The price seems a little stiff, but the improvements are of a very substantial character.

C. H. Hance to Allison Houghtelling, through Mines & Parish, 50x120 feet, with eight-room frame dwelling, No. 641 Rampart street; consideration named, $5200.

S. J. Lown to J. R. Shie, through Charles O. Goodwin & Co., 50x150 feet, west side Bond street, between Pico and Fourteenth streets, with eight-room frame dwelling; consideration named, $4750. A close figure for a desirable home.

W. E. McVay to James Cussen, through W. H. Allen & Son, 49½x155 feet to an alley, with nine-room frame dwelling, No. 1123 South Flower street; consideration named, $6000. An investment. Property is well located and sould be good value at price quoted.

E. G. Howard to Samuel Snider, through Bassett & Smith, 45x202 feet to an alley, west side Santee, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets, unimproved; consideration named, $5000. Lot is beyond average depth, but price quoted shows an increase in values in the locality designated.

W. W. Watts to Miss Eva L. Martin, through Watts & Stearns, 82x 150 feet, with eight-room frame dwelling, No. 923 West Twentieth street; consideration named, $5000.

P. J. Bolin to Mrs. Margaret Miller, through the Crescent Real Estate Company, 50x148 feet, west side Millard avenue, between Pico and Sixteenth streets, with eight-room frame dwelling; consideration named, $4000. For a home.

Victor Aertker to Amadore Price, 50x147 feet, northwest corner Eighth and San Julian streets, with small frame dwelling; consideration named, $6000.

Ellen O'Neal to Catharina A. Webber, 65x150 feet, northwest corner Twelfth and Santee streets, with four valuable improvements; consideration named, $4500.

Manuel Moulton, Sacramento Helm and Louisa Rodrigues to James Mockel, about 50x110 feet, north side First street, 196 feet west of Central avenue, with small frame building; consideration named, $5000.

H. S. Rollins to A. H. Spellman, through Wright & Callender, 50x150 feet, east side Bonnie Brae, between Ninth and Tenth streets, with nine-room frame dwelling, new and modern; consideration named, $6500. For a home.

L. E. Sowers to Clinton Johnson, through W. O. Lewis, 50x120 feet, east side Lenox street, about 250 feet north of Washington street, with nine-room frame dwelling, new and modern; consideration named, $5000. For a home.

Emma W. Edwards to J. B. Dunlap, through R. E. Ibbetson & Co., 50x123 feet, south side Twenty-fourth street, 100 feet west of Congress avenue, with seven-room frame dwelling; consideration named, $3500.

George B. Campbell and Henry Troll to Mrs L. R. Stone, through same agency, 50x150 feet, west side Star street, between Pico and Fourteenth streets, with six-room cottage; consideration named, $3500.

O. G. Wilhelm to John Reedal, through Lang & Co., 50x96 feet, with six-room frame cottage, No. 1506 Vermont avenue; consideration named, $3600.

Real Estate Notes.

L. Stewart buys of Louis Kleinpeter, through Althouse Bros., 50x139 feet, unimproved, on the east side of Santee street, sixty feet south of Tenth street; consideration named, $4100. Other small sales recently reported by same firm aggregate about $10,000.

James C. Lewis buys of Strong & Dickinson, through the agency of Schenck, Tatum & Schenck, 102½x150 feet, on the northwest corner of South Park avenue and Thirty-eighth street, unimproved; consideration named, $1650, and will hold for future improvement.

Edgar L. Fulton buys of J. O. Marsh, through firm last named, 50x150 feet, unimproved, on the east side of Halldale avenue, between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-ninth streets; consideration named, $1000, and will improve. Same firm reports other small sales aggregating about $15,000.

John House buys of Mrs. A. G. Tallor, through Robert Marsh & Co., 40x 130 feet on the northeast corner of Lawrence and Tenth street, with an eight-room frame dwelling; consideration named, $3000.

The Frank B. Harbert Company reports the sale of seven unimproved lots in the Westmoreland Heights tract during the past week most of which were to actual settlers, who will build on their purchases at once.

W. A. Caldwell and A. J. Caldwell have formed a partnership in the real estate business under the firm name of Caldwell & Co.

Dr. D. Cave buys of Charles M. Stimson, a lot, 51½x134½ feet, on the south side of Shatto street, between Union and Burlington avenues, unimproved; consideration named, $1650.

Albert Rambant buys of Mrs. C. M. Chadbourn, through H. W. Lewis, thirty-one unimproved lots located on opposite sides of Soto, and adjoining streets; and east of Mission Road, on Boyle Heights; consideration named, $3100. Bought as an investment and possibly for future improvement.

Ban White, one of the active real estate agents of the city, has returned from a two months' vacation which was spent at Ocean Park with his family.

DOINGS OF BUILDERS AND ARCHITECTS.

DEVELOPMENTS IN BUILDING LINE SHOW INCREASING VIGOR.

Houses Begun and Completed in Various Parts of the City—All Descriptions of Buildings Are Included in the List.

The number of buildings completed during the week was as follows:

First Ward	5
Second Ward	2
Third Ward	6
Fourth Ward	11
Fifth Ward	9
Sixth Ward	17
Seventh Ward	4
Eighth Ward	1
Ninth Ward	5

Of these, fifty-two were dwellings and eight business buildings.

The number of buildings begun was 113, eleven of them being business buildings and the remainder dwellings, distributed as follows:

First Ward	9
Second Ward	13
Third Ward	15
Fourth Ward	20
Fifth Ward	18
Sixth Ward	29
Seventh Ward	5
Eighth Ward	3
Ninth Ward	15

In proportion to population this city is now, perhaps, spending a greater amount in building than any other city in the United States, and during the past twelve months over $12,000,000 have been thus invested in this municipality.

The number of permits issued during the first five days of the present month by Building Superintendent Krause was 160. The improvements authorized amounted to $343,080 and were divided as follows:

Ward.	No. of permits.	Valuations.
First	11	$11,265
Second	4	4,300
Third	14	133,175
Fourth	22	46,700
Fifth	22	46,715
Sixth	35	32,575
Seventh	7	25,750
Eighth	3	3,550
Ninth	20	39,075

Building Record for a Month.

Last month, Building Superintendent Krause issued 602 permits, for improvements amounting to $1,127,819, and classified as follows: One, two-story brick building, $50,000; two three-story brick buildings, $65,000; six two-story brick buildings, $61,180; four single-story brick buildings, $9000; one four-story frame building, $15,000; one three-story frame buildings, $74,700; eighty-nine two-story frame buildings, $276,381; twenty-eight story-and-a-half frame buildings, $57,700; 293 single-story frame buildings, $261,400; thirty-five frame flats, $158,820; seventy-six sheds, $10,290; thirteen brick alterations, $18,855; 111 frame alterations, $57,788; two apartments and tenements, $12,700.

In August, 1902, the number of permits issued was 425; the improvements authorized aggregated, $777,712.

In August, 1901, the number of permits was 325; the improvements authorized, $357,607.

On West Sixth Street.

As noted in The Times when the drawings were completed, Gerhard Eshman has had plans prepared by Architects Morgan & Walls, and has let to the Alta Planing Mill Company the contract for erecting a two-story brick business building at Nos. 217-219 West Sixth street. The structure complete is to cost $25,000. Work on the concrete piers and footings of the walls is now in progress. The building will have a front of buff-colored pressed brick, and it is to be finished by November 1.

Preparing for Bids.

Since the acceptance by the board of library commissioners of the plans submitted by Architects Marsh & Russell for the public library that is to be erected at Santa Monica from funds donated by Andrew Carnegie, the preparation of the detail drawings is being rushed. No delay, therefore, need be experienced in calling for bids, as soon as the return from New York of the acceptance of the contract between the supervising architects and the board of commissioners renders this step practicable. The funds for the construction of the building, $12,500, were placed in a New York bank by Mr. Carnegie for the use of the commissioners upon the presentation of this certificate, as was reported in The Times of Wednesday, together with a sketch of the building as it will appear when finished. The building, which will be a single-story brick structure, 70x50 feet, of Greco-Roman design, will be a desirable addition to the public buildings of the little seaside city for which it is intended, and it is hoped to have it finished and ready for occupancy before the close of 1904.

Building Notes.

The Case & Smurr Stove Company is preparing to erect on the north side of Third street, between San Pedro street and Central avenue, a three-story brick warehouse for use as a wholesale department for their stove and hardware business. The new building will adjoin on the east the present warehouse of the company at Nos. 443-445 East Third street. It will be Nos. 447-449 East Third street; will be a very substantial structure, 75x100 feet, with front of cream-colored pressed brick trimmed with granite, and will cost about $15,000. Work on the foundation is now in progress, and the building is expected to be ready for occupancy by the 15th of next January.

Following are among the plans for new buildings taken from the Builder and Contractor:

Architect M. Paul Martin is taking bids for a double residence of twelve rooms to be built on the east side of Westlake avenue, near Winfield street, for Mrs. J. C. Brown.

Architects Hudson & Munsell have prepared plans of a two-story eight-room frame residence, to be built at Oxnard for Jay Spence.

Architect John Parkinson is taking bids for the balance of the work on the California Club building, to be erected on the corner of Fifth and Hill streets. The stonework for the exterior walls has been let to H. Clement & Co., and the iron work to the Baker Iron Works.

Architect G. H. Ashby is preparing plans of a two-story frame building of four five-room flats to be built on the east side of Grand avenue, between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets for the McCarthy Company. They will have beam ceilings, polished floors, plate-glass windows, open plumbing, yellow pine finish.

Architect C. H. Brown is preparing plans of a two-story nine-room frame residence, to be built in Ellendale Place, for Lynn Helm. It will have brick foundation, oak floors, beam ceilings, plate-glass windows and modern features.

He has also plans for T. A. Lewis of a two-story seven-room frame residence to be built on Sunset boulevard.

Architect A. L. Haley is preparing plans for E. A. Forrester of a three-story brick rooming-house, 37x115 feet, on East Fifth street, near Maple avenue.

He has also plans for Richard Blaisdell of a three-story brick rooming-house, 40x120 feet, to be built on Los Angeles street, between Fifth and Sixth streets.

He is also taking bids for a three-story brick building, 60x90 feet, to be built on the southeast corner of Sixth and Hope streets, for Scott Alexander.

He is also preparing plans for a brick addition, 50x106 feet, of three stories for T. J. Douglass, at the southeast corner of Boyd and Los Angeles streets.

PASADENA.

Architect Joseph J. Blick has prepared plans for a two-story attic and basement frame residence, to be built on East Colorado street, near Los Robles avenue, Pasadena, for Dr. W. Humes Roberts. The specifications provide for concrete foundations, brick porch buttresses, French windows, fire places, plate and leaded glass windows, patent screens, oak, polished and double floors, Oregon pine finish, book cases, picture moulding, electric wiring, open plumbing, furnace. It will contain twelve rooms.

Architect William B. Edwards is preparing plans of a one-and-one-half-story six-room cottage, to be built on South Lake avenue, near Colorado street, Pasadena, for H. M. Seeley.

He has also plans of a five-room cottage, to be built on Villa street for O. J. Wigdall.

Architect C. W. Buchanan is preparing plans of a two-story suburban residence, 40x80 feet, with wing to be built at Altadena for W. A. Scripps of the Scripps-McRae Company. It will have twelve rooms, stone foundation, chimneys, large verandas, balconies.

Building Permits.

Following are among the permits for new buildings issued by the City Superintendent of Buildings:

For Cohn & Raphael, at Nos. 109-111 West Seventh and Nos. 654-6-8 South Main street, one-story brick building, to cost $3500.

For August Roth, at No. 1210 Albany street, two six-room flats, to cost $4000.

For A. P. Cattet, at No. 473-476 San Joaquin street, four five-room flats, to cost $7000.

Mrs. Anna W. Burke, at Nos. 2406-2414 Michigan avenue and No. 436 West Thirty-first street, and Nos. 153-241-245 North Soto street, six nine-room residences, to cost $4500 each.

For F. M. Tyler, at No. 1819 Oxford street, a two-story, eight-room residence, to cost $3000.

For G. W. Cummings, at No. 534 Lucas avenue, a two-story, twenty-room brick and stone residence, to cost $35,000.

For Mrs. Kate Miller, at No. 513 Coronado street, one-story, eight-room residence, to cost $3700.

For Mrs. Cora B. Vernon, at No. 726 East Forty-sixth street, a six-room cottage, to cost $2100.

For William F. Steele, at No. 729 Towne avenue, a two-story building of one five-room and one six-room flat, to cost $2885.

For Mrs. Isabella Hetherington, at Nos. 1326-1328 Thalia street, one five-room and one six-room flat, to cost $3300.

A recent census of China shows that that country crowded with "teeming millions," has 102 to the square mile. Belgium has 220 to the square mile; Great Britain 130 and Germany 106.

A THING WORTH KNOWING.

No need of cutting off a woman's breast or a man's cheek or nose in a vain attempt to cure cancer. No need of applying burning plasters to the flesh and torturing those already weak from suffering. Soothing, balmy, aromatic oils give safe, speedy and certain cure. The most horrible forms of cancer of the face, breast, womb, mouth, stomach; large tumors, ugly ulcers, fistula, catarrh; terrible skin diseases, etc., are all successfully treated by the application of various forms of simple oils. Cheapest Way To Paint,

Use Carrara Paints Because They Go Farther, Look Better and Cost Less Than White Lead.

Fifty Sample Colors and Illustrated Booklet Free Upon Request.

The first move to make when you want to paint your house, barn or fence is to make sure you have the right kind of paint.

The right kind is the one that will last the longest, look the best, cost the least, will preserve the wood instead of destroying it, and will not peel, chalk, or crack under the influence of a hot sun, or stain, discolor or corrode under the influences of gas, smoke, soot, dust, dirt, rain, fogs, sea air, or any climate conditions.

A paint that will fill all these conditions may be considered an ideal paint.

Such a paint is Carrara. The very fact that these are the qualities of the Carrara has led hundreds of the largest users of paint in the country to use Carrara in carload lots.

The Pullman Palace Car Co. uses it on all its fine work. The Pennsylvania road uses it on its cars, and the Denver and Rio Grande is using it on its depots.

The most aristocratic hotel in New York, the Waldorf-Astoria, has used tons and tons of Carrara, and so has the Wellington in Chicago.

In every place where paints can be used the Carrara paints are better from every standpoint than the very highest priced white lead and oil paints. Carrara paint is made by Carrara Paint Agency of Cincinnati, O.

Our Pacific Coast distributors, The Johnson-Locke Mercantile Co., 123 California St., San Francisco, or the O. C. Stahl Paint Co., 231 W. First St., Los Angeles, Cal., will send 50 free samples of different colors and our illustrated booklet. It is the only paint manufactured that always gives perfect satisfaction. Write for the samples today and save half your paint bills in the future.

"Herman Jacoby, San Pedro, says. I had catarrh of the head many years, used different remedies, but nothing ever gave me relief until I used and it cured me."

California Yerba Lip-Tus

"I suffered with catarrh of stomach in the worst form—my food would not digest, simply decayed, causing me greatest agony, and felt I would rather die than live. Grew worse under doctor's care, and hearing of the cures effected by began their use, and in ten days, I could digest my food—all pain in stomach and bowels disappeared. I now eat what I wish and enjoy my food, and truly believe Yerba Lip-Tus saved my life.—C. M. Smith, 639 Mirosa St."

GRAIN MOVEMENT. Some season expansion in interior arrivals of wheat is reported, but the movement falls short of last year's, which is also the case as to exports abroad. Foreign inquiries exist, but quotations are above the views of many customers in other countries as to both receipts and Atlantic freights. Corn moves much more freely than a year ago, but on the other hand it should not be forgotten that last year's movement was abnormally large.

Total western receipts of wheat for seven crop years thus far amount to 149,628,626 bushels, against 49,019,854 bushels during the previous year. Atlantic exports of wheat, including flour, this week were 2,169,578 bushels, against 2,980,087 last week and 3,655,- bushels a year ago. Pacific exports were 1,000 bushels, against 249,950 last week and 1,284,506 last year. Other exports were 35,675, against 35,472 last week and 1,000 a year ago. Total exports since July 1 of wheat, flour included, were 52,000,000 bushels, compared with 30,- bushels last year.

Last week's official report showed a net increase of 152,000 bushels in the domestic visible supply of wheat, making the total 12,430,000 bushels against 29,689,000 at the corresponding date last year, when for the same week there was a gain of 425,000 bushels. Total exports from all surplus countries last week were 7,445,- bushels, compared with 7,037,000 bushels in the preceding week, and 6,000 bushels a year ago. The chief decrease in shipments from the United States, while India and Argentina showed a good increase. Too much rain has fallen in spring wheat regions, interfering with harvest operations, and there is a complaint of inadequate transportation facilities at the Southwest.

This week's decrease of 212,000 bushels in the domestic visible supply made the total 6,447,000 bushels, against 29,000 bushels a year ago, when for the corresponding week there was a total of 3,885,000 bushels. Total exports from all surplus countries were 4,606,- bushels for the week, compared with 4,362,000 bushels in the week previous and 2,372,000 bushels a year ago. Russia again contributed the lion's share of the exports, making a sensational total of over 6,000,000 bushels for consecutive weeks. Although there are extremely gloomy reports are received as to the progress of the crop yield, it is generally believed and is intimated that, unless an exceptionally early frost occurs, the leading United States will secure a large crop.—Dun's Review.

GENERAL BUSINESS TOPICS.

ORANGE-FRUIT SHIPMENTS. Shipments of citrus fruits from Southern California on Friday were 12 carloads of oranges and 5 of lemons. The total shipments for the season, from November 1 to date, are 21,818 carloads, against a number 2570 carloads are MACKEREL CATCH. According to the Grocery World, the catch of shore mackerel is 10,000 barrels short of last year and 30,000 less than the year before, making the season an announced failure. The price is $12 per barrel at Gloucester, against $8@$9 a year ago. Irish mackerel at the same time were worth the same as a year ago, though there has been much larger. No Irish mackerel so far had been received, and the season's yield was very uncertain. It was expected that Irish mackerel ere long would advance to $20 as $18.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKETS.

A prominent dealer at the public market this morning said that the buyers seemed to have combined to force down prices in general. The buyers were there, but trading was light until nearly 9 o'clock.

Prices on tomatoes that had stiffened during the past two days were forced down to 20 and 30 cents today. Transactions did some better, good-sized Chileans bringing as high as $1.25. Peppers are also higher, and are selling at 75 cents and $1 per crate. Green peas are scarce again, and advanced about 1 cent.

Lima beans plentiful and lower. Celery is improving somewhat in quality and is quoted at 40 cents per dozen bunches.

Onions are fine in quality and in good demand.
